Faculty/Evaluations Knocked

By Torrey Stewart

A psychology professor trained in constructing evaluation units questioned the recent adoption of a resolution by the Faculty Senate calling for and that departments could develop their own evaluation processes.

Dr. Fredric D. Frank stated that he questions "whether each department has the expertise to come up with their own form," and that "some of the forms that will be developed within the departments could not be used quantitatively."

Dr. Frank explained that the typical college professor is not trained to develop the type of evaluation form needed, and that few departments have people trained in these areas.

"Assuming the departments could develop the form, I question if they know how to standardize it," Dr. Frank continued. Even departments with 15-20 members are probably too small to adequately develop meaningful standards, he said.

Dr. Frank said that if the resolution is implemented, it would be very difficult to compare individuals in different departments. If such comparison is the goal, the evaluation methods which may be developed under the resolution would fail, Frank said.

Standardization should be on a university-wide basis, according to Frank, since promotions are made on a university-wide basis.

Dr. Leland H. Jackson, assistant vice president for academic affairs, indicated that non-standardized evaluation forms make evaluation difficult on the university-level when a professor is up for promotion. "Different forms provide different types of information," he said.

Evaluation forms are used for promotion, raises, gaining of tenure and feedback purposes. Standardized evaluation processes elsewhere are generally developed and used on a university- or state-wide university basis, Frank said.

Dr. Frank has a Ph.D. in industrial psychology, said intra-departmental development of evaluation scales "does not improve things."

"Some departments could operate (evaluate) by 'Gee, I heard two students say you were really a good professor.'"

The resolution passed by the Faculty Senate provided that "the procedures for obtaining the assessment be standardized at the departmental level by the most common consent of department members."

According to Dr. K. Phillip Taylor, chairman of the Faculty Senate, some departments may decide to utilize the university-wide evaluation from currently being prepared by a recently-established committee. January is the deadline for the completed form.

Child Development Center A Likely Addition To Campus

By Torrey Stewart

Student Government may fund the construction of a campus child development center which could increase the married student enrollment, said Dean of Women Carol Wilson.

In mid-week it appeared that the Student Senate would pass a resolution allocating $2,000 of SG funds to a Day Care account, according to Michael Torresella, the senator who introduced the funding request.

"I THINK we will be adding a dilemma in which many married students find themselves," said Wilson. "Some are torn between pursuing an education and quitting school...to stay home and take care of children. By providing on-campus facilities, we could assure students that their children are receiving excellent care."

Wilson, who has spearheaded the campaign for funds, will attempt to obtain community financial support for the center, which has been in the embryonic stage for several years. A proposal for child care facilities was presented in 1968 by the psychology department, but was not approved because the young university had many other priorities at that time, according to Wilson.

"There are so many children of non-students who need services of the community centers, that we would be doing a disservice by asking a community to take our load," Wilson said.

The center should "set an example for the community" by surpassing minimum standards established by the county for child care centers, said Wilson. As recommended, the pilot program will include 40-50 children, 2-5 years old. A $4,000 food building would be required, which would be designed to expand with growth, said Wilson.

An unannounced survey sent to 2,200 married students last spring netted over a 50 per cent return. Fifty-one per cent of those answering the survey questions indicated that they would utilize child care facilities if they were available on campus. Over one third (33.9 per cent) indicated that their spouse would attend school if on-campus facilities were provided on campus. 38.4 per cent indicated they

Rep. Frey Discussed Tapes With Students

By Marvin Clegg

Republican Congressman Lou Frey informally discussed matters ranging from the late morning to the energy crisis with two PTU classes last week.

In two lively sessions, the Ninth Congressional District Representative fielded questions from political science and engineering seminar students.

Frey, a congressmen of five years, told his audience the most important thing about Watergate is the fact it was discovered and will give legislators a chance to clean up politics.

"Everybody has said at one time that all politicians are crooked," Frey said. "Somebody asked one of my daughters if I was a politician and she said me three times. She isn't that old, but she knows being a politician is 'bad.'"

When questioned bout the Watergate tapes, Frey said that in his next meeting with President Nixon he was asked the president about the two missing tapes. Nixon replied that the first releasing phone conversation took place in the family quarters of the White House where no tapes were heard. Frey said that Nixon, Frey said.

The second conversation was held in the president's executive office during a weekend. Frey said the Secret Service put the hours of tapes in that office's recorder each weekend and does not check it again until Monday. That weekend, Kissing was back from one of his trips or duties, Frey said. Frey and the president held a long

FTU Officials React To Minorities

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has given the Florida Board of Regents (BOR) 90 days to improve its state university desegregation plan. The present BOR plan was rejected by the HEW Office of Civil Rights for its lack of "sufficient specificity" as to the processes which will be used to effect student and faculty desegregation.

