Within the next 30 days, FTU may receive approval from the State Board of Education to apply for a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) license for a proposed WFTU-FM radio station. If this approval comes through, it will take several months for the FCC to rule on an application for the license. In addition, the problems of finding the FM station and locating the transmitter remain unresolved, so it is still only a possibility for the future. However, if the university does get the go-ahead for actual broadcasting, it will already have a professional stereo production facility.

Last Monday, Dr. Thomas Morgan, associate professor of communication, granted final approval to seek bids for the facility, which is intended for use by the present AM radio station. It will include two completely equipped stereo turntables, 10-channel stereo consoles, re-tuned roof tape units and record-playback cartridge machines.

With this new equipment, WFTU-AM hopes to bring more professional quality to its broadcasts and its taped programs on local stations WLUQ, WTRR and WLOF.

From UF To BOR: York Gets Office

By Louise Montgomery
Miami Herald Staff Writer

An Alabama farmer who looks like a university president may never have the title he has been named the third chancellor of the Florida System of universities.

The stately gray-haired interim president of the University of Florida will move into the Board of Regents office at Tallahassee in September to prepare for the chancellor's job he will assume in June 1975.

York, named Friday, will be moving from a $400,000 million business of higher education without ever having been a university president. But he won't be the first time the personable Florida Citrus Commissioner has skipped a step on his way to the top.

When he directed the U.S. Department of Agriculture extension service, he was the youngest man to have held that job.

But York's habit of moving into top jobs temporarily stopped when his former provost of agriculture at the University of Florida in 1963. Despite speculation that he was brought to Gainesville to take over the university, York remained in the agriculture school.

As Director of the Institute of Food and Agriculture Services, he went to the legislature for ever-increasing grants and built a wide following among legislators and farmers.

"He's a very impressive advocate of his programs," said Sen. Bob Graham (D-Miami), chairman of the Senate Education committee. York's "managerial perspective" and "the satisfaction of young people, including a good image."

He has worked with York at UF says they know little about him as a person. He's all business, several associates said, and he jealously guards his good image.

"He's a very thin-skinned," another associate said of York's "angry reaction to criticism."

York has been a member of National Academy of Sciences committees and was one of two U.S. delegates to the World Conference on Agriculture in Copenhagen in 1976. He has been invited to take presidencies of several colleges, he said Ed Price, but he turned them down to stay in Florida. Price is a former state senator and chairman of the Florida Cities Commission.

Military Commendations Given To Former POWs

By Alan Crouse

Two former prisoners of war (POWs) received commendations at FTU recently at a ceremony held Jan. 9 in the Board of Regents conference room. Air Force Maj. Glenden W. Perkins and Army Capt. Michael C. Lane were honored at the Distinguished Flying Cross plus Oak Leaf Cluster ceremony.

Air Force Maj. Glenden W. Perkins received the Distinguished Flying Cross plus Oak Leaf Cluster, the Air Medal, and the Purple Heart. His Oak Leaf Cluster was awarded whenever the same medal is won consecutive times.

Army Capt. Michael C. Lane was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and the Purple Heart.

Perkins was cited for actions in 1962 when he was instrumental in the overall success of an air operation over North Vietnam.

Lane was recognized for his actions in 1971 when he flew a strike against a hostile gun emplacement under unfavorable weather conditions.

When asked about adjustments problems they have experienced since their release, Lane mentioned that prison was very uncomfortable in crowds. During his captivity he had become accustomed to living in the presence of only a few prisoners.

He also stated that loud noises were extremely irritating to him, since the North Vietnamese prisons were very quiet.

But most memorable was staying out of the way of telephone poles a problem shortly after his release because of the sudden increase in the number of men he saw.

He was asked how they thought American society had changed for the better, Maj. Perkins replied that people seemed more open and less prone to political-oriented complaints, he added that people are more individualistic.

He also stated what changes in American society disturb them. Perkins answered: "The same thing that disturbs me most are the people who come out of the woods, such as crimes. But, since we have something to come back on, we ignore a lot of small things that bother many more people."

Both men agreed that the closest thing to a prisoner of war atmosphere was the prison camps in North Vietnam.

Perkins remembered most the necessity to tolerate people. "It was even harder to learn how to hold your ground. When you’re stuck in a cell with one guy, 24 hours a day, you soon learn that in order to make it, you’ve got to learn to ignore the little irritating things about other people," he said.

Both men are assigned to the Air Force Institute of Technology under a program which allows them to go to college while remaining essentially on active duty.

Perkins is pursuing a bachelor’s degree in business administration.

Lane, a 1964 graduate of Notre Dame University, is seeking a master’s degree in business administration.

Approximately 40 students at FTU are participating in military programs which allow them a leave of absence for the purpose of obtaining a college degree.

AAUP Reports Figures

Approximately 650 State University System faculty members belong to the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), according to an AAUP spokesman at last Friday’s BOR meeting.

In answering out that this represents only 20 per cent of all faculty members in the system, BOI member J. D. Daniel asked if the AAUP is anything more than the American Federation of Teachers, a more militant group.

