The future of FTU's bus service looks bleak.

The service, spearheaded by Dr. George P. Shrader, head of the university's transportation committee, was initiated last Winter Quarter in response to the frequent complaints of late buses.

The buses were planned not only as transportation, but also as a classroom, offering courses with the aim of preparing students who have never been exposed to a sound system.

However, shortly after the service was initiated, gas lines disappeared and riders were few.

According to Shrader the Orange County Commission and the Seminole County Commission donated $1,500 each to the initial $5,000 supplied by the State Department of Transportation.

But, all donations came with the stipulation that they would be used in the correct order, after the traveling classroom experiment.

The buses provided transportation during the Winter and Spring quarter while operating temporarily discontinued in summer when a bus was fitted for sound equipment in preparation for a course in music appreciation.

But, Shrader said, "Fall quarter enrollment yielded only three or four students and "you just can't run a course for that many people."

Shrader met last Friday with officials of the Orange County Commission and Transportation which yielded a $3,500 donation, but it is unclear what he can do, but Shrader said the law as it now stands does not provide grants for basic transportation.

Shrader said he is not yet sure what action the Orange and Seminole County Commissions will take, but sought immediately to shore up funds which may be lost from the state.

In negotiating with the Student Government (SG), Hunter Potts, SG President, said the figure of $3,500 was mentioned, but Potts said, "That's way too much money from us at this time. We have an allocated reserve of only $5,000 for the entire year."

Shrader does not yet know when and if state funds will terminate, but says, "the situation is pretty critical at this point if students don't start to patronize the bus service."

"If there's another shortage at the Nagel, as was the case last year, we probably won't be able to get the service again," said Shrader.

Food Prices Increase

Food, glorious food. Glorious, yes, but expensive. Almost 27 per cent more expensive since the start of the 1973-74 term, while prices for FTU's faculty ailing food service have not increased at all, according to John Williams, Director of Administrative Services.

Williams, with a desk full of market graphs and inflation statistics, traces pricing together a way to still provide food on campus at rates realistic to the student budget.

The summer quarter figures were not encouraging. The deficit for the four months was $24,634. The number of boarding students and college has not increased, he said.

"It's expensive to eat out," says Williams, noting that prices are per cent hike in March, while other students may see increasing prices on selected items reviewed monthly.

Williams says prices could have been raised by as much as 15 per cent last year, and would have probably won approval, but the food service decided to hold out for a downward trend in prices or a place to cut corners that would not affect the quality of food being served in the cafeteria and soon be.

The ad hoc committee of staff and students and the ad hoc committee of four residents formed last year to "make an effective line of communication" between cooks and dinner guests. Some of the recommendations made to control costs were instituted, some were impractical.

The practicability of having a food service on campus only exists in that Williams considers it a necessary vehicle toward providing the educational goals of the university, developing the student "mentally, physically and socially."

But learning that escalating prices is aimed at developing students gastronomically may be no consolation for residents who are facing a 10 per cent hike in meat in a January and a probable, but not definite, additional 10 per cent hike in March, while other students may see increasing prices on selected items reviewed monthly.

"It's expensive to eat out," says Williams, noting that prices are concurrent with restraint in the area, and meal plans are a place to cut corners that would not affect the quality of food being served in the cafeteria and soon be.

The plans in food operations is made up by taking funds from bookstore operations, printing and other services, explains Williams.

The issues can't continue, and now that all the fat has been trimmed from the food budget, only increases in prices can be about to provide good food with good prices. Williams feels that the retail prices index for food has more than doubled in two years, and "I don't see any end to it."

UFF Seeks Recognition

The United Faculty of student faculty members and professional employees at the State University System has a bargaining table. This organization, founded in late May is the equivalent of the bargain faculty organization within the State University System.

Current representatives of this organization are circulating "Authorization for Represen­tation" cards among the FTU faculty.

By signing these cards faculty members may secure an election on the collective bargaining issue.

The U.F.P. is headed by Norm Hunter, Professor of Communication and Psychology at Florida State University. June 14, 1974.

July visit to the FTU campus Market stressed the "grass roots" nature of the organization.

"No organization can truly represent the interests of faculty and professional employees that does not have as its base active and concerned members," Market stated.

The U.F.P. is the only organization in the state with a constitution that permits all full-time, part-time, college and graduate student employees to be represented when and if the university desires to store up funds which may be lost from the state.

