Revised Visitation Policy Becomes Effective Today

A REVISED dormitory visitation policy, which becomes effective today, has resulted from numerous recommendations and conferences.

Lary F. Matthews, assistant for student development, described the revised policy as "a positive step in making the dorms a pleasant place to live." He said, "We honestly try to be responsive to recommendations students bring to us." Information and ideas concerning a revision of visitation policy were provided by dormitory students, Student Government, Vice President for Student Affairs W. Rex Brown, graduate students and a state housing meeting.

ACCORDING to Matthews, the revised policy is much clearer than the old one and is more consistent with Board of Regents (BOR) policy. The BOR establishes policy guidelines pertaining to visitation, and each university is free to implement and supervise these guidelines.

Matthews declared the state housing meeting, which was held in Gainesville, gave insight into policy interpretation, which led to a more flexible definition of the term "supervision." And he FELT the old policy called for supervising what went on in visitation rather than supervising the policy itself as described by the BOR.

The residence visitation policy becomes effective today, has resulted for student development, dorms a pleasant place to live, and to recommend action to resident advisors must be able to see into dorm suites. Matthews stated the new interpretation resulted in the decision to center the implementation of the BOR's guidelines concerning supervision around three main points: hours, the right of privacy for persons not wanting visitation and the relation between guests and security.

The residence hall visitation policy has been developed within the guidelines set forth by the Florida Board of Regents in their statement of May 1, 1972.

Policy Change Permits Beer At Lake Claire

Students of legal age now possess and consume beer at the Lake Claire recreational area. The change in university policy became effective Monday when a Student Government bill approved the move was finally vetoed by Vice President for Student Affairs W. Rex Brown.

Brown said the final report of the special beer committee has paved the way for the change now taking place in university policy permitting the sale and consumption of beer at the snack bar and now at Lake Claire.

An SG bill, almost a copy of the one approved Monday, was vetoed by Brown last December because "at the time it had not been determined that the drinking of beer on campus was consistent with the philosophy or goals of the university," said Brown.

Two weeks ago the special beer committee concluded to the contrary, and, according to Brown, "I went along with it and so did President Millican."

According to SG President Steve Adamick, the area where beer may be consumed is bound by the fence that partially surrounds the beach.

Adamick said the upcoming sale and consumption of beer on campus makes him "very happy," mainly because he had pledged his efforts last year to attain that goal during his administration.

"Since my term ends in just a few weeks, I'd say I just made it," remarked Adamick.

PRESIDENT CHARLES N. Millican will spend two hours Monday in a wheelchair in an effort to experience the problems of handicapped students on campus. The university has been concerned with the handicapped students' needs since beginning construction on the first building, according to Millican. (Photo by Ed Reed) STORY PAGE 4

Residence Associations Seek Merger Approval

The Men's and Women's Residence Associations are planning to position the Student Affairs Office for recognition of the merger of their groups into a single Residence Hall Association, following student information approval of the new organization's constitution and bylaws.

WRA president Jennifer Hobbs, stated, "All we want is to get the resident students involved." She said she feels a merger will be beneficial because it will unify efforts to serve resident students.

In 1970, unification of the two residence associations was blocked by former Housing Director T. K. Wetherell as well as other members of the administration. Student Government, however, endorsed the merger through legislative action. The SG bill was finally vetoed by President Charles Millican.

"We're not battling the administration. Rather, we want to work with the Housing Office for the benefit of all concerned," Miss Hobbs said.

The major responsibilities of the residence associations are to act as the voice of the students in matters concerning campus life and to recommend action to (Continued on Page 10)

Evaluation's Process Knocked By Critics

The present teacher evaluation forms and their processing draw criticism from student and faculty members.

"Blue Sandra" Relates Tale Of Frozen South

By Sandra Roach

This is the story of little blue Sandra who froze to death during oceanography class. She was a junior, majoring in marine biology, and had been chosen to give the talk in front of the Florida, where she had gone to college slipping on icy hills, shivering through molting snowflakes, assuaged in her classroom.

