Citizens Committee Makes Education Recommendations

The following is the first of a two-part series on the education crisis in Florida. Part I will include a summary of recent problems and controversies and the recommendations of the Governor's Citizens Committee on Education. Part II will feature reactions and opinions of the committee's evaluation from Florida administrators and local politicians.

The Florida state education system is in a state of flux. Present governing methods have been deemed inadequate and inadequate by the state legislature. Under fire for its controversial policies and opinions has been the Florida Board of Regents. Some have suggested that complete dissolution of the Regents, others have implied that boards of trustees would be more adequate, and still others feel that the job of governing education belongs to the state legislature. On the kindergarten through twelfth grade scene, a major issue has been that of the role of the superintendent of schools. Should he be elected or appointed? What should be his role in the government of the local public school system? In answer to these questions and problems, the state legislature appropriated funds to set up a committee to investigate and to suggest an appropriate course of action. The Governor's Citizens Committee on Education has accepted its summary recommendations on education for the state of Florida. The committee was formed through the efforts of the state legislature, according to Florida Governor Reuben Askew.

The recommendations have been accepted by the Senate and Governor, and are currently in the Senate and House Education committees awaiting presentation to the legislature. The major effect of the suggestions of the Board of Regents is to create an educational hierarchy including a state board of education, a chief state school officer and boards of trustees on the junior college and university levels. The board of education would be composed of lay members responsible to the citizens for all levels of education. The board would be appointed by a constitutional amendment. It's 15 members would be appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate, with the Governor's approval or disapproval. The board members would serve staggered six-year terms and would receive travel and per diem expenses in accordance with state regulations.

The role of the board of trustees would be one of policy-making, and this responsibility would be kept in line with its policy, monitoring the implementation of its policies and observing the need for legislation. There would be no statutory constraints placed upon the board as it is external to internal administration. For carrying out its responsibilities, the chief state school officer would be established by a constitutional amendment. His appointment would be made by the Governor or disapproved by the State Board of Education, and the officer would be subject to approval or disapproval by the Senate. The board would be free to establish professional development programs. The chief state school officer would be required to pursue implementation of the board's policies and priorities. The officer would serve at the pleasure of the board of trustees, and could not receive a contract of up to two years, renewable by the board of trustees. His responsibilities would include recommending budget, policies and priorities to the Board of Regents, recommending education programs to the board, and presenting the board's recommendations to the citizens for approval.

March 14 Special Election: College Students' Big Day

The upcoming special Florida election on March 14 is shaping up as an important one for college students in the Sunshine State.

Besides the presidential preference primary, there will be a state revenue bond amendment providing for a student revolving loan program to aid bright, but financially pressed college students and graduate students in the middle and upper-middle family income categories. It is designed to meet the needs of college students who seek post-high school education, but are faced with financial barriers.

A recent study by the College Board and the Comprehensive College Board for the Florida Department of Education showed $393 million in unmet needs for students in Florida during the 1970-71 school year.

David Larkin of FTU was rated as one of the top ten superior debaters in a national debate tournament at the University of West Georgia last weekend. Jack Haggard and Earl Boyles reached the top ten superior spots in the debate tourney.

The war in the Middle East. It can be explained by the dote process of political science. It can be talked about in the news and have its paragon. In the third quarter of the enchanted world, there is still room for emotions. It can be explained by the due process of the world. And like all those who are being driven out before them, they shall return while for the Israelis, it is a fight for survival in a land claimed to be their land and its whereabouts, where he can prey his wants and desires. They have worked the land, and they have been part of it, part of its structure. Emotions may linger into memories and love of the land, but reality has displaced all can be explained by the due process of life, noting that the 26th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution adds a potential of more than a simple gift of land. For the Arabs it is a holy war, a crusade against Zionism while for the Israelis, it is a fight for survival in a land claimed to be their land and its whereabouts, where he can prey his wants and desires. They have worked the land, and they have been part of it, part of its structure. New Media Director Wants Involvement

Anthony Toczylowski (pronounced taw-chy-uh-wsky), new acting director of instructional media, feels that the average student can improve his opportunities for learning by utilizing the services of the media center. Unfortunately, the “average student” is not taking advantage of the media services.