Federal court orders require an April 8 submission of a desegregation plan. Failure to comply with them could lead to the suspension of federal funding or lawsuits seeking court orders for desegregation, said Peter G. Holmes, BSHW director of civil rights.

Presently, FTU has no offering body to coordinate its recruiting efforts. Admissions, Cooperative Education, Student Government, Community College Relations, The Black Student Union and individual colleges recruit high school and junior college students of minority groups. But each concern does so independently, enhancing the aid of one another-sector of the University at different times.

Admissions officer Paul W. Leinbach said, "I know our operations but not everyone else's." The aim of the Admissions Office recruitment program is to inform high school counselors of the opportunities and new programs available at FTU. Last spring 50 high schools in a seven-county area were visited as part of the program.

One little known fact is that students for Fall 1973 were solicited on the Florida State Twelfth Grade Test. Grades are not the most powerful deterrents to attending FTU. The fact that FTU is a commuter campus can be a very real deterrent to students from low-income families. A more widespread utilization of the South Orlando Resident Center might help add-steps to this problem, according to Leinbach. Admissions finds, too, that Black students seem to prefer the colleges for their economic feasibility, or more predominantly Black universities.

"Friends" Planning Activation

The executive planning committee of "Friends of the University" met last week at the Ramada Inn East to discuss reactivating the organization.

The "Friends" group is composed primarily of parents of students and alumni. The executive committee discussed long range plans and projects for the group to undertake.

These attended the meeting were "pioneers" of the organization. They were Roland Lee, current president of "Friends," William C. Weir, Rabbi R. J. Adler, Mrs. Benjamin Gray and Dr. Robert H. Humphrey, PTU liaison officer.

Discussions involved developing the FTU image, a vital objective since the university will retain its present name. "Friends" intends to emphasize the multi-purpose activities of the university in the community.

ATTENDANCE

By Mike Myers

The State Council of Student Body Presidents (SCSBP) met recently at FTU to compose a visitation form which will be submitted to the State Board of Regents (BOR). Although not finalized, it is expected that the resolution will contain a recommendation for extended visitation hours.

Attending the meeting were presidents Lee Constantine of FTU, Bill Diers of the University of South Florida and Chip Fuller of Florida Atlantic University. In addition, there were four representatives from the University of Florida presentation.

Constantine, who serves as chairman of the SCSBP, began the meeting by presenting petitions which had been collected from the state universities. These petitions, which stated that the present visitation policy is unsatisfactory, were signed by 76 per cent of the state universities' resident students.

The petitions were instrumental in leading the SCSBP to take action on the visitation issue. The student response contradicted a BOR report which stated that a majority of the residents support the present policy. Council members agreed that the BOR's assumption, which was based on the small number of reported rule violations, was a faulty one.

"Students are mature enough to abide by the regulations set down by the universities and the BOR has insisted this compliance for support," said Fuller.

At the meeting, the general position of SCSBP on visitation was established. Then each of the presidents present was assigned a portion of the resolution to write.

When the separate sections have been finished, they will be returned to Constantine for the final revision. He will, in turn, obtain the approval of each council member before submitting the complete resolution to the BOR.

Preliminary indications are that the resolution will call for extended visitation hours. The president favor the complete removal of time restrictions, but all agreed that this would be asking "too much."

"We have no chance to get open dorms with the elections coming up," said Davis. He explained that the BOR is very sensitive to political reactions and that the lifting of all restrictions would be an explosive issue.

The current rule allows visitation from 2 - 11 p.m.

A printer's mistake last week resulted in the incorrect statement in the article headlined "Marketable Skills Needed For Work After Degree." The second paragraph should read, "Statistics indicate these majors have higher unemployment rates and lower average salaries compared to other majors."

FTU Mobilizes To Combat Energy Crisis

By Jerry Brooks

As the nation faced with possible gasoline rationing and power shortages, FTU President Charles B. Simmons announced the formation of a task force to make recommendations to him concerning steps the university can take to conserve power.

Dr. B. C. Gambrell, vice president for academic affairs, was named chairman of the task force officially known as "The University Task Force on Energy Conservation." According to Gambrell, the task force will be divided into three subcommittees which as follows:

- Transportation
- Lighting, water and air conditioning
- Building and grounds

These subcommittees will be concerned with the possibility of a four-day week and the consideration of other scheduling systems that might assist in the conservation of energy.

Communication. Ways in which communications within the university can be changed to conserve less paper, for example, will be the function of this subcommittee.

- Community Liaison. This subcommittee will attempt to communicate and cooperate with the community concerning matters of energy conservation.

A member of the transportation subcommittees himself, Millman said he hopes the task force will produce some specific recommendations that can be acted on up before the Christmas break.

- Lighting. Gov. William J. Millman has appointed several ways for FTU to conserve energy. The task force will consider his recommendations.