In negotiating with the Student Government (SG), Hunter Potts, SG President, said the figure of $3,500 was mentioned, but Potts said, "That's way too much money from us at this time. We have an allocated reserve of only $5,000 for the entire year."

"If there's another shortage at the Nagel, as was the case last year, we probably won't be able to get the service again," said Shrader.

Today is the last day for FTU students to declare their candidacy as a Student Government (SG) senator.

Students wishing to file a declaration of candidacy should do so before 5 p.m. in VCRoom 216. All declarations will be accepted after this date.

Elections for SG positions are scheduled Oct. 16 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. and on Oct. 11 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Kisdok and Village Center.

In order to qualify as a SG senator, a FTU student must have an overall GPA of 2.6, be enrolled in the college and class and represent when assuming office and be taking a minimum of 3 quarter hours.

"I would like to urge people to become more involved in their student government," said FTU SG President Hunter Potts.

"Students who are interested in control all activities and service fees. This means all students and organizations will have to go to their student government for any type of funding they might need," said Potts.

Potts also noted that he expects more students will be involved with SG now that they have to work in cooperation with it in order to obtain necessary funds.

FTU's procedure of electing SG senators is unique among state universitides in that each student only votes for candidates in his class and college.

Each class college is allocated a specific number of senate seats based on its individual enrollment. This year there are 120 seats open to SG potential senate candidates. However, the number of senatorial seats open to each college has not been officially designated because of a Senate bill concerning apportionment for this year's student constituents. Police Exercise All Powers

By Alan M. Croose

From parking situations to grand larceny, the campus police with full arrest powers serve the FTU community on a 24 hour basis.

According to John F. Smith, Director of Campus Security Police, his officers fulfill the same minimum requirements set by the state with 320 hours of training including the Orlando Police Academy.

Smith says campus officers also participate in "Rolcall Training" and other special courses designed to further the individual officer's knowledge of his job.

Campus police respond to medical emergencies, reports of thefts (from textbooks to autos) and assaults, but Smith admits that parking is still one of their biggest problems even though the new lots west of the humanities building remain virtually empty. Approximately 2,000 parking citations are issued each month usually for vehicles parked in the wrong lot. However, Smith said people outside the FTU community who come on campus to steal or cause trouble also pose a constant problem.

While FTU's police have the same authority on campus as any other member of a law enforcement agency, their authority stops at the campus gates, unless engaged in a "hot pursuit".

Lack of authority was the reason why campus police were unable to help traffic slow on FTU Boulevard when vehicles crept at a snail's pace during the first days of school. But, the campus security force has direct radio contact with the Orange County Sheriff's Department which has been an aid, especially in recovering stolen property.

Smith announced plans of a "Sport Prevention program which introduced to the system and learned of the vacant seat in the Senate. As a write-in candidate.

Mr. Potts won the position and has been involved in FTU politics ever since. While in the senate, President Potts worked concurrently on improving food service in the spring of '72. The following year Potts worked concurrently with Vice President Leo Constantine on will begin with posters and stickers to be placed on campus telephones. "Awareness is the key to the problem," said Smith, "especially for thefts caused by not keeping door rooms locked or having valuable items in plain view in parked cars."

According to Smith at least three officers are on duty at all times as a service to the campus to give directions or aid stranded motorists, as well as keep the peace.

The names of office holders may change, dates are updated, and perhaps a minor reporter types his John Hancock at the top of the article for the first time but basically it consists of the same "bull."

In answering the hackneyed question, when did you become interested in politics, FTU's incumbent Student Government president Hunter Potts disclosed in a recent interview that it all started in the fall of 1971. A freshman then, Potts inquired about SG activities at the SG table during orientation. He was in-such committees as budgeting, funding organizations and the ad hoc committee for beer on campus. In the spring of '72 Potts joined forces with Pres. Constantine. As vice president, Potts became increasingly aware of his responsibility toward fellow students and just how rewarding such experience could be in an industrial engineering major.

Raised in Kentucky, Potts says he is aware of the "farce in government" and expresses a tendency toward management after graduation. Being ambitious, Hunter is obviously striving for new goals for FTU SG.

Potts says he would like to see better communications including "grape table" and SG newsletters. He hopes that SG can research the possibility of improving the academic curriculum.

Potts realizes that the power of student government is deceptive and likes to look at it as influence. With your help Hunter Potts can make better use of the funds allocated to student government.

