SG Elections Approach
47 Senate Seats Await Occupancy

2 FTUers Seek Post
By William Lee Hadden

How often has it been that this university has seen politics in the form of a professor and a student running for the same seat on the Winter Park City Commission? The professor is Dr. Jerome J. Donnelly, assistant professor of English. The student is John Brooks, a junior at FIU and a political science major. Both are running in District II for one of the five city Commission seats.

John Brooks has lived in Winter Park for nine years. Last year at this time John Brooks was at the University of South Florida, but he decided to come back to the Winter Park area. "I ran for city commissioner five years ago on a write-in ballot. This time I'm putting a complete effort into a full, door-to-door campaign," Brooks considers himself an ultra-liberal, and he has plenty of new ideas and proposals for Winter Park. He would like to see some professional city planning for the purpose of drawing new maps, setting up some sort of zoning plan for general land use for the next 30 years. "One thing that I would like to see done," Brooks said, "is making the Chamber of Commerce, (Continued on Page 11)

Sophomore Senator Appeals SG Ouster
One expelled Student Government senator may have appealed her expulsion from SG, and another has notified SG of her intention to resign, SG Vice President Lee Constantine said Tuesday. But four other senators will remain expelled. All expulsions were due to more than one unexcused absence to a regular Senate meeting.

Vickie Rhodes, a social sciences sophomore, will be appealing her expulsion. "I was a freshman last year," Miss Rhodes, "and I was under the impression that the term lasted one school year and ended in June. I didn’t attend school in summer."

On the heels of last week’s expulsion of six Student Government senators, a relatively light slate of 47 candidates will vie for 30 of the vacant seats in the new Student Senate. Elections for SG positions in the senate will be next Thursday, Friday, Oct. 19 and 20, at the Kiok. Students will be able to vote between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., and 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Thursday, and between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Tabulation of the results will begin at 4:30 p.m. Friday and the results will be made available by 6 p.m., according to SG President Steve Adamick. The results will not be final, however, until each candidate turns in an expense account and is certified by Adamick. The final clearing will probably come by the next week, according to Adamick.

FTU’s procedure of electing SG senators is unique among state universities, as each student only votes for candidates in his own class and college. Each class and college is allotted a specific number of senate seats based on their individual enrollment. This year, 44 potential senate seats were open, but candidates qualified for only 30, and of those 14 are unopposed.

A majority will be holding a "Meet the Candidates" forum at 11 a.m. Tuesday on the Village Green or the VC Assembly Room, in case of inclement weather. They will be available for a question and answer session at that time.

The turnout is light in comparison to last year’s elections in which 67 candidates ran for fewer senate seats. Last Year’s senate was first composed of 34 senators, but suffered problems gathering the required number (simple majority). The size of the requisite quorum has been lowered gradually by expulsions and resignations, to the present quorum size of six.

Although the candidate turnout was good last year compared to this year, voter turnout was poor. Only 719 of more than 5,000 eligible voters turned out, which was 14.01 per cent. Adamick said that he "hopes for a good voter turnout, but a realistic approach is far more realistic.

He said the probable turnout would be between 10 and 15 per cent, but added that he hopes the voters will make him a poor odds-maker by voting in large numbers.

Bazaar Americana Offers Enticling Wonderland
By Sharon Marek

Like Alice stepping through the looking glass, visitors to the FTU Women’s Club Bazaar Americans are likely to encounter a wonderland of hand-made, home-made treasures, curios and curiosities, all priced to entice even the most conscientious rabbit, and guaranteed to make you look for even the most important date.

Smooth stones from a little stream bed in the White Mountains of Arizona, miniature scenes from the North East United States, sea shells from the beach at Sanibel Island in South Florida, clumps of tumbleweed from the West, some treasure trove found in a rubbish heap in Dominguez Estates comprise many of the raw materials which have been turned by the ladies of FTU into the delightful knick-knacks that make bargain-basement and flea-market shopping a joy for all.

The Bazaar, a colossal undertaking which has been in the planning stages for some 18 months, will be held at the Maitland Civic Center Oct. 29, according to Mrs. C. B. Gambrell, publicity chairman for the event.