Constantine advocates a University-wide car pool system. Such a program could be implemented by taking the names, addresses and telephone numbers of those who have purchased a parking decal and processing this information into a computer. The computer would link the names of four to five people who live in the same vicinity and mail to them a form to form a car pool. According to Constantine, the car pool system could be used by all students, faculty and staff.

In addition, academic credit could be given to those students who participate in the program. Such a program already exists at the University of California, said Constantine. The FTU program, which was patterned after "Environmental Protection 496," would be a one-year course for those who use a car pool for that time. Constantine suggested that students who participate in a regular car pool be given a discount on the price of their parking decal.

Establishment of a feeder bus line by the University from the nearest Tri-County Bus Line drop-off point to and from the university would, according to Constantine, decrease vehicle traffic and have positive effect on the ecology of the campus. Only one bus would be needed for regular round trip runs from the drop-off points to the campus.

Constantine also recommends the initiation of a four-week course to the academic calendar. This would automatically reduce the number of days required to travel to and from school. Curtailing University thermostats were lowered 3 degrees in the drop-off points to the President Millican on Nov. 16.

Honor Dr. Gale Sperry

The late Dr. Gale L. Sperry was honored during a special memorial service held in the Engineering Auditorium last week. Students and members of FTU faculty and staff attended the service in memory of the music department chairman.

The university flag flew at half mast that day in tribute to a man who was "a moving force in the most areas of music education," said Gerald Prescott, Sperry's life-long friend.

"Every group has its champion," said Prescott. "The Sperrys were ours.

According to Prescott, a professor at the University of South Florida (USF), estimated that over 10,000 students profited from their association with Dr. Sperry. He said over 10,000 students probably came in contact with him over a three-year period.

Sperry, who died from a heart attack while jogging, had appeared approximately 20 times per year as a public conductor, clinician and adjudicator in 20 states over the past 23 years.

He initiated a music program at a public school in Minnesota in 1949. It has continued to develop into one of the finest public school programs in the nation.

Entering P.T.U. as production chairman in 1973, Sperry helped build the new music department. He won a most of their activities during daylight hours. The University moved could also be shown during the day.

Constantine also made the following recommendations in the memorandum he sent to President Millman on Nov. 16.

"Increased use of high school, community college and existing campus recreation in the Orlando area, brings the classes to the people.

"Towering the thermostats in the university to 68 degrees, All thermostats were lowered 3 degrees on Nov. 9.

Accent On Individual?

By Michael Lobrige

FTU's motto, "Accent on the Individual," was exemplified exceptionally well by the College of Business Administration on their Business Day.

The fifth successful gathering of business majors and faculty members, this year's event should be a spur to others to host similar events at other colleges to develop more professional relationships with their students and faculty closer together.

The College of Engineering is hosting a party the first of December in conjunction with several engineering societies to congregate seniors and conclude the end of the fall quarter. By making this gathering an annual event, students and faculty will have something to look forward to.

The College of Education has established a formal system of faculty and students each quarter. They also host education students from FTU resident centers to the campus each year, according to Assistant Dean R. G. Cowgill. This is indicative of the college's student spirit.

Those students located in the area resident centers may never get the chance to tour the FTU campus unless their college helps them. One student displayed by a showing a little co-operative spirit.

Those are the three colleges that have organized events better. The College of Business Administration has a needed bond between students and professors. The "Accent on the Individual" looks good on paper but FTU has yet to fully stand behind it and push the student emphasis.

Deane Olin, Marcellini and Idaho of the College of Natural Sciences, Humanities, and Fine Arts, and Journal of Social Science, reported that at the present time their colleges do not sponsor any program or help with their students and faculty, other than the usual ones, that other colleges which are made up of several student members with a faculty advisor. If not all were small enough to allow emphasis on all students' relationship with their professors.

Now that the FTU is almost six years old, it should be concerned with establishing traditions among the colleges to better the student-student relationship. Developing traditions should be one of the main objectives of the University programs. This will not only increase the student interest in FTU, but will greatly contribute to the community awareness of the University, which has been shown in a recent poll to be severely deficient.

As a small, maturing university, FTU is in the perfect time of growth to begin developing more student-oriented programs and annual events to establish these expected traditions. When the enrollment increases with the years FTU will not have the same student interest but the students will be looked upon for more than merely their tuition.

Advisee Gives Advice

Editor,

I received quite a shock yesterday. I went to the dept. of mathematical sciences for some advice concerning CLEP credit with me because I had some questions concerning such matters. My advisor leaned back in his chair with his feet up on the desk, looked over the policy and told me he couldn't answer my questions and then had the audacity to ask "Who sent you to me?"

I have golden the distinct impression that student advisement is a big joke among faculty advisors. I feel that faculty advisor should be able to do more than just sign their name to a student prepared schedule.

