Traffic Violation Fines Boosted

By Jim Haladas

To comply with the recently adopted "Florida uniform disposition of traffic infractions act," the University traffic and parking committee amended the traffic and parking regulation's schedule of fines, to go into effect January first. Tickets for parking violations have been boosted from $2 to $25.

Alcohol Ok In Dorms

By Macey Muramatsu

Dr. W. Rex Brown, Vice President for Student Affairs, has approved a policy concerning the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in the residence halls.

The request was presented to him by the FTU Resident Hall Association (RHA), after researching regulations within the State University System. The policy, which becomes effective immediately, states "that the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages by those persons legal age be allowed in the residence halls; that the consumption of said alcoholic beverages be permitted only in the individual residence suites and that the consumption of said alcoholic beverages be excluded from dorm lounges, hallways and other such public and common areas within the residence halls."

Dr. Brown said the original request concerning alcohol in the dorms came from resident student and RHA member Angie Yount in the school year 1968-69. Brown's response then and almost yearly up to this point was negative.

In 1955, an RHA student, Stuart Smith, was also taken into consideration. Stuart Smith, a resident for Student Affairs, has Dr. W. Smith continued, "Fifteen dollars is a lot of money for a ticket."

By law, all appeals must be handled by the Orlando Municipal Court, unless the Board of Regents approve a move by FTU Attorney General David Brown to establish a campus "parking violations appeal board.

Such an appeal board is already under consideration at the University of South Florida and the University of Florida. If the appeals board is established, State Attorney General Robert Potts, SG president, said, "We have no choice but to enforce the state law."

The request concerning alcohol in the residence halls was presented to the Board of Regents in May, with an appeal to them to establish a campus "parking violations appeal board."

The request was presented to him by the FTU Resident Hall Association (RHA), after researching regulations within the State University System. Dr. Brown said the original request concerning alcohol in the dorms came from resident student and RHA member Angie Yount in the school year 1968-69. Brown's response then and almost yearly up to this point was negative.

Michael Bieseld and Pamela Hindman, Administrative Advisors to the RHA, credited the research and preparation of the resident students as the main reason for the policy approval.

The fact that the legal age has been lowered to 18, Dr. Brown said, was also taken into consideration.

Sharon Esposti, RHA President, and Jesse McLeod, RHA Judicial Board Chairman, were the students most directly responsible for the policy formulation.

Parking Operations director Leo Goff provided assistance during the research phase. Similar successful policies have been instituted at other universities in the state.

The higher average age of the FTU student and the relatively small resident student population indicates that the policy will provide the opportunity for a more varied living-learning atmosphere for dorm students.

Simply Shakespeare Tours Area

By Alan Crouse

"Simply Shakespeare," a series of single acts from different Shakespeare comedies, produced by an FTU literature class, is winding up its tour of area high schools.

According to Dr. Stuart Omans, who teaches the course on Shakespearean comedy, student Rick Camarata originally proposed the idea of actually performing a play.

Next Judy Smith offered to help with production, negotiating with the Theater Department for assistance in blocking and the borrowing of costumes.

Omans said calls from local high school once came pouring in, making it necessary to make a performance schedule.

Omans said it is given as an answer and acts from the "Comedy of Errors," "Taming of the Shrew," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Twelfth Night" were chosen as variations on the theme of identity.

After the company was "Ready to go on the road," the Music Department offered the services of a recorder quartet which lends a festive mood to the opening of the performance.

Omans opens the show as a teacher, quoting some of Shakespeare's paradoxical statements as advice, while jabbing members of the audience with his mop-like staff.

"It was already a way I could get them to do it," Omans added facetiously.

One of the most appealing numbers in the high school audiences is a scene from "The Taming of the Shrew," where both a husband and wife strive to dominate the relationship. The husband wins the struggle by slapping the wife's bottom, wrestling her to the floor and standing with foot rested on her posterior, while singing words of love.

Omans' students plan to continue "Simply Shakespeare" next quarter, under an independent study.

Omans said they will polish what his already been done and also write a new presentation on the theme of power.

The group has gotten much mail from area high school students and Omans related one experience when a group of slower students were "allowed" to see the performance.

"There was one fellow right near the front who was grabbing every one of those jokes long before anyone else in the audience."

Omans said he hopes "Simply Shakespeare" will continue, because it is a learning experience for both the high school and college students, as well as being entertaining.

Omans, who is performing Shakespeare, is thinking my students get a much better idea as to why Shakespeare has been translated into every language and is read in the Bible as being read.
Architect Offering Exhibit

By Cameron Pyle

Can we afford the cost necessary to preserve our sprawling cities, with their waste of space and resources? Can we continue the indiscriminate appropriation of the countryside where farmland and animals should be? Is it possible for mankind to survive this ecological time bomb? Will there be survival solutions?