"It is like a fever," said Mrs. Gambrell, "all of the ladies, everyone of us have just been eating, sleeping and dreaming the Bazaar for months now. All of the treasures we will have on sale have been made by club members, who either bought the raw materials themselves, collected them or found someone willing to donate them."

Proceeds from the Bazaar, which is the second money-making project undertaken by the FTU Foundation which provides both long and short term loans for deserving FTU students. "It is for the best of causes," Mrs. Gambrell said, "and because the Foundation will get matching funds from the National Defense Education Association, money donated to or a purchase from the Bazaar will go to a lot further than a personal donation to the Foundation."

The "treasures," according to Mrs. J. F. Gore, another member of the organization, represent uncountable hours of work on the part of the some 150 members. Various members have made such goodies as fuzzy pillows with mushroom appliques, boxes of ceramic figures, candle holders, wooden chippin soldiers, hand-knitted baby shawls and ponchos, painted wooden things and a vast array of Christmas wreaths and other decorations.

The smooth stones from Arizona have been used to make hand painted "rock babies," that take three or four hours to paint one of the rocks," said Mrs. Gore.

Two of the more exotic contributions to the Bazaar are tumble stone jewelry and Apache turquoise black stones imported from the West and made into jewelry items.

We wonder how many thousands of dollars annually are going to be spent on cleaning the world's largest scum culture in front of the Administration Building! While no one seems to have摸ered figures, we would wager that the sum would be staggering, and all because of someone's ignorance of water flow and filtering systems.

We have witnessed the pond drained, dirtied, cleaned and dirtied and cleaned again until our patience has worn thin. If there is a filtering system in the potential washout, it evidently does not work because of lack of ability to get the water to flow and filter. One would think that a simple glance at a pool of standing water would bear out the fact that the system stagnates quickly in Florida, and is far from esthetic when it does.

A GOODLY SUM was invested in the construction of the pool. Figures are not available, as it was part of the total cost of constructing the Administration Building. Should some day we are able to put this sum on top of that to install a good filtering system, one which would not allow the water to stagnate and become the burden.

Such a lack of complete understanding is not totally uncommon within our campus construction, however. The Library building, for instance, has no sprinkling system to stop fires. Should a fire break out in the building, the only way it will be stopped is if there is some firemen equipped our order, who can fire up the sprinkling lines, which are all the fire boxes. (Many of the emergency doors in the building are locked. They have no people going out them by accident or on purpose, with a load of library books. The fire boxes are outside these doors.)

It also took almost three years before the entrance to the university could be sodded and landscaped, due to a problem unnoticed in the original contract.

THESE PROBLEMS generally stem from ignorance. Not on the part of the Administration, as a rule, but of the building contractors. We reflect on a clever but not too funny answer given by one of our first astronomers, when asked what he was thinking about just before blinding off. "I was just thinking in this whole rocket was built on low bid," he is reputed to have said.

We hope at some time we are to be assured of the money it costs to right wrong done in the attempt to save money. Perhaps it would be a better idea to receive bids, as we presently do, and then award the contract to the best worker for the job, that would not necessarily be the lowest price, but we should strive for the highest quality possible for as good a price as possible.

How many of us buy our cars, our houses, or for that matter anything, just because it is cheap? Specifications could determine exactly which manufacturer to buy, which should be built, and be put, or other than, if we buy solely by price, we are likely to wind up with a recording of crows in Spain rather than the Three Dog Night we had wanted.

We are not denegads, and criticism, whether self-inflicted or otherwise, often awakens avenues of bewildering thoughts about what one reads or meets, or do and in turn what motivates us to be what we are.

"If" and all the like, no one ever claimed the super role of deity or sainthood, but whether you like it or not, we will have, and searching for a scapegoat, whether be it words or deeds, other will dwell on their failures and restrain all the power and will, we are looking for a scapegoat, whether to be words or over-rationalization.

