Implementation of a four-day week for the summer quarter is the subject of a survey to be conducted by FTU’s special Task Force on Energy Conservation.

A gasoline savings of approximately 4,000 gallons per day is predicted if the four-day week is implemented. According to Dr. K. Phillip Taylor, chairman of the class scheduling subcommittee, the survey will be geared to those students and faculty and staff members who will be immediately involved if a four-day week is adopted. Questionnaires will be distributed to accurately measure the opinions of the university population.

Should the university go to a four-day week during the summer quarter, Taylor said a study be made before the university extends the four-day system into the regular sessions. He said there would be no reduction of man-hours during a four-day week, but longer working days.

Passes To Scott

By Mike Myers

The FTU Student Government (SG) has had its problems finding the right person to serve as attorney general. There have been three different students filling the position in as many weeks.

The latest entry is senior Dan Scott. Scott replaces Gabriel Yanni, who was appointed after the resignation of Tom Page.

Yanni gave up time and possible conflict of interests as his reason for stepping down, and graduated from LHS in the same time to serve as freshman president for a year and a half. He felt his other positions would prevent him from devoting enough time to the office of attorney general.

In addition, he said there was some question as to whether the elections commission could also be a cabinet member.

"If may well have been illegal for me to be both," he said. He added that he thought the new arrangement better because he would allow him to work with Scott on such issues as the revision of the judicial system.

The new attorney general is a secondary education major, specializing in social sciences. Following his graduation at the end of this quarter, he will begin work on his master's degree at FTU.

Among other factors, Scott said he feels the four courses he has taken in constitutional law qualify him for the position. He has worked on the workings of SG, having been a senator, for two years a and is a legislative assistant to the president for a year and a half.

The new attorney general spent his first days in office preparing the revision in cooperation with Dr. Ronald Drabman and Yanni. It will go before the Dean of Students and the Dean of Women this week for approval.

Scott said it was ironic that he and Yanni complete the revision, because they had a hand in the origination of the procedures, but had then moved out of the picture.

He stated, "we started this thing and since then it has been through so many people, its function is everything, but I think it is the attorney general's office to finish it."

The main innovation of the revised system will be the establishment of two new judicial bodies. The first will delegate jurisdiction and the other will interpret the PTU constitution.

Scott said he plans to begin operating under the new system as soon as he can get the dean's approval and senate confirmation. However, he mentioned there was actually no hurry because of the lack of disciplinary cases.

It is a tribute to PTU students that there hasn't been one instance of formal disciplinary action this school year, said Scott.

The new attorney general also plans to reinstate the legal referral service which was established by Tom Page. The service was discontinued when Page was informed by the Florida Bar Association (FBA) that it violated the FBA's code.

Scott said he didn't have anything definite yet, but he was working on a plan which would assist students and also be acceptable to the Bar.

Chiles Desires Student Worker, Politically inclined Preferred

Sen. Lawton Chiles (D-Fla.) is looking for a politically inclined FTU student to work in his Washington D.C. office during the fall quarter of 1974, according to Ted Rappel, director of Cooperative Education.

Sen. Chiles has divided his term into quarters, bringing one student from a different state university each quarter to observe the workings of the American political system from within his office.

This job is a Co-Op venture where the student stays out of school while working for Sen. Chiles, but returns to school after competing for his quarter of work in Washington. The job is roughly split into two 4-hour segments.

The student is paid $900 per month to spend approximately half the day running the elevator in the Senate building and half the day working in the Senator's office. More than 20 people have already placed their names in consideration for the job, according to the FTU's latest check with the Co-Operative Education office.

A select panel of three judges will decide who will represent FTU at the end of the 1974 summer quarter.

Sen. Chiles' office is seeking a well-rounded, politically inclined person, with a "wke to it" attitude, not just the student with the highest GPA, according to Rappel.

This program was initiated by Chiles to maintain and further political interest among college students, by actually allowing them to participate and be around national politics.

Since this is FTU's first opportunity to send a student to Washington under this program, Rappel urges all those who are interested to drop by the Co-Op Office, ADM 118 and place their names on the list.

Psych Prof's TV Study in National Magazine

Two FTU professors will receive recognition in over 19 million homes this week. An article about a research study done by Dr. Ronald S. Drabman and Dr. Margaret H. Thomas, both of the psychology department, will appear in this week's "TV Guide."

"Does Media Violence Increase Children's Tolerance of Real Life Aggression?" is the question posed by the research study. However, the experimental study dealing with tolerance of aggression, according to Drabman.

The study, which has been accepted for printing by Developmental Psychology, shows that media violence does increase children's tolerance of real life aggression.