The Loch Haven Art Center is running an exhibition through December 30th by a man who thinks he has an answer. Paolo Soleri, an Italian-born architect and protégé of Frank Lloyd Wright, came to Orlando November 17th to discuss and defend his concept of “Arcology,” the fusion of architecture and ecology. Along with displays of Soleri’s models, photographs, murals and drawings, the opening day at the art center featured a panel discussion centering on the theme of his “totally planned environment.”

The panel included Dr. Elman Fochler and Dr. John River of FTU, Dr. Thomas Harbin of Rollins College, and Mr. Lowell Lebath of the Orlando Architectural Design Group, Winter Park, who acted as moderator.

Soleri is acting on his own, without the aid of institutional or governmental funding, towards designing a working model of his Arcology on 860 acres of land that he owns outside of Phoenix, Arizona. The primary means of support for Soleri’s project is the tuition that he charges to students who work with him as laborer-apprentices and form the sale of canvas and wind bells which he makes in his Arizona workshop.

Soleri explained that his “city” is well on its way towards completion and will provide living and working space for 300 inhabitants on about ten acres of land thus leaving almost 97 percent of the property in its natural state. Some of Soleri’s model cities, which are on exhibit, are designed for hundreds of thousands of people within a few square miles of land. Imagine the entire city of Orlando contracted into an area the size of Disney World with completely enclosed living, working, transportation, and communication systems.

One of his ideas is to use the “chimney effect” of vast greenhouses in order to provide heat, for single dwellings and virtually entire cities. That is, by concentrating heated air on levels which are lower than the living level of the inhabitants, it will allow the free movement of the naturally rising hot air directly into these spaces.

Soleri prefers three-dimensional terraced habitats for his cities, utilizing the free space above and below ground rather than the present two-dimensional cities that merely expand outwards, using up more and more of the natural environment. The living areas will take up the outer shell of these cities so that “everyone has a view, and the center is designated as a place for walking and cultural activities. It was also pointed out by Soleri that the time element involved in moving from place to place within such a city would be so reduced that much of the space presently used for costly transportation systems could be put to better use.

Soleri has taken his cue from nature in that evolution has obviously favored those organisms which have become increasingly more complex and miniaturized. James A. Michener, who has described his book “Centennial” how tiny, mammal-like creatures washed from the trees while the huge and inefficient dinosaur drifted towards extinction. Thus the equally huge and inefficient modern cities follow this same path, Mr. Soleri and friends are constructing a grandstand seat in the Arizona desert from which to view the show.

The new city, as envisioned by Soleri, will function as a single organism, a totally self-sufficient environment. There are sure to be many problems, some as yet unforeseen, that will need to be overcome. In fact, the main thrust of the panel’s questioning centered on whether Soleri’s Arcology will work in practice as well as in theory. Soleri stated that to provide proof and factual evidence for the soundness of his admittedly “utopian” ideas is the most important purpose of the working model in Arizona.

Judging from the large and increasing number of visitors and from the display of a working model, it seems that many people will indeed be waiting to find out just how well Arcology works.

Collective Bargaining On Faculty's Minds

By Paula

The faculty at FTU is thinking of other things besides grades and final examinations. Collective bargaining has become an important issue and the faculty has to pick a bargaining agent.

Two groups are vying to become the bargaining agent of the State University System: Association of University Professors and the United Faculty of Florida.

Dr. Richard Adicks, President of the FTU chapter of AUP said, "Collective bargaining will provide an effective faculty involvement in university government."

"The faculty is consulted less and less on matters and policies that run this University, and collective bargaining will bring back the power of the Faculty Senate.

"Also, the faculty will receive improved compensation benefits through collective bargaining," Adicks added.

Dr. William Eder, President of the FTU chapter of UFF said that "collective bargaining will deal with any problems the faculty feels exists."

"In terms of the students at FTU," Eder said, "UFF ensures a superior quality of instruction and students will benefit indirectly from collective bargaining."

Eder added, "When a faculty member is confident in the areas of job security and economic pressures, then his students benefit."

Also, collective bargaining would allow the faculty to be more involved in the "university process" and thereby improve education for the students.

"The faculty at FTU is thinking that another one be made out by personnel in the Cashier's Office.

If a student loses or misplaces his fee invoice, he should then request a student to get his fee invoice cannot be used as an excuse to pay fees after the above deadline.