As a Freshman at FTU I have yet to see any "Advisor on the Individual." Is there really such a thing???????

Still un advised,

Ann London

Change Evaluations

Editor,

Why does FTU wait until the last days of class to evaluate the teachers? Wouldn't this feedback be of more use if collected during the course?

Then perhaps teachers might be able to incorporate some of their students' ideas while it still mattered to the student. Once finished a course, the motivation to improve it often fades. And after all, isn't that what evaluations are for - to improve courses?

Why not require that students respond to poignant questions like:

1) How could this course be made better?
2) How could this teacher be more effective?
3) Would you like to comment about any aspect of this course?

Present these questions the first week of class and periodically throughout the course. Require that each student write a paragraph or two on such sometime during the quarter.

But don't restrict the teacher-student communications to three paragraphs per quarter. If a teacher has a healthy ego he could serve communications best by allowing verbal criticism for students. The key to this system is to require criticism to be in a construction vein.

Negative criticism does serve us in recognizing that a problem exists.

Comments On Opinion

Editor,

The editorial headlined "A Matter Of Opinion" in the Nov. 15 issue of the FuTUre was the best piece of opinion I have read in the paper this quarter. It was lucid, emphatic, mature and completely earnest.

It made a great deal of sense and said something that needed to be said for five years. Its message has been attempted occasionally by past editors, but this article expressed it view more strongly and concisely than articles before it.

I just hope the administration, faculty, staff and students who seem to think the FuTUre is a "fun and games" operation will open their eyes and take the paper seriously. It is a good newspaper, with a little faith and a lot of hard work and even more cooperation from news sources, it can be a great paper-possibly even the best in the State University System.

Sincerely,

Mary Anne Jackson

November 30 (Fri.)
Advanced registration for all eligible undergraduate and graduate students not yet registered.

December 3 (Mon.)
Last day for receipt of REGULAR undergraduate and graduate applications. Readmission applications and special non-degree registration forms will still be accepted after this date.

December 17 (Mon.)
Readmission applications and non-degree registration forms accepted after this date must pay a late-registration fee and register at late registration.

The Registrar's Office is now open during the noon hour and is open until 7:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday. By Legislative intent and Board of Regents policy, the post-baccalaureate (non-degree) students must register FOLLOWING ALL students who have qualified to be degree seeking; therefore, they are scheduled by appointment near the end of regular registration only.

University staff whose fees are waived must register following the post-baccalaureate (non-degree) students.

SUZY O'ARA looked on as Joy Jones gave up her Miss Orlando crown Nov. 10. Miss O'Hara, an FTU coed, had just been named first runner-up in the Miss Orlando contest.

The Miss Orlando Scholarship Pageant was held in conjunction with the annual weekend Arts and Crafts Show at Tola Park. The winner of the pageant received a $650 scholarship; Miss O'Hara was awarded a $250 scholarship which she plans to use for next quarter's tuition.

Contestants were judged in swimsuit, evening gown and talent competition. Miss O'Hara placed first in the swimsuit portion of the contest. "My family is still teasing me about winning the swimsuit contest because around the house I'm sometimes called Betty Blimp," she said.

MISS O'HARA, 19, is a graduate of Edgewater High School. She plans to major in speech and public relations.

In addition to being a full-time student, she also works full-time at Walt Disney World's Diamond Horseshoe Review. "I enjoy working at Disney because I like the idea of a fantasy land where people can relax and enjoy them selves and because I love to dance," said the FTU coed, who is employed as a can-can dancer.

Active in the Disney scene, Miss O'Hara recently vied for the Disney World Ambassadorship. "As one of the four finalists I had to be able to answer just about every question you could imagine : from who drew the first Mickey Mouse cartoon to my views on President Nixon."

The four contestants were interviewed in California, where they received VIP treatment.

Miss O'Hara would like to continue working with the Disney corporation, in their public relations department, when her dancing career has ended.

She spends three "free" nights each week working with Young Life at Edgewater.

"There were other conversations that day with Kleindienst, with Attorney General (we've had so many of them) Richardson, and with John Dean that night all off c'clock - noise of which were recorded," Frey stated.

After the tapes ran out, Nixon took handwritten notes which are admissible evidence under the law, Frey said. Nixon "offered the fidel of Honor" to anyone who was willing to stand and have a tape of those conversations with Dean, Frey added. "I pointed to the tape of that conversation proves (according to Nixon) that Dean - I feel that's a bit of a polish - didn't exactly tell what happened.

Frey said he asked Nixon why he hadn't told of those two tapes before and learned the Watergate Committee had never requested those tapes. "It was Cox who asked for those two tapes and he didn't ask for them until September," Frey continued.