One's opinion is his self-built fortress. Some are open to criticism and with acquired knowledge distinguish between the false and the valuable. You and each of us is supposed to have a learning, thinking mind and not a bottomless pit of mistakes and self-inflicted ploy.

If you want your words and opinions to be more than figures and measures and theories, you may at times have to measure others - some of your class and status, others more important, your own academic honesty, your exhibit your vote, on campus, locally or nationally, and change what you can.

The world will never belong to you if you simply write about it. But it will belong to you and others if you are enough to look beyond yourselves and do our share of action and care.

You may love people, but if your love is to be restricted only to what you will receive, you are solely loving yourself. THIS RECENTLY released artist's conception of FTU's Humanities and Fine Arts Building shows lines and overall design of the latest addition to campus. Complex will include a free-story classroom building and a one-story reusable building. The first of many bids on the complex was let in late March and included structure to Romac Steel Company, Ft. Myers; roof deck, Yarnell-Johnson Company, Orlando; roofing, Giffin Industries, Orlando; air conditioning, Pools and Kent Company, Tampa; electrical, ceiling, and demountable partitions, Acoustic Engineering Company, Orlando; carpet, Carpet Systems, Inc., Tampa, and vertical projection, Miami Elevator Company, Orlando. These contracts, said Clayton, were let for a total of $863,633 which was more than $100,000 under the architect's cost estimate. The complex was let August 29 to Holoway Corporation, Titusville, for $63,586. Fabrication of the structural steel for the main building is nearly complete; so delivery and erection of the structure can begin as soon as the foundations are ready. The main building will occupy 70,000 square feet, and will house permanent music practice rooms, specially constructed for acoustical control, on the first floor.

A language lab, audio-visual center, student working area, lounge and faculty counseling offices were located on the second floor. The first floor will be the temporary home of art and music classrooms. The fourth and fifth floors will contain faculty and departmental offices for art, English, history, humanities, foreign languages, theater, and dance departments; and seminar rooms and graduate assistants will be on the fifth floor. According to Clayton, the complex should be ready for use in the fall of this year.

A student may have the normal amount of problem in settling down to a new term here at FTU, but the problems are compounded when courses that were taken have no required textbooks for particular courses. This is especially true for humanities courses. Courses such as biology, social psychology, public relations and several of the social sciences were included in the list that all colleges are affected.

The instructor in one class has a book scheduled to give half of one class the chance to get the required textbook, since he ordered 30 books and only 15 were delivered. A student volunteered the information that if instructors ordered a specific number of books, the bookstore automatically cut the order by 10 per cent. "This mirror is unfounded," stated a representative of the bookstore.

A second student, supervisor of a group of students who are the bookstore's defenders his position by explaining, "Each instructor thinks his course is the most important one on campus." Books have been ordered in large quantities when, in fact, during the previous term 500 books were ordered, yet only 110 were actually signed for the course.

Giroux placed most of the blame for the problem on the publisher. "Some companies are just bad to deal with. We try to discourage orders from these companies but we have no right to tell an instructor what to do from whom.

Another example is when a book has not arrived as scheduled we get on the phone and call. They usually don't know any answer, so we put them off until the next day. Then they will not notify us of the trouble we can avoid again," Giroux said.

"Some orders are shipped out to a transportation company for delivery to the airport, it took one order from Monday to Thursday to arrive at the airport.

"Orders of books for next term will be sent out to instructors within the next few days. We hope to have all text books for next term by the time students go on Christmas vacation."

MAX Builders Meet Group

Freshman Environmental Engineering and Aerospace Sciences Club (MEAS) which built the environmental car, MAX, met with Central Florida chapter of American Society of Mechanical Engineers Tuesday on campus.

MAX was entered in national competition in the Urban Vehicle Design Competition in Michigan, sponsored by the Student Chapters on Interstate 401, which represents professional societies and organizations in the field of Technology, the contest received little publicity. Gary Fasopulos, president of the MEAS Club, said that there was "much more engineering involved but I did not have to be (TV) apparent."