Potts encourages all earnest students to voice their complaints, gripes, criticisms and comments to student government. Surprise our fearless leader and give him a call.

You would think college students had enough to worry about what with add-drop and pop quizzes and such. But no, the harsh reality of the "real world" has to force itself on us in the guise of inflation. That's right, inflation is now being offered at Florida Tech by the College of Hardaux.

Most of the manifestations of this relative newcomer appeared on campus during the summer while the majority of people were away. But it is something that just happened, it has been in the works for some time now.

The most obvious example of this situation is the tuition hike from a flat rate of $120 per quarter to $13 per hour. This means that anything above 14 hours is going to cost you more than $100 (this does not include the $8 health service fee). This was decided on last spring quarter but just became effective this quarter.

If you had any money left after tuition you could stick it into the rising cost of books. Most prices, according to one bookstore source, are up on the average of a dollar per book. One political science book, however, jumped from $1.95 to $5.50! This price hike has not been initiated by the bookstore itself, but has been passed on to them by the publishers.

If the preceding hasn't raped your wallet, wait until you hear about food prices! As you probably know (unless you live in a cave and eat mushrooms) food prices have risen about 12 per cent since the beginning of this year. Well, this is starting to become evident on campus and will become even more evident before the quarter is over. You may have noticed that coke machines are demanding 25 cents now instead of 20 cents. In fact, just about all of the vending machines on campus are charging a nickel extra on whatever they give you. And the way most of these machines work means you pay a nickel more for the same thing you were getting before. Which brings us to the cafeteria (it does?): If you have tried to get lunch even there anytime this year you have probably noticed that by the time you've waited in line and gotten your food, it's not lunch you're eating but dinner. This is because Food Services doesn't have enough money (they say) to operate two food lines they way they did last year. So... you can look forward to a 10 per cent increase in cafeteria prices next quarter and possibly another 10 per cent hike spring quarter! All I've got to say is, "eat tripe!"
Residents Vote Maximum Hours

Resident students last week voted overwhelmingly to approve visitation hours, in what was described by Vice-President for Student Affairs W. Rex Brown as the best turnout ever.

Eighty-four per cent of FTU’s 614 residents cast ballots last Wednesday with 594 voting for the maximum visitation hours of 2 p.m. to 12 midnight Sunday through Thursday and 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

The Resident Advisers this year are: Rodney Blankenship, Dorm D; Kirk Young, Dorm C; Yonne Kilgore, Dorm A and Pam Hindman, Dorm B. The resident advisers will be on duty and available for assistance between the hours of 5 p.m. and 12 p.m. until 2 a.m. on weekends.

In order to help curb the number of doors being unlocked due to carelessness on the part of the individual resident, the resident advisers are considering a charge of 50 cents to be levied after the second unlocking and for each occasion thereafter.

Assistant for student development Pam Hindman stated that the money accumulated from such occurrences will be placed in a special RHA scholarship fund and awarded to deserving students at a future date.

In order to avoid paying this charge, the Interdorm Council suggests that girls leaving their rooms at night and not wishing to take their key should lock their suites and place their key in their mailboxes, rather than leaving their rooms open.

At the first Inter-Dorm Reform meeting Wednesday, RHA President Jesse McLeod announced his resignation. McLeod introduced as his successor, former Vice-President Sharon Esposito. McLeod cited personal reasons for his resignation.

The vacant post of vice-president will be added to the six available RHA Inter-Dorm Council representative positions. There are also some Judiciary appointments open for application. For further information on any of these positions, contact any resident advisor or Sharon Esposito.

Florida law states that any documents processed in the course of state business may not be destroyed without the permission of the Bureau of Records Management in Tallahassee. The Bureau must first grant permission at some point prior to the proposed destruction of any records, and then again immediately before destruction. Whether or not examinations and reports are state records is a matter of some controversy.

storage space is one factor that makes the indefinite retention of student papers a problem. Ooste, citing what he called “extreme cases”, reported that some professors keep the papers up to five quarters, while some others throw them away as quickly as during the break between quarters. Some students return to campus to contest grades as late as a year after completing a course, Ostle said.