In the study, Drabman and Thomas took a group of third and fourth grade children, half of whom had been exposed to a violent "Hopalong Cassidy" film, and had them monitor the actions of two younger children over a video monitor.

The results were published quietly at first becomingly progressively more destructive and ending up in a physical fight. The study compared the reaction times of the children on the basis of whether they had seen the violent film.

It was found that the children who had not seen the film reacted more rapidly to the violence, and in most cases before actual physical violence took place.

According to Drabman, this was the first of three similar studies which he and Thomas conducted. The results of all three were the same.

Paper Prices Pile Problems

In September 1974, FTU will be starting a new master's program in mathematics which will require 12 new courses, most of them required. The courses have already been approved and descriptions will appear in the 1974-75 university catalog. Bookstore prices of note books, and cut paper--mimeo, duplicating, bond and Xerox--will rise within six months, Maxwell said.

Acting Director of Printing and Publications Les Gross indicated paper prices under his jurisdiction have increased 30 per cent.

The contract was cancelled on March 12 after accounting, the area Maxwell, because Unijax could no longer furnish paper at the prices listed in the contract.

He said that Board of Regents is now working on a new contract for the State University System.

Maxwell said he does not foresee any paper shortage in the bookstore before spring quarter, and that currently there is no way of determining if there will be a shortage.

"We're trying to hold the prices down as much as we can," Maxwell said, but "everybody should realize this paper shortage is not going to clear up.

Maxwell has also noticed a "big difference" in the cost and availability of textbooks. Publishers, he said, are feeling the pinch of the paper shortage and are not initiating reprinting and publishing books.

"All other state universities are in the same boat," Maxwell said, regarding the situation in the own bookstore paper problems.

No university publication will be discontinued within the next three to four months, but predictions beyond the length of time are "pure conjecture," Gross indicated.

The University of South Florida faces increasing difficulty in obtaining printed class schedules due to the paper shortage.

FTU's class schedules will face no delay, no price hike and no reduction of copy ordered, FTU officials indicated.

"All other state universities are in the same boat," Maxwell said, regarding the situation in their own bookstore paper problems.

The increase in paper price is due to the paper shortage caused, according to Maxwell, by the paper mills rolling more high grade paper which sells for a higher price.

Maxwell is not sure if the paper shortage is caused by the lack of timber as much as by the paper mills being unable to afford the environmental situation with the anti-pollution standards set by the government. This causes them to shut down, thus overproducing other mills.

New Masters Is '74

In September 1974, FTU will be offering a master's degree in the mathematical sciences, statistics and computer science.

The new master's program in mathematics will offer a choice of 12 new courses, most of them required. The courses have already been approved and descriptions will appear in the 1974-75 university catalog.

FES Fair To Be Held, Display Judging Friday

The third annual Engineer's Week Fair, sponsored by the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers (FES) will be held Feb. 18-22 in coordination with the Annual Engineer's Week.

Registration of participation of all engineering students and faculty. Exhibits on display in the Engineering Building will include displays from the student chapters of industrial, mechanical, electrical and civil engineering.

The Industrial Chapter display will be "computer assisted learning center".

The mechanical engineers are exhibiting a light powered refrigerator and the civil engineering chapter's exhibit is an FTU traffic analysis system.

The, the clean air car, will be on display Feb. 22. Made for the 1970 Urban Vehicle Design Contest, Max was developed by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and was sponsored by Student Government.

Judging for the "Fair Week" will be held Feb. 22, with prizes being awarded at the Annual Engineer's Week banquet, to be held at the Shamrock Olympic Villas' Convention Center.

Each individual entering the fair will be given one banquet ticket. Additional information concerning the fair and tickets may be obtained from Henry Pastore, Student Services, advising those interested in attending the fair may be obtained from Donna Wood in EN 410.

Student To Seek Fla. House Seat

Dimitriadis, who has collected 500 signatures so far, said he has received a positive response to his drive.

The qualification deadline is the last day of June.

Dimitriadis disagrees with defense spending and centralized government. One solution, he says, is to "propose and initiate legislation oriented to benefit the individual and not corporations."

Early next week he indicated plans for television appearances.

'Kiss Me Kate'

Colte Potter's lighted musical, "Kiss Me Kate," will be the FTU Theatre Department's third production of the fall season. Five performances will be given on the Science Auditorium stage Feb. 28-March 2 in 8:00 p.m.

Under the direction of Frances Johnson, the 35-member "Kiss Me Kate" cast will present a musical "play-with-in-play." The plot revolves around Fred Graham (played by Ken Lawson), actor and director of a theatrical group, and his ex-wife Lilli Vanessi (Regina Roache) who is also an actress in the troupe.