Dr. Bruce Nimmo, an assistant professor in mechanical engineering, noted some one important aspects of MAX. "MAX was mentioned as having done well in safety in the Chemical Engineering News and Machine Design." Dr. Nimmo, faculty advisor for the MEAS Club, has submitted a paper on MAX to the Journal of Engineering Education.

MAX will be on display at the four-day Engineering alumni at Central Florida and MEAS Club. Exhibitions will be scheduled in Orlando, Daytona Beach, Cocoa-Rockledge and Melbourne.

Pre-Reg. Return Is ‘Possible’

The desirability of reinstating advanced registration will be evaluated by a new University Committee. The committee was created in response to the (phone) raised by many students over the cancellation of advanced registration, according to Dr. Leland Jackson, assistant vice president for academic affairs. Before this quarter, presently enrolled students could choose their class schedules and be completely registered for the following quarter before the current quarter was over. The abolishment of the system causes all students to register on the same occasion, which is usually spread over several days. The system was originally cancelled because administrative leaders felt it was causing too many problems by being held during an active quarter. Among the reasons cited were that students were getting closer to meet their registration appointment times, and the admittance procedures were more difficult on the professors, who would have to advise students between their other regular duties.

The Pre-Registration Committee will be composed of three students, two faculty members and two from the student body at large; one representative each from the registrar, business affairs, student affairs and academic affairs offices.

"With all these sources of input we should be able to come up with a proposal that will be useful," Jackson said.

Kreskin Enchants Audience

Kreskin, a self-proclaimed conservative in an extravagant field, captivated an FTU audience of more than a thousand Tuesday night with a performance that strains the bounds of all imagination.

But he is only a conservative on such subjects as voodoo, magic and hypnotism, which some people consider related to his work as a mentalist.

The major thrust of Kreskin's efforts both on and off stage are to "cause people to wonder," and to substantiate his claim that there is no "state" of hypnosis.

In a flashy demonstration involving about 30 volunteers from the audience, Kreskin displayed his ability to establish mass suggestions without producing a hypnotic trance.

Beginning with simple effects and working up to more complex ones, the master mentalist played his mini-audience like a well-tuned instrument (even if they did stop off key).

"Hold your hands out straight and let your hands hang limp, like water is dripping from them. Now flop them!" Kreskin said. Adding that "things might get out of control - but don't worry!" Kreskin said, "Flop," and suddenly 30 pairs of hands not only - Dropped, but flung convulsively with a frantic tempo.

"You're conscious of everything said, but it is impossible to avoid doing what it tells you," Kreskin said, "I had so strong a field, I can stop this," but the more you try the less you want to. You know what you are going to do and you tell yourself you won't, but it is a driving compulsion you can't resist ... you have to do it.

I found it difficult to believe I had so strong a compulsion to do something I detected, but because of Kreskin's personality it wasn't embarrassing."

With little more than a wave of the hand, Kreskin caused people to forget their names and how to count to 10. He took away their ability to sit, stand and even light a cigarette. On verbal cues individuals leaped up and involuntarily shouted, screamed, imitated Flip Wilson's Geraldine and sang "Happy birthday" off key.

On verbal cues individuals leaped up and involuntarily shouted, screamed, imitated Flip Wilson's Geraldine and sang "Happy birthday" off key.

During the performance, Kreskin had four members of the audience hide his paycheck, which, according to Village Center Board President Debbie Jones, was for $2,000. The four hid it in the log pipe of scaffolding in the assembly room.

Moments before realizing where the crumpled check was crammed, he exclaimed, "I tell you, folks, I just don't understand." But then he climbed the scaffolding and recovered his check. Only once in the years of performing the trick has he failed, and he relinquished his pay for that performance.

Onstage, in the more informal atmosphere of a reception, Kreskin's dynamic personality shone; still as he described his philosophies and feelings about his field. Not only a showman but a scientist who avidly studies all phases; of mental and psychic phenomena, his ready ability to quote names, dates, book titles and authors showed his knowledge of mind studies.

He expressed admission for the current study of psychic phenomena by the Soviet Union, but he criticized the purpose for the study. "The overall plan is to discredit religion, and to explain everything as really being physiological," he said. "I think they'll have red faces later on."