When one group gets the 30 percent needed, then an election will be held to determine the bargaining agent in either the spring or fall of 1975.

Also, any another group that gets to percent of the faculty's signatures is eligible to be on the election ballot.

Adicks said he believed, "the election could go one of three ways: no agent, there the faculty would be prevented from bargaining, the AUP or the UFF."

Eder said he felt "UFF should be the bargaining agent, because this organization is a part of organized education. We are a merger of Florida Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers."

"UFF is also a part of organized labor. We are affiliated with the AFL-CIO. Therefore, because we have a political base, UFF hopes to influence the Board of Regents in decision making."

The UFF is a state, all-faculty controlled organization.

It was formed last May and has nearly 100 members at FTU.

There is also a chapter at each of the nine universities in the State University System.

Adicks said he felt faculty members were interested in collective bargaining because "some want the militancy found in a union."

He added that some faculty members have told him "if we were able to have collective bargaining, AUP should do it."

"AAUP is a national professional organization in which any professor can belong. It was established in 1913 and has been at FTU for five years."

According to Dr. Adicks, "AAUP will approach collective bargaining as a professional association, as distinguished from the labor or management approach advocated by the UFF. University teachers can now decide between two different methods."
Rising prices, or perhaps a rather hand-in-hand means of ensuring civil obedience has taken its toll on another front of student affairs. As if being faced with the possibility of the twenty-cent phone call, more increases in postage, and putting saccharine in coffee because the price of natural sweetener might exceed the price of the java wasn’t bad enough, parking in the wrong place on campus will now cost you $15 instead of a dollar, and will failure to have a sticker which used to cost you two dollars. The ultimate infraction of unlawfully parking your bicycle will set you back twelve five bills.

The lucidity of the harried shopper finding himself overdue on his parking meter and paying fifteen dollars as a penalty is not the issue. Nor is the realization that of why uniformity of traffic violation penalties, especially at a fifteen-fold increase, necessarily makes the fault of the act not the legal fault that a fact that a moving violation that falls under the statutory damage limits can carry a maximum penalty of $25, but an infraction delayed against the defendant can carry with it a $100 fine.

Police Chief John Smith hit it on the head when he said, “It’s a lot of money to pay for a parking ticket. Obviously, however, municipal and county judges hearing appeals on non-moving and moving violations, respectively, can charge part of the standard fine and suspend the rest, after hearing the defendant’s case.”

According to state Attorney General Robert Shevin, an existing statute provides for establishment of a student court to deal with violations occurring on campus. Appeal to the student court would waive the right to appeal to a civil court but would return the appropriate fine monies to the university. Generally, the interest of temperance and good sense the Board of Regents should adopt Boone’s proposal to establish a student-oriented tribunal familiar with and sympathetic to the problems and circumstances of the particular university.

Chief Smith has designated a one-month grace period for violators of campus regular regulations who have confrontious with “courtesy citations” will be issued. If the student court is not established by the time the increased penalties go into effect, however, we will not have the means that will be significant deterrents to illegal parking. If not, the average monthly 800 citations given should allow for 15 ties the amount of scholarships the system supposedly provides.

A bigger problem, it seems is why the vehicle registration merry-go-round exists in the first place. We have designated priority parking and to that extent attending a college miles away from civilization and having to store the mode of transportation during the university charges ten dollars per student to park in any tie of parking to guest automobiles unless hunting quail in the adjacent woods, pays thousands of dollars, takes the fines students pay and gives scholarships, and then tells the student body that the campus is not established by the time parking meters are overdue on his parking meter and paying fifteen dollars collected for registrations are assessed. The system decided to give it another try. Polls were taken (most everyone in the dorms wanted this privilege) letters were written to other universities (no; no drunken orgies here) and finally a bill was submitted to the student senate and passed. Dubbed Bill 6-5 it was sent to Rex Brown and promptly vetoed. His reasons for the veto were: 1) Boone will not contribute to the "flying learning environment" in the dorm. 2) There is no scientific evidence that booze helps you learn 3) Boone is a bad drug that makes people have wrecks in cars. The bill went back to the student senate where it was reworded and sent to the Senate. According to the senate, the student senate cald we do some more research and sent another proposal. This one called basically the same thing as its predecessor with a few restrictions added (you can’t drink in the halls or lounges, just in your rooms). Submitted to student government by what was called the Student Alcoholism Association (which wasn’t a hell of a lot at the time), it was approved and sent to Rex Brown. And by and behold, miracle of miracles it was approved!