Dr. Nelson of AAUP indicated this was not the case, but that during that period membership had increased. He added that the AAUP prefers to work through existing representative organs although other groups propose collective bargaining.

Representing the AFT, Dr. Kenneth Magli, ousted University of Florida professor, said there are presently 600 AFT chapters in the state and speculated that more AAUP chapters are also AFT chapters. Magli added that SUS employees have the right to appoint their own representatives to the BOR, rather than having the BOR appoint them.

The BOR heard from three state university presidents on their universities’ energy conservation efforts. Newly appointed U. F. President, Dr. Robert Martinson, told members that December’s electrical usage at UF was its lowest since 1969. Also announced was a three-day national energy conference at the Gainesville campus.

President Charles Millican of Florida Atlantic University informed listeners of this university’s computerized car pool and commended the efforts of Student Government President Lee Constantine.

An energy saving of 56 per cent was announced by the new University of North Florida, as Dr. Thomas Carpenter wryly stated, "We turned out the other light bulb."

In other action, the board:

--Passed Chancellor Robert Constantine’s recommendation to request $5 million in state funds to study energy-producing projects concerning solar, nuclear, wind and fusions power.

--Heard and passed Daniel’s request for a committee to look into standardized presence and appeal rules concerning SUS employees.

--Instructed the Special Projects Committee to look into intercollegiate sports programs and their financial responsibility.

--Recommended increased capital outlay of $41.4 million for state university campus construction, and for repair of older institutions.

--Decided to move the March BOR meeting from FTU back to the University of West Florida in Pensacola.

SUS Granted $ For New Program

TALLAHASSEE—A Federal grant to improve employer-employee relations in the State University System (SUS) has been awarded to the Chancellor’s office under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act, according to Chancellor Robert Mautz.

The $38,197 grant will underwrite a project to develop, implement and evaluate a system-wide training program for supervisors and administrators.

"There is a strong need throughout the SUS to train supervisors and administrators at all levels of the System to deal effectively with the many pressing issues facing them," said Dr. George Benedict, SUS personnel and faculty relations director, whose office will administer the grant.

Training will be offered to department chairmen, deans, faculty, administrators, managers and supervisors at universities and in the Board of Regents office, using university faculty with expertise in the subjects covered and bringing in some outside consultants.

Programs will cover subject areas ranging from "how to deal with the potential impact of collective bargaining," the complex university environment," to "how to improve attitudes which result in discriminatory employment practices."

Each state university president is appointing one representative to serve on a steering committee to assist in overall planning, selecting priority program subjects and providing leadership at the university level.

liberal but also cautious when dealing with sensitive subjects. "They are politically oriented and therefore very sensitive to public opinion. Because of this incident a few years ago, this could be an explosive issue," he said.

Constantine was referring to the public reaction in 1971 when a BOI member labeled the state university dormitories as "living quarters for social misfits." The SCSHP will meet privately with Governor Andrew原则 this month in an effort to gain his support for the longer visitation hours. The BOE will consider this conference as crucial to the passage of the new policies.

"This meeting will be our only chance to convince the governor and the BOE to approve the proposal," he said.

Government Cuts Spark Student Funds

By Heather Henry

In an "open sesame" compromise decision, the student body will now be consumed in the snack bar program director of the Pegasus Pub, Donald M. Baldwin said this week.

The school awarded grants totaling $132,000, but received approval for spending only $111,000 from the federal government. Originally, the snack bar, which applies for $197,000 and received approval for $130,000 in the winter quarter, would rise, allowing more people to enjoy the Rathskeller, Baldwin said, according to Potts.

The discrepancy was discovered when letters were sent Nov. 20 to inform students of the financial aid portion of the budget cut. Some at FTU said the program would drop out of school work or apply for other financial aid because of the cuts, he said.

Baldwin said the funds were cut from the Educational Opportunity Grant program which began recently. He said the program was designed to take up the slack caused by budget cuts in the Educational Opportunity Grant program.

"If we're guilty of anything, we're guilty of trying to help too many people," Baldwin said. Because of the nature of federal regulations, he said the financial aid office often has to award grants based on financial supplementation grants, he said. Therefore, only $111,000 was awarded, according to Baldwin.

Open Controversy

By Jerry Brooks

Members of FTU's special Task Force on Energy Conservation met this week to discuss their proposals and programs in dealing with the energy crisis.

According to James Elor, coordinator of the task force, the university burned some 23,000 tons of natural gas and conducted 104,000 less kilowatt hours of electricity during November, 1973 than it did for the same period a year ago. Elor added that these figures do not represent the entire month and that an accurate measurement of energy savings will not be ready until the end of January.

"Considering that one barrel of oil is equal to 600,000 kilowatt hours of power, we are effecting a big savings," Elor said.

Implementation of a four-day work week to further reduce FTU's consumption of energy was discussed at Monday's BOM meeting.

According to Dr. Kyle P. Taylor, director of the Physical Plant, Florida State University permits dispensation and cafeteria should be allowed for Beverage license in the snack bar organizations. Six nights ago, an event occurred on campus that could have turned out much more serious than it did. (See page Six.) If there is one positive aspect of the matter, it's that this should serve as a first warning to some women and a reminder to others.