When Graham finds himself in the midst of a romantic entanglement with another actress, his emotions are not only off stage, but on. The other actress in the group is performing Shakespeare, "Fanning of the Show." All this is complicated by two gangsters pursuing Graham to pay an IOU he never signed.

Because of the duality of the musical, scene designer Richard Belcher has produced a set that not only represents a 20th century theatre but also the 16th century Paris of lulio in which the play-with-in-play "Fanning of the Show," takes place.

Musical direction for the vocal numbers which include "Another Openin," "Another Show," "Wunderbar" and "So In Love" is provided by Richard A. Schoenholtz. Handling choreography is Ms. Joanna Stebbins LaPoma. All costumes will be designed and made by Heather Pastore.

Supporting casts include Randy Fountain, Sue Findell, Vernon Creamer, George Wilson, Diane Davis and Carolyn Stullings.

Tickets are available at the box office, ADM 256, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. weekdays. Tickets will also be purchased at the door.

General admission will be $1.50, student admission $1. FTU students with ID cards will be admitted free.

Although no reservations will be made, information concerning special group rates may be obtained by calling the box office at 275-2600.

An area of opinion based on selectively perceived information presented as a form of persuasion you to think like I do.

You mean another week has already passed since my last deadline? My, how time flies when nothing is happening. I guess that means I’m going to have to decide on a topic for this week’s column. I’m sure you’re dying to know what I’ll write about.

Let’s see, what has happened around FTU in the past week? Nothing of particular note, except for the weather. Last week, you know, we had a few days of sunshine. But this week, it’s been mostly clouds and drizzle. I guess that’s why FTU is called the ‘City of Eternal Rain.’

Oh, well, if you can’t think of anything else to say, tell a joke. It seems that a widely known young writer walked into the FTU office one day and offered his services. After looking through the appropriate file, the editor asked him, “What can you do?” The writer replied, “You know, we don’t get many witty and controversial young writers around here.” “Visa,” answered the young writer demurely. “And at the wages you pay we won’t get any more!”

May I go on to work for sports, they have something to write about.

By Congressman Lou Frey
In one sense, the real tragedy of Watergate and its related scandal incidents would have been if they had remained hidden from the public.

Watergate has forced many members of Congress to look into and make personal decisions on what we can do to help make the system better.

The answer is not less participation in the electoral process but more. I think the Watergate and past elections should be used as a reason to change and improve our system, not to destroy it.

For instance, for some time I’ve been the main sponsor of legislation to require Congressmen and some of their aides to disclose their incomes, all the money they receive for travel, and the like. In the past, a considerable amount of this legislation has been shelved or killed in the House.

But now, with the new House and Senate, I think it’s the perfect time for us to seriously consider this legislation. I believe there is a strong and growing public desire for a more transparent and accountable Congress.

As we look towards the future, I believe it is important for Congress to be open and accountable to the American people. Only by working together can we hope to truly reform our political system.

The revised plan does not promise that more degree programs will be added to the present university curriculum, but states that a BA degree in journalism is presently under preparation. The addition of health programs is also being considered. On the list for consideration are master's degrees in community and school psychology and applied social sciences. Programs offered at Florida State University (FSU), within walking distance of FAMU, should not be duplicated, said BOR staff members who developed the plan, nor should programs at other universities be moved to FAMU. In addition to career-focused programs, FAMU and FSU will share certain programs, the plan says. Although such cooperative programs partially merge the schools, said Robert Mazur, State University System chancellor, FAMU officials have been assured that it will be maintained as a separate university.

The school of agriculture should be phased out, said Mazur. Officials said they fear that as black students are better prepared in high school, fewer will want to attend FAMU, and the school will suffer declining enrollment until it is no longer a viable institution.

Reorganization Proposal Revision To Gain FAMU Race Balance

Boutwell agreed that FTU was presently over its projections and would probably receive increased funds. He added that USF was going to lose $100,000 instead of the $300,000 originally reported by its administration. The reason, he said, was a over-projection of 500 students.

Tuition Hike Not On Way Says Goree

No increase in state university tuition is expected to be recommended by the chancellor, the Board of Regents or the governor of Florida, according to FTU Vice President for Business Affairs John P. Goree. "There has been no talk of a tuition hike," said Goree, who pointed out that any tuition increase must be approved by the state legislature. Although it is conceivable that tuition hikes may be introduced through the state legislature if the energy shortage and inflation set back drastically reduce Florida's income, "no one can predict what the legislature will do," Goree stated.