RHA President nice out of the box. Our beloved administrators took a long overdue step out of the dark ages last week. Rex Brown told us to make a liar out of me for my last column) passed an RHA proposal allowing the consumption of alcohol in the dorms. Needless to say I think this was a laudable move. I was greatly pleased when I heard the news, however, I didn’t realize I see alcohol in the dorms before I graduated. Many students have fought the administration for many years for this sudden victory. I dug into the Florida mug book just how long students have been trying to get the right to have booze in the dorms. I found an article dated July 31, 1970 which told of such proposals then RHA president Amanda Zobel. It was vetoed by Rex Brown because, he said, alcohol is an "abused drug" which is "not essential in the accomplishment of the aims of the university."

Besides, he continued, there is no valid research available to prove that alcohol consumption of alcohol contributes to academic learning. By fall quarter of last year, every state university in Florida except FTU and one other allowed alcohol in the dorms. The president of our student government decided to give it another try. Polls were taken (most everyone in the dorms wanted this privilege) letters were written to other universities (no; no drunken orgies here) and finally a bill was submitted to the student senate and passed. Dear Dr. Brown,

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks for the recent policy change allowing the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in the residence halls. I feel that this change was long overdue.

At the same time, though, I would agree to express my utter dismay with your memorandum announcing this policy change and the apparent disregard of Student Government's actions in this matter. I must remind you that the Student Senate initiated the efforts to effect the necessary policy change. The Student Senate, with the passage of Senate Bill 6-5, compiled a thorough report of similar policies and practices at other state universities and the Student Government Executive Board conducted an indepth survey of student resident situations, including several questions on the alcoholic beverage policy. The Senate bill, committee report, and survey results all indicated the need for a policy change.

This bill was vetoed, but now, less than a year later, the same basic problem that was initated by the Student Senate has been effected. The only action since that time (ignoring the Senate's efforts to seek a compromise) was the passage of a resolution by the Residence Hall Association. The research conducted by the RHA was no more comprehensive than the obvious fact that the residence students have not and were not being treated as adults and the "in loco parentis" philosophy was alive and living in the dorms at FTU.

It seems that the efforts made to change this policy were just in exercise of this university's bureaucratic structure; and that the philosophy seems to be to keep the students busy on these minor issues so they won't get into anything important and find out what's really going on.

I really wish that I had not done the concerns I've expressed but I know that these feelings are shared by many, but I hope that making FTU one of the finest institutions of higher education in the country, I hope that we can all take a more honest, open, and positive approach to change without worrying about whether or not students should be able to have a drink in the privacy of their own room.

Sincerely,

H. Hunter Potts
Student Body President

You have heard of bread lines and dust bowl blues, but did you know the Great Depression was an exciting period for the American Theater?

Dr. David D. Mays of the FTU Theater Department, in announcing his Great Depression Drama Course for the spring quarter, talked about what the Depression did for theater.

According to Mays, who did both his Masters thesis and Doctoral dissertation on Depression drama, the years following the Wall Street "Crash" was the only period when the theater and other arts were government subsidized. W.P.A, the government's work program, usually meant new roads, post offices and municipal parks. But Mays pointed out that projects also included works by writers, playwrights, painters and sculptors.

Mays added that "according to Congress," the art projects were cancelled when they were overrun by Communists.

Mays said the American theater developed a new form during this period: the "living newspaper," which used all the current media from live drama and radio to write, to motion pictures.

"It sounds dull, but it fascinated audiences," said Mays.

According to Mays, the American theater was never more politically oriented, with Broadway hosting dramas denouncing totalitarianism and the threat of fascism from Europe, as well as the collapse of capitalism.

Mays said support of the Negro in the theater was also introduced during the Depression, featuring plays and movies such as "Green Pastures," with all-black casts dramatizing the plight of American Negroes.

Orson Welles, famed producer of radio's "War of the Worlds," and the critically acclaimed film, "Citizen Kane," was instrumental in the forming of "Unit 81," a major Harlem theater project.

Mays said his course, Theater 491 section 04, will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights from seven to 9:15 p.m. The course will focus on popular entertainment during the period 1929-39 including plays, films, radio and other amusements that detracted our parents from the grim realities of that difficult time.

According to Mays, the success of the Depression course will have a direct bearing on whether he will negotiate to offer a similar course in the spring quarter, dealing with World War II.
FTU Shows Concern

By Cameron E. Pyle

Amidst fears of a growing lack of interest, the FTU chapter of the Florida Engineering Society (FES) is seeking to inform the FTU community and future college students of the possibilities that exist within the various fields of engineering. FES president, Henry Popkin expressed this concern recently that career opportunities in engineering have not received enough critical attention. FES is a national organization of professional engineers and the FTU chapter is open to all students within the College of Engineering who are or plan to become registered as a professional in accordance with the Florida Engineering Board. Meetings are held on the second and fourth Thursday of the month, and according to Dr. Woolf, anyone with an interest in engineering should feel free to attend.