The president as asked by Frey how the public could be assured the Watergate tapes were untampered with. Nixon replied that Judge Sirica had the tapes Frey, who feels these practices wasn't for him.

The proposal to limit U.S. food supplies to countries such as Kuwait and Saudi Arabia in response to their fuel embargo brought guarded agreement from Frey, who feels these nations are "much better handled at the diplomatic level.

The House Science and Aeronautics Committee member said a more promising move to halt the oil embargo is to show national determination to develop other energy sources, thus rendering the oil countries' holdings less valuable.

When asked about his plans for the coming Senate session, Frey replied, "I read in the paper that the thought had crossed my mind about the Senate race and I suppose that's true."

An FTU audience listens intently as Congressman Lou Frey answers questions about the issues surrounding Washington during his recent campus visit.

"Politics is certainly not well organized - they can't even organize a break-in."

Commenting on how he started in politics Frey recalled, "Somebody said to me, 'You know you've got a big mouth - you've been talking about things, what about doing things?' Why don't you run for Congress?" Won or lose, there was no way I could lose that election because I was doing something I wanted to do and I enjoyed it when I started and I'm enjoying it now."

"I don't intend this to be a lifelong thing. I figure with the involuntary retirement rate that will be taken care of one way or another," Frey quipped.

According to FTU's former Washington intern, Ginny Ward, Frey is interested in having FTU students write to his Washington address given below.

MED SCHOOL ADMISSION PROBLEMS?

EuroMed may offer RA via overseas training

For the session starting Fall, 1974, EuroMed will assist qualified American students in gaining admission to recognized overseas medical schools.

And that’s just the beginning. Since the language barrier constitutes the greatest difficulty in successful completion of the course, the EuroMed program also includes an intensive 2 weeks of intensive conversational language course, mandatory for all students. Five hours daily, 5 days a week (11-16 weeks) the course is given in the country where the student will attend medical school.

In addition, EuroMed provides students with a 12 week intensive cultural orientation program, with American students now studying med- cine in that particular country serving as mentors.

Senior or graduate students currently enrolled in an American university are eligible to participate in the EuroMed program.

Earle Visits FTU

Florida House Representative Lewis Earle spoke on the disadvantages of unionization before approximately 25 faculty and administration members in the library conference room last Wednesday.

Earle maintained that unionization of university professors would be incompatible with true professionalism, individual liberty, and academic freedom.

Although many of Earle's examples of trade union andicket violence applied to elementary and secondary school teachers, he said such practices could be adopted by university professors.

In a question-answer session, professors queried Earle about the current emphasis which they said is being placed on professors' productivity and accountability.

Earle agreed that to insure the public that it is getting full use for its money, professors must be held accountable.

Earle said he did not believe collective bargaining without a local option could be accepted throughout the state university system, as some professors had heard.

He stated that the immediate gain in salary after joining a union is only short-term. Most of the additional funds come from the school funds, he said, which may result in a loss of the people's confidence.

Earle maintained that educational productivity was not affected positively by unionization.

Educators must improve their image, Earle said, because currently neither the people nor their legislature will back them. But he agreed that the faculty did have legitimate concerns, and that there are "some deficiencies in the system."

One professor, who asked to remain unidentified, said he was disappointed that Earle did not say much about the rights and privileges of a professional organization. This professor said unionization of university professors would be incompatible with true professionalism, individual liberty and academic freedom.

However, an organization like the American Association of University Professors would not, he said.

VC Displays Py's Work

By Weber Ivy

Robert Py's used of the word "comment" to describe several paintings in the current Village Center art exhibit carries an obvious, but interesting, implication. It implies that the placement of lines and selection of colors in paintings do more than just denote an object; they convey the artist's feelings and opinions about it.

Py uses geometric and cubiforms extensively. The resulting mosaic effect makes us conscious of our perception processes and supports Py's premise that "The fountainhead of reality lies in man's imagination."

"The Art Critic" points and narrows his eyes as if it is "So this is art, huh?" You can almost hear him sniff as he stands there wondering why artists don't stick to painting flowers, trees, children, dogs and nude women.

In a more serious vein, "Blue Day" comments on the ages and anguish of a Black man whose store is being destroyed in the community. "When Are All The Buffalo" observes the vanishing culture of the American Indian with a note of sadness.

The only painting I have some misgivings about is the "Transformation of the Pig". Due to its size and bright colors, it is imposing, but rather garish. It looks too much like an advertisement for a 1932 horror movie about some hypnotic mummy that roamed the Egyptian desert molesting nice little Redskin girls.

You had better hurry if you want to see this exhibit. Today and early Monday are the only times left for viewing. It is definitely worth seeing.

Bromberg Concert Excellent Despite Crowd

Buying tickets ten minutes before showtime and still getting excellent seats is a rare thing nowadays, but the writer was able to November 16 at the David Bromberg Concert performed at the Kayrat Field House at Rollins College.