He is acknowledged, however, by the contrast in the United States, where there is almost no intensive study of material phenomena.

He himself has spent years in studying; his beginning exercise Tuesday night, linking three rings owned by member of the audience, took seven years to accomplish. More years of study have gone to a trick he will perform on his Sunday night television show in about three weeks. He will attempt to move an object simply by thought.

A Rehearsal?

Good Grief!

All six performers in the Village Center production of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" are expected to have their lines memorized at tonight's rehearsal. This will give the cast until the October 26, 29, and 30, and November 3 and 4 performances to perfect the play.

Kathy Keilman ("Patty") speculated on the exceptional job of type-casting: "They needed a dumb blonde with a one-track mind." When asked if she was a dumb blonde, she replied, "Ask my lawyer."

Miss Keilman, a sophomore humanities major, is in her second year at FTU. She previously attended Sacred Heart College in Wichita, Kan. until she was resident advisor in B Dorm.

She decided to come to FTU because it was "either that or not in Hopkinsville, Ky." "Charlie Brown" is her first play. "Patty" is studying among other things "how to get out of an interview." Steve Wightman (Charlie Brown) characterized her as "hilarious and really great to work with... she brings things up."

Charlie O'Neal, who portrays Linus, commented that his decision to try out for the play was "a spur of the moment thing." He had been thinking about doing something in theatre.

O'Neal came to FTU from Troy State College in Alabama. The sophomore political science major was born in Melbourne. He had considered coming to FTU for his freshman year due to its proximity to his home town.

"It is amazing what you can make yourself do," "Linus" said. "I am going to be scared to death." O'Neal commented that working on the play is taking a lot more time than he thought it would. "It is a lot of fun and I'm getting to know more people."

O'Neal has never performed in a play but has done any singing on stage. He does not know if he will try out for any future plays. "It depends on how well I do."
"Centurions": Cop Flick
With A Realistic Kick

By Fran Elliott

If you’ve been calling the movie theatres lately, you’ll notice that police shows are on the incline in number, popularity and fine filming. "The French Connection" brought new respect to this subject matter by winning the Oscar, but in this reviewer’s opinion, "The New Centurions," now showing at the Rocking Chair Plaza at Colonial Plaza, has brought it to a new high.

What makes the film? It’s difficult to say, because like other such movies, it has its share of action, realism and empathy. Only its share seems to be somehow more than is needed, and it also adds the human touch by its basic story of a rookie cop (Mary Keach) who learns his lessons on the streets from an old cop called Kovinsky (George C. Scott).

At first the film almost bogs down in graphically depicting all the dirty work Los Angeles policemen have to endure. There’s the prostitute beat, the robbery detail, the vice squad work and the general rule that “averaging angels” play. In all of the scenes, the cops come out on top, the hard way.

The stagecraft of all the characters is quite solid but realistically appropriate. And many of the lines are just as appropriate and humorous when said in context. When going through trash, for instance, the vice squad members refer to themselves as "G-men," for garbage.

Kovinsky frequently states what he calls "Kovinsky’s Law," which in essence is his reason for doing what he does, even though his private life is a failure, and he is doomed to commit suicide after an unhappy retirement from the force. His prose follows in his footsteps, getting so wrapped up in his duties that his home life is wrecked. He turns to alcohol and has more than one near-fatal encounter before finally getting killed.

Even with all the interesting views of police work and the humor, the film is very sad and leaves you with a hollow feeling. Kovinsky says "Stay frosty" to his partner before putting the revolver in his mouth, and when the rookie is dead and disconsolate over not being a policeman anymore, the tear in his eye brings a tear to yours. "The New Centurions" is too sophisticated a title for down-to-earth tough yet tender drama about today’s policemen.

WHILE NOT quite up to standards of challenging Bobby Fischer for chess supremacy, PTU students have nevertheless caught the "chessmate craze" and many spend their free time dueling with intense concentration this battle of wits and nitwits.