The FES and the college administration have planned a one month period during the 11-22 of the month. The fair will feature competition in individual and group classes with awards given for the best engineering projects on display and exhibits by Central Florida industries. The fair is scheduled to be held in EN 290 at 12 noon on the second and fourth Thursday of the month, and according to Dr. Woolf, anyone with an interest in engineering should feel free to attend.

Another activity planned by FES to promote engineering is to circulate among area high schools with prepared presentations utilizing up-to-date films and slides to give students an accurate picture of the field. Popkin stated that this was not to be a hard sell enterprise and is intended to show not only the good points of such careers but also focus on the hassles and drawbacks involved as well. This kind of demonstration, said Popkin, is something which is badly needed by high school students as opposed to the distorted representations of "life outside the classroom" that they usually receive.

As for students at FTU who have already decided upon an engineering specialty, the Central Florida Chapter of FES periodically sends volunteers to our campus to take FES members out into the field for a little practical experience in how engineers actually put their training to use. Popkin pointed out that such experiences are invaluable to students before they invest so much time and money in technical training that they can't back out. Better to be back on the farm than to spend four years of college preparing for something you're going to hate!

Marketing Club Sees Success

Since last spring, the FTU Marketing Club has grown from ten members to over forty and has become one of the top college chapters of the American Marketing Association in the nation. Although geared primarily to marketing and business majors, students from a variety of other majors are welcome from many areas and is designed to give them working experience in business and marketing.

To kick off their second year, the members decided to hold a seminar that was open to the public and invited the entire community as well as the club. The clinic, "Multiple Opportunities in the Vocational Education Program" (V.O.F.E.P) was held October 16 and attracted over eighty who paid $7 each to hear lectures by Dr. Newell and Dr. Batten. This is Batten's third year with the program and has expressed concern over the fact of interest, the future of the program has been decided to hold a seminar that would benefit college students of the "70's," to give them working experience in positions in business and marketing. Topics and speakers included "Moving from Non-management to Management" by Dr. Wabcon, Alum. Berry, "Consumersm Challenge for Marketing in the 70's" by Dr. Ronald S. Rubin, faculty advisor, "Who's in Business" by William G. Callerman, and "Student Problems, Too!" by Dr. Eugene E. Teeple.

New Dept. Created

The continuing growth of new academic programs at FTU has been most recently marked by the establishment of a Department of Public Service Administration, to meet the needs of students planning careers in public service at the local, state or national levels.

The rapidly expanding program already has attracted more than 300 students, who are majoring in Criminal Justice, Social Services, and Political Science/Public Administration, the three degrees that are offered. Dr. William V. Young, former Tulane University Professor, has been named to head the new department.

Young noted that the full-time faculty and part-time instructors in the program have, in addition to their teaching credentials, practical working backgrounds in their particular fields.

They represent areas such as law, corrections, court administration, local government administration, and general public administration.

A major feature of the Public Service Administration program is the availability of internships that place students in positions in government, where they can acquire knowledge of the various activities involved in the governmental process and skills that will enable them to perform more effectively when they are employed by public agencies.

The programs in the new department are designed to educate and train students for careers as corrections officers, law enforcement officers, court administrators, research assistants for State's Attorneys or public defenders, administrative assistants, legal assistants, court service workers, probation officers, juvenile crime assistants, planning and research officers, and advisors to law enforcement agencies, said Young.

Information on the various options offered in Public Service Administration and curriculum procedures may be obtained by writing Dr. Young at 275-3661 or the FTU Admissions Office, 275-5451.

For more information on the department and its programs, interested students are invited to attend a meeting at 12 noon on October 27th in Room 225 in the Village Center.

In 1873, Samuel Clemens published "Roughing It," which represented the ideal in the continuing line of the works of Mark Twain. In chapter 48, turning his attention to jury trials, Clemens wrote:

"A jury-list was made out, and Mr. B.L., a prominent banker and a valued citizen, was questioned precisely as he would have been questioned in any court in America:"

"Have you held conversations upon the subject?"

"Yes."

"Have you formed or expressed opinions about it?"

"Yes."

"Have you read the newspaper accounts of it?"

"Yes."

"We do not want you."

"A minister, intelligent, esteemed, and greatly respected, a man of high social standing who had no suspicion of any wrong doing, was questioned very much as would have been done in any court in America:"

"Have you heard of this case?"

"Yes."

"Have you formed or expressed opinions about it?"

