LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

One of the first things new FTU students are confronted with is the Village Center's Activity Day, where university clubs and organizations "display their wares" and sign up interested students. Becoming involved is an easy way to increase membership in the almost 80 organizations each year.

There are currently 62 active and two inactive special interest clubs at FTU. Heading this is Student Government, an elected group of representatives elected by the student body. The student president elections will be held during fall quarter and executive elections held in spring quarter.

Student Government, along with Student Affairs, approves each organization. The president of a professor is difficult to define other than the fact that they all differ. Some have a course syllabus that explicitly states expectations.

What can you expect of a professor? That he spend the class time teaching, discussing and explaining the course. Some professors allow the student to evaluate the course and teaching methods at the end of the quarter. Depending upon the student, this provides an opportunity for a positive evaluation or a method of getting back at a professor.

One of the greatest responsibilities a student has is to establish a working rapport with his advisor. The student should attempt to become acquainted with his requirements and to make certain that the advisor is offering competent advice on education.

Responsibility comes from both sides, as do expectations. It's a game where everyone puts out or no one wins.

One of the nine fraternities is Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha and Tau Kappa Epsilon. The locals are Alpha Kappa Pi, Delta Tau, Phi Alpha Epsilon, Tau Phi, Alpha Sigma Phi, and Sigma Sigma Chi. The hides and burritos will be held during winter quarter this year.

Four of the nine fraternities are national, with five on a local basis. The national organizations are Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha and Tau Kappa Epsilon. The locals are Alpha Kappa Pi, Delta Tau, Phi Alpha Epsilon, Tau Phi, Alpha Sigma Phi, and Sigma Sigma Chi. The hits and burritos will be held during winter quarter.

President, FTU

It will not be long until you will begin to settle down to a new life and learning at FTU. And you will be so much talked to, advised, welcomed and asked to change schedules, routines, and ways of doing things, that by the time the first week of classes end you will be ready to do anything. So, advised is his who hath nothing to say and cannot be persuaded to say it.

Yet I want all you to know that you are now one with us in this University. We need to work together in meeting both its problems and its opportunities. The seeking of an education is an adventure calling for the finest of character and the highest of training. There is a new thrill that opens vistas of knowledge to the person who says "I do not know." The more satisfactory thing is to come out of it all of you about the days you spend at FTU that it is an educational career is not one of repression, but of growth, purpose and service. It is extra-vivid and vitally dynamic. We will give our best, we ask for yours.

FTU Registration - The Masses Alone

If you think you'll be one of those unfortunate students who will have a conflict in registering this fall quarter, try to design some form of the thought that you want to do.

There have been 12 quarter registrations during the FTU fall quarter registration problem this fall, try to design some form of the thought that you want to do.

For the last two years, the computer has been used as a backup system in case of computer trouble at Gainesville.

The registrar, students who have had course conflicts, had to wind their way through the second and third floors of the Library Building.

The Library registration presented some problems. There were several students, who if they had course conflicts, had to wind their way to the correct station, but also for registration officials.

Register W. Dan Chapman said there were "last minute sign-up situations," and students would try to beat their scheduled appointment time by registering backdoors. However, this was not the case, since they had not been able to obtain lead cards necessary to complete registration.

The computer was turned over to the Village Center when it did not interfere with lunch schedules. Under that system, last fall was the first time that a student and registration was restricted to a large downstairs area of the Library Building.

In spring, 1971 the university switched from a "walk-in" registration to the "on-line" system of preregistration. Under this system, computer hookups with the University of Florida's data center in Gainesville and registration was restricted to a large downstairs area of the Library Building.

A variation during regular registration called for students to proceed to the Computer Center to obtain their fee assessment and class schedule immediately, instead of waiting for them to be mailed.

Fall registration will combine the "walk-by" and "walk-out" systems and will be used as a backup system in case of computer trouble at Gainesville.

The registrar's office will be last fall as students were under the clock this year if you can call being with at least 1,000 other people being....

Projected enrollment for fall quarter is set at 6,500, give or take a few hundred. It will probably be within 5,000 to 7,000, but past figures have any powers of prediction.

The FTU opened in fall, 1969, enrollment was 1,492, a nice increase for the first year of a new class of university. In fall, 1969, enrollment was doubled to 2,000 registered. The population count shot up at 150 in 1970, and at 5,119, an increase of more than two and a half times.

Future projections place enrollment for fall 1972 between 7,500 and 8,000 (depending on whose figures you prefer to quote) and for fall, 1972 between 8,000 and 8,500.

For another indication of FTU's growth, actual enrollment figures may be compared with projections released by the University of Florida for fall, 1969. The Regents estimated the 1971 fall enrollment would be 1,427.

Expectations of those 1969 figures, FTU enrollment is ahead of projections by about two and a half years. (The 1972 enrollment was set at 4,902, the 1973 enrollment at 5,882 and the 1974 enrollment at 7,176.)

Just try to remember those figures when you're standing in those registration lines and know you are not alone as much as you might wish you were!
