Wine Resolution Passes

By Steve Paulson

The Council of State University Presidents today unanimously endorsed a resolution by the Council of Student Government Presidents to allow the sale of wine on campus for individual university in a vote taken last Friday.

William "Red" Brown, representing FTU, endorsed the measure which would leave the question of wine sales up to the president of each university.

FTU Student Government President Lee Constantine said Monday he will go to Tallahassee for the meeting of university presidents in three weeks in case they decide to take action on the resolution.

New Retention Effort

By Barbara Rajchel

In an effort to make "Accent on the Individual" a reality, two FTU administrations have devised a new, personalized re-recruitment policy.

Their effort is geared to FTU students who did not register for fall quarter although they were eligible and invited to return to FTU this term.

To implement the new policy, the deans have a personal letter written to each student previously, but not currently, enrolled in their respective colleges. Every letter expresses an interest in the student's educational development and bears the handwritten signature of a faculty member of the dean of the student's college.

"Our motives are solely designed to benefit the individual," said Ed Knight, director of records. "It is hoped that we will upgrade our image as we upgrade our service to the student."

Knight developed this new approach to university-student communications with the help of Rob Shilkop, a graduate student working toward a master's in public relations.

Knight recognized the need for this type of student contact after examining fall registration statistics. Approximately 6,000 invitations were sent out prior to this past registration period, Knight said. Of the 6,000 FTU students contacted, only 3,000 actually registered.

Evaluating the discrepancy, Knight classified about 500 of the non-returns as graduates.

Four FTU Coeds Pursue Title

By Jerry Brooks

Joy Jones will give up her Miss Orlando crown to one of 18 hopefuls Nov. 10. Among the contestants are four FTU students: Lisa Malle, Roseanne Marun, Suzy O'Hara and Beth Sullivan. The Miss Orlando Scholarship Pageant will be held in conjunction with the annual weekend Arts and Crafts Show at Eola Park. The winner of the pageant will go to the Miss Florida Pageant and the winner of that contest will represent Florida in the Miss America pageant.

The winner of the Miss Orlando Pageant will receive a $500 scholarship, a considerable drop from last year's $5,000 award.

According to Corb Barcelo, Orlando's central business district president and manager of the pageant, the reduced scholarship award is the result of the legal situation of Glen Turner, who has donated the $5,000 scholarship for the past two years, but was unable to do so this year. Donations for the pageant are collected by the Miss Orlando Scholarship Association, a nonprofit organization.

"The $5,000 scholarship is what attracted me to the pageant," said Suzy. "But when I learned the scholarship had been dropped to $500, I still wanted to be a part of it because it would give me an opportunity to do something new and different."

Byer Byers Phelps, center foreground, was the runner up in the 1.7 mile race. Tykes, also Miss Central Florida Heart Fund Queen and was Homecoming Queen her senior year at Apopka High School.

Beth said she enjoys �mall talk and conversations, but she likes to be at home away from home.

When asked why she entered the Miss Orlando Pageant she said it's a great experience. I've met so many wonderful people that I feel I've already won something."

ROSEANNE is another contender from Apopka and comes from Cocoa Beach.

Roxanne was Miss Cocoa Beach in 1971 and placed in the Junior Miss pageant at Cocoa Beach. Most people think girls who enter beauty pageants are a bunch of snobbs. But this is not the case at all. Of the hundreds of girls I know I've met at pageants," she said.

Time plans to combine her speaking skills with her dancing abilities in the talent portion of the Miss Orlando Pageant with a short monologue at the beginning of a dance act.

Beth Sullivan is another FTU contestant who is also in foreign studies. Beth said she would like to go into communications and possibly radio and television.

Rex said she enjoys beauty pageants because she likes meeting the people she knows."

"The difference between being successful and doing a good job is a matter of degree," said Knight. "And I know we've done a good job."

Sheinkopf said there is no readmission form charged to students who have good academic standing at FTU. But this administrative allowance has never been tarnished with such aggressive action. "This is the best effort we've ever made to retain students," Knight said.