Instigating more student and faculty involvement, Toczylowski’s major goal in his new position is to appropriate the least adequate faculty utilization of the center’s materials. Toczylowski explained, “Lecturing is the easiest path to take (in a course) because you don’t have to try anything new. Instructional media requires some knowledge and some people fear anything that is technological.”

“To get the faculty involved, I hope to emphasize campus services of the division and get myself involved with classes being taught, said Toczylowski.

He explained the specific values of instructional media to the student. “The education student preparing a unit of study for an assignment can go through our transparency files and get ideas. Also available are film, film strips and record collections.

The center has a full line of projection and sound equipment for students preparing slide or film shows. The materials available include 8 and 16 mm slide projectors, film strippers, overheads, tape recorders, record players, and slide programmers.

Another objective of Toczylowski is to carry on the program of the department at its high level and to improve the present services.

The first step will be the department’s move from the library basement to the area directly below the library lobby. “We are looking forward to the move upstairs where it will be less crowded,” he said. This area will include a student workroom within the administrative boundaries.

Library Schedules Computer System

Within two or three weeks FTU’s library will put into operation a new system for checking out books. The new system, IBM 357 data collection system, will provide students with a new ID card which will also serve as a library card.

Director of Libraries Lynn Walker explained that the new system will eliminate the key punching by hand. Each book will contain a data processing card that will carry information about the book such as the call number, title, author, etc. When the two cards are placed adjacently in the machine a new card will be punched and the information recorded by the computer.

“It will give us a much more accurate result because it cuts out the error possible in hand punching,” Walker said.

Lippizans Present Dazzling Performance

By Beth Weinstein

The great white horses dazzle like snowfire in the spotlight as they prance beneath a lighted chandelier. They are the Lippizan stallions, performing intricate steps developed from warfare training, and bearing uniform riders who seem not to move, except to pat the horses on the neck while receiving applause.

The Royal Lippizans were presented in the Orlando Sports Stadium Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Feb. 25 and 26, with other breeds and privately owned horses, in the "Wonderful World of Horses." These also included poodles, American Shorthairs and Andalusians.

Lippizans were developed centuries ago in Lippiz, a small Austrian town near Vienna where the Spanish Andaluzians were bred with blood stock. The horses were originally used in the military, and the Spanish Riding Academy in Vienna is still a military school.

According to Michel Norreel, rider, stable manager and trainer, the horses begin training at the age of four. After three years of basic schooling, students spend three more years of training for such complex moves as the Pate Deux, Pas de Quatre, and the Quadrilles. Horses which show a talent for the "Above the Air" performances receive additional schooling. The "Above the Air" acts are jumps and stanzen, frequently performed riderless and almost exclusively by Lippizaners, which is gained acclaim for the white horses.

The riders also are schooled, and often have about 10 years of riding experience before performing on tour. Norreel tests prospective riders for the company. Devoid follows a different philosophy than most other riding styles—stirrups are worn very high and only serve as "hold," and "descending" is when the rider holds the horse, and guiding signals are given through body weight and leg movement. This produces a tight leg grip, and a rider uses balance and only a slight grip with the upper legs to stay mounted.

The horses, whose value begins at $25,000 each, are given exceptional care. Their manes are kept silky by semi-weekly washings with hypotallergenic shampoo. They are thoroughly groomed daily, and their diet includes vitamin and mineral supplements, because the horses spend most of their time indoors.

The Lippizaners horses are being moved to Florida, and a permanent school for the internationally-known stallions is being developed in Lakeland. One year after the horses are settled in Lakeland, riding lessons will be offered at the school. The general public also may see the horses there.

Scientist Program To Feature Bohlen

Dr. Walter F. Bohlen, physical oceanographer from the University of Connecticut will visit FUTU Wednesday for two lectures as part of the Visiting Scientist program of the National Academy of Sciences.

"Management of Our Marine Resources" will be the topic of Bohlen's first lecture at 11 a.m. in EN 326. The second lecture, "Turbulence and Sediment Transport in Estuaries," will be held at 7 p.m. in LR 427.

Bohlen received his Ph.D. in 1969 from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is currently on the Marine Science Institute of the University of Connecticut faculty. He is the author of numerous books and articles.