In the past, some assault attempts have been reported and some have been quieted. As a result of the ones publicized, women students and university personnel tightened up security measures for awhile, and the forget—until another incident. We would like to give special attention to the��榜杠形中是由行hens that too many lights have been turned off around more frequently traveled areas of campus. Although some areas have always been a little dim, the change in the energy current has caused others.

The Special Energy Task Force is aware that too many lights have been off in some areas and is looking into this. It has been our experience that some areas appear well lighted, but random lights appear on other nights. We trust the proper officials will look into these areas.

I write by some women at Tuesday's meeting that safety should be given the latest incident. That thought had entered our minds at the very outset and indeed the reasons given for suchblanketing of the matter might have seemed very good at first.

However, at the risk of being labeled corny, "ignorance is darkness." To those women at the meeting had their questions answered, at least an equal number of women residents would have had to rely on hearsay and at least 20 times as many PTU cells would have walked the campus thinking "nothing ever happens like that here at 'til ole' PTU." Perhaps the majority of incidents involve off-campus coeds.

PUBLICITY

An article of opinion based on selectively perceived information presented in a manner designed to persuade you to think like I do.

By Mike Hall

This is the first installment of a two-part series on the Visitation Policy of the Fla. State University System.

In reading through the Residence Hall Visitation Policy for the State University System of Florida, two points became obvious: Students aren't restricted; they have all the time but do not enter us; and

2. Students can't be trusted, the responsibility for home is in the hands of the state. They have the power to vote proposals and approve the Board of Regents, the Board of Regents, the individual universities, the parents of the students concerned, and, most certainly least, the students themselves.

In order to explore the origins of such an enlightened policy of student social interaction, it seems we should go back to the early months of 1971.

In those days, there was a lady lawyer from St. Petersburg who was a member of the Board of Regents. Her name was Elizabeth Kovacevich. Now it so happened that Elizabeth learned about some something as there was a dormitory and dorm rooms on state property, they wouldn't dare. The citizens of the state were so happy with the way things were going.

Well, this got her picture and name in a lot of newspapers and broke a lot of taxpayers that demanded the Board of Regents do something to change this.

On May 3, 1971, the Board of Regents, with Elizabeth at the forefront, voted to stop all visitation on campus on weekdays in the State University System. A recommendation was then made to the Council of University Presidents that they draw up proposed parameters for a statewide visitation guideline. And at the peak of such moral paranoia, they had better be damn good parameters.

The Council's proposal, presented about a week after the Regents' action, called for the following hours: Monday through Thursday - 5 p.m. to 12 midnight; Friday — 5 p.m. to 1 a.m.; Saturday — 2 p.m. to 2 a.m.; and Sunday — 5 p.m. to midnight.

A year later, on May 1, 1972, a policy was approved by the Board of Regents with the following hours: Monday through Thursday — 2 p.m. to 11 p.m., Friday and Saturday — 2 p.m. to 12 midnight, and Sunday — 5 p.m. to midnight. For those of you who aren't aware of the fact, is the policy that guides us at present.

Even though a year had passed between the peak of the paranoid knowledge and adoption of the guidelines, they still reflected the restrictive atmosphere of that period.

IN VIEW OF THE 9,000 SIGNATURES COLLECTED FROM UNIVERSITY RESIDENTS AND KEEPING WITH CHANGING ATTITUDES, THE BOARD OF REGENTS HAVE DECIDED TO INCREASE VISITATION BY 60 WHOLE MINUTES A DAY.

Student Air Fare Cut

In recent years you have been able to avail yourselves of low-cost, transatlantic youth or student air fares. Transatlantic youth fares were originally available to youths 12 to 26 and student fares to student 12 to 29. Because the United States Civil Aviation Board pressure to discourage youth and student fares due to their "discriminatory" nature, the youth fare eligibility was changed so that only youths 12 to 23 were eligible for a transatlantic youth fare in 1973 and transatlantic student fares were withdrawn entirely.

At the end of November 1973, the Unit States Civil Aviation Board refused to approve a special introductory package for the world's transatlantic airlines submitted for approval, and singled out youth fares as totally unacceptable because of their "discriminatory" nature.

The result was the cessation of youth fares effective December 31, 1973. This action was taken in spite of the fact that the United States Senate has, on November 5, 1973, passed a bill authorizing airlines to file for special fares for the young and aged. This bill is pending in the House of Representatives and we urge you to write your Congressional Representative authorizing airlines to file for special fares for the young and aged.

This is one of the issues which discrimination which exists in our country today has resulted in a situation where the public is in the overall public interest to accommodate a particular section of the population, we manage to act contrary to our own best interest.

The question is certainly in the overall other places of interest throughout the world. If you wish to continue to travel abroad on scheduled carriers at rates which you can hope to afford, you should IMMEDIATELY write to your Congressional Representative urging that he/she support the Senate-passed bill (H.R. 2651) which would allow airlines to offer special fares to both the young and the aged. If you do not act and if the bill is defeated, you will be confronted with some of the following sample transactions: 1974 air fares on scheduled airlines:

- London, $660.00 (1)
- Paris, $710.00 (1), $390.00 (2)
- Rome, $882.00 (1), $464.00 (2)
- Madrid, $710.00 (1), $390.00 (2)
- Generali/Zurich, $756.00 (1)
- Athens, $970.00 (1), $526.00 (2)

(1) Trip less than 22 days or more than 45 days made in peak summer season.
(2) Trip between 22 and 45 days made in peak summer season.