Meanwhile, the Faculty Senate itself unanimously approved a resolution to be sent to the Office of Academic Affairs and to President Millican calling for the disposition of academic papers to be the prerogative of the instructor involved. And one senator asked the meeting if perhaps they would not be more dissatisfied with the legal reply than with the yet unanswered question.
Police List Objectives

Officers of the State University Police of Florida shall protect life and property, preserve the peace, prevent and repress crime, investigate reported offenses, apprehend offenders, enforce regulations and laws relating to traffic control, collect and preserve physical evidence, prepare cases for court prosecution or disciplinary action, recover lost and stolen property, provide general police services to the university community, and establish and maintain an enforcement policy which is consistent with the requirements of the law. with the traditions of a democratic society. However, the efficient fulfillment of these basic police responsibilities will not completely satisfy the demands of the police position. Officers must be aware of the basic function of their institution - the education of our youth. Therefore, they must embrace and practice those professional methods and attitudes which, through their daily contacts, will support the educational objectives of the institution they serve.

The police task is to provide a fair, educationally sound program of campus justice that receives community support, is responsive to the interests of all its constituents, and assures an orderly educational environment. The methods used by the university police in performing their function must be geared to the preservation of the ideals of scholarship and the protection of academic freedom. A policy that provides for a minimum of administrative enforcement and a maximum of student self-regulation will offer the student the best possible education as to his responsibilities as a citizen of the university. Although arrest and prosecution are recognized as essential methods of police operation, personal discretion permits the officer to issue warnings and refer minor or first offenses for resolution to the institutions’ own judicial systems. Serious law violations, including all felonies, will be referred to the appropriate prosecutor for an opinion as to prosecution. These policies will stimulate public confidence and preclude charges that universities on their own initiative are granting favored treatment and destroying the concept of equality before the law.

University police will encourage community involvement which facilitates a free flow of information that aids in identifying problems and informs the community of crime trends. The police will establish and maintain effective working relationships between themselves and personnel of the Office of Student Affairs. A mutual exchange of information and a spirit of cooperation will insure orderly procedures and safeguard the rights of students and protect the university’s interests.

The driving, forcefully rhythmic sounds of Richie Havens will fill the Busch Gardens-Tampa, Stanleyville amphitheater on Saturday, October 6th, and Sunday for two shows daily, Sat. and Sun. Both shows begin at 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

The weekend's shows will be the second under a new Busch Gardens policy of providing top name entertainment at no increase in the cost of admission.

Last month's initial shows featuring the reunited Righteous Brothers, were a tremendous success, filling the amphitheater to overflow every night.

"We were extremely pleased with the first shows," said Joe Fincher, general manager of Busch Gardens. "Their success and the comments of our visitors demonstrated to us that people like the idea of having top name performers plus all the excitement of Busch Gardens for one price."

Fincher concluded by saying, "We definitely feel the Richie Havens shows will be as big a hit as were the Righteous Brothers. We're really looking forward to this one."

While many popular musicians reinterpret songs by surrounding them with symphony orchestras, swelling them with thousand of voices, Havens' approach is exactly the opposite. Using a minimum of instruments, Havens is on a one-man mission of accompanying himself with his(rhythm). Standard techniques (for which he uses an unorthodox open E-tuning), and has stolen the scene from the Righteous Brothers, who are often hampered by their own vocal strengths with their own personality to fill the music across. And it works. Havens has followed some of the most (electrarily)

Dr. Wentworth Clark is the president-elect of the Florida Council of Social Studies. Dr. Clark will assume his position in two weeks, after serving as first vice-president of the Council last year.

Dr. Fred Green was chosen to be one of four representatives of the Florida Council of Social Studies to attend the national convention in Chicago over Thanksgiving.

The Social Work area of concentration in the Department of Sociology has again been awarded a State Formula Grant from H.E.W. This grant has been renewed continuously since 1969. Dr. John Hodgin, Project Director, announced that the 1974-1975 grant is for $110,545. FTU's matching contribution is 25 per cent of the total grant.

For the second consecutive year, Dr. M. Timothy O'Keefe of the Communication Dept., has won top writing awards in the annual contest sponsored by the Florida Magazine Association. Dr. O'Keefe won first place for in-depth reporting, winning over all magazines and newspaper Sunday supplements (including the Sentinel's). He also won a merit award for a second story in this category. In addition, he won an award for editorial writing.

In the reorganization of administrative duties this year, Dr. Leslie Ellis, Dean of Research and Graduate Studies, has taken on the additional post of Associate Vice President of Academic Affairs.

"I'll be assigned to the direction of graduate studies, sponsored research, co-operative education, continuing education and the library," Ellis said. "In addition, each one of these areas has a director of its own."