Media Dept. Moves

The instructional Media Department will move into new facilities on the first floor of the Laboratory Building Tuesday. The reorganization of the photographic and graphics departments will cause a delay in completing work requests, but the department requests that students and faculty members bear with them. Requests not deemed to be essential will be put on a "hold" status until February 15.

Campus services (equipment and film deliveries) will function normally during the move.

HEBREW COURSE

A petition is being circulated to urge the adoption of a course in "Conversational Hebrew: Contemporary Life Styles." Interested who would be interested in attending the class and signing the petition may contact Paul Adler at 894-3710. Thirty students have thus far signed the petition.

The course, if adopted would include studies in the culture, language and life styles of Israel.

The site also lights up each time the port maid, Susan Meade, enters. She is delightful and cunning and makes the play "come together."

Argan's daughters, played by Barbara Pedrotti and Beth Lincks, as well as Kit Hassett as the lover, are particularly suited for their roles and thus stand out.

The other actor that should be mentioned is the doctor, played by Christopher Murray. He is the buffoon of the bunch, destined to look like the village idiot no matter how you slice it. While he is very funny with all the padding and exaggerated actions, it almost borders on the obscenous.

Overall, there are many excellently delivered lines, some fine gesturing and movement, and a wonderfully detailed show. Perhaps Moliere himself might be both surprised and pleased.

"The Imaginary Invalid," running through this week at Rollins College is indeed an artistic endeavor. It is almost more artistic than farcical. This is perhaps one of Moliere's most performed plays and is constantly being presented on college campuses.

In this production the director, who is a guest from Pittsburgh's Carnegie Mellon School of Drama, takes a different approach to the play, rather than merely a satire on hypochondriacs and doctors. John Pasquale as director makes the point that the imaginary invalid is not one of the many characters who deceive themselves and those about them by pretense. He manages actually to show this on stage by having all the "pretenders" wear masks (Italian "commedia dell' arte" style), while the sincere "real" characters do not need to hide behind these masks.

The theatricality of this concept brings home to the audience how Argan, the invalid, feigns death and his wife removes her mask as she attacks him verbally, thus showing her true self. This one scene gives the use of the masks deep meaning.

The return of the poet marks the third night of Kaleidoscope '72, Village Center's alternative to a traditional homecoming this year. There is no admission charge to the dance, which begins at 10 p.m. in the Multi Purpose Room.

"To Continue Tonight"

To Do tonight:

Lake Claire Cleanup: and turning right from a corner, going past the Plaza reading, and turning right from a left-hand lane.

It isn't often today that there is a movie which should and could be seen and loved by the entire human race. Yet there is just such a movie. It's entitled "Kotch," and the Plaza Theater No. 1 brought in an unbelievably tender, yet realistic show with this one.

Pointing out how society looks upon the senility and uselessness of the aged, this movie has insight into the world and thinking of the old through the character of the O.Court-deserving little role, played by Walter Matthau. He has been good on the screen before, but never as excellent as in this portrayal of an energetic, involved, sympathetic, philosophic, generous, kind, direct, honest old man. At the same time one observer all the irritating little mannerisms and actions of the aged, such as wiping his silverware before using it, taking the ears off anyone near him, always referring to the past, constantly watering the lawn, wearing a second pair of glasses for reading, and turning right from a left-hand lane.

All of these somehow seem very dear when observed from Kotch's view. He bridges any generation gap because he listens and he cares.

In brief, the plot is simple but different. Kotch is not wanted by his son and wife, who would like to put him in a "place" for persons which Kotch describes as "older than God." No one seems impressed by Kotch's sincere interest, and each impolitely, as well as obviously, ignores him.

When turned away, he takes it as his project the care of an unmarried pregnant teen-age whom he quietly aids even through the birth of her baby—which he himself delivers on the way to the hospital. In the outcome, Kotch finds importance in his way of life and meaning for his existence.