If you are one of the American students who attend school far from home, the termination of domestic youth fares will add significantly to the cost of your education since your travel expenses to/from home for holiday and inter-semester periods will be increased. If you are uncertain as to the name and address of your Congressional Representative, you can get this information by calling the Board of Elections - Voter Information. The telephone number is listed under your city name in your local directory.

Your prompt action on this matter is essential. Ab Reig, President SOFA European Student Travel Center Ltd.

Central Florida accountants wishing to take the Uniform CPA examination may take part in a 15-week CPA Preparation Program being offered on consecutive Saturdays at FTU from Jan. 26 to May 4. Classes will run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The courses, taught by FTU faculty, come in four major divisions: Accounting Theory, Accounting Practice, Auditing and Business Law. Participants must have completed the equivalent of a major in accounting.

The full course will cost $225, with smaller fees charged to those requiring less than all four sections.

Enrollment is limited, interested persons should apply early. The deadline is Jan. 23. Apply through the FTU Office of Educational Conference, phone 270-2133. For more information, contact Dr. Clarence G. Avey, chairman of the Department of Accountancy, College of Business Administration, phone 378-2710.

Rapid Reading

The Developmental Center is offering a six week reading efficiency program which is open, without cost, to all FTU students. The program is a directed lab study with an emphasis upon increasing reading speed, comprehension and accuracy.

Students may choose two or three hours per week to fit their own schedules. The program is also offered Thursday and Saturday evenings, 5-9 p.m.

Interested students should go to Residence G, Room 108.
New Security Measures Result of Dorm Assault

Prompted by a recently reported incident of assault on campus, a special meeting of women residents was called Tuesday night by Asst. for Student Development Pam Browning in order to discuss preventative security measures for women living in dormitories and traveling the campus at night.

Browning told the assembled women that during a tour of their dormitories many rooms were found unlocked, girls were noticed walking through the halls clad only in nightgowns while men also walked the hallways, and open curtains permitted a direct view of the dormitories many rooms.

Complaints registered by students at the meeting focused on a lack of campus lighting, especially in the area of the Village Center, along with the absence of lights and phones in dormitory lounges.

Browning explained that there were no lights in the lounges because lamps had been "ripped off" and that phones were removed by the telephone company after long distance calls were billed to the university.

Browning stressed the fact that suite doors should be kept locked and suggested that an escort system which would provide a list of male residents to girls wishing to be escorted across campus in the late evening hours and the buddy system of traveling in groups and pair be utilized as defensive measures against attack.

Several men present at the meeting voiced a willingness on the part of male residents to assist with such an escort program.

In the past seven cases of campus assault were registered during October and November, 1972, while fire other incidents were rumored. In all but one case, victims failed to report the assault immediately. One man was finally arrested by security police and was fined $27 on a charge of simple assault in Orange County Criminal Court.

Recently, however, concern was aroused after a need was accosted in the Dorm "JF" laundry room late Saturday night, Jan. 12. According to FTU police department records, no report was filed until the following afternoon. The assailant was described as white male, probably in his early twenties with dark brown, curly hair of medium length, blue or gray eyes standing 6'2" and weighing approximately 210 pounds, dressed in a white T-shirt and blue jeans.

According to Police Director John F. Smith, the case is under investigation. Since the occurrence, laundry room doors have been locked and security around the dormitories has been stepped up.

"In comparison to other campuses our problems are not severe," said Browning, "but we don't want them to continue or increase. It never hurts to be too cautious."

Almost half the population of the women's dorms attended the special Tuesday night meeting and brought up many preventative measures of their own. Suggestions included letting someone know when and where girls intend to travel, refusing from calling "come on" when the front door is locked and checking all outside doors except the front door at dark.

Although some considered having only the front door accessible an inconvenience, Goff pointed out that "it could be an inconvenience that might save your life."

He also mentioned that maintenance men were available to install deadbolts in suite doors and that many women wished to furnish the doors.

Through a show of hands it was found that very few of the girls knew the FTU Police extension number of 2421.

Browning suggested that during visitation hours all male guests be escorted. In this way women would know whether a man was supposed to be in the hallways or not. After visitation hours it was suggested having an escort wait until he was given a "high sign" from one of the stairwell windows before leaving.

A key system for outside doors was ruled unsafe by Goff as he pointed out, "the loss of one key would break the whole system. A very costly alternative would be the installation of combination locks on front doors.

A self defense program presented by FTU Police Investigator James Jordan, and a member of the Orlando Police Department is tentatively scheduled for several nights at the end of January in the Multi Purpose Room.

Pam Browning, Assistant for Student Development, addresses resident women during a special meeting called Tuesday night to discuss dormitory security.