Orlando Audience ‘Miles’ High

By Mike Crites

Miles and Ginger Baker performed before the largest rock crowd in the stadium since Led Zeppelin’s appearance in 1971.

Salt and Pepper, Ginger Baker’s new band, presented an experimental style blending African, tribal rhythm and rock music. The vocals were done in an African dialect. Drums that are used in jungle communication were part of the band.

Ginger Baker’s band was surprisingly different. I would have to hear an album, which should be forthcoming, or listen to another concert before offering an opinion. It does seem that Baker’s new style is superior to anything he has done since Cream broke up.

Baker gained a huge following of rock fans during his combination with Eric Clapton and Jack Bruce as Cream, one of England’s most innovative bands. Since then he has played with Blind Faith, and had his own group, Ginger Baker’s Air Force. Baker was named to Playboy magazine’s All-Star Band in 1969.

The Buddy Miles Band, headliners on the bill, warmed up in mellow tone before exploding into an instrumental. The opening song and some of the other material were new. Miles played a few of his well-known songs, including "Them Changes" and "Down by the River".

Miles did an exceptional job of bringing the Orlando crowd to its feet with brilliance, vocally and on the drums. He is able to fill in the gaps between songs with interesting background. Unfortunately, the sound system was fine enough to allow the audience to hear what Miles was saying between songs.

Robertas Flick will perform tomorrow at the Sports Stadium at 10 p.m., an HHS production. Two Years After will be at St. Peter’s Day Front Front Center Sunday night.

Students Speak On Keskin ESP

Dr. John McGuire, psychology department: "I think you should have an open mind about it. I'm not sure if it has any way or the other at this point whether it's real, and I'm not sure just what kind of reasoning could be used. If I do have a bias, I suspect there is something real happening here."

S. G. Referenda

The second referendum concerns the cancelation of pre-registration. Pre-registration was canceled during summer at a meeting of the Council of Deans because the council considered it an expensive duplication of time and effort by numerous computer breakdowns, and that the fees were inadequate enough to warrant its costs in time and effort.

90 President Steve Adamick said that he personally favors the reinstatement of pre-registration, and that he feels the majority of student body will feel the same way.

He added that he hopes students will come to the Kieth on election day and let their opinions on these two issues be known.

by talking to it. All three rings were studied at the reception. One ring was gold plated, the second was silver plated, engraved, and shaped like a signet ring. The owner of the last ring, Jim Pierce, an FTU student, decided to have a television broadcasting, later told Kreskin that the silver band ring belonging to Randy Stone, had new write books on insomnia cures and that he feels the majority of student body will feel the same way. He added that he hopes students will come to the Kieth on election day and let their opinions on these two issues be known.

For Friday, October 13, 1972.

IF YOU WERE BORN TODAY: Everone ever told you that secret is a lie. All the private things you have always put in much stock in are false. All you cherished as silver is tin, and all that you thought was gold is bronze.

AQUARIUS: Head full of stupid. Ignorant of ignorance. Fool of fools. Yours is the fate reserved only for those who stick their hands in fans to see if they are still going around.

You will lose all you risk before you realize that you have risked it. The worst part is you are a long time before you live.

PISCES: You will be in love for a large sum of money soon, which you will squander and waste.

Dorothy, Draper, Dawg, Dip, Dept., Dept.

Taurus:

Cancel all plans which would involve use of your hands. It is not anticipated that you will keep both o'er them at the end of the week.

Gemini:

Slide the blade about two inches under the skin, and then draw quickly up and toward yourself, catching the major veins found there. Then lie in a tub of warm water and rest your head back.

Cancer:

God forbid that you should begin to spread.

Leo:

Dinner parties bode ill for you. Avoid chocolate covered anything, most of all cherries. The best looking steaks sometimes contain frightening worms.

Virgo:

Do not write any checks which cannot be cleared within the next two days. I foresee some kind of trouble with a distant but powerful multicolored uncle who will question last year's income and might tie up your legal matters for a while. You might try liquidating quickly and moving to Montana. I hear the government can't get you there.