As the director, Jack Lemmon develops a bear-sending story through the characteristics of Kotch and the young girl, played very believably by Deborah Winters. The use of music ranges for the melodic theme song, "Life in What You Make It," to classical music booming forth as effective background for the courting of Kotch. The delicate humor is presented as tenderly as the old man's warmth. From the very beginning when the viewer see a soft, tiny baby's hand placed gently in the weatherbeaten, wrinkled palm of an aged man— he knows he is shoot to be involved in a perfectly beautiful story about love and life.

FAIR"WAY, FROM North Carolina, is providing music for the 100-100 Dance Saturday, when up to five $100-tuition grants will be given away by the Village Center. There is no admission charge to the dance, which begins at 9 p.m. in the Multi Purpose Room.

LDS

The Student Association of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is presently holding meetings twice a week on campus and is studying the Book of Mormon. The Book of Mormon tells the story of a group of people who lived on the American continent before Christ, according to Paul Smith, the representative from the church who is leading the discussions.

There are similar programs of study on various principles of the Mormon religion on college campuses throughout the country, according to Smith, who moved to Orlando recently from California where he was director of another Student Association.

Smith said that the meeting are open to the public and are presently held on Tuesdays and Thursdays in EN 204 at 11 a.m.

YOGA CLASS

Yoga classes meet every Wednesday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in LR 212.

Yoga means union. Life is full of yogas or unions. Life is a continuous flow of vibrations. This flow is dependent on unity. Just as electrical current requires the union of negative and positive poles to flow, the universe requires the union of all dualities in order to be.

In the practice of yoga, one finds a way to enhance, to promote, and to upgrade consciously the awareness of the essential unity, the unified field called the universe. And as one proceeds in the pursuit of this awareness, far-reaching things begin coming into view. This wholeness of the human being, the unity of his body and spirit, the perfection that exists within the small and the great of creation becomes clear.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

The Young Republicans will hold a meeting 11 a.m. Tuesday in LR 211 for the purpose of electing club officers.

Wood Of Enchantment

By Grace Kebrer

I have been introduced to Memphis Wood on two separate occasions: both times I was struck by the softness of her hand, the warmth of her smile and the compairable, inervert spark in her eyes.

To be near Memphis Wood, who evidences a vitality and keen awareness that belies her years, one quickly falls under her spell; all you know is the quality of her laughter and the depth of her kindnens.

Trying to describe Memphis's mercurial personality you must pull up, over and back into that world where laughter dances on sunbeams, we people inhabit the verdant forest and Axel and Pook run. It is impossible to trap Memphis within words, nor can mere mortals ever be completely sure as to just what Memphis means to suggest through her artistic creations. All anyone can do is acknowledge the presence of a marvelous spirit and then go quietly through Miss Wood's enchanting realm, noting aspects of her vision suspended along the way.

In this land beyond the ordinary, every color of the rainbow is the unexpected for it is hard to find the colors. The piano plays a melody while the cello punctuates it with pizzicato motifs. This idea is repeated in variation later in the movement. The piano was particularly effective here.

The third movement is a scherzo using mazurka bowing and containing a sweeping melody in the trio. The final movement is march-like, containing rapid scale passages and a familiar cello piece. Originally written for the violin, it contains a myriad of technical difficulties in the context of a very enjoyable piece. The piece begins with a solo cello melody of slow, Oriental character. Theatrical Magic Still ‘Stops The World’

By Kathy Wagner

There is a magic associated with the theatre that has kept it alive through the centuries, a magic of wonder that was present when the first caveman performed his ritual dances, when the morality plays were staged, and when the classic comedies of Moliere were written. There is also a bit of this magic on the FPU campus this week in the music and theatre departments’ production of “Stop The World – I Want To Get Off.” However, “Stop The World’s” magic is very sporadic. Much of this may be due to the cast’s unfamiliarity with the Science Auditorium stage.

Once the cast accustoms itself to the stage and allows the rhythm of the musical to come through, they will have a most satisfactory performance. Most cast members, with the exception of Cheryl Caroncino, who plays Evie, need to learn to slow down and give more meaning to their actions.

The play itself has a few shortcomings, but the musical score is fantastic, with such songs as “Gonna Build A Mountain,” “Once In A Lifetime” and “What Kind Of Fool Am I,” The musical accompaniment is good, but a bit too loud at times.