“Oh,” said little blue Sandra, “I cannot stand this any more. I will go to the campus police and tell them there are ice roads on campus in front of their offices.

And we, confounded with a dozen T-shirts and pairs of cutoffs, little blue Sandra wandered into Florida Technological University.

“Oh, what a nice, warm school,” thought little blue Sandra. “I will be so happy here.”

And, indeed, seemed to go very well. For there, were there done some other cold, but little blue Sandra knew the sun would come back. And it did.

Joyfully, little blue Sandra drove to class, bouncing gladly over uts and canyons.

Leaving the brightly shining sun and pleasant 73-degree weather, little blue Sandra entered the Engineering Auditorium for her oceanography class. It was a new day. Now, movies and oceanography movies were southermost.

“Perhaps little blue Sandra, “I am sure the powers that be know what is best for me,” I will try to watch and learn.”

For about 10 minutes, little blue Sandra concentrated on the screen. She even managed to keep her slightly cool breeze chilling her left shoulder. After all, this was Florida; she need not worry about the weather.

In another five minutes, the cool breeze having turned into an arctic blast, little blue Sandra recognized the ornate source—an invisible air conditioner.

Little blue Sandra had been threatened before by these terrible monsters, and she knew she must leave—leave before she was deprived of life-sustaining warmth.

The exit was blocked.

Sandra entered the Engineering Auditorium for her oceanography class.

“Perhaps I can build a fire. Aha, no matches, I must stay awake, concentrate on the film. Oceanographical attraction of moos to set in 70/3 of that of new to earth. Antarctic surface water. Arctic icebergs. Ice floes.”

Little blue Sandra had been threatened before by these terrible monsters, and she knew she must leave—leave before she was deprived of life-sustaining warmth. She glanced at the end of the row. Two bodies were stretched out across the seats.

“Oh, poor souls.”

Little blue Sandra could not tell if they had been hodled to death or froze, but the exit was blocked.

Perhaps the other side. No, a sneering projector guarded the aisle.

"It is the way she would have wanted it,” said little blue Mother.

Hidden Thoughts

Greetings! And welcome to the Happy Cooker Column. In today’s column we will bring to you the best in cooking. This week’s menu calls for food the beautiful people eat, better known as Fresh Foods. That’s right, it’s Fresh Week for Happy Cooker.

Any self-respectingפלסטיני will start with a salad. Use whole ruganais leaves, uncut, and cut them into a fine plant and trim the leaf of the stuffing. Top with some other garden goodies-lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, your dog (if one gets in your garden)-and pour on your favorite dressing. Serve with some Ten Vears.

Next, for dessert is Wiggly Weed 0.

Take any fruit gelatin (like Jell-O.), gelatin, according to the man who answered the phone, that their policy was not to take pictures of the Florida Symphony Orchestra, and, since he was planning to be through by 9:30 p.m., left his books in the Administration Building. He figured this would be okay because there are classes there till 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Unfortunately for him, when he returned after his books were retrieved from the Administration Building, a locking was turned.

The event upset me more than had I been there, and because I was not there.

The local police revealed, at least according to the man who answered the phone, that their policy was not to lock the building and turn off the lights until all the classes were out.

For examples, last week, my right class, which normally got out until 10 p.m., was dismissed early, and we found ourselves trying to find our way through a locked and very dark Administration Building at 9:25 p.m.

My experience is not unique. Conversations with several of the professors who teach at night revealed that locking the building early is the rule and not the exception.

One of these professors expressed concern for her students because they have to go from a well-lighted room to an extremely dark hallway. She is afraid of one of them, whose eyes may have adjusted to the dark, might fall over a piece of furniture and cut themselves.

Another complaint was received because a professor had forgotten her glasses and had to find a telephone to call Security to unlock the door so she could retrieve them. Luckily her conference with a student after class didn’t last until the library closed, or she’d had a long, lonely walk to the library.