Industrial Audio To Meet Need

The Master of Science in Industrial Audiology program is "designed in response to a need..." in the area of noise pollution, as explained by Dr. Raymond W. Buchanan, chairman of the communications department.

The new program, for which FTU is currently seeking authorization, would, according to Buchanan, combine the courses which are presently found in the Audiology degree with selected engineering courses to create a new program.

The new inter-disciplinary program would be offered cooperatively by the College of Social Sciences and the College of Engineering. Buchanan said the new program would not require the addition of any new faculty, staff or support personnel and he would not require students or prepare for classes which involve experiments. Buchanan, since all of the proposed courses are currently listed in the catalog, he said the program would make better use of the existing equipment and facilities.

Dr. Thomas A. Mullin, also of the communications department, originally proposed the program based upon an article in the Sept. 18, 1973 "Wall Street Journal" which showed the need for personnel trained in this field, Buchanan said.

The Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1973 requires that all industries which produce above a certain level of noise pollution begin a hearing conservation program.

Buchanan said that since the new program would combine audiology, which deals with hearing, disorders, and some acoustic engineering, the industrial audiologist would be uniquely suited for work in this field.

The "Torques Society" is classified strictly as a fraternity, because it is designed to cover many facets of student life, including social, service and political aspects. According to Love, college fraternities are mostly social in nature.

The club is to "private interest in the betterment of student life...and achievement in educational endeavor, regardless of academic standing," the three said.

Love said he hopes the organization will affiliate with the Student Lobby in Washington D.C. and monotonously support various political candidates the club favors.

According to Garrett, the organization, still in the formative stages, has not affiliated with FTU. That decision will be made by the members at a later date.

Love said he hopes the club will adopt, in place of a pin, a twisted gold chain, known in ancient Rome as a 'torques', from which the organization got its name.

Torge society officers will not comprise the usual president, vice president, secretary/treasurer, but those duties, such as record keeping, membership, fund raising and so on will be taken care of by a "prohlektarini," in the tradition of ancient Rome.

Power will be equally distributed among the three, said Love, but decisions affecting the club is a whole will be made by the entire membership.

Love speculated that the club will have a "variable membership" perhaps 30 or 40 persons.

The club will participate in other activities related to Roman culture, said Love.

An organizational meeting will be held at Garrett's home, 5411 San Marino Place, Thursday. For more information, contact Love at 271-4991, or Garrett, 278-7887.

First 'Morality in Medicine' Session

The first in a four-part series, "Morality in Medicine," featuring guest lecturer Dr. Chester R. Burns and Central Florida panelists, will be conducted at 8 p.m., Feb. 20 at Orlando's Loch Haven Art Center.

The initial program, entitled "Laws of Morality in Medicine," will discuss religion, law, philosophy and science in their relation to the subject.

Dr. Burns, Chairman of Medical Humanities at the University of Texas, holds an MD and Ph.D., and teaches history, philosophy of medicine and medical law.

Area panelists debating the question will be Joseph F. Baker, Orlando attorney, the Rev. William H. Folwell, Episcopal Bishop of Central Florida, and Donald E. Jones, assistant professor of philosophy at FTU.

The "Morality in Medicine" series is being offered for postgraduates in medicine, religion and those engaged in the legal and ethical aspects of health care.

Future sessions in the series include "Control of Birth," Orange Memorial Hospital, "Control of Death," Florida Hospital Auditorium, and "Control of the Quality of Life," Halifax Hospital, Daytona Beach.

Dr. Robert Fleck, chairman of humanities at FTU and coordinator for the series, will announce dates and times.

For further information, contact Dr. Robert Fleck at ext. 2274.

News In Brief

University Vocalists Featured on Monday

The University Choir and Choral Singers will be presented Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the Engineering Auditorium with Dr. Edward Hotaling conducting and accompanied by pianists Susan Manier and Susan Bookhout.

But One of the concert will feature the University Choir performing numbers from Johann Sebastian Bach's Cantata No. 4. Selections from the Cantata include: "O Death No Man Could Prevail," "The Pascal Victim Here We Se", and "With Grateful Hearts We All Are Gathered" during Part Two, the University Choir under Singers will present various numbers from Randal Thompson's "American." "American" includes the numbers: "God's Battles," "The Sublime Process of Law Enforcement," and "Lovely Lines."

Continuing the performance will be Gail Kubik's "Black Jack Davey," and "Oh My Liver, And How I Love You!" and Aaron Copland's "Stomp Your Foot," presented by the University Choir.