The biggest worry to the administration is that dormitory security will tighten up for only a few weeks before slacking off. A previous SG survey indicated that 90% of dorm residents felt that their personal belongings were safe in the dorms and 82% responded that they would feel safe if visitation hours were extended.

A currently enrolled FTU student and a former FTU student received awards at the Sixth Annual Outstanding Writing and Photography Contest held for the staff of the Sentinel Star.

Former FTU student Christina Evans won top honors in the news-related sidebar competition with a story about a teenage girl arrested in the cultist murder in Daytona Beach last spring.

Both Paulson and Evans are reporters for the Sentinel Star.

Grad Program Change Urged

In a report calling for major changes in American graduate education, a national panel of leading educators strongly recommends more practical education as one that is capable of counseling and understanding the needs of society.

The panel was appointed by the two groups in the fall of 1971, with J. Lloyd Page, president of the Graduate Record Examinations Board, as chairman. Educational Testing Service (ETS) at Princeton, New Jersey, provided the secretarial support and the panel chairman.

In a report to the panel, Dr. Page notes that "many elements do not need to be added to graduate schools, that significant modifications need to be made, and that hesitant of concern need to be expanded if graduate schools are to meet fully the emerging needs of society."

"It is a matter of re-creating the graduate faculty as leaders in the search for a new understanding of the possibilities of human society and of re-creating the graduate institution as one that is capable of counseling political and cultural leaders on ways of assuring seamless to the structural changes of society now in progress," the panel concludes.

The 20,000-word report cites a "cultural lag" resulting from an enormous increase in the past 50 years in the proportion of persons obtaining graduate degrees. While this increase, according to the report, has dramatically raised the number of persons obtaining graduate degrees, it has been little change in the self-concepts of graduate departments in the same 50-year period.

Following its specific recommendations and suggestions for implementation, the report makes projections about the future of graduate schools. Student populations, the panel forecasts, will be fairly evenly divided between the sexes, at least 20 per cent of its numbers will be drawn from minority groups.

Because of recurrent education, the age of students will correspond more closely with those of the general population. It will be standard practice for students and teachers alike to examine the social implications of projected research. Standards for measuring performance will be applied to a great variety of professional activities. For instance, community activity could be part of the assessment process.

The panel also predicts that the graduate professor will become more of a "mentor and pre-professional counselor" through expanded use of new educational technology. In addition, significant lines of communication will connect graduate programs and schools of different functions with each other and with other institutions, such as two-year colleges and state education departments.

The panel report recommends that:

- Graduate school faculty be encouraged to take a wider view of their professional roles, and to be concerned with promotion, and salary increments no longer (should be) be altered to allow faculty to use their expertise in redirecting research, and publication.
- More experts who may not be in favor of discipline-related work outside the university if he has not previously been to Europe, and have no advanced-degree requirements.

The Office of Veterans Affairs is stepping to assist less than honorably discharged veterans to appeal their discharges and to receive VA benefits. All veterans who are in this situation are urged to stop by the office (ADM 282) for further information.
Dining Room Names Requested

The Executive Committee has decided that the Reserved Dining Room should be named. President Charles Millican has authorized Dr. W. Rex Brown, vice president for student affairs, to receive suggested names for consideration.

Brown has assigned the Village Center Board the task of submitting a list of names for possible consideration. The names must adhere to the following criteria: they must be indigenous to FTU and be compatible with names used within the University; names of personalities should be avoided; they should be simple, easily remembered, and impossible to nickname through the use of mnemonic devices.

Brown also noted that names be suggested from interested persons within the University community. Suggestions are to be submitted to Brown by the board no later than March 25.

Boyd Hills said that the reason for naming the Dining Room is the confusion involved in calling it the Reserved Dining Room. People using the facility would now be reserving the Reserved Dining Room.

Brown stated that if response to the naming of the Dining Room in this manner is not adequate another channel will be presented to the Executive Committee for the final decision.

According to Debbie Wheatley, VC staff member, the Board will decide on a list of names to submit to Brown at its next meeting. The date for the next board meeting has not yet been announced. Those with suggestions should submit them to the Board as soon as possible.

Brown stated that if response to the naming of the Dining Room in this manner is not adequate another channel will be used.

Block Chosen Year's Engineer

Dr. David Block, assistant dean of the College of Engineering and temporary chairman of the department of civil engineering and environmental science has been named the Engineer of the Year by the Florida Engineering Society (FES).

Block, 34, has been nominated for the honor twice by the Central Florida Chapter of FES. His major endeavors have been the creation and operation of an engineer referrals center, overseeing the university closed circuit TV network where classes are broadcast to resident centers and coordinating a retraining program for onetime aerospace engineers and scientists.

A native of Iowa, Block has been for many years a resident of and contributing member to the community. He has been at the University of Iowa for his R.S. in civil engineering, and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute for his M.S. and Ph.D.

Load Rule Limit Lifted

There is a new rule at FTU that permits a student to carry 20 hours more without obtaining the signature of the dean of his or her college. This was done in order to give students and advisors more flexibility in arranging their classes.

For Academic Affairs, C. B. Gambrell, advises caution in the arrangement of schedules because an overloaded schedule could have disastrous effects on a GPA.
Manpower Shortage Remains Here

Another form of shortage still faces the FTU physical plant - a manpower shortage.