On another night, a professor, whose wise she also teaches here, was unable to get into the Administration Building so she could pick up her (this was at 9:45 p.m.), and had to walk all the way to her office to catch the phone so he could tell her he was in the administration.

A check of this spring’s class schedule revealed there are right classes scheduled until 21:50 and four classes until 20:50.

At least part of these classes are not only here at night and these night hours are the only ones in which they have a chance to meet with their students.

The lights-off Administration policy makes even a simple trip to the Library for a book and a return for some help from a professor a major operation.

“Access to the individual” means individual student, then a uniformed locked-door policy makes even a simple trip to the Library for a book and a return for some help from a professor a major operation.

History has stopped Jerusalem and the city itself.

Taylor Reelected Fae Senate Head

By Mark Weintz

A special session was held by newly elected officers. Time ran out at the regularly scheduled meeting, and a special session was held to coincide the election of officers.

Dr. K. Phillip Taylor, Faculty Senate chairman, was reelected to his position, thus becoming the oldest student senate chairman, to occupy the office for two terms.

In his bid for reelection, Taylor competed with David Hernandez, chairman, and professor in the College of Education, in a close-run election. Hernandez said he believes the administration should not have the amount of input into the Faculty Senate it has had in the past. He indicated he may have been "putting his foot in his mouth," but he did feel the Faculty Senate should be independent of the administration.

Taylor stated the Faculty Senate worked closely with the administration during the past year and in the autumn with a clear understanding of university policy.

Hernandez spoke in behalf of Taylor. They each cited his abilities and interests as reasons for his reelection.

The new senators are as follows:

From the College of Business Administration: Dr. Wallace Reiff, Dr. William Callaway, Ronald E. Thompson, and Dr. Gerald Thompson.

From the College of Engineering: Dr. Richard Berube, Dr. Fred Simons and Louis Leder.

From the College of Humanities and Fine Arts: Dr. Judy Wodzinski, Dr. Rosanne White, Dr. David White, and Eric Jerome Delany.

PTU's development of a degree program for crime laboratory scientists in favor of other suggested projects.

The grant, which was to finance a library, laboratory equipment and faculty for three to five year project, was allotted to the university in August 1971 with the stipulation it would be "indefinite" as long as progress was shown, saidsequent director Dr. William McGee.

Commenting on the failure of the council to continue funding the project, McGee said, "It's a shock and disappointment to the university."

McGee, who has worked this past year on "documenting the need," is now seeking to make application to the state for the degree program and has worked to bring the laboratory-facilities to their now "borrowed" campus. Miss. Mcgee feels the university has "lived up to its side of the bargain."

Although the grant was cancelled, Governor Reesin asked the council to try to find some alternative method of raising funds for the program.

An answer to the dilemma of "provisional on or before May 24," said McGee.

A criminal laboratory worker or scientist has as his main educational background a mixture of criminal law and science. He must be both a good scientist in the laboratory and able to go before a jury and testify to what he has seen. His major attribute must be "uncolored objectivity," explained McGee.

The present program will run until the end of the summer, during which time a course will be offered. "Introduction to Criminalistics" will be taught by the recognized forensic scientists from across the state in lecture.

The Florida Insured Student Loan Program is now in effect on campus. Don Baldwin, director of student financial aid, said the program went into effect about a month ago.

Students in good academic standing, who are carrying at least a part-time course load and are in financial need, are eligible for this federally established loan plan.

Application may be obtained at the student financial aid office in the Administration Building.

Baldwin said completed applications are sent first to the Florida Department of Education after checking with the U.S. Office of Education. Students awarded loans obtain their checks from the university.

Repayment periods usually last 6 to 10 years. There is a seven per cent interest rate on these loans.
Millican Plans Wheelchair Ride

President Charles N. Millican will spend two hours Monday in a wheelchair to gain insight into the problems of handicapped students on campus.