"Yes."

"Have you read the newspaper accounts of it?"

"Yes."

"We want you."

"The system puts a ban upon intelligence and honesty; it is a jury composed of two doctors, two law-licensed politicians, three barkeepers, two ranchhands who could not read and three dull, stupid, human deeksies."

"It actually came out afterward, that one of those latter thought that incest and arson were the same thing."

"The verdict rendered by this jury was, "Not Guilty.""

"What else could one expect?"

"The jury system puts a ban upon intelligence and honesty and a premium upon ignorance, stupidity, and perjury."

"It is a shame that we must continue to use a worthless system because it was good a thousand years ago."

"In this age, when a gentleman of high social standing in intelligence and probity swears that testimony given under solemn oath will outweigh street talk and newspaper reports based upon mere hearsay, he is worth a hundred jurymen who will swear to their own ignorance and stupidity, and justice would be far safer in his hands than in theirs."

"Why could not the jury law be so altered as to give men of brains and honesty an equal chance with fools and ignoramuses?"

"Is it right to show the present favoritism to one class of men and inflict a disability on another, in a land whose boast is that all its citizens are free and equal?"

"Over one hundred years after Clemens wrote that passage, a jury was named to hear the proceedings of the Watergate cover-up trial which involved a President of the United States and which had caused over two years of political turmoil."

"The jurors named were:

- Sandra V. Young, 28, a pharmacist's assistant.
- Dock Reed, 40, hotel doorman
- Gladys E. Carter, 40, hospital machine operator.
- Ruth C. Gould, 57, loan specialist, Department of Agriculture.

- Thelma Wells, 60, unschooled.
- Anita E. King, 57, matron, District of Columbia schools.

Posner Brings Poetry To Schools

By Don M. Cruise

"What does that clock look like?"

"A circle. Na, that's too scientific."

A dart, Yeah, it does kind of."

"A snake without a head..."

David Posner, an instructor of English at FTU, founded his publication like a drill sergeant, but his recruits at Pineloch Elementary School are being asked to shrug and regimentation and look at things in a different way.

Posner is an active participant in the Poetry in the Schools Program, a national program funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, with matching funds from the Orange County Public School system.

According to Mr. Lawrence Wurt of the English Department, the purpose of the program is to put "practicing, publishing poets" into the schools to appeal to the students' creativity.

"Quite simply, we’re there to turn them on," said Wyatt.

According to Wyatt, the program was established because elementary students cannot read or write.

Wyatt added that educators have known that children who can read before starting school actually regresses after being exposed to the regimentation in public schools.

Students' creativity is stifled, because they soon learn the "right" answers.

"Do the time they reach the fourth grade, they already dislike writing."

Wyatt said when the students know someone is coming in to teach them poetry, mild hostility is everywhere, but by the time the poet leaves they are always asked to return.

Posner said, "Sometimes experiments work, sometimes not, but the kids know they love them. They can smell it the minute I walk in, and then you can do anything."

Wyatt formed the program "creative education" and added, "We appeal to their senses and ask them to write about things instead of ideas." In the first five minutes we learn what they already know about poetry and throw it all out," said Wyatt.

"Now close your eyes. When you open them, you will be a

SPEECH CONTEST

Dr. Ed Wycoff, coordinator of Speech 10, programs has announced the names of six tentative judges for the speech contest to be held Dec. 10.

The judges are: Dr. William Grasty, Dr. Bernard Kissel, Ms. Carol Birdsong, Dr. Ray Buchanan and Dr. K. Phil Taylor. Grasty is the dean of the Faculty Senate.

Both Grasty and Kissel have served as chairman of the Department of Communication. Birdsong is the assistant dean of Academic Affairs and formerly taught Speech 10 for several years. Buchanan is the present chairman of the Department of Communication.

The main speech contest will be held in the Engineering Auditorium, Tuesday, Dec. 10, at 4 p.m.

All students are urged to attend.

GEOLOGY OF THE NATIONAL PARKS

One of the new programs to be offered next quarter will be "GEOLOGY OF NATIONAL PARKS," initiated and taught by Dr. Kajawa.

The class is suitable for advanced Environmental Science elective and features six-week panoramic projections taken by Kajawa in such parks as Yellowstone, Yosemite, Grand Canyon, Death Valley, Bryce & Zion Canyon, Grand Teton, Great Smokey, Badlands, Meteor Crater, Painted Desert, and Mt. Rainier.

The Rotary Club of Seminole County South will sponsor the First Annual Rotary Bowl, on December 9, at Lyman High School Stadium.

Two outstanding football teams from area high schools will participate.