The school put a backstage in the middle of the gym and had the audience sit on one side of the field house. But there were still many empty seats with only about 650-800 people attending the show, due to the poor publicity.

Bromberg, who may be labeled a folk musician, started in on his acoustic guitar before even reaching the stage. The show began with a fast, hard-driving song "Hardworkin' John", while a minute or two later he and his fiddler Ken Knox dropped their instruments and started a bit with their mandolins.

Also accompanying Bromberg was Tony Macelion on the bass, Joe Pequor on saxophone and flute, and Peter Inque on the trumpet and bugle.

They played a few more songs from his Denver in Dress" album, ""Tennessee Waltz" and a number by Frit Taylor, ""Sugar in the Ground" (in which Bromberg and Koski again went to their mandolins).

Bromberg played for about 1 1/2 hours and gave an excellent show which was only marred by rowdy and obnoxious people attending the show. At one point during the show, the crowd yelled for requests, "Hey Pim in the middle of a rhythm and I've got to play what I feel," said Bromberg.

The survey reported a slight increase in the use of hard narcotics, such as LSD, contrary to expectations, and suggested the blame of the increase to the percent who believed the survey, is "resistance by residence had personnel in reporting drug violations."

The University of Florida has already begun taking steps in curbing the drug abuse problem. Appointment of a university law enforcement officer to act as liaison between the University Police Department (UTP) and the Division of Student Affairs is expected soon. Other steps include increased drug assistance on drug law enforcement and making them responsible for reporting suspected violations.

The BOR strongly urged a closer look at Florida marijuana laws and released a report on Oregon's new pot law making possession an up to one ounce of marijuana merely a $100 fine offense. The pros and cons of legalization will be discussed in the BOR survey which will be made available for Black Americans, the possession and/or use of marijuana would give law enforcement officers more time for enforcing other criminal laws.

There has also been the recommendation from Robert D. Mautz, chancellor of the state university system, that Florida law should be amended to remove the automatic expulsion policy enforced when a student is convicted of drug offenses.

Another survey on the scope of drug problems was done by W. J. Coggins, Director of Student Health Services. His report showed a significant increase in use of marijuana between 1969 and 1971.

Use of marijuana by Sale Held

In another effort to raise money for the construction of an Information Building at the main campus entrance, the FTU Women's Club will hold a Christmas Bazaar on Wednesday, Dec. 5 in front of the Student Center. The sale will restore baked goods and crafts such as nature photography, Christmas cards and Christmas tree ornaments.

These items will be contributed by members of the Women's Club and their friends. In addition, the $3,000 needed to build the information center through fund raising parties and individual contributions will be collected.

George C. Engert, chairman of the BX building fund, said the Women's Club hopes to reach its goal of $5,000 by next fall.

This year's bazaar provided the university with the Christmas wreath now covering the door of the Administration Building.

Fellowships Offered In Four Categories

The Ford Foundation and the National Fellowships Fund have announced opportunities for four fellowships for the 1974-1975 academic year. Graduate Fellowships are available for Black Americans, Mexican-Americans, Native Americans and Puerto Ricans.

These fellowships are offered as part of a Ford Foundation project to meet the needs of minorities whose opportunities for graduate study have been limited as a result of racial discrimination and/or other factors.

Eligibility is limited to those students who plan to study full-time to earn a doctoral degree in the Arts, Sciences, Education or Law. Students holding a first professional degree and who are enrolled in a program leading to a doctoral degree in preparation for a career in higher education are also eligible.

The AWARDS are for one year only, but are renewable upon reaplication, if satisfactory progress toward the degree is maintained.

Applicants are expected to study full-time and to complete the requirements for the degree as soon as possible.

Qualifications for all of the fellowships are the same. Applicants must be citizens of the United States, they must be enrolled in an accredited U.S. graduate school and must be working toward a doctoral degree in their field of study. Also, they must be currently engaged in or planning to enter a career in higher education.

Fellowship awards will include full tuition and fees and a stipend of $2,000 for single students and $2,500 for dependent children.

Music Classes
Set For Winter

The Department of Music will add a new course for non-music majors to its already successful "Enjoyment of Music," which has been offered during the past three quarters.

The new course is Music 110 beginning recorder for two quarter hours. The course is designed to teach performance on the Recorder, an early flute like instrument.

Instruction in this course will be given by Professor Patricia Steinberg who has been most successful in offering this instruction to musical novices at other universities.

Cindy Curtis and Jim Denster demonstrate the art of playing the recorder, an ancient type of flute currently being used in some modern composer's works. The new 2-hour beginning recorder class for non-music majors will be offered in winter quarter, on Tuesdays, 11:00-11:50, in the Engineering Auditorium. (Photo by Alan Greens.)