In addition, Vista volunteers must be requested by a host country before being sent abroad. Vista Peace Corps Representative Debbie Travis will speak to the Allied Health 100 class and all students interested in health care Tuesday in EN 360 at noon. Vista volunteers must be 18 permanent residents of the United States, and equipped with a skill, trade or education.

Cafeteria Special
The PTU cafeteria will serve a special lunch menu Wednesday consisting of fried chicken, tossed salad, a vegetable and rolls and buns for a price of $1. Cafeteria serving hours are 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for lunch.

Chinese Paper Folding
A class in the ancient Chinese art of paper folding will be offered free of charge in the dorm lounge Feb. 19, 21 and 26 at 7 p.m.

The class, taught by Dave Whang, is sponsored by the Resident Housing Association and is available to all students. The lessons are not sequential, so students may attend one or all of them. Students must provide their own paper.
Criminology Class Discovers Prison Life

Rehabilitation of these youths is done on the principle of peer group pressure or Reality Therapy as it is called. Each individual is assigned to a group of 8-10 peers. At a daily 1-hour group meeting every student sits down with his or her group to discuss and work on problems. In addition, these groups have a adult group leader who sees that the group leads its individuals in socially acceptable behavior. The individuals in the group earn points by doing work, being on good behavior, attending church, etc., and these points are tallied with their group members' each week for a prize of $1.00, $.75, and $.50 for first, second and third place.

The students seem to appreciate this method of reward. One bad student in a group has the change of earning points for the other members; therefore, everyone keeps check on other people's behavior. If one student steals from another student or runs away, etc., the group decides on the punishment which is usually one to three days in solitary confinement or "lock-up." When one enters McPherson, his files are gathered in the reception center. Here he is classified by an occupational and psychological examination, and is classified as an "A," "B," or "C" student. According to his classification and the results of his tests, he is assigned to a program of work and study which meet his individual needs. At the end of each month, his files are reviewed and, if there are no negative factors, he is promoted to a next higher rank. Beginning as a Freshman, he makes a monthly advance to Sophomore, Junior, Senior and finally Pre-Release status.

At Senior level, a student may obtain a pass to leave campus unescorted to go shopping at nearby stores. In the summertime, he doesn't return, will be demoted one or more ranks and put in "lock-up," for a few days. According to Mr. Catalina, since the initiation of the group therapy three years ago, the return rate has dropped dramatically. At this time the return rate is at 16%.

Further, this arrangement replaces negative control and group pressure with positive discipline at McPherson.

After our extensive tour through McPherson we traveled 12 miles down the road to Florida Correctional Institution at Lowell. This is a state penitentiary with a male and female unit separated by two miles of woods. Maximum capacity at Lowell is 660 and at present there are 385 females and 250 males.

Lowell is the top women's prison in the state and is equipped with the maximum security. There are no gun towers or armed guards in the prison which has a double chain-link-barbwire perimeter fence.

Of the 385 inmates, whose average age is in the high 20's, 65% are black and the tour guide, a medical student, who works out of Lowell, explained.

Our first building is the Multi-Purpose Building houses the post office and medical facilities. One physician is available between the men's and women's complexes and a few R.N.'s are on duty for this 16 bed prison unit. Since prison mail, except special prison mail, is not normally censored.

When an inmate first enters Lowell, she lives at the Reception and Orientation center, an aging although solid structure. It is here that she is tested and indoctrinated.

The MMTP psychological test is administered and evaluated by a layman at the prison. Although this should be done by a qualified psychologist, the psychologist's position has been vacant since the last one was promoted out of Lowell.

We stood in the adjustment center where there were only small hours set aside to adjust to prison life. After being shown on one cell in the adjustment center, we moved on to one of the dormitories in which we were free to look.

Though few inmates were present, the rooms (single, double and multi-bed) were fairly new as prison rooms go. All were clean and sanitary with solid wooden doors replacing the standard "cage" doors.

We then visited the school building in which academic and non-academic courses are taught. Aside from the three R's Lowell offers training in Repaying Graphic Arts, Business, Education and others subjects, all on a voluntary basis.

The inmates are required to work a minimum of 8 hours per day and 4 hours of work and 4 hours of school. Work takes form in laundry, factory, yard or food preparation.

We also toured the linen factory at Lowell which manufactures all the linen products used in Florida prisons and institutions. Our tour ended in the new double-wide trailers which are reserved for minimum security, good behavior inmates.

Though our tour was a cursory one at best, we can realize what prison life is like. We were shown only a few selected portions of the prison and answers to our questions were often vague and ambiguous. What the prison is really like and how it reforms inmates is still a question in our minds. What we were not shown and not told would undoubtedly be a harsh reality to experience.