Starting in the parking lot west of the Administration Building, where handicapped students have reserved parking spaces, Millican will visit the Library and Classroom Buildings.

One handicapped student, Robert Van Etten, spoke to Millican recently about the design of new parking buildings and how construction could be altered to help those with personal handicaps.

Van Etten, who had spoken with other handicapped students, compiled for the president a priority list of changes needed in present parking structures. Millican indicated the information would be passed on to the architects for future buildings.

One problem is the steepness of some ramps leading into buildings. Millican explained he assumed that the architects would know the correct slope, "just as we leave technical details of the slopes of stairways...to their best judgment."

The university has been concerned with the handicapped student's needs since beginning construction on the first building. Millican noted.

Facilities for the handicapped were standard instructions to the architects.

Millican this week anticipated that once a result of his wheelchair "confinement" he would become "more keenly aware" of handicapped student's problems.

FTU Club Named Best

FTU Civitan walked away with all major awards last weekend at the Florida District Civitan International Convention at Miami Beach. The FTU group was named outstanding club, received an award for the outstanding service project (a complete remodeling of a classroom building at Primrose School for the Retarded), and two members by the district.

Pat Smith was named Outstanding Collegiate Civitan in the Florida District and Shelley Keifer was named Outstanding Collegiate Civitana.

The club also received an award for selling 1,401 pounds of Claxton Fruitcake during the Florida District Collegiate Civitan program. These sales go to support community projects. Roxanne Hecht was awarded a plaque for selling the most pounds on an individual basis. Miss Hecht was selected Miss Outstanding Collegiate Civitan of the Florida District in a pageant last Friday night, competing with women from around the state. Miss Keifer was chosen runner-up.

The Florida District Collegiate Civitans also honored Dewey A. McFiey of the East Orlando Civic Club for "the most outstanding contribution to the Collegiate Civitan program." McFiey, who served as the Senior Civitan Advisor throughout the district this year, helped form the FTU chapter four years ago and serves as the FTU chapter's senior advisor. Miss Hecht was also re-elected lieutenant governor for the district's east zone, serving East Central Florida.

HARK! What lonely sentinel can this be faithfully guarding the city wall? Could this be the phantom Harvey, the vociferous rodent known to inhabit the dorms? Perhaps he is scouting the lay of the land, to see what he might EAT, or perhaps he is scouting the lay of the land to see what new fingers he may bite today. (Photo by Ed Rutten.)

Planned Bithlo Concert Facility May Ease Fan’s Frustration

By John Chenet

Concert fans who are disappointed at the lack of programs in the Orlando area, may find some relief for their frustration if plans for a new concert facility are realized. Fred Stover, publisher of the "Watcher," a local underground newspaper, has announced plans for a concert facility to be located in Bithlo, next to the Florida Dragway.

Stover said about 115 acres have been leased, and the go-ahead now rests in the hands of the Orange County Commission. The facility will be operated by MBF Productions in Bithlo for 53 years.

"The main problem lies in having the land rezoned to provide for large groups of people," Stover said. "The Orange County Zoning Board has already rejected one request with one of those convenient 'adverse to public welfare' rulings. County commissioners Tuesday are to give a final ruling on the issue.

Stover said if approval is given, it would take about 15 days to set up an outdoor stage with restrooms and concession facilities.

MBF productions in Tampa has tentatively scheduled two concerts, the Allman Brothers on June 15 and Pink Floyd on June 29.

"Plans call for a domed structure to be erected by winter," Stover continued. "The facility will not use outdoor stages for rock shows. Stover indicated the possibilities of its also being used for a Billy Graham Crusade and a country and Western music fair.

The 10,000-seat concert area will have acoustical fencing, while the rest of the land will be used for an outdoor show. The area is not expected to be developed and will be owned by the County commissioner, who will charge the developer for the land. The developer will be responsible for all costs.