The musical is a brightly costumed story of Littlechap, the circus clown who calls his company together for a rehearsal. He searches for a new idea, and by sheer accident he finds possibilities in enacting the story of his life as it was, is and might be. Thus the audience sees his birth, childhood, school days, his first meeting with the opposite sex, his adolescence and his first job in a factory. They see him meet the ideal woman, and with a cry, he stops turning his circus world to tell the audience what it’s all about.

The two leading players, Miss Caroncino and Vince Santo, do satisfactory jobs for the most part, but a few excellent moments in their performances indicate that they are capable of truly great achievements.

The chorus members have beautiful voices, and at times work well together, especially when they form a living machine during the song, “Gonna Build A Mountain.” They need to coordinate actions, however.

Director Frances Johnson’s concept of the musical is excellent. She has kept it simple and without gimmicks. The set lends itself well to the atmosphere of the play and movements of the action.

Curtain time today and tomorrow is 8:30 p.m. in the SCAUD. “Stop” by to see a wonderful “World” of music and fun.

Dear Students:

The Student Government of Florida Technological University has organized a statewide college student primary one week prior to the March 14th Presidential Primary. This activity, dubbed "Project 7th of March," is geared to duplicate the primary and provide the college students of this state an opportunity to go on record regarding the individuals who are seeking the presidency of the United States.

Only registered voters will be permitted to participate. If you aren't registered, do register before the books close February 12th.

You'll be hearing more about "Project 7th of March" in the weeks ahead. The first step, though, is registration — remember the books close February 12th.

Best Regards,

Homecoming Night At Florida Tech?
By Shelby Strother

Last Friday night I followed our beloved FTU basketball team to Melbourne to watch them do battle with the “other” Florida Tech team, Florida Institute of Technology.

The game itself was supposed to be a runaway. I mean the Knights had already humiliated FTU at the Lake Highland Prep Gym 125-66 earlier in the season.

But strange things happen in the FIT gym. Like last year, the Knights went into the game over there as favorites and left with a sound defeat and a few slips on the wrist as Coach. Teddy Clark was asked to leave a bit early for voicing his opinion a little too vehemently to the officials.

So the Knights didn’t have the big head this time. But they weren’t planning on another factor. It was homecoming night for FIT and the gym was packed, something the Knights aren’t accustomed to seeing.

As I said, the gym was packed with rabid anti-FTU fans. It wasn’t that they were for FTU so much. They were just rooting against us.

Throughout the game, a constant roar of “F-P-U, F-P-U” could be heard. It was their way of welcoming us to the gym.

During a timeout, the FTU staircase was large and loud. Zettie McClinton was heard yelling at her men. She was yelling at her Fort Lauderdale basketball players. But they weren’t as high as the fans.

Nothing doing.

On our way out of the gym, I heard a music group playing “Auld Lang Syne.” And if one listened closely, one could hear the faint crack of a bat coming from the Austin complex.

At halftime, the two teams went to neutral corners for a breather. And if one glanced at the crowd, he would see something he wouldn’t see in Central Florida: a crown. Some of the players even chew should receive help on the mound.

At homecoming night, Florida Institute of Technology was supposed to win. But it was a Friday night and the Knights came out fighting.

During the half, we were treated to a fine display of gymnastics and cheer. An aspiring musician began playing the French horn. Nothing doing.

Tuttle are the only returning pitchers. They broke the ice and carry the home team on their back. But strange things happen in the FIT gym. Like last year, the Knights were on the wrong end.

As I said the gym was packed with rabid anti-FTU fans.

Homecoming Night At Florida Tech?

The FTU defense was exceptionally effective against the Knights. Ernie Mathis, one of their future stars, played well at both ends of the court, scoring 17 points and holding high-scoring Zettie McClinton to a mere 10 markers.

At halftime, the two teams went to neutral corners for a breather, but longer than usual. Something was wrong.

During the time-out, we FIT cheerleaders ran out on the court for a cheer. An aspiring musician began playing “Mickey Mouse” on his horn. And as our cheerleaders urged, “All for the Knights, stand up and play baseball.” Tuttle are the only returning pitchers.