"We are operating at 93 per cent of our standard," stated R. N. Peruf, physical plant director, "and have been at or below that for the past six years. (The department is based on a standard optimum system of employment.)"

"The state does not authorize any staff allotment until each September," said Richard Neuhaus, assistant director, "and the regional adjustment was made by Tallahassee in the grounds department. As a consequence we have a full complement of 19 men."

Hiring personnel in the departments of supervision, security and custodial services is based on the same standard. The department are still operating 17 per cent below it, Peruf said.

Even though the grounds crew is up to standard, there are not enough supervisors to manage a night crew. Thus, manually operated sprinkling and other maintenance must be done during the day, according to Peruf.

The shift was split once, Peruf said, but the men "at under the palm trees." "Without a supervisor," he continued, "no work gets done."

In the other departments (building maintenance, communications, campus mail, utilities, water and transportation) hiring is based on the justification system and a need must be shown before a new position is allocated.

According to Peruf, this presents difficult situation. "Many times we can get the position but can't fill it," he commented. "Industry pays greater salaries than we do."

"Debate? Do they really do that anymore?" wonders a 19-year-old Susan Smith.

"Why?"

The emphasis on critical thinking has an obvious application to everyday life," explains Elliott Poole, a 23-year-old graduate assistant.

"The topic changes annually," he continues, "so students can, through research, become knowledgeable in many important areas." This year's topic focuses on energy crisis, and recent topics have dealt with socialized medicine and wage and price controls.

"It shows there are two sides to every problem," offers Pat Jerome, "and it teaches you how to look at it logically so you can make better decisions."

Noise and conversation flow from room 236 in the library. The room with the poster of "The Godfather" on its door is the home of debate at FTU.

The walls, panelled with graffiti, echo sounds of typing, joking, studying, and singing. During most of the day, in addition to building bookshelves and piles of papers and magazines, the room contains up to 12 debaters researching, writing and working. Bins of index cards, some 3,000 pieces - cover every available space.

This atmosphere of intense activity does not resemble any stodgy, superintellectual impression of collegiate debate. But then neither does the group of people working here. They are a diverse collection of males, females, long-haired, short-haired, married, single, shy and loud, who are just as likely to start a paper fight as to wade through volumes of economic theory in search of evidence.

But what is the point that leads this variety of people to debate? "Most of us are crazy," he says, "we really help," quips junior debater, David Larzin. He added that most members are energized in high school speech classes, where they enjoyed the mental competitions. In college, it provides financial help through scholarship grants, as well as competition on a more difficult level.

A 20-year-old senior, Jack Haight, compares debating to working with building blocks. "The stronger the foundation you have, the better off you are," he says. "You can begin in college, but it's hard to catch up on the experience."

Elliott Poole began debating at West Georgia College and became one of the top debaters in the country. He worked toward a master's degree in speech. Elliott calls the last of a month of mental competition on campus, and he stresses that debaters must be good thinkers. "If they can't think straight when they come in that door, he says, they'd better start learning or go somewhere else."

The students agree that a debater must think critically. His argument must be analytical and organized, and he must reason quickly on his feet, and express himself well.

Although the team boasts 15 members now, Butler said FTU could maintain 15 more, if not for the problems of a shrinking budget. "But, they'd have to really pull their weight," he says.

"Debate is for interested people who aren't afraid to work hard to develop their mental reflexes. It definitely isn't for everybody," he concludes. "It's for those who want to learn and to grow."

The three little words that can save you medicine money.

Frequently when you're sick, nothing hurts as much as the cost of the medicine to help your body fight illness. But there is a way you can save money on prescription drugs and medicine. By remembering three little words... "The Generic Name."

What do these words mean? Simply this. Your doctor can write a prescription two ways. He can write the "brand name" or the generic name (pronounced gen-arid) of the drug. The difference is that the prescriptions can cost a lot less if the doctor uses the generic name. How come? Most-well-known advertised brands of anything cost more than unknown or store brands. You pay for the advertising that makes the "brand name" well-known. Brand name drugs also usually cost more. For example, one drug used to reduce high blood pressure costs drug stores about $4.50 under its "brand name," yet only 99¢ under its generic name. What's more, up to half of the most widely prescribed drugs (the top 50) are available under their generic name.

First, ask your doctor to write down the generic name instead of the brand name. Don't be afraid to tell him how much you can save on medicine. Second, tell your pharmacist that the prescription calls for the generic name, and ask for the least-priced quality generic drug he or she can recommend.

You could tear out this message and wrap it around your finger to help you remember. Or you could keep thinking of the dollars you want to save. Either way, remembering three little words can save you lots of medicine money. Please remember the generic name.

New Music Chairman To Be Chosen

A new music department chairman to succeed the late Dr. Gale Sperry should be named by March 1 and will take office July 1, according to Dean Charles N. Micarelli of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts.

Dr. Gary Wolf has been acting chairman since Sperry's Nov. 17 death.

Applications for the chairmanship have been submitted by faculty members from FTU, other Florida universities and out-of-state universities. Approximately 40 applications have been received by Dean Micarelli.