Symposium Outlines Opportunities Of Area Employment For Women

By Susan Sauerbrunn

Subjects included fair employment practices, employment opportunities for women in Florida and coping as a career woman.

Janet Stone, management consultant on fair employment practices, said sex discrimination attitudes begin early in life. Women avoid success and treat it with extreme anxiety because of how they perceive their roles, she said.

Although married, she said she prefers the "Ms." title and has retained her maiden name. She prefers the roles, "It is harder to combat, she said."

THERE ARE MARGINAL ILLEGAL practices offering lower salaries than advertised, making job distinctions between married and single women, discriminating because of strenuous activity and preferring one sex over another in any job. The consultant added, "The fact that discrimination is illegal is meaningless - it still goes on." Few females discriminate intentionally, but because discrimination is subtle, it is harder to combat, she said.

Women in professional positions must prove they are bright over and over again, the consultant continued. Unlike men who have their own secretaries, women in professional fields are required to type so that they do not need a secretary.

Women's career aspirations are rarely taken seriously, she maintained. "Not all women work because they like to have their hair done," she said, adding few employers recognize the fact that many women are heads of households.

ACCORIDING to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), many interview practices currently being used by employers are illegal. The EEOC enforces laws against sex discrimination.

THERE ARE MANY STEREOTYPED notions about working women which need to be refuted. Department of Labor statistics indicate turnover in jobs depends on the kind of work and not on sex. Men are absent from work on the average of 5.2 work days per year, women are about 1.5 workdays.

If a woman suspects discrimination, she can contact the EEOC, the Department of Labor, wage and hours division or the Office for Civil Rights. Burden of proof for nondiscrimination lies with the employee.

The Nixon administration has requested a 27 cent budget increase for agencies enforcing nondiscrimination employment practices. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department are allocated $300,000 and 1.5 million respectively to conduct studies on women's progress in HRW and in the larger work force.

OF THE 38 commissioners of U.S. regulatory agencies, only four are women. Two of these four were appointed under the Johnson administration.

Evening activities on April 25, which were coordinated by the Office of Career Planning and Placement, centered on employment opportunities for women in Central Florida.

A panel of representatives from eight area organizations discussed jobs in accounting, retailing, management, insurance, banking and hospital administration.

DAVE BLACK of State Farm Insurance Company said his organization is "testing the budgets for qualified applicants." State Farm has jobs for underwriters, supervisory trainees, actuaries and claims workers.

Southern Bell's representative, Jim Shaw, said his company is looking for persons who desire supervisory positions. In 1972, Southern Bell offered jobs to one out of every eight women interviewed at an average starting salary of $740 per month. They are seeking candidates who possess leadership ability and are preparing to make a high grade point average.

John Gregg of Orange Memorial Hospital said there are 200 various jobs available in hospitals on $3,000 per cent of hospital salaries are paid to women. FTU has the only bachelor's program in the state for medical records, a job category in high demand.

THE MARTIN COMPANY is actively seeking women, black and other minorities for engineering and administrative positions. Ernest Page said Martin is "looking to upgrade and promote women."

"Retailing nationwide is the second largest business," said Phil Johnson of Mass Merchants. The average age of a Mass executive is 30, and there is one executive for every 10 employees. Department, manager number 99 women and 69 men.

Most of the organizations represented have been and will be interviewing prospective employees in the Flight Center on the second floor of the Administration building.

RAY STEVENS, Ray Stevens will perform in concert in Village Center Assembly Room May 21 at 8 p.m. Advance admission for FTU students, staff and faculty is $1. Tickets at the door and all general admission tickets will be $3.

The newly finished FTU catalog is now sitting on Professor Charles N. Milholland's desk, awaiting approval of a cover design from the art department.

Richard Ross of Academic Affairs said there will be no mention of a name change in the new catalog, which will be available around May 21.