Donating their time to organize the project as well as stuff envelopes, Knights and Sheinkopf kept the total cost down to $300. They received considerable help from James Couch, a communications professor, and Sam Boone, admissions officer.

LISA chose a medley of songs from the 1920's to play on the organ as her talent offering in the pageant. She also made a "charades" outfit to wear during her performance in keeping with her 1920's theme.
Judging in the Miss Orlando Pageant is divided into swimsuit, evening gown and talent competition. The three categories give the judges a good overall view of each contestant. The judges are able to see the girls walk and how they carry themselves and how their talent performances fit their individual likes and dislikes.

Miss Orlando is deeply involved with the city public relations offices in her reign. She opens new buildings, visits hospitals and works on telethons as just a few of her activities.
Few Rally For Impeachment

By Heather Henry

An "Impeach Nixon" rally got off to a vocal start Oct. 25, as one member of FTU Young Democrats, who supported the ally, sang a Watergate satire to be time of "Don't Let Them Taking To Die," by Country Joe and the Fish. The rally, which was attended by 50 to 60 people, was widely covered by Orlando area broadcast and print media.

Dr. Jerrell Shofer, chairman of the history department, gave a history of U.S. impeachment procedures. Shofer, who does not support the impeachment of Nixon, outlined actions taken by the senate to impeach Andrew Johnson, the 17th president of the United States, after Lincoln was shot. He drew no parallel to the present situation.

Dave Higgins, president of the Young Democrats, then presented reasons why Nixon should be impeached. Higgins said that the president tried to place himself above the law when he refused to hand the tapes over to Judge Sirica. He said that since he fired Archibald Cox, former special prosecutor, Nixon is investigating himself.

"The shadow of doubt is hanging over the office of the president," said Higgins. He cited the resignation of former vice president Spiro T. Agnew and the Cambodia affair as other reasons for impeachment. Higgins was not disappointed, however, with the turnout at the rally.

"At least we made people aware that a number of people at FTU do not approve of what President Nixon has done," he said.

There is an atmosphere of intolerance on this campus, Higgins said, and students are afraid to express their views.

When Nixon came to speak at the June graduation here, Higgins said, there was no demonstration at the ceremonies outside of the graduating seniors and upset Student Government to do something about giving the seniors a choice of speakers at their graduation ceremony.

The club also had resignations and impeachment petitions to be signed before and after the rally.

Young People See WFTU

Last week, 120 inquisitive minds roamed the studios of WFTU in the form of third, fourth and fifth graders from Seminole County.

The children represented classes from 20 schools taking part in Seminole County's I nstructional Enrichment Program (IEP). "It's one of those things they never had when I was in school," said Dr. Thomas Morgan.

IEP is designed for "gifted" children whose IQ is high. The tour of FTU's radio and television studios is just one of the places the k-5 year-olds will visit during the week.

The IDEA, explained one teacher, is to expose the children to occupations in which they feel some interest, reinforcing their knowledge with speakers and once-a-month tours.

When asked about the children's reactions to the WFTU studio, she replied, "Some show a special interest, others in another place to go. We visit a variety of places and there's bound to be an occupation that will spark an interest in each of them."

Once back on the campus, many will compare the network television of WESH, Channel 2, with the radio television as part of a discussion follow-up.

In the tours wound their way from the TV studio through engineering to the radio studio, the children were shown how people are trained and equipment is used.

Waving at themselves on a television monitor, displaying the sound of their names on an oscilloscope and visiting a "DJ" at work were just a few of the ways they were able to actively participate and experience their knowledge first hand.

From out of 120 inquisitive active minds came a perpetual stream of questions and comments. "That's on Medical Center," remarked one young man of the waving lines on the oscilloscope. "Does my voice look different than yours?" was the question when the machine was demonstrated. "Can we hear you?" asked one youngster while watching the DJ behind glass. "Why doesn't he play some good rock?" remarked another.