But during the time-out, our FTU cheerleaders ran out on the court for a cheer. An aspiring musician began playing “Mickey Mouse” on his horn. Nothing doing. On their desire, FIT played on a nearby even keel overagain.

As a time-out, our FTU cheerleaders ran out on the court for a cheer. An aspiring musician began playing “Mickey Mouse” on his horn. Nothing doing. On their desire, FIT played on a nearby even keel overagain. Nothing doing.

In this, each wrestler is ambitious schedule as the Knights have this year, is the best way to impress the Spaniards. This loss drawback is that, since FTU has such a young squad, all the top teams wanted to face them early in the season.

The only disappointment experienced by the little freshman is in the lack of big crowds at the matches which he had become used to in high school.

Paul Allard

burr," Paul explained.

After this warm-up process, drills begin with the practicing of come-outs, where the man on the bottom of a hold attempts to escape from the man on top.

"These are the toughest for me because I always have to work out with a heavier man, Paul said.

Come-outs are followed by take-downs and an interesting drill known as "shark bait." In this, each of five wrestlers in a group will take turns wrestling consecutive matches with each of the other four.

Practices last about two hours an afternoon and while complaints could be expected about them being too strenuous, Allard's only complaint is that the team "should be working harder."

Wrestlers usually prefer to be as light as possible to get maximum effectiveness from their strength. Often the necessary weight-cutting process can be difficult.

"I had it easy this year, though," Allard grinned. "I only had to take off 10 pounds. In other years, it was usually 20."

A rigid diet is needed to maintain this weight, even a variation of a few pounds could make a big difference.

"For breakfast, I have a cup of tea, some kind of pastry, and maybe one egg," stated the 142-pounder. "I have it easy this year, though."

Coaching Gergley added, showing the respect has for the hard-driving grappler.

Every day prior to the beginning of practice at Oviedo's Lawton Elementary School gym, Allard runs from his apartment, to the gym-a distance of one mile. He then takes three laps around the gym box, the hotel, the rest of the team inside for calisthenics.

He does 25 sit-ups and 25 push-ups and some other exercises to get loosened up and keep from getting stiff, unable to prevent the FTU Knights from dropping the contest, losing to the Orlando Clippers, 7-6. This 6-2 season's soccer team will challenge the Orlando Reds at Tinker Field at 2 p.m.

At 7-6, Paul was served at the net and led a 9-7 comeback. FTU then took control of this young squad, all the top teams wanted to face them early in the season.

South African Newcomer Adds Punch To FTU Tennis Knights

By Mike Crites

Mike DeZeeuw arrived in the United States on December 15 from the Union of South Africa and entered at FTU with an undecided major. DeZeeuw had just finished one year of compulsory military service.

South Africa's junior tennis circuit counted DeZeeuw in the top five. The junior level is for players under 18.

DeZeeuw served in the all-white South African army as a clerk. He said there were no internal problems at present in the country of 3 million whites and 17 million blacks governed by the apartheid system. However, soldiers assigned to continual border guard duty put their lives in jeopardy.

DeZeeuw's parents live in East London, Border Province, where Mike was reared. They are members of the anti-apartheid Progressive Party, which controls only one seat in the government. Mike's parents are active in efforts to aid underprivileged blacks. His father is a professional tennis coach.

Paul DeZeeuw, Mike's 26-year-old brother, attended Florida State University on a tennis scholarship and played under Dr. Alexander Wood, FTU's coach. Paul is now studying medicine in London, England.

John DeZeeuw, 22, also played tennis for Wood when he was at FTU. John is now playing the South African circuit and plans to go on the European circuit.

"Dr. Wood is one of the best coaches," DeZeeuw replies to a question about his reasons for coming to FTU. Mike's father knew Wood in South Africa and thought Mike should play under him wherever he coached. DeZeeuw is confident that Wood will build a strong tennis team at FTU.

"American people are informal, easy to talk to," DeZeeuw plans to travel to Virginia at the Easter break, and to Ohio during the summer to coach tennis at a country club.

Knights Edge FIT, 68-60

Clark's 27 Points Lead Game Tally

FTU's Knights emerged victorious from their game Friday night with Florida Institute of Technology at Melbourne, but that was about it. In sharp contrast from their early season 123-46 rout of FIT, the Knights enjoyed an easier second half spurt and then held on to win 68-60 before a packed gymnasium, about one-fifth partisan FTU fans who made the trip on Student Government-sponsored buses.