AP POSITIONS

A unit representative from the 98th Tactical Airlift Group will be on campus Friday, December 6, from nine a.m. until one p.m. at the Village Center to give questions about the reserve program and positions available.

The only Air Force Reserve flying unit in Northwest Florida, the 98th Tactical Airlift Group will soon be converting to AC-130 Hercules aircraft, and needs 800 additional reservists, both officers and enlisted.

Selected students will be notified from Mc Coy AFB to Eglin AFB, one weekend each month for a two-week encampment each summer.
The combined expenditures of the Orange County Animal Control and the Orlando Humane Society amount to a staggering $220,440.

With increased cost of operations, Orange County residents can be sure they will be paying more and more for Animal Control services.

In fact, the Orange County Animal control department has increased its budget by more than $25,000 for next year.

But to make matters worse, the animal population explosion and the entire Animal Control problem is needless.

Mrs. Snow, with the County Animal Control, said if all cats and dogs in the county were fixed (neutered or spayed), in order to control the ever growing population explosion, there would be no pet control problem at all.

No one seems to know exactly how many pets there are in the Central Florida area, but the Orange County Animal Control reports there are "way over 50,000 dogs" and a one has any idea how many cats there are in the County.

Dr. Christopher Tette, a N.Y. biological statistician, reported that "use unspayed female dog or cat and the survival of all progeny over a ten year period will produce 2,300,000,000 dogs or cats."

One minor drawback to the people in charge of the animal control is the cost of spaying.

To have a small pup spayed, it costs $40.00 and up. $50.00 for a medium pup and $50 and up for a large dog.

However, if someone is unable to pay his pets fixed, Pet Concern Inc. is a non-profit organization which may be of help.

For more information about the Pet Concern Inc., contact Mrs. Mary Bruce at P.O. Box 41, Casselberry, Fla.

Time-Life Publications.

Prior to departure, students will be assigned four or five books and several articles to acquaint them with the men and the organizations they will see. In addition, they will be required to submit a term paper on the trip after their return.

The total cost of the tour for each student is estimated to be $250 to $300.

According to O'Keefe, FTU is the first university to offer credit for such a trip. If the course is successful this year, it may even become an annual or bi-annual event.

"It is a good way to get students out into the real world of professional journalism," O'Keefe stated.

Interested communication majors should sign up in January through Continuing Education. The reading assignments will be made by mid-February and the itinerary will be finalized.

Reference Dept. Explained

By Pat Strange

The reference department, the library, headed by Mrs. Jane Stillman, gets requests from faculty and students alike.

Stillman said the pets requests from professors for bibliographies on topics for classes and for research projects. This is made possible by getting a readout on all books on any topic from the computerized card catalog, a process called Selective Dissemination of Information (SDI).

The reference department sends copies of the table of contents of any and all journals for any faculty member who requests this service and offers a telephone reference service.

The students are helped on a free-lance basis with any questions they might have, from a two-word answer up to a graduate research paper.

The department has catalogs from most other universities and colleges in the U.S. on microfiche and also serves as a depository for both state and federal government documents, receiving any document the government prints for which a demand is anticipated.

Any document they do not have may be obtained from the University of Florida, which is a regional depository and has copies of all government documents.

The government documents have a separate card catalog as do the periodicals.

The reference department also has photo copying machines located on the third floor.

Stillman said the reference department has been much busier than usual this quarter. "I know enrollment is up, it is more than that. There are more serious students coming in here. We have been very busy," Stillman said.

The department has five to seven professors, and four student assistants to help students with questions.

Stillman said, "Our student assistants do an awful lot of work. I don't know how we could get along without them - they practically run the circulation department.

Surprising Cagers Now 2-2

By Pat Murray

If the first week of the season is any indication of what's to come, the FTU basketball team is going to surprise a lot of folks before this year is over.

The Knights, involved in what Coach Torchy Clark terms a rebuilding year, have scrapped their way to a 2-2 mark thus far including two heart-stoppers during the season's initial week.

FTU traveled to Georgia State for the season opener only to fall to the Atlantians in the closing seconds, 66-65.

The Knights led at halftime 32-29 but had their chances of victory dimmed when big men Willie Bellote and Dave Rogers fouled and left the game midway through the second half.

The win, probably the greatest in FTU's history of basketball, was preserved when Dave Rogers blocked a Leon Smith shot in the game's fading seconds.

The Knights got a balanced scoring attack led by Shaw with 29. He was ably assisted by Prather who added 11 and Belloit with 11 points and seven rebounds.

Saturday night FTU made its home debut a successful one by squeaking out a 75-74 victory over the Brahman of the University of South Florida.