Handicapped Students Organize

To help make all areas of the FTU campus more accessible to our handicapped, an Organization of Disabled Students has been formed with 13 members.

The organization meets every Monday at noon in the Developmental Center.

Dick Blanchard serves as president, Arnold Link is vice president, and the organization's faculty advisor is Dr. W. "Rex" Brown, vice president for student affairs.

Linda Schultz, the organization's unofficial spokesman, noted improvements already made in the construction of ramps, parking spaces and bathhouses, but said the organization will request further improvements for the handicapped in future campus planning.

Despite predictions of cold weather, thousands crowded Tuesday into the Panhellenic Coliseum to hear the sounds of one of Britain's finest rock and roll bands, Yes.

Plagued from the very beginning of the concert by chants from the crowd urging the band to "sit down," Yes managed to start an off- strong and maintain the tempo throughout the entire evening.

After playing songs from previous albums such as "Clown To The Edge," Yes began playing its newly-released double album, "Tales From Topographic Oceans." The audience was instantly drawn into the music and an abundance of lights. Steve How gave the audience an excellent showing of his versatile ability to play a half dozen different instruments at intervals, each one with perfection.

Clothed in a full-length cape of glittering silver, Rick Wakeman seemed to dance with his instruments as he alternated between three keyboards.

Wakeman at his finest put on a musical performance to equal his reputation as perhaps today's finest keyboard player. During a solo stretch, Wakeman displayed his versatility as a true musical genius with a roster mixed with classical and rock and roll music.

Completing all four sides of their new albums, Yes left the stage to return only momentarily by the request of an honestly enthusiastic crowd. A continuously tremendous show was brought to a peak as Yes toppled off the top of one of their biggest hits, "Roundabout."

Besides scattered complaints of too much of the new policy of being searched by Tampa police as you enter the stadium, and interference of a sometimes vociferous crowd, Yes put on a fantastic musical performance which further establishes its members' claim as leaders of excellent musical ability.

"Mr. Legs" Competition

The Panhellenic Board at FTU is sponsoring the Mr. Legs Contest to help raise the $5,000 needed to survey FTU land for great housing.

"We hope to be able to raise a considerable amount through this project and others like it throughout the school year," said Panhellenic president Lisa Mitchell.

For a $10 registration fee, individual students, fraternities or groups can enter their favorite male, Feb. 13 in the Dean of Women's office.

During the week of Feb. 15-22, there will be a picture display of all the "Kuster Legs" contestants in front of the Snack Bar from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and students can vote for their favorite pair of legs by dropping a penny, nickel or any amount they feel the legs are worth. Highlights of the week will be a dance in the Multi Purpose Room, Feb. 17, from 8 to 12 p.m. where "Mr. Legs" will be crowned and door prizes will be awarded.

FTU's third-place finish was "disappointing" is the words of head coach Gerry Gergley, but for Scotty Sherman and Tom Hammons, the results of last weekend's state collegiate wrestling championships were definitely pleasing.

Hammons and Hammons took individual first-place titles in the meet hosted by FTU at the Orlando Naval Training Center, and their showings somewhat offset the overall team performance which was below expectations.

The University of Florida was by far the superior team this time (its third state title in a row) with 153 total points followed by Miami-Dade North at 88%, a bare one-half point ahead of FTU. The Knights were second last year.

Others who placed for FTU were 126-pound champion Scotty Sherman, 137-pounder and Shivers, considered a doubtful starter only two days before the meet, won his way back into the lineup with a Thursday challenge match win at 138 pounds. However, he again damaged the left knee in his semifinal loss to Tampa's Larry Hueter, the 22nd birthday with one of his finest collegiate performances, scoring 27 points and grabbing 16 rebounds.

FTU had the lead throughout the first half with the help of Smith's 14 points and Hall's 10. Willie Belotte and Ted Danzen took charge of the halves early, with each player getting seven rebounds. The half time score was 44-40 for the Knights.

In the second half, the Knights continued to dominate play with an effective fast break and solid defense led by the efforts of Joe Davis and Jeff Campbell. The largest lead for FTU was 33 points which was the finish.

An enthusiastic contingent of FTU students who traveled to the game made their presence known as soon as they stepped into the gym. They continuously gave their vocal support for the Knights.

It seemed like a completely different FTU team which played against St. Leo last Tuesday night. The Knights were never in the contest as the Monarchs tantalized for the loss they were handed earlier this season in the 68-49 tail.

St. Leo showed why they are No. 2 in the Division II in field goal percentage as they continued uneventfully to play through the contest as the Monarchs had little trouble in ousting them.