Two significant changes will be that each college will provide a typical four-year program, making the book much smaller than the previous ones, and a coding system to indicate which courses will be offered for quarter credit.

The 10-month catalog will be updated next March pending a university name change.

The photographer took first in art show.
Neil Simon's "Little Me" opened in the Village Center Assembly Room yesterday, and will continue today, tomorrow, May 17, 18 and 19.

Nearly 30 players have been cast under the direction of Ken Lawson, VC director. With the cooperation of the music department, the tale of Belle Poitrine will be told through the witty musical's depiction of her love life.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Admission is free for FTU students, faculty and staff, and $1.50 for the general public.
SG Gives Input About Visitations

By Harry Chlcoff

A Student Government recommendation provided input for the new visitation policy which went into effect today. According to Larry F. Matthews, assistant for student development, many organizations on campus had a great deal of influence, including the residence associations, Student Government and resident students themselves.

The original visitation bill presented by SG to Dr. W. Rex Bronson, student affairs, was changed to a recommendation. According to Dr. Bronson, the SG recommendation was made to remove any drastic changes. Matthews stated he did not expect any drastic changes.

Visitation

B. Definition of Visitations:

Resident visitation is defined as the presence of members of the opposite sex in designated university residence halls and suites for informal socializing of resident students.

C. Regulations:

1. Members of the opposite sex are permitted upon invitation, to enter visiting quarters approved for visitation use.

2. No visiting hours are set by the university.

3. Those students over 21, and students who request it will be permitted, upon invitation, to enter visiting quarters for visitation purposes during authorized residence hall visitation hours.

4. When residents in a suite designated as a visitation suite do not wish to participate in the residence visitation program at a given time, the couple may post a sign on the outer suite doors stating NO VISITATION TODAY.

5. Suite doors and being room curfews may be closed, but authorized university personnel have the authority to enter the suite if there is reason to believe the information provided by the couple to the university is accurate. Therefore, if there are reasonable grounds for being in the suite, their entry will not be denied.

6. Violation of visitation rules may result in the revocation of visitation privileges for the individuals and/or the suite where the violation occurred.

7. Alleged violations of visitation regulations will be handled through the resident advisor.

8. The dean of men and dean of students are responsible for administration of the residence hall visitation policy. The resident advisor will have the final say on the status of the violation.

C. Continuation of the Visitations Program:

The university has approved a visitation policy which may be shared and lost, and nurtured and developed in such a way as to develop individual responsibility and self-discipline. Although the university assumes ultimate responsibility for the visitation policy, in continuing the policy it must be determined by the degree of cooperation between the university and the resident students.

Matthews pointed out that at the beginning of each quarter, resident students vote on the hours of visitation and these hours must coincide with the hours established by the BOG. Matthews said, "Any new policy attempts to strike a balance between those students who participate in visitation and those who do not. Matthews explained that the university is obligated to provide nonstigmatization accommodations. In addition, he emphasized the importance of preventing any visitation policies which may result in the violation of visitation regulations.

In regard to the question of majority rights, Matthews affirmed it is possible that age requirements (regulation 2) may change, but possibility will be decided at higher levels of administration. However, Matthews stated he did not expect any drastic changes.
Pres. Nixon's Speech

Typical Rally Talk

Editor:
I really hate to sound like a broken record, but Mr. Nixon's speech last night really deserves a comment. I really have no intentions of putting the president down, I would simply like to record a few observations.

The speech was a typical one by our president since it was obviously designed to rally the "silent majority" and excite him in his hour of need. Almost all of his recent speeches have been of this nature; you can almost picture the little boy telling his mummas or daddys that some bullies are picking on him and he needs their help and support.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower was quoted last night as saying, "This speech was really heartfelt." I also believe that it was heartfelt, especially the part where he accepted all the blame for the events of Watergate. Of course, he qualified his acceptance, amending it to where it meant about as much as the mayor of your city saying he accepts all responsibility for all the murders committed in his city, knowing that he is not going to go to jail for the crimes.