Libra:

Try to make a friend again this week. If you are persistent, you are bound to get one before you graduate.

Scorpio:

Anything you can do she can do better, and faster and more accurately. Rather downgrading isn't it?

Sagittarius:

You are the type who goes to parties to quiet things down. When you walk into a room the stereo gets louder, and the smoke gets stronger. Get out of my life, you have.

Capricorn:

They found a new disease and named it after you; Chicken Pox. Just your style. You leave everybody with red spots all over.

Big Game

No Disappointment

Intramural WRAPUP

By Shelby Broother
Texas-Oklahoma, Florida State, LSU - Mississippi. And now ATO-TKE. The BIG GAME. The solitude of the field start filling midway through the early game between SAE and Lambda Chi on Tuesday. The ATO flag appears, following in the gusty autumn air. TKE's victory bell is carried onto their side of the field. Strategies were planned in deepest secrecy.

"We ought to run with it, just to keep the defense honest," offered one ATO notor. "Let's try a flea-flicker," suggested a TKE fan across the sidelines. There is a sense of electricity as the two teams take the field to begin the game. You forget that this is flag football and there is no such thing as blocking or tackling (supposedly) or fumbling or punting or hardly anything resembling gridiron antics in which we have all become addicted. You forget because it does have football spirit. Even the weather feels like it's a day for football, becoming overcast and windy.

TKE takes an early lead, but ATO nano back into the lead on a TKE interception deep in the end zone at the 10-yard line.

Two Weightlifters Compete In Meet

Two members of Florida Technological's Weightlifting Club participated in the South Florida Open held in Belle Glade, Saturday, September 30th.

Several new members of the club went along for the experience and they will be participating in the next contest, which will be held in Jacksonville Beach on Nov. 4.

Doug Zitza, lifting in his first meet, as a member of the FTU lifters, won the lightweight gold medal. His lifts included a 165-lb. press, a 156-lb. snatch, a 200-lb. clean and jerk and made a total of 500 pounds.

Marty Lee, a junior majoring in engineering, placed fifth in the lightweight - heavyweight class. His lifts included a 205-lb. press, a 165-lb. snatch, a 225-lb. clean and jerk and won for a 585 total. The jerks and total were new personal records for Lee.

The club still needs new members, especially in the lighter classes. Anyone interested in competing in future meets should contact either Parenti (Byrd 644-0685) or Harvey Newton (647-6255).

FTU's DOUG Zitza lifts 200 pounds in the clean and jerk en route to his gold medal at the South Florida Open in Belle Glade. Zitza, who lifts in the lightweight category, won his class with a total of 500 pounds for his three lifts.

Archers Dominate Meet In Brevard

Last Saturday, the FTU archery team competed in the Brevard Community College Invitational Meet. FTU archers completely dominated the meet establishing themselves as the team to beat in Florida.

FTU's Deza Pickens and Lyvonne Harvey placed 1-2 in the women's freestyle with a score of 165 each.

First place was decided by the highest score shot at 60 yards.

Kelley has been shooting a bow for only a week. Both of these individuals were under the coaching of Lee McDonald.

McDonald has been in archery for 18 years. He, in fact, started a business manufacturing bow sights. His company now markets an extensive line of archery equipment.

McDonald is currently vice president of the Florida Archery Association and also vice-president of the Central Florida region.

Strong winds kept scores lower than usual.

Soccer Team Loses To Rollins

FTU's soccer team played an outstanding first half against the Rollins 2V, but ultimately succumbed to the depth of the Tars by a score of 4-2.

One minute later, Bill Read, with an assist from Bill Balance, tied the game with a 12-yard bullet. Rollins scored early in the second half on a great shot by their left wing. FTU kept up a consistent attack, but were thwarted from any score by outstanding saves by the Rollins goalie.

Rollins scored the final score with 30 seconds left in the game. Rollins played a very physical game as three of FTU's starters left the game with injuries.

Coach Jim Rudy felt FTU played well enough to win, but were hurt by some poor officiating at the wrong time. Outstanding efforts were turned in by Bob Student and Dave Smith.