FTU Splits With St. Leo

The state meet is behind them but the season is not yet completed for the Knights' wrestling team. Today they travel to Tallahassee, Ala., for a tournament against Southeastern Conference powers Alabama and Tennessee.

FTU's last meet of the year will be next Wednesday against Tennessee. The Village Assembly Room at 2 p.m. in the two-day event. A win by the team over past years as evidenced by its strong four-place showing in last year's meet (78 points total) would be significant.

Tennessee and Alabama, along with Florida Atlantic, are still in the running for the SEC championship. Tennessee's coach, who has had close ties with Alabama, is still in the running for the SEC championship. Tennessee, like Alabama, has an outstanding recruiting in Virginia and has won this year's state tournament. The Knights' starting lineup includes an outstanding 177-pounder, George Lands.

FTU's Beatty and Sherman are two of the best in the nation led by number one small college team. They have the personnel to compete with anyone said FTU coach Terry Clark. Besides Hammons, the Knights will look to Jeff Williams on the backcourt and Mike Granowitz, also from Florida.

The FTU tennis team started its Spring program by capturing two decisive victories over Florida Institute of Technology and Florida Southern University.

Last Monday, Nathan Smith, led the team to a 6-3 win over Florida Southern. Smith, who took over the No. 1 position, had little trouble in outlasting Richard Cole in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2.

South's heavyweight Sam Williams and Dave North's 158-pounder David Kindness, both had their landlows and combined falls were 50/0, good enough to win the honor.

Diamond Walk-On State's Best?

By Larry McCorkle

In college athletics, every once in a while news pops up about a player who is a walk-on, making it big on a varsity squad. By "walk-on," it is meant that the player tried out for the team on his own accord, with no scholarship.

This year FTU has its own walk-on, who seems destined for stardom. His name is Luis Escobar, a 27-year-old native of Colombia now a hitch in the service vets to get back into school and is enrolled in FTU's Air Force ROTC program. All this is in addition to his role of fiancé, and he did quite literally walk onto campus.

Luis picked up about three trees to location all week, including his wife, parents and Win Home, Betty, whom he met at the University of Havana. The hammed himself into the spotlight more than last Saturday when he won the 150-pound first-place trophy in the state collegiate wrestling championships.

A possible shot at the national tournament could also be awaiting him in the near future. Despite all other activities, the rugged-looking Whitehall, Wis., native has been one of the "hardest working guys on the team" for two years said Coach Gerd Gergely. He had literally received any special recognition this year.

The free-footed veteran of two years in the Marine corps straddled his stance showing to a "more confident and a relaxed attitude." Gergely, who had been competing all year in the lightweight class, was slowly but has come on to boost his dual-meet mark to 5-3.

"I didn't believe in myself at the beginning of the year," explained Holmquist. "I found myself didn't have the right mental outlook going into the matches. I really thought I was thinking positively since then," he said. Holmquist has been one of his best

Wood said that he was very pleased with the performance of his first five, perhaps with the exception of Howard who sported both of his ankles a couple of weeks ago and is still not 100 percent. He is expected to be back in top condition in a week or so.

The No. 6 position will be determined for later matches by a playoff between Fabian and Mike Walker. In their match against FTU's Vegetable 8-1, and for that the singles matches and two of the doubles.
'Cage' Shows Prison Life

By Weber Ivy

In a climax to the Village Center's (VC) "Criminology and Penology Week" presentation, the VC sponsored a dramatization of prison life Feb. 8.

"The Cage," a one-act play, was written by a convicted serving a life sentence. The four ex-cons who act in it all served time in San Quentin and have brought the one-act play to over 40 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada.

Sissy makes a dramatic advance to Jive. Doc stands up for the new inmate, but his apparent friendliness paves the way for sexual aggression. When Jive insists on his innocence, Hatchet becomes the judge who mercilessly demands his guilty verdict into the defendant. As a priest, Hatchet blindingly looks and washes away his sins with water from a jail toilet.

Doc and Sissy play along with Hatchet, another prisoner, they mount a savage attack on the cyanist and dishonesty of the established church and legal system. In the courtroom scene, they hurl bathes like "The body was found stuffed in a mail bag, federal jurisdiction!"

Finally, Hatchet, the priest, strangles Jive and shouts to the audience, "I have done your will!

After the play, the four ex-cons and Judith Hamilton answered audience questions about jail life, the parole system, the current state prison reform, problems of ex-cons and non-cons.

One 'ex-con' was asked, "What would you tell your son to do to stay out of jail?"

"I would tell him to have plenty of money. The rich can afford the best lawyers and court appeals. If they do get sent to prison, they'll be more likely to be housed in a nice institution and get paroled sooner.