"FTU sounding and sometimes frightening," said Morgan, leader of the tours. "They ask such penetrating questions. They pick up ideas and figure them out right away. Even their mothers seem to be amazed, but for the kids it's natural. What 8-year-old doesn't know about directional antennas and cross feeding signals?" he added.

FTU Co-op, SG Sponsor JA Firm

This year FTU Co-op Council and Student Government will again sponsor a Junior Achievement (JA) company which will be called FeTuRe Unlimited. FTU is one of the few colleges in the nation to sponsor a JA business venture.

FeTuRe Unlimited is an actual cooperation, charted and run by 24 central Florida high school students and provides them with actual business experience.

The mime-businesses elect their own board of directors and officers, said Ted Rajchel, director of cooperative education, and the students make up the work force and sales staff, choose a product, sell it, keep records and share the profits, some of which go into scholarship funds.

The business is run from beginning to end by the students, according to Rajchel, and the adult advisor provide benefit of their experience to the teenage executives who operate the companies.

Members of the FTU Co-op Council are the adult advisors to FeTuRe Unlimited. Derrick Deutsch, chairman of the council, is head advisor; other council members are Fred Hablitzel, Bob Glotfelty and Marvin Tucker.

According to Rajchel, the company is an image maker for FTU, with a spin off advantage of recruitment, not only of new students, but also of more co-op opportunities for FTU students.

Last year university sponsored JAWEB won first runner-up as "Company of the Year" and "Annual Report Contest." The company also won the "Best Company Advertising" award, and JAWEB vice president in charge of sales, a student of the firm, John Holsak, was the "Officer of the Year."

Our Responsibility
Coverage Balance

We are challenging YOU, the reader, whether a member of the student body, faculty, staff or administration, we are challenging you to express your opinions concerning this university, this newspaper or anything of concern to you.

It is very easy for anyone including the FuTure to criticize university policies and operations without offering viable alternatives or suggestions. Yet, if we are to see any sort of change in university policies, it will take more patience, concern and determination to go through the proper channels than to resort to violent, scurrilous or sensationalistic tactics.

We live in an age where social responsibility of the mass media has almost become a cliché. This is not to say that the exercise of responsibility may or may not be completed overlooked. However, who and what become the determinants of responsibility pay a great part in the final product.

The responsibility philosophy is therefore subject to wide latitudes of individual interpretations. What are the responsibilities of this newspaper? We will always strive to present as accurately as we possibly can the feelings and attitudes of the entire university community. We will not resort to vicious, scurrilous or sensationalistic reporting or editorial policies.

It is very easy for a newspaper to achieve notoriety overnight by catering to the greed of the lowest common denominator. Already one campus newspaper in Florida has found the harvest of sensationalism and scandal.

Padaw’s dogs learned to respond when a bell was heard. The FuTure staff is becoming increasingly tempted to ignore the phone’s ring on Fridays. Like children disappointed at Christmas, news sources vest their displeasure, often with questionable language, when they find their article has been cut or not run at all.

If the reader of these complaints is able to muster the needed patience and understanding, it is because he realizes a lack of understanding is generally the cause.

The FuTure, like any other newspaper, has its individual problems and concerns, but all are covered within the basic one.

Time is nearly always foremost in the journalist’s mind, thus detail and accuracy sometimes suffer, to the regret of all involved.

The amount of space available for news imposes definite limits on what goes into a particular issue. Those involved with layout of the paper must juggle news and entertainment articles along with desired art in an effort to present readers with a balanced and interesting paper.

Readers would soon tire of a FuTure consisting solely of club meetings, faculty and staff statements, and other articles concerning only a fraction of the overall FuTure community.

Faculty members are working hard to fix this problem and their support should not be withdrawn. Without this financial aid, the FuTure would very likely become a four page news release.

If we as a group of students do not take the time to thank for its support. Only an interest in their profession and FTU keeps them at work day after day. This is not to say the FuTure should receive everyone’s benevolent support when it is obviously wrong. We merely ask the administration, faculty, and students to consider the weight of our complaints as we try to from the standpoint of our overall audience.