Ellis has also been appointed Academic Intern to Academic Affairs. This is an annual appointment. Ellis said, made to an individual so that he be exposed to administrative duties throughout the year.

Ellis said he has been with FTU since July, 1968, "before we opened the doors." He began as chairman of the department of Biological Science.

Spanish Students Visit Spain

By Deborah Whaley

Students of the State University System of Florida were offered a chance to study Spanish language and culture in Spain and earn college credit for it.

Spanish language class at FTU, the program under the direction of Dr. Armando Payas, was held in cooperation with the 407-year-old University of Oviedo. Of the 30 students participating last summer, 13 were from FTU.

The students divided their time between Oviedo and Seville. This gave students an opportunity to compare cultural differences between northern and southern Spain. The program also offered various field trips to places of historical and art interest.

Dr. Payas, who began the program, said that students are enriched by the chance to study a language in the country in which it is spoken. Payas said that he could see an improvement in the language proficiency of students after only two months in Spain.

Becky Wolfe, one of the students who enrolled in the program, said that her summer in Spain really boosted her confidence in the use of the Spanish language. Wolfe also said that being able to talk with so many Spanish university students gave her a "different perspective on many things.

Wolfe, planning to go back next year for a year of study in Spain, said that her summer in Spain helped her to make some of her future plans for study and work. Students interested in studying in Spain next summer may contact Dr. Payas of the Department of Foreign Languages.

UFF Bargaining

organizing for collective bargaining. He pointed out such actions are specifically permitted under the constitution of the State of Florida.

A law passed in the last legislature provides the procedures for such organizing efforts. Additionally Governor Askew's office has issued a memorandum to all administrative officers of state institutions directing them to refrain from interfering with employees rights to join organizations for purposes of obtaining collective bargaining.

The United Faculty of Florida was formed as a merger of the Florida University Professors local of the American Federation of Teachers and the Florida Higher Education Association. "These affiliations give us the political power to obtain from the legislature that which we win from the BOR," Markel pointed out. "This is a Florida based organization. To date not one agent of any affiliated organization has come to this state to direct or advise us. That's what we mean by 'grass roots.' We'll do it ourselves."

When asked what he thought the chances of success of the U.F.F. in the coming collective bargaining campaign to be Markel replied, "Our chances are excellent. No poll of faculty sentiment has been taken by any organization campuses of the State University System has been very positive.

Ozark Music Festival Flop

By Ike Harrison

It was during the weekend of July 19-21 that an unknown town in Western Missouri would experience a disaster to itself as well as the music industry. The town was Sedalia and the disaster was known as the Ozark Music Festival.

The project was precipitated by local Sedalia businessmen and advertised nationally in the Rolling Stone. However, the magazine failed to do a follow-up story which suggested to me that everyone concerned would like to forget about the festival as soon as possible.

The festival was held on 150 acres of land designated for use during the annual Missouri State Fair. It was days before the event was to begin that the single incident of police confrontation took place as officers successfully arrested youths on drug charges.

The music began Friday afternoon with temperatures soaring to 105 degrees. The blistering heat combined with the already obvious down-braks embedded the festival in a feeling of hostility that would fail to be overcome.

But it was not only the promoter who foresaw a chance at profit in a music festival. Many young leaders paraded excitedly around the grassy camping area with their rented trucks filled with food, drugs and a variety of artifacts for sale.

The festival was intended to attract all segments of music loving population.

The music began Friday afternoon and immediately drew three strikes against it with Cactus, Ted Nugent and the Ambro Dukes and Bob Seger. All three washed up groups clung desperately to their short eras of popularity that have have long since passed.

With an increasingly rapid shift from heavy metal to country and western, the festival would not have been complete without the appearance of the recently formed Earl Scruggs Review.

The group, which includes many of Earl's family set down a mixture of country rock and blues highlighted with fast lead guitar riffs.

The night ended with another of my less favorite groups, R.E.O. Speedwagon, a band specializing in hard rock.

All acts scheduled during the day for Sunday were postponed to the late afternoons to give both the audience and performers a break from the sun.

The music started again at the weekend addition to the Capetown record label, the Elvin Bishop Group, providing a brilliant set of more southern rock n roll.

Other top bands in the night's roster included the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and America and was finished off with an obvious favorite of the crowd, The Eagles.