The men strongly felt that incarceration was pointless for all except the really dangerous criminals, and that they should be put in a mental institution.

They praised the people of the Village for putting down a bond issue for a new penitentiary and forcing the state to begin a less expensive program of out-of-prison counseling and rehabilitation for non-violent offenders.

The man who played Sissy spoke bitterly of the treatment ex-cons receive when released from prison.

"I was turned down for a civil service job employing bed pans in a hospital because of my record. You can't get a loan from the bank, either, and yet they tell you to 'rehabilitate yourself and make a contribution to society.'

"In our society, you're only supposed to go halfway with someone. Even social workers sometimes give up too fast on kids who spit and cuss at them.

"We're going to have to be willing to go 90 per cent of the way if that will make a person who is messed up," he said.

In the beginning, "The Cage" holds two interesting psychotic who acts out the judge; Doc, a pimp nicknamed Sissy, an aggressive, psychotic who acts out the priest; and Hatchet, a seminarian, who acts out the priest. They are joined by Jive, a terrified young man convicted of strangling his girlfriend. The new prisoner draws out a wrath that will be sponsored a picnic at Lake Claire Sunday, for both resident and non-resident students.

Tickets, selling for 50 cents in advance for dorm students and 75 cents for off campus students, will buy all the food and drinks. At the picnic, tickets will be sold to off campus students 75 cents.

The program is being studied by the State Comptroller's Office.

"While it is difficult to assess the amount of gasoline that could be saved," Mautz said, "it is interesting to extrapolate the potential savings that might occur.

"For example, if there are approximately 80,000 state employees and each employee drives an average of 12,000 miles a year, the number of gallons of gasoline required per employee, it would provide an annual saving of some $20,000 of gasoline per year.

"Or, considering the realistic figure of one-half gallon of gasoline, you can readily see this would amount to over a million gallons per year."

Dr. Thomas Borowy said he wants students to live in the here and now.

"This means students must communicate verbally and nonverbally," Borowy said.

The 4TH Developmental Center has organized two Gestalt Growth Group sessions.

"Each student can say anything they want and discuss any topic-and they usually do," Borowy said.

"Reaction from the students has been overwhelming since we formulated these groups last quarter," Borowy said.

The sessions which had been scheduled for an hour and a half had to be expanded to two hours. Thirteen members had gotten to know each other following more than a dozen sessions.

Sometimes the students get angry, and Dr. Borowy does not interfere.

"I try to help a catalyst, not a referee. Anytime you have open communication, you have greater understanding and you can better deal with any situation that arises," he said.

Borowy calls the sessions growth groups because he said the term "encounter session" has gotten a bad name. In the encounter session, members are forced to open up and are confronted with hostility when they refuse to be candid. In the growth group, a member can go through the whole session without saying a word and still get something from the group.

Dr. Borowy also offers marriage counseling for individuals and couples and said he hopes to have group marriage counseling in the future.

All services the center offers are free and confidential. Borowy said he hopes the sessions can be offered for course credit at a later date.

"The possibility has been explored and we are discussing it now. There is no reason this cannot be offered for credit. If we do get a course like this, it will have to be on a pass or fail basis because there is no way you can grade a student on personal counseling," he said.

"This means students must communicate verbally and nonverbally," Borowy said.

The 4TH Developmental Center has organized two Gestalt Growth Group sessions.

"Each student can say anything they want and discuss any topic-and they usually do," Borowy said.

"Reaction from the students has been overwhelming since we formulated these groups last quarter," Borowy said.

The sessions which had been scheduled for an hour and a half had to be expanded to two hours. Thirteen members had gotten to know each other following more than a dozen sessions and another group of students had formed this quarter.

Sometimes the students get angry, and when the do, Borowy does not interfere.

"I try to act like a catalyst, not a referee. Anytime you have open communication, you have greater understanding and you can better deal with any situation that arises," he said.

Borowy calls the sessions growth groups because he said the term "encounter session" has gotten a bad name. In the encounter session, members are forced to open up and are confronted with hostility when they refuse to be candid. In the growth group, a member can go through the whole session without saying a word and still get something from the group.

Dr. Borowy also offers marriage counseling for individuals and couples and said he hopes to have group marriage counseling in the future.

All services the center offers are free and confidential. Borowy said he hopes the sessions can be offered for course credit at a later date.

"The possibility has been explored and we are discussing it now. There is no reason this cannot be offered for credit. If we do get a course like this, it will have to be on a pass or fail basis because there is no way you can grade a student on personal counseling," he said.