Hidden Thoughts
By William Lee Hidden
In the beginning, Millican created the buildings and the campus. And the campus was without form and void, and darkness was on the face of the deep.

And Millican said, “Let there be a Faculty!” And there was a Faculty; and Millican saw that they were so-so. Then he blessed the Faculty and he called the darkness the Administration.

Time passed and FTU grew old. The Faculty did not have sunshine and the students would not listen to the teachings from the Administration as told by the creature known as the FuTure.

FTU remained standing still, doleful, listless, and fell to its knees and was thus conquered. And darkness was this time on the face of Millican and FTU.

...In the beginning there was a name change and semester was on the face of the campus. And our diploma told us not of our Major but delivered us to our college of studies.

So-so.

Covering the college scene have any better understanding (of the energy crisis). I would like to point out that the FTU College of Engineering offers a course, Energy and Man, ENGR 469, which is designed for the non-specialist and which (we) hopes to ease our energy problem in perspective. The course is being given fall and will be offered again winter quarter. Drop in and see what all the noise is about!

I am an alumnus of FTU and am presently a law student at the University of Florida.

I spent four years at FTU and vividly remember student complaints to the school administration concerning lack of parking, long lines at registration, the bookstore, high costs of books, inefficiencies of Student Government, poor dorm conditions (regulations, noise, etc.) and administrative red tape.

Let me say to the students of FTU that they (we) never had it so good.

All the remarks one hears about Gainesville being a great university town are true. However, the so-called “university city atmosphere” which Gainesville has, and which was often criticized as making from FTU, does not make up for the rat race a student must endure at this institution of higher learning.

FTU students complained a year ago when the parking fee was raised to ten dollars. They said then that parking was bad and the situation did not seem to justify an increase. The foremost complaint seemed to be that even though the fee was

Public Relations Club Surveys Community

Results of a telephone survey conducted Oct. 9-15 concerning FTU, have been released by the FTU Public Relations Club. The questions and statistics were compiled and evaluated by the FTU Public Relations Club and its faculty advisor, Ken Shinkopf.

Statistics on the survey were turned over to the name change committee for study on the possibility of renaming this institution.

Dr. Young, who was chairman of the name change committee, asked the Public Relations Club and Shinkopf to conduct a survey for the committee’s use and study.

The questions and results:

1. Do you know the name of the four year STATE university in Orlando?
   16.6% Yes, answered correctly
   32.2% Yes, but said FTU or Florida Technical
   35.0% No, don’t know the name
   16.2% Gave wrong answer

2. Do you know the types of courses offered at Florida Technological University?
   44.2% No, don’t know what is offered

FTU Marketing Major
Awarded Scholarship

Marlene Shaver, a senior majoring in marketing, has won a full scholarship to the Collegiate Direct Mail Institute for seniors to be held Nov. 4-9 at the Kellogg Center of Michigan State University.

The institute is held under the auspices of the Direct Mail Educational Foundation. The seminar was created by a collection of business firms using direct mail for advertising and marketing. Designed to familiarize students with direct mailing, the program helps them obtain interviews leading to related employment.

Dr. Gordon McAleet, who recommended Miss Shaver for the scholarship, said he is pleased an FTU student was selected as one of the 30 winners. The scholarship is offered to most of the colleges and universities in the country.

Don’t let the price of a college education stop you.

The price of a college education is skyrocketing. Fortunately the Air Force had done something to catch up with it. For the first time, the 6500 Air Force ROTC Scholarships include the 2-year program, for both men and women.

If you can qualify, the Air Force will pay for the remainder of your college education. Not only do ROTC 2-year college scholarships cover full tuition, but reimbursement for textbooks, lab and incidental fees, as well as a tax-free monthly allowance of $100.

To cash in on all this just apply, qualify, and enroll in the Air Force ROTC. Span your plane & bring your air career to the highest. See Mr. Shaver for a brochure. It’s a great way to finish your college education in the money, and enjoy a future where the sky’s no limit... as an officer in the Air Force.
Kid's Halloween Party Hosted By Residents

Fifteen children from Oviedo's Loch Haven Lutheran Home enjoyed a tour Tuesday night when the Resident Housing Association (RHA) sponsored a "House of Horrors" at FTU.