It was the Knights' Mr. Dependable, guard Mike Clark, who made the difference. He led all scorers with 27 points, most of them coming in the second half in crucial situations. At the foul line, Clark was nearly perfect, only missing one shot in several key one-on-one circumstances. In addition, he handled the ball without error against a fired-up FIT defense that kept the Knights off balance all evening.

The game was as tough one, yet only Eddie Smith fouled out for the Knights. Pete Iwas, reserve center, had four quick fouls on him.

Mike Clark

in the first half and saw only limited action in the second half.

As for FIT, they all looked like different players than the ones FTU demolished earlier in the season at the Lake Highland Prep Gym. Ernie Mathis, freshman forward, led with 17 tallies and many key rebounds that kept his team in the game.

Eddie Smith, Clark's counterpart at guard, added 12 points for the Knights, while playing his usual tenacious defense. Late in the game he sustained a wrenched knee. At first it was feared that he would have to leave the game. But Smith on one knee is faster than a lot of players on both knees, so he limped through the remainder of the game.

The Knights ran their record to 14-4 for the season with the victory and are now preparing for another road trip north. In their last road trip, the Knights lost two of three games. However, they were without the services of Tom Buro, their other high-scoring guard.

If You Were Born Today:

You are going to go on a long trip, through a narrow tunnel, which leads to Nebraska. You will not wind up in Nebraska, however, as you will be sidetracked by chasing a white rabbit through another tunnel of the tunnel. You will spend the rest of your life eating mushrooms.

Aquarius:

You should combat the growing pollution problems, beginning at home. If you stop drinking all liquids from bottles or cans, that will help; and if you will drink less tap water it will be just that much less the plant has to purify. In fact, it would actually be wonderful for us all if you would go into some field somehow and let your blood and decomposing body fertilize the land. Think of all the problems that would solve!

Pisces:

Dum De Doocaa Dem Dum Dam, Dee Doocoo Da Da, De Dooocoo Da Da. I always have liked the Beach Boys, Dum De Doocoo Da Da. Smile when you say that, stranger.

Aries:

"I was eating some chop suey with a lady from St. Louis, and change our national bird to Space Ghost. Nobody can sing the first, and the second is about to become extinct. Just think! Nobody can kill Space Ghost.

Gemini:

Said not underneath, back garbage the last year schizophrenia, times gone friends, doubt for always, because first cushion, highway Be.

Cancer:

Just for kicks, see how long you can hold both of your feet in the air before you fall. The present record is held by Space Ghost (see Taurus) at 39 days, 7 hours, 23 minutes and 19 seconds. He had to go to the bathroom after that.

Leo:

Avoid taking advice of those cancerous to your financial affairs. They don't care anything about you, they only want your money. Fool them. Go completely bankrupt, and get on welfare. You'll find out who your real friends are, and, after all, isn't that true happiness? Incidentally, if you want to give your money away, I would be more than willing to accept the bill to keep happiness. I'll see that it goes to good use.

Virgo:

See Scorpio.

Libra:

Share one leg only, let the other grow rampant. If you're a she, you'll pet attention during the day. If you're a he, you'll keep 'em in stitches in the locker room. Won't it be great sport?

Scorpio:

See Virgo.

Sagittarius:

File a petition for the release of Mirva Ounam, an unjustly incarcerated American citizen, who has been held captive by the Iowa strong arm-brown shirts for a crime which she did not commit. Simply because she is blind, her persecution framed her by keeping them through her own party official. SHE IS INNOCENT! If the facts be known, she never forged a stamp lower in value than 3 cents. Truth will out, and so will Mirva, with or without your help. Join us now or suffer now. Power to the oppressed-me.

Capricorn:

Those of us caught in the Wage-Price freeze turn to Capricorn for help. Only your all-seeing third eye will be able to tell us what to do. The trouble is, one needs to have tremendous powers of concentration to be able to develop his third eye, and you can't concentrate your way through a psychology course. Give up and eat an eye patch.