Shaw capped a free throw with 10 seconds remaining on the clock to give the Knights their margin of victory over the heavily favored visitors.

Shaw again led all scorers with 29 points, with Prather chipping in 18, Lingelbach 14, and Green 13.

The toll of playing four games in five nights caught up with FTU on Tuesday as the Knights succumbed to Florida Southern, 96-80.

Utilizing their superior height, the Moccasins jumped out to a 43-31 halftime bulge. Former Winter Park High standout John Edwards used his 6'9 frame to his advantage and poured in first half points for the hosts.

But FTU came out pressing in the second stanza and narrowed the margin to 74-69 when once again they encountered foul trouble. With Bellote, Prather, and Green on the bench via the foul route, the Mocs sat on the half the rest of the way to seal a victory.

Edwards led all scorers with 31 points with Wright topping in 20 for Florida Southern. The Knights relied on a balanced attack with all five starters hitting in double figures. Bellote paced FTU scorers with 25 points, while Green added 14, Prather and Lingelbach 13 respectively, and Shaw 10.

FTU's next game is Friday December 11 against Florida State College in Miami. The Knights return home after the holidays to face the University of Maine on Dec. 30.

Lifters Compete At Vero

The Ftu Weightlifting Club will compete in its third meet of the season tomorrow in Vero Beach. The meet, to be sponsored by the Vero Beach Recreation Department, is open to all Florida AAU Association lifters who have not reached the class I rating. The rating is based on body weight and the lifters best total for the two olympic lifts.

Edwards led all scorers in the second stanza and narrowed the margin to 74-69 when once again they encountered foul trouble. With Bellote, Prather, and Green on the bench via the foul route, the Mocs sat on the half the rest of the way to seal a victory.

With eight of last year's top nine players gone due to either graduation or attrition prior to the season, an underdog transfer forward appeared to be the main hope of this year's FTU basketball squad. Early-season performances have done nothing to alter this forecast.

Bennie Shaw, last year's leading scorer in Florida junior college ranks, has averaged 24.7 points per game through Monday as well as pacing the depth-starved Knights in rebounding.

And as usual, Shaw is showing holes in the contention that, at 6'1, he is too short to be effective playing primarily on the front court.

"I'm still playing forward," grinned the native Orlandoan, "same as when I was in high school. I've always had to play against people 6'8 and so I'm used in it now.

"Secret to Shaw's success, most observers agree, is his explosive quickness of hands and feet which enables him to penetrate inside of taller defenders and flit in his variety of short jumpers and driving layups.

"Bennie's one of the few who can play either inside or outside," confirmed Knights' Coach Torchy Clark. "He's blessed with those quick first two steps to the bucket. He doesn't take a back seat to anybody when it comes to playing offense.

However, like most, Clark doesn't believe that Shaw's niche is playing forward against major college competition. "He is going to have to be an outside player," stated the coach.

In fact, it is just this feeling about a 6-1 player doing the type of things on court that Shaw can do that caused him to be bypassed by most major universities despite his state building scoring mark at Seminole JC (25ppg, a year ago and allowing FTU to grab an athlete Clark describes as "possibly the best ever in this school.

Although he was contacted by several out-of-state schools Shaw "just didn't want to leave Florida.

Clark's self-set approach also appealed to Bennie. "He didn't push me or try to force me to come as some others did and I respected him for it - that was maybe the main reason why I came to FTU.

The Boone High grad's primary goal, aside from leading "as many wins as possible" to establish a new field goal shooting percentage record, is to earn a conference trophy. A mark at SJC last year was a phenomenal 62 per cent.

"I just like having him on the team," added Clark. "I've been throng on him from the beginning."

And after just three games, FTU followers have learned why.
Grapplers Host Quad Meet

By Joe De Salvo

It last week's Southern Open campaign with the traditional tournament in the Tennessee city only to have one man place in the two-day meet.

Freemason standout Mike Stroome, from Norfolk, Va., finished fourth in the tournament in the 110-pound class, losing a 7-6 decision in the consolation finals.

Stroome "impressed" Rouse since his regular weight class is 110. "He really worked hard and did a good job," said Rouse, who's in his second year as Head Coach Gerald Gergely's assistant.

Another first-year man who competed in his FTU wrestling career on an impressive note was 134-pounder Mike Gillies. The native of Muncie, Indiana, finished second in the 110-pound class, losing a 7-6 decision in the consolation finals.

Gillies showed "impressed" Rouse since his regular weight class is 110. "He really worked hard and did a good job," said Rouse, who's in his second year as Head Coach Gerald Gergely's assistant.