An FTU bus brought the children on campus at 8:30 with several RHA members aboard. After receiving name tags, the children were eligible to vote. As FTU bus brought the children on campus at 8:30 with several RHA members aboard. After receiving name tags, the children were eligible to vote.

Deans Award Merit Grants

Each of the six college deans at FTU has been allocated $1,000 from the FTU Foundation to distribute as merit scholarships within his college this year.

A dean's scholarship may be awarded in a $1,000 lump sum or divided into lesser amounts and distributed as a number of scholarships at the discretion of the dean.

ID CARDS

Two hundred FTU students have not picked up their ID cards yet, according to the registrar's office.

These cards are used as identification by the university and no student may register for the winter quarter without a card. Only students holding ID cards may check books out of the library.

Various student organizations also use the ID cards. During recent Student Government elections only those students with cards were eligible to vote.

Students who have not yet picked up their cards may do so through the registrar's office located on the first floor of the Administration Building.

The FTU University Theater has opened its current season with "The Miracle Worker," a play about the desperately loving light bearer who made meaning dawn in the darkness for young Helen Keller. Fittingly enough, William Gibson's play begins in the night with a high fever that spares the infant Helen's life. A fever that steals the light from her eyes and paralyzing pity of Helen's self-doubts in order to forge that first precious link between the pump and its proper English name: "water".

Miss Sullivan, grippingly played by Barbara Beem, overcomes the will-meaning but paralyzing pity of Helen's mother, the belligerent insecurity of the father, Helen's appalling tantrums, and her own self-doubts in order to forged that first precious link between the cool stream flowing from the pump and its proper English name: "water".

Carol Wilde handles Helen's blindness and deafness quite naturally. She evokes her character's fits of rage so well it makes you afraid she will accidentally demolish the entire set.

Because she has no spoken lexicon, her nonverbal expression becomes paramount and so she has mastered the language of body tension, gestures, grunts, and grimaces.

Donna Perlovich suggests the mother's indulgent submissiveness to both her mother's indulgent submissiveness to both her body tension, gestures, grunts, and grimaces.

FTU DOMINATED the first half outshooting Southern 13-4. "Dean (Andreasen) was shooting real well," Dezeeuw said. "Possibly the best shot of the game came in the first half on a goal. Additionally, in the middle of the field about 20 yards out, outmaneuvered two fullbacks and sent a screamer at the goal.

At halftime, Rudy was afraid of another Eckerd, a game where FTU controlled the entire first half but folded in the latter stages.

Only this time, Tech came out clicking, especially Andreadis. Andreadis made Southern’s goalie, Paul Dubose, who registered his third shutout of the season. Florida Southern got through the FTU defense only three times.

In the last 10 minutes, Southern did manage to break through for two point blank shots at Debose. Each time the composed freshman from Winter Park made the save.

"Both times (Dubose) would routinely make the save, get up and throw the ball out of bounds and the Southern shooters would still be standing there in disbelief," said Rudy proudly.

FTU DEFEATED Stetson 3-1

The doubles teams of Piva-Trevor Graham and Deuzev-Lorcii both reached the semifinals before losing.

FTU’s squad will travel to Vero Beach this Saturday for the Citrus Bowl Open.

Defensive intelligence is the hallmark of the program. FTU currently has the nation’s top 10 in the nation, and 5-10 freshman Dubose is second only in the nation.

"We believe in ourself and实力 is better, but so is our schedule," added Clark. "The schedule is sneaky, You have to win with little by little."

There is also the Stetson tournament over the Christmas holidays.

The short and the long of it for FTU include 5-8 sophomores Don Stienmore and 6-10 freshman Ted Danen. The two compare heights during a recent practice session at Oviedo High. FTU’s season begins Dec. 3 against South Florida. (Photo by Edward C. Burton.)
The big plays may not have been in the game plan, but they nevertheless were the difference for Tau Kappa Epsilon in the league title-clinching 13-7 win over Lambda Chi Alpha Monday.