His speech gains significance when it is looked at in relationship to some of the statements that both the president and Ronald Ziegler have made in the past about Watergate. I'm sure most people remember when these two illustrious gentlemen asserted that no one on Capital Hill had anything at all to do with Watergate. I can understand Mr. Ziegler being duped, but I find it hard to believe that a man, who supposedly controls their staff as much as Mr. Nixon is supposed to, could actually have no idea what his staff was doing. The mumbo jumbo at the thought of such a president as Mr. Nixon being that easily taken in.

Jane Bickelstaff Jr.

P.S. Is there any truth to the rumor that a Future photographer who volunteered to help out at a critical moment, who was a promised a free meal for his troubles and inexperience (especially since he had a lot of things that needed to be done), is still waiting for that dinner? Perhaps the Dean of Women has the answer.

Voters' Apathy Jeopardizes SG

Editor:
It is with no little concern that I send you this letter about student voting aptitude. Considering that apathy is one of the underlying premises of our democracy, a very relevant case can be made concerning poor voting habits among students, especially among those that are inexperienced and party-attuned, following every man left to hold offices.

As a student at FTU, I have noticed that the majority of our elections are ill-attended. As a typical example I cite our recent election of Lee Constantine and Hunter Petrie, president-elect and vice president-elect of Student Government, respectively. Out of approximately 7,100 students only 1,100 voted, a mere 16 per cent of the total.

This is very difficult to believe, for it is no way proportional to the relative importance Student Government plays in the student campus life, both socially and academically. Almost $100,000 is in the university capital per annum passed through its hands and, even more disappointing, it has power through representation of its student body, which is no trifling thing.

It is not to say that the student elected was not a fine candidate, but was, but in real representative of the mass of students that refused to vote I would say not.

The problem lies in each individual thinking his vote is meaningless. How is this, when this sum of votes is merely a reflection of the moral individual effort? Every person who is capable of voting and does not, is showing he does not consider the choice important, for it is true that man does nothing which will not lead to some desired end; no matter how trivial.

I hope it will not take a poor series of candidates elected to convince us of the importance of good leaders, and, notwithstanding the ability of present administrators, it takes more than directed office holders to do justice to a group; a powerful government can stand under almost any external pressure but, missing one factor, it cannot last-you the voter "will make it happen.

Library Refuses Change To Students

Editor:
What in the world is happening to this university as far as lending a helping hand to students? Recently the library has started a policy where they refuse to give you any change. Either you have to use the change machine on the second floor, hum change from a friend or dig out a quarter or something for the Coke machine and this is supposed to be a university for students? I know the university didn't care about the students when this business of the university changing comes up, but this not giving change business is ridiculous.

By the way, Florida Tech, and pretty soon the students won't care about you!

Reader Questions

Neglect Of Pond

Editor:
In the near future, perhaps you can relate to the parties interested in neglecting the pond, no doubt by the appearance of its grounds, the following question.

Why has the pond in the middle of the university never been cleaned? I know that it has been drained, painted and had clean water placed in it numerous times, but perhaps it's not enough. Perhaps someone could see to fix the pond.

Do you really believe the exposed water surface enhances the beauty of the university? If the reason that nothing has been done is because not enough tax dollars have been provided for the pond, then I suggest the department of which you are a member on campus undertake this as a student project on campus.

Let's get it together!

FTU’s Crew Meets Nation’s Best Today

FTU’s lightweight eight crew team today meets its greatest challenge in its competition against four of the nation’s finest lightweight teams in the first qualifying rounds of the Dad Vail Regatta. This is the small college rowing championships, held annually in Philadelphia.

The Coastal Guard Academy, University of Buffalo, Fordham University and University of Virginia are the four teams FTU meets in the first qualifying heat. Should FTU row well enough to place among the first three finishers in the qualifying division, they will advance to the semi-finals in the afternoon, and hopefully to the finals tomorrow.