Some disappointing cancellations included the Scaggs and the Ozark Mountain Daredevils.

The Souther, Hillman, Furry Band, a united effort of already established musicians was introduced to the crowd. There was also a reorganization of an old group that had been apart for years. It included Buddy Miles, Mike Bloomfield, Barry Goldberg and Nick Gravenites and are known as the Electric Flag.

The groups scheduled for the festival indicate that it should have been a good show. However, the fact that most groups played less than an hour turned things into what appeared to be a rush job just to get things over with. Another black mark for the festival was the wide spread pilfering of food that lead to the closing of the entire town.

Within days after the end of the three-day festival the Missouri legislature enacted laws prohibiting rock festivals from ever again being held on Missouri soil.

Basketball’s Meixl Resigns

By Pete Haas

Ben Meixl, assistant coach of FTU’s basketball team, has turned in his resignation. Meixl came to FTU from Neenah, Wisconsin, where he was bobsball coach of one of the state’s finest teams in the fall of 1972. Head Coach Torchy Clark and Meixl grew up together in Wisconsin as childhood friends and later joined Clark after he came to FTU in 1970. Meixl remained here through two of FTU’s finest seasons in which the teams compiled an overall record of 36-35. Meixl cited family difficulties in the transition of living in Florida as the main reason for his return to Wisconsin. He has now taken a position as math teacher in a school there and it is unknown at this time whether he will return to coaching or not, at any level.

Coach Clark said that he was disappointed that Meixl could not remain on longer because he was doing a fine job and really beginning to know the system. David Thompson, a senior guard transfer student from Atlanta, said, “We’re going to miss Coach Meixl because of the work he did off the court and behind the scenes to help all the guys.”

At the present time the athletic department is still in search of a man to take the position and no specific names have been mentioned.
Ladies’ Volley (No Folly) Ball

By Doug Storm

Don’t make fun of women’s volleyball. You’re just liable to get stuck with a lob. For that matter is no laughing matter at all with the 15 years it has taken to get it to where they have set it in their minds to overcome not only the challenges other women’s teams have to offer, but what the great athletic administration in the state for women’s athletics is casting down on them.

This is FTU’s third year fielding a women’s team in volleyball. Lucy McLanahan is an assistant professor in the Physical Education Department, has served as the groundbreaker and guiding force for this intercollegiate undertaking. Miss McLanahan is on a one-year’s leave of absence from Stetson University where she started a women’s volleyball team four years ago, which for purposes of comparison is presently existing, and quite comfortably, on a $7,800 a year budget.

Last year’s team finished somewhere in the vicinity of 28-7, the records are lost, but with what Dr. Kennedy called a “ready made team”. Unofficially rated as the number one “setter” in the state, Shubel Khonsari from Iran, spearheaded a team composed of seasoned and highly skilled transfers from schools which already had established volleyball programs. It was just a matter of letting them learn to play with each other. This year, however, the team has a lot of new “pretty faces” but this aspect seems to be the least of worries. Pam Burke is coaching the team this season and figures things to be promising in terms of performance. She’ll rely on senior Kitty Enng to be the stabilizing force for a team that has only five seniors and only three of them with experience. Also returning from last year’s team will be Char Roush, Marta Mura, and Anne Kennedy.

The never-ending struggle for funds for on-the-road housing and food, and a home court, doesn’t seem to dampen the interest of the players. Lack of publicity has taken its toll in the form of small spectator turnout. Probably not too many people even know the team exists.

Road games, and right now they easily outnumber the home encounters, don’t sound like much fun. The players will most likely have to get their meals on their own, but as Miss McLanahan explains, “that won’t be as bad as it sounds. Most of our girls live off campus and have to come up with their own meals anyway.” Playing deals for road trips at a lower than reasonable price for out-of-town tournaments is another headache that doesn’t seem to want to go away. And it seems to want to go away. And if that’s not enough, what was going to be called “home” for the girls, Rollins Fieldhouse, will not be available for another three weeks. Just recently Rollins decided to close its gymnasium to refurbish the floor. Fulfilling home obligations of “home-and-away” contracts now is like treading on the ills.

But despite it all, it seems a little bit of the Ol’ Gipper is in all of us. The mountain was there, and so is women’s volleyball. The entire Future Sports Department, and that includes basketball sophisticate player-reporter, 6’7” center-forward-guard Pete Ross, wishes the team Good Luck.