The selection of the new chairman, according to Micarelli, would be made by a screening committee before being sent to the faculty and Elizabeth Eyles, chairwoman of the Music Advisory Committee. Music department faculty, student representatives and Dean Micarelli will choose the new chairman. Vice President of Academic Affairs C. B. Gambrell Jr. and President Charles N. Millican must give final approval to the candidate selected.

William Higgins has been conductor of the FTU Orchestra and band leader since Sperry's death. Higgins conducted the band camp at Webber College for two summers and is a part-time instructor at Broward College. He is finishing his doctorate work at the University of Southern Missouri.

Campus Telephone Directories

Expected To Arrive This Month

The 1973-74 FTU telephone directories are expected to be returned to the University from their Texas publishers for distribution on campus at the beginning of the fall quarter, according to Director of Personnel Tom Simmons. The directories will be available to the student, faculty and staff directories will follow the format of previous issues.

The directory was scheduled for distribution prior to the Christmas break but equipment, computer programming and input problems delayed mailing the directories to the publishers for a 1½ months, Simmons said.

MUSICAL PROGRAMS

Abound During January

Marcelle described it as "the mosaic of the arts." Gaylfe called it "the asleep of angels." and Shaw revealed it as the "brandy of the diamond."

Needless to say, these are all references to music, and the FTU music department is prepared to provide it.

The Seminole Junior College Chorale Recital will be performing at noon Jan. 24, in the ENAUD.

The newly formed Women's Music Fraternity will be sponsoring a student recital at noon Jan. 31, in the ENAUD. This group will be sponsoring short programs in front of the Administration building, and in other campus locations. Musical programs for houses for the aged are also being planned.

Law Courses Scheduled

For Part-Time Students

The first shortened version of the Allied Legal Services degree is being offered to part-time students this quarter.

Development of Anglo-American Law for (credits) and Business Law (four credits) are included in the program. Classes will be held mornings, mid-afternoon and evenings to accommodate the working students for whom the program was specifically designed.

Students may enroll for courses they particularly desire, or may work toward requirements for a Certificate of Completion. This certificate indicates one has successfully completed the 48-credit core program required of degree-seeking students. The bachelor's degree in Allied Legal Services requires 180 credit hours.

FTU Outshoots Biscayne 85-73

By Joe DeSalvo

According to last Saturday’s Dunkel Index, the FTU-Biscayne contest was supposed to be a close one. But that wasn’t the case that evening, as the Knights turned a first half game into a rout, beating the visiting Roberts, 85-73.

Wednesday night the Knights continued their winning streak with a 80-47 win over visiting New York Institute of Technology, upping the mark to 9-5.

Going into the game FTU had a ranking of 45.6 and Biscayne 40.5, and the way the Knights were playing in the first half, it looked like the free-throw spread would stand up. FTU played an unimpressive first half, turning the ball over 11 times and having a 13-interception lead. Biscayne played scrappy basketball the first half, but cleaned up their zone defense with good outside shooting.

But the second half was a different ball game as the Knights continued their winning streak against the Braves, 31-40, thus chalking up their eighth victory of the season.

The combination of 6-3 guard Billy Herman, who scored 5-9 and John Smith’s rebounding and scoring proved to be too much for Biscayne to handle. Hall, coming off his career-high performance against MIT, had another great game, scoring 20-17 and 40.5.

Jim Polish, the coach for Ft. Lauderdale University, at one time had played basketball for the University of North Florida and George Mikan were two of the big names during that basketball era. Hendricks has been exposed to pro backcourt, its no wonder that his Ft. Lauderdale team has a reputation for playing a lot of one-on-one basketball. They also have another reputation that of playing outstanding, tough, close basketball, especially against FTU. For the Knight’s own benefit, they had better not look past next Thursday’s 8 p.m. encounter with Ft. Lauderdale to be cross-town rivals.

Everybody knew Sigma Chi's team had a shot at the start of this year's basketball season. However, there were still the little things that could beat the other top four teams. As it turned out, the Sigma Chi's had done just that, first on Monday with a 48-33 win over Chi Alpha and then Tuesday with a tense 42-34 upset of defending champ Tau Kappa Epsilon which will probably turn out to be the only memory of the Greek Conference for the Tau Chi's and Alpha Pi men. Sigma Chi never could break away from a scrappy Tau five the next day, though, Tau led as much as 10 in the first half as Tom Clark punched in 13 of his 20 total points. Phi recovered to lead by three at the half but Tau scored the first two of the half and it was over thereafter.

By Larry McCorkle

FTU's women's basketball team, returning four starters from last year's squad, opened the season Saturday against Rollins College. The home team attempted to round up the uniforms which never arrived for their game. "It's not completely desirable the way we are to run the program, but I'm glad we have the opportunity," said Miss Higginbotham.

The season's opening game in Rollins, which was number three of the way (he also scored 14) and Tom Linder asserted himself with 18 along with Kenny Lester five after halftime and it was over.