A major upset was scored for Business Administration students when the EFG (Economics-Finance-Graduate) softball team defeated the reigning faculty softball champions in a 6-4 Business Day victory, Nov. 16.

EFG’s win came after a series of playoffs between the Marketing Club, Accounting Club, Management Club, Delta Sigma Pi and Pi Chi Theta.

EFG retained a winning edge throughout the five-inning championship game. By the end of the fifth inning the professors “were pleading to play more” according to Dr. Richard Reidenbach, faculty coach.

Afterwards, Faculty’s loss was diagnosed very carefully by the instructors. “The problem was that we just didn’t score enough runs,” said Reidenbach.

Even to the casual observer the success of Business Day was apparent. Faculty mingled with students until the two groups were indistinguishable (except for the fact that professors sometimes do not run quite as fast as their pupils). Simultaneous volleyball games, softball playoffs, lunch and frisbee tossing attracted enough people to fill Lake Claire parking lot with cars and keep the participants active until 6:30 that evening.

This year’s Business Day was described as the best since the program’s inception. “Of course I’m prejudiced,” said Reidenbach, “because I had a lot of fun.” The success of this fall’s outing may produce another Business Day for the spring, which would be the first time two programs have been held in one year.

Business Day’s quality may be attributed to three to four weeks of preparation by the planning committee and to the aid of student leaders. Of course the faculty furnished beer may have helped, too.

Monday's Probable Starters

Clark's main problem lies in who will play the other guard sparking Rollins to a narrow 80-79 overtime win. "Butler killed us in the second half, so why didn't he start the first half," asked Clark. "Because evidently someone looked a little more consistent in practice," answered Clark. "That's our situation."

So the best bet, in Clark's opinion, is to "get over there three minutes before eight to see who starts." It's pretty certain, on the basis of talent and experience, that four positions are set. Hall who led the team with a 20.2 scoring average last year, will open at a guard or point depending on John Smith, who averaged 10 rebounds a game, will start at forward and junior Pete Haas or sophomore Willy Bellotte, both 6-7, will play at center or forward.

Haas has seen some action in the preseason at guards when Clark was experimenting with his "tall" team. If Clark wants a taller team, in all probability he'll take out Collins (or who ever is playing the other guard) and bring in either 6-5 senior Bob Jones, 6-6 Mike McDaniel, 6-10 Ted Dannen or 6-3 Jasper H. L. Coleman.

If Clark wants his tall team on the floor, the quarterbacking duties will fall in the hands of Arnett Hall, something he didn't have to worry about last year when Mike Clark was playing. "Hall should be able to play the point guard for us like (Walt) Frazier does for the Knicks or Ernie D. (Gregg) did for Providence; because he is a good athlete," said Clark. During the preseason, Clark has also been impressed with the rebounding of John Smith.

"We have got to be underdogs," said Clark about the South Florida game. "They should be about 20 points higher in the Dunkel rating." South Florida opens this Saturday against the Florida Gators which will also be an advantage.

South Florida will look for scoring out of its guards, John Kiser and Leon Smith, Kiser scored over 30 points against Rollins a year ago, while Smith led the state prep circuit in scoring while playing for Hillsborough. Gerald Long, a 6-9 center, may start, but he's being pushed by 6-8 Warren Wall, younger brother of Neal Wall, who now plays for the Phoenix Suns.

FTU will return home for the first home game of the season Wednesday night against St. Leo, FTU lost to St. Leo at Lake Highland and surprisingly best the Monarchs by 11 sway. St. Leo opens tonight against nationally ranked Providence, led by Marvin Barnes, and follows that with an equally impressive opponent in Georgetown on Monday.

FTU Opens Season Against S. Florida Monday

For interested FTU basketball fans the word is to show up at Tampa's Curtis-Hixon Hall at 7:57 p.m. Monday night to see the "Rupeene Clark Mystery Show."

The big mystery is who will be the starter's when FTU takes the floor against South Florida to begin the Knight's fourth varsity season of basketball.

Student Government is sponsoring up to four buses if necessary to the game Monday night in Tampa. To assure yourself a seat, go to VC 206 and sign up. There is a $1 deposit which will be refunded to all passengers upon arrival in Tampa. The buses will leave Monday at 4:30 p.m.

When asked last Tuesday morning, Torchy Clark said "Right now I can't say who will start because I really don't know. I've played them all, I've heard a lot about a starting lineup but I didn't believe," Clark confided. "The guys are all that even."

FTU Archers Place High

Three individuals and one team from FTU placed in the Southeastern Regional Collegiate Archery Championships held Nov. 10 at Howard Community College.

Tim Reed placed second in the men's individual freestyle while Darryl Payne took third in the men's freestyle dual, David Stubb as also from FTU, took a third place in the men's novice division. Payne and Sam Reyna, despite no third man to fill out a team, placed third in the men's team division.