Thebig play turned out to be a Mark Denno-to-Larry McCorkle bomb which provided a 150 TKE lead midway through the second half. TKE was able to absorb a long scoring pass from John Hinman for the win and hang on for the victory.

Although somewhat hobbled by injuries, the Alpha Tau Omega-TKE combination of the previous week's Monday battle was a low-scoring defensive struggle with sloppiness marred the performances of both teams.

"We side away any mistakes," observed Rodney Blankenship, captain and defensive back for LXA. "The dropped touchdown pass and all the penalties really hurt. Our defense played as well as could be expected against an offense like TKE's, but we offensively should have used more short passing, though."

TKE scored on its first possession although the drive took up 12 plays, a five-yard flip from Denno to Richard Walker getting the score.

EARLIER, ON just the third play from scrimmage in the game, a rare touchdown pass was dropped and LXA's best scoring chance of the first half wasted in the process.

TKE took the second half kickoff and drove inside LXA ground. Denno then threw long down to the middle to McCorkle and the receiver outran the ball to make a tumbling, fingertip grab. The extra point flip to Mike Murdock made it 13-0.

Soon after, following a Jay Rucker interception in the end zone, Hinman hit a wide-open Kermer who rumbled in for a 50-yard score.

TKE then took over, and although LXA put up heat for the ball for all but two plays the rest of the way. Biggest play in that series was a Denno completion to Murdock for 45 yards when TKE was pinned back deep in its own territory. "It wasn't our game plan to throw those long passes," Denno explained. "But they wouldn't give us the short ones-so we tried the bomb when we needed to."

Although another Rucker interception with 10 seconds left turned it over to LXA's offense, Rod Rodriguez' second interception sealed the hard-earned win.

"WHAT WE tried on offense for most of the game didn't really work," said TKE coach Johnny Johnson, speaking particularly of running the option. "Our plays that worked (the long passes) we really didn't plan on."

"Our defense really pulled it out for us, though," he added. "Just as it did in the ATO game. I got a little apprehensive when they held our ground. But I got that feeling back when we made them of the defense."

So TKE, with a perfect final mark of 7-3, will battle the winner of Monday's Mafia-Luxmont independent title game on Tues. 4:30 Steve Russell is at quarterback for the Mafia, easily the class of a weak league. Receivers are Dennis Argo, Jack Miller and Bill Howell along with guard Jay Adams. This outfit has scored 72 points in its first three games. They're allowing 15.

On the basis of the playing the tougher schedule, the mob would have to go the explosive Bombers, led by Mike Thomas, and Allan Levene.

TFU Girls Place 4th In Tourney

TFU's women's volleyball team, slowly rounding into shape for the state tournament later this month, finished fourth Oct. 20 in the Jackieville Bluffton Tourney.

Four United States Volleyball Association amateur teams greatly increased the level of competition. The only college team to defeat FTU was Flappers.

During the past week, FTU participated in scrimmages at Rolls and at the University of Miami. In the Rolls scrimmage, FTU defeated Rolls, Stetson and South Florida while again losing to Flappers.

In the Miami scrimmage, FTU came out undefeated with wins over Barry College, Miami and Stetson.

FTU has now played and defeated every team that will participate in the state tournament except for Florida State.

FTU will host the FTU Invitational Nov. 10. All major colleges in the state will participate.

PE Majors Meeting Set

FTU's P.E. Major's Club will hold an important meeting Thursday evening for the state convention in Miami Beach Dec. 7-8.

Also on the agenda will be the formation of a concessions committee for the FTU Invitational Volleyball Tournament Nov. 10. The meeting will start at 11 a.m. in PE 203.

Buckeyes Boost Wrestling Future

Einerson, from Milan, will battle for the 118-lb. position. Also a National Honor Society student, he won a school-record 27 consensus matches and was 28-1-1 as a senior. Einerson was his team's "most valuable wrestler" for two years.