"We’re going to try our best because we have had a competitive season and we’ve done very well so far," said Dennis Karrad, coach of the squad. "The Vail is something you work very hard toward, it’s not just another scheduled regatta.

"But we’re going to have our work cut out for us. Coast Guard won the lightweight division last year and it’s rumored that both Buffalo and Fordham have ‘hot’ crews. Obviously, we’re going to have to upset one of those three crews to proceed any further," said Karrad.

"Aside from the element of competition, the magnitude of the regatta will also have the disadvantage of national recognition. We have five freshmen and two sophomore rowers in our eight, while most of the rest of the world will have seasoned juniors and seniors.

"Lightweight Eight Varsity, FTU is also being represented by a pair without a doubt of the two best heavyweight oarsmen, Harry Merris and Gwinn Rife, selected on their own to challenge the pair event. Together they have pooled their own entry fee, arranged the loan of a shell, and have agreed to make the trip on their own finances because the crew budget was very limited and could not afford that additional expense.

"Both Harry and Gwinn deserve a lot of credit," said Karrad, "and I know they have the size and strength for the job. I just hope they do well.

Merris and Rife also have qualifying heats today, and if they pass, they will move to the finals tomorrow.

Byrd Takes 3rd In Pan-Am Meet

Byrd will graduate from FTU and his avocation will take a backseat to finding a job.

"I can still lift weights for quite a few more years," Byrd said, "and I want to keep working in the gym. If Byrd can be competitive with the best at home, he’ll earn a birth. In ’72 no one under 144 lbs. went from the U.S. Olympics are still pretty far off."
Water has to be purer than a Rocky Mountain spring before it's pure enough for Red White & Blue.

"That sheds a whole new light on beer."

There's no light beer quite like Red White & Blue. We don't say that lightly. Its special lightness comes from our own special combination of the finest natural ingredients from the good American harvest and crystal water purer than a Rocky Mountain spring. That's how Red White & Blue gets its natural American flavor.

Enjoy a glass and see the light. It just might be the lightest beer you'll ever taste.

TKE Tops Topples ATO, 4-3

After they had been held scoreless for the previous four frames. Considering the intensity of play and the pressure on both teams, the game was a remarkably error-free defensive battle.

Mike Skirvan, who fired an even par 72 on the front nine, led off the scoring with three straight birdies and only 12 putts.

Larry McCorkle started off that final frame with a single-up the middle. Pitch-hitter Jim Holcomb then doubled off ATO pitcher Bob Metzok, chasing McCorkle to third, still no outs.

Mike Munnoch was then intentionally passed to set up the force at every base. Rod Rodriguez popped out but Jim Nitchen hit a sacrifice fly deep to right, scoring McCorkle with the tying run.

Another intentional walk, and the stage was set for McKinnon's heroics as he calmly shot a single between short and third.

The game, which was over sparked by a timely bunt in the middle stages, left TKE at 4-0-the only perfect mark in the Greek League. ATO fell to 3-1, the same as LXA.

At the LXA-ATO match, as in TKE-ATO, most of the scoring came early. ATO got five in the first two innings with LXA plating four runs in the third to take a 6-5 lead, following single runs in the first two frames.

In the seventh, with everything knotted up at 1-1, Kevin Powers again drove home the go-ahead run but this one stood up.

The one big Greek game remaining will be Tuesday at 6 p.m., when TKE and LXA battle. If LXA wins, the result could be a three-way tie for the top between LXA, ATO and TKE. If TKE wins, it should emerge the champ. TKE's only other game was yesterday against Sigma Chi.

The mens intramural golf results were omitted from last week's wrapup, but the meet was indeed held April 28. The winning team was an independent club, LEER-II, 310 total led by Carter Muscarella's 78, the low round of the day. TKE won the frainty league, 338 as Demnis Keller and Don Simenson both shot 83's, the frainty low score.