Recently, the 1972-73 All-Southern archery team was announced. Lyonne Harvey and Diana Pickens, senior on last year's FTU team were named to the team along with present team members Sam Reyna, Tina Reed and Mark Grossenbacher.

Murphy Tops Sherman 2-1 In All-FTU Southern Final

By Fred Cay

You'll have to excuse Pat Murphy and Scotty Sherman if they're not exactly paragons of a true championship match. The two are teammates on the FTU's wrestling squad and are both highly-talented players. After four matches, Murphy emerged victorious with a 2-1 decision.

BOTH MURPHY and Sherman were three matches in the FTU's 155-lb state championship meet and are both excellent athletes.

But to the delight of FTU head coach Greg Geary, both would perform well in the face of the highly prestigious Southern Open at the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga last weekend with Murphy the champion at 155 lbs.

"This is probably the best thing that's happened to us all season," said an elated Geary.

The 1973-74 version of The Knights, under the direction of head coach Greg Geary and assistant John House, are seeking to win the nation's biggest title this year.

Not since 1967 has the state of Florida produced a state championships and the FTU's wrestling team is looking to win it this year.

SHERMAN was the last to go down and Murphy and the defending state champ, now a junior, has had some big ones in the past.

For SHERMAN, the result of the 155-lb state final was in line with the other three matches in the state championships two years ago.

This was the last match of the season and Murphy was at his best when it counted.

FSU's wrestling squad and have their eyes on the Florida State team's biggest win of the season, a 12-0 victory.

"We were the last team in line to take home the state championship trophy," said a happy Murphy.

Dr. Stanton Friedman states Beliefs On UFO's

By Weber Ivy

"After more than 34 years of study and personal investigation I am convinced that the evidence is overwhelming that the earth is being visited by intelligently controlled machines whose origin is off the earth."

In a presentation billed as "Flying Saucers Are Real!" Stanton Friedman, a nuclear physicist with experience in the development of nuclear power and space systems, recently defended that conclusion before an audience in the VOAC.

He emphasized that those cases came from about 20% of reported sightings which remained after the elimination of those which were labeled "identifiable or as having "insufficient information."

Several of them were said to have involved crafts which could hover, then take off at thousands of miles an hour with no apparent acceleration. They could make right-angle turns and maintain a constant speed usually without noise or pollution.

Citing the recent case of two Mississippi fishermen honored on the Dick Cavett show of Nov. 2 and the 1961 experience of a New Hampshire couple, Friedman maintained that some people have been captured and studied as specimens by humanoids, and then released.

In the latter case, the extraterrestrial investigators supposedly induced amnesia on their human subjects to make them forget the trauma of the experience. The whole event had to be reconstructed with the aid of hypnosis.

"But why would they want to study us?" Friedman asked. One guess was: "They may be graduate students doing their thesis work on the development of primitive species."

The physicist saved his sharpest words for those who deny the existence of intelligently guided UFOs without seriously considering the arguments. He attacked the Condon report on the subject for its neglect of some of the best sightings. He said he deplored the personal abuse of some scientists who have publicly stated their beliefs on UFO's, and urged a lifting of the "laughter curtain" which discourages scientists and laymen alike from reporting UFO observations for fear of ridicule.

Indeed, Friedman contends, "The real problem with UFO's is a psychological one. Many older, eminent scientists are unwilling to give up their notions of Earthman's uniqueness and their own importance."

He also challenged NASA to invent money, manpower and technology in the systematic study of UFOs. Friedman said that in doing so we may "obtain solid scientific data - from the surface of the earth - which will prove both the existence of intelligent extraterrestrial life and help us to formulate an entirely new electromagnetic approach to the problem, pollutionable and able to go "up-over-and-down" without holes anywhere."

"With man having walked on the moon it is time to confront the most important scientific and challenging problem of our time."

A donation drive to raise money for FTU's baseball team, sponsored by the Black Student Union (BSU) and the Cooperative Education (Coop) office hosted over 200 young adults who participated in the "Upward Bound" and "Jones High School Day" programs.

Both programs brought students to FTU and familiarized them with some aspects of university life - intramural and extramural sports, financial aid, Coop, Student Affairs and General Studies. Activities included campus tours, lunch and a BSU entertainment.

FRS PICNIC SCHEDULED

A picnic to celebrate the end of fall quarter and to congratulate all graduating seniors is being held tomorrow at 5:30 p.m. at Lake Claire.

The party, given jointly by the Florida Engineering Society (FES), The American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME), The American Institute of Industrial Engineers (AIIE), The Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE) and The American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE), will feature free food, physical activities such as swimming and musical entertainment.

The party is free to members of FES, ASME, AIIE, IEEE and ASCE students of the College of Engineering and to all faculty and staff.