“ALBERT, ALBERT!” Timid Albert cooperated with FuTURE photographer Patricia Domke and Daniel Abbott of FTU’s Sewage Treatment Plant called for several minutes. Two smaller ‘gators were released in the holding ponds but 9-foot Albert quickly asserted his right of eminent domain, according to Abbott.

Pegasus Pilot Ready for Competition

The Pegasus Pilots are preparing for the Southeastern Regional Flight Competition of the National Intercollegiate Flying Association (NIFA). The competition will be held Nov. 10 in St. Petersburg.

The Pilots joined the NIFA two months ago and although this will be the first time the club participated in this competition, the stunts are familiar to them.

ONLY teams from the participating flight clubs compete.

Herbert Long, the pilot’s faculty advisor, said the club is in the process of selecting a team for the upcoming competition.

If the team scores high in the overall competition, the club will be sending its team to the NIFA’s national competition in the middle of March.

THIS Aviation club offers students, faculty and staff the opportunity to learn how to fly at reduced rates, at “a saving of at least $300 for getting your private pilot’s license” said club president, Tom Hartman.

The club has approximately 40 members and the ratio between pilots and non-pilots is approximately equal. There are both qualified faculty and student members to help teach beginners how to fly single-engine airplanes.

Hartman said club records show it takes as little as two weeks for some and as much as two years for others to get a primary private pilot’s license. These are extreme cases, Hartman said because it usually takes two quarters (20 weeks) for most people.

To be eligible for a primary private pilot’s license one must have 40 to 50 flight hours, including dual and solo flights. A pilot must then pass four tests - a final flight test, a physical exam and a written and oral test. The physical exam is conducted by a special flight surgeon.

The primary license allows one to fly only in fair weather. For those who do not want to wait for fair weather to go flying, there is the instrumental license.

With the instrumental license, a pilot can not only fly his plane in bad weather but in places where even the airliners cannot fly. But one must have the primary license first.

The club’s joining fee is $310, with monthly dues of 50 cents. However, Hartman said, the joining fee is put in an escrow fund so when members leave the club (membership can only be extended up to two years after one graduates from the university), $15 is refunded to them.

Once a quarter the Pegasus Pilots get together for a “fly-in.” The Pilots have visited the Piper factory in Vero Beach, where single-engine planes are constructed; the Hertion Traffic Control Center in Jax, the air traffic control center for the entire Southeast; the Kalamazoo and Sanford Air Shows; Curtis Pitt’s Fly-In, a showing of getting to know Cedar Creek on the West Coast for picnics.

Guests are allowed to go on these fly-ins. They receive discount rates (same price as club members) to fly with the club.

STUDENTS, faculty and staff interested in joining the Pegasus Pilots should contact Tom Hartman at 273-9774 or Herbert Long at 275-2256, or come to club meetings, which are held at 11 a.m. in ENG 153 every other Thursday.

Veterans’ Assoc To Meet

A newly forming campus association of veterans will hold its first meeting Nov. 14 at 11 a.m. in the Village Center Multi-Purpose Room. The meeting is open to all interested student veterans.

Larry Matthews, coordinator of Veteran’s Affairs, said, “I think a good veterans’ group on campus will really augment what this office is trying to do.”

Dr. Roger E. Handberg, a political science professor, will serve as faculty advisor, and Ken Kennedy, Veteran’s Affairs counselor, will serve as staff advisor.

Officers elected at the Oct. 18 meeting held in the Village Center include Gordon Eddins, president; Donald Eiband, vice-president; John Cox, secretary-treasurer; John Cox, Jr. and Stephen McMclnnan as other members of the council.

Clayton Campbell and Brian Kendall were appointed to head the special purposes committee.

The foremost purpose of the organization, according to Matthews, is information dissemation to veterans on topics of importance to them.

Because veterans currently compose 20 per cent of the FTU student population, Matthews said, the organization is attempting to become the largest group on campus.

Speaking of the new organization, President Eddins said, “Our first objective is to insure that all those receiving benefits from the Veterans Administration are updated on all benefit changes and policy or procedural changes.