CREW

The Extramural Crew Team is progressing well and the turnout has been very good. The team is still in need of several more members in order to compete in the Fall Regatta on November 18th. No experience is necessary. Stop by the extramural office in the PE Building or call ext. 2126.

GOLF

The golf team's organizational meeting was Wednesday, Oct. 11 and the turnout was good. Any men interested in trying out for the various tournaments and matches and representing FTU should contact the extramural office in the PE Building or call ext. 2126. The first match is against Embry-Riddle at Sugar Mill at 1 p.m. on Oct. 20.

NETTERS TOP COCOA FIELD

Florida Tech made it a "family affair" in the doubles final of the Cocoa Beach Open Invitational Tennis Tournament which concluded Monday night at the Cocoa Beach Tennis Club.

PTU's number one doubles team of Otavio Piva and Mike DeZeeuw defeated the number two doubles team, Joe Lucci and Charles Herring, 6-3, 6-4 and 6-4 in the final to bring the doubles crown to PTU. Dr. Alexander Wood, coach of the PTU net team, was at a loss for words to describe the effort by his players. "It's hard to realize the magnitude of their efforts," said Wood. "Really it did not enter my mind that we could accomplish something like this in a tournament of this caliber."

The Cocoa Beach event was open to all college tennis players as well as former college performers.

In one semifinals of the doubles Piva and DeZeeuw came back from a 5-6 set against South Florida's Joe Ricker and Tom Harrington, winning the next two sets, 6-2 and 6-4.

Meanwhile, Lucci and Herring were doing just the same thing against Rollins star Brad Smith, the singles champion, and former Rollins ace, Bob England. The Rollins team won the first set by 7-6 but Lucci and Herring came back to capture the match by a pair of 6-3 scores.

By winning, Herring and Lucci helped even Piva's loss to Smith in the final of the singles event. Smith won over Piva, the PTU freshman from Brazil, by scores of 6-4 and 6-3. Piva jumped to a 3-1 lead in the first set but then fell behind.

The Gators beat their rival last week. This week two long-time rivals in the Southwest Conference clash in what looks at one of the most important games of the year. Oklahoma and Greg Pruitt vs. Texas.

The Sooners can rely on the darting moves of Pruitt, the outstanding speed of Joe Wylie, and the quick bursts of Leon Crosswhite to control the ground game. The Sooners can also boast a great defense. Texas can't really unravel as many offensive horses as Oklahoma's nor is their defense as tough. But the Longhorns do have quality players in quarterback Alan Lowery and tackle Jerry Biersmore.

The score, Oklahoma 32, Texas 17.

In other important games: Alabama 24, Florida 21

I'd like to pick the Gators to do it again, but the Crimson Tide isn't making as many turnovers as Florida's defense, led by Brooksville's Fred Absher. Coach Gables' Ralph Ortega, Charleston's Tyrone Scree will give the Alabama fans cheer for Alabama's offensive line, led by Tallahassee's Buddy Brown, center Jerry Knapp, and All-Americans John Hanahan to open the holes when necessary. Orlando's Wayne Wheeler and Steve Dean, both from Boone High, will see considerable action against the Gators.

Last week resulted in 20 right and five wrong for 85 per cent.

In other games this week:

Air Force over Boston College; Arizona over New Mexico; Arizona State over Utah; Arkansas over Baylor; Penn State over Army; LSU over Auburn; Bowling Green over Kent State; The Citadel over East Carolina; Iowa State over Southern Methodist; Florida, A&M over North Carolina; Ole Miss over Georgia; San Diego State over Iowa; South Carolina over Florida; Mississippi State over Kentucky; New Mexico over Missouri; North Carolina State over Wake Forest; Ohio over Miami (Ohio); UCLA over Oregon State; Tampa over Southern Illinois; Texas Tech over Texas A&M; Toledo over Western Michigan; William & Mary over Vanderbilt; Wisconsin over Indiana; Stanford over Washington; Southern Cal over California; Virginia Tech over Oklahoma State; Notre Dame over Pittsburg; Temple over California State.