Also on Tuesday, Lambda Chi Alpha whipped Chi Phi, 48-15, and TKE wound up last with just 43-39. On Monday, LKA Lambda Chi Alpha trounced Beta Alpha 56-20 behind Dave Hutck's 26, 54-14. Independent action got under way on Tuesday with Faculty-Staff, Students, Students, Students (all but a couple of strong teams. The 17 team entered are split into two leagues (one with five teams)

The team's number of possible gifts because of no home practice facility. The team has been practicing at University ofSouthern Florida, Dream School, in Longwood between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday and Wednesday the past two weeks. But even if they are supposed to receive for a YMCA program and it appears the team will have to work in their practices whenever they can. "We're not going to be prepared tomorrow simply because we haven't had enough practice," said women's coach Miss Pat Higginbotham. The game will be played in Cameron at 6 p.m.

"We have the potential, but not much depth at the moment," said that being only twice, it will be an enjoyable task for the Women's Athletic Association added.

Tennis Season Looks Like Best Ever -- Wood

By Joe DeSalvo

If the FTU tennis team plays as well as Coach Wood believes they can, the upcoming season should be a very successful one.

Dr. Wood says that this is the first team FTU ever had coaching at FTU. The squad will be mainly juniors and seniors this year, and the seniors point out that the team will have plenty of experience to make them a tough squad.

The coach stated that looking for an important thing for a successful team and that will be the leadership capability of Craig Linton, who graduated last year. He believes several returning members of the team has that leadership potential.

The team's top four positions will be vacant, the coach pointed out. The seniors, according to Dr. Wood, "can play anywhere and be very capable." The remaining four positions will consist of Niki Howard, Nando Diaz, Trevor Graham and Emilio Salinas. It's a team of type with so much talent, nobody has a solid hold of a top position.

Dr. Wood is very pleased with the play of Nate Smith, Smith, who won't on the team last year, will certainly strengthen the squad.

Some of the players in tournaments last fall quarter and did quite well.

In the Gainesville 300 Tournament, Octavia Piva defeated rolled out of the 1st round Octavia Piva and Joe Luccio played octavia tennis found with Luccio turning the best performance, beating the number two player from the United States, Kammy Morrison, 6-1, 6-0.

In the Cocoa Beach Invitational, the final members were reached in the finals while Piva reached the semi-finals and Smith the third.

Also last fall, the team won gold at Jacksonvil and was defeated by Florida State. In a tournament played last weekend, the Spring Invitational Tournament, there were eight representatives from FTU. Big Turnout Boosts Coff

An encouraging turnout at Tuesday's meeting of prospects for FTU's extramural men's golf team has boosted the outlook for the coming season preparation for the season starting Jan. 21.

New coach Mark Stockwell expects 15 men, including Gus Rius, John Tanner and Tony Kirkby, veterans of last year's golf team, to choose from although that number may dwindle somewhat. Preliminary qualifications were held yesterday at Winter Springs Country Club, home of FTU's golf matches.

Anyone interested is still urged to contact Stockwell at 677-4087. Following the opening match with Fugit, FTU will begin meeting four big tourneys--the Rollins Invitational, Embry Riddle Invitational, Florida Southern Invitational and General Development Corporation Invitational, a 30-team affair at Port Malcolm.

For more information, contact the Developmental Center.

The Developmental Center is offering free and confidential career counseling for students who desire more than individual testing and counseling when making a career choice. It may also offer access to groups designed to improve study techniques and to reduce pre-test anxiety.

All services the center offers are free and confidential, and are provided as a university service to the student. According to Mary Hartman, reading and study skills counselor, "There are ways we can change and develop the programs to help individuals.

Mrs. Hartman said students may work individually or in groups, depending on which they feel would be most beneficial.

The two Gestalt growth groups, formed this quarter, aid the student in discovering aspects of his own personality and in overcoming misconceptions of others. The groups which are held weekly at the center for about two and a half hours utilize verbal and non-verbal communication techniques.

Although it is too early to gauge the groups' effectiveness, Dr. Thomas Borowy, counselor, said the group members desired longer sessions than were originally planned. Already there is a waiting list for one of the two groups which will be held next quarter.

The goal of the groups is to enable the students to become aware of their own feelings, attitudes, and intellectual processes through interpersonal and intrapersonal means.

If enough interest is shown, a career group may be formed this quarter which will enable students to make self-awareness exercises to career choices and possibly to participate in job interview trial runs. Watson said the group would not only exercise to explore areas of doubt and self-confidence as well as others' perceptions of oneself.

A marriage counseling group will probably be formed next quarter said Watson. Groups of stable couples who desire enrichment counseling and coping experiences problems may both be formed or one group of the two may be formed. All aid to the program. Dr. Borowy is completing a questionnaire which will be sent within a few weeks to a portion of FTU's married students to ascertain their concerns and problems. The detailed questionnaires will emphasize problems of young married college couples.

Borowy said approximately 2500 students, or one-third of the student body, are married.

Currently Borowy is devoting several hours per week to marriage counseling on an individual or couple basis. Couples do not need to be married to request counseling services.

A NEW reading program offered by the center, called "Craig A.1," allows individuals to increase and decrease reading rates according to difficulty of reading material.

A group proving effective learning and behavior in the classroom are the Developmental Center's study skills and study attendance classes.
