Alcohol Ok In Dorms

By Macee Maranowski

Dr. R. Rex Brown, Vice President for Student Affairs, has approved a policy concerning the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in the residence halls.

The request was presented to him by the FTU Resident Hall Association (RHA), after researching regulations within the State University System.

The policy, which becomes effective immediately, states that the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages by those persons of legal age be permitted only in the individual residence suites and that the consumption of said alcoholic beverages be excluded from dorm rooms, hallways and other such public and common areas within the residence halls.

Dr. Brown said the original request concerning alcohol in the dorms came from resident student and RHA member Angie Yount in the school year 1969-70. Brown's response then and almost yearly up to this point was negative.

Michael Bieds and Pamela Hindman, Administrative Advisors to the RHA, credited the research and preparation of the resident students as the main reason for the policy approval.

The fact that the legal age has been lowered to 18, Dr. Brown said, was also taken into consideration.

Sharon Espinoza, RHA President, and Jesse McLeod, RHA Judicial Board Chairman, were the students most directly responsible for the policy formulation.

Housing Operations director Leo Geoff provided assistance during the research phase.

Similar successful policies have been instituted at other universities in the state.

The higher average age of the FTU student and the relatively small resident student population indicates that the policy will provide the opportunity for a more varied living-learning atmosphere for dorm students.

'Simply Shakespeare' Tours Area

By Alan Cruese

"Simply Shakespeare," a series of single acts from different Shakespeare comedies, produced by an FTU literature class, is winding up its tour of area high schools.

According to Dr. Stuart Omans, who teaches the course on Shakespearean comedy, student Rick Camaras was originally proposed the idea of actually performing a play.

Next July Smith offered to help with production, negotiating with the Theater Department for assistance in blocking and the borrowing of costumes.

Smith continued, "Fifteen dollars is a lot of money for a ticket." By law, all appeals must be handled by the Orlando Municipal Court, unless the Board of Regents approves a move by FTU Attorney General David Bourne to establish a campus "parking violations appeal board."

Such an appeal board is already under consideration at the University of South Florida and the University of Florida.

If the appeals board is established, State Attorney General Robert Shevin indicated in a legal opinion that students would have the option to appeal their cases to either the campus appeals board or the adjacent municipality.

Hunter Potts, SG president, said the campus parking appeals board would serve as a more convenient system of appeals for both the students and faculty.

In addition, the board would tend to be more aware of campus parking problems.

Shevin said, "if it has proper representation and is set up right, it can be a good thing."

The uniform disposition of traffic infractions act was approved and filed with the Secretary of State on July third.

The new law is an attempt by the State Legislature to standardize all traffic fines in the state.

The new state-wide law will make all pedestrian and non-moving traffic violations and some moving violations non-criminal infractions which are not punishable by incarceration for which there is no right to a trial by jury or a right to court appeal granted.

Any person charged with a non-criminal infraction under this law may pay the civil penalty within ten days of the date of receiving the citation, either by mail or in person, or if he has posted bond, he may forfeit bond by failing to appear.

Student Lives: In Tent

By Alan Cruise

Not too far from the FTU campus lives a man in a tent.

"I'm a fighter," he tells me. "My parents have the money to put me up in an apartment, but I just dig it out here," says the blade-haired FTU freshman.

The campus is a mosaic of low-slung, plastic tents given the impression of a guerrilla fighter's bivouac instead of the residence of a college student.

But, the stodgy trappings of a dorm made from a board secured to a tree and shingles similarly constructed offers all the comforts of a dorm room, well, almost.

The camper says he attends math and engineering classes three days a week and spends the remainder of his week at his home in Methuen, Massachusetts.

"When I first told my parents how I was living, they were up-tight, so I later told them I got an apartment," he says.

The freshman says police officers from the county sheriff's department and the highway patrol stop by, but only to ask how he is getting along.

The student has not had any contact with the owner of the property.

He worked how he makes it through cold snaps, the student replied, "I freeze."

When questioned, "wouldn't it be nice to sit down with a beer and catch the TV," he says not, "I had an apartment when I was in Gainesville, but it was always noisy and I hated it. The peace out here makes up for it."

He says his biggest fear people who come around to steal things, or just to cause trouble. Why not move farther into the woods? "There's something wrong with the ignition system of my car, so I have to push it to get it going. I have to keep it by the road and I'm afraid I go far from it, so sometimes I think and try to strip it."

He talked about getting a bicycle and having his car on campus.

The woolly St. Augustine and some small trees that do not grow wild testify to the fact that the site was formerly occupied.

 Collective Bargaining On Faculty's Minds

By Paula

The faculty at FTU is thinking of other things besides grades and final examinations. Collective bargaining has become an urgent issue and the faculty has to pick a bargaining agent.

Two groups are vying to become the bargaining agent of the State University System: Association of University Professors and the United Faculty of Florida. Dr. Richard Adicks, President of the FTU chapter of AUP, said, "Collective bargaining will provide an effective faculty involvement in university government." The faculty is consulted less and less on money and policies that run this University, and collective bargaining will bring back the power of the Faculty Senate.

"Also the faculty will receive improved compensation benefits through collective bargaining," Adicks added.

Dr. William Eder, President of the FTU chapter of AUP, said that "collective bargaining will deal with any problems the faculty feels exists."

"In terms of the students at FTU," Eder said, "AUP ensures a superior quality of instruction and students will benefit indirectly from collective bargaining."

Eder added: "When a faculty member is confident in the areas of job security and economic pressures, then his students will benefit more." Similarly, Adicks said that collective bargaining would increase faculty morale, thereby benefiting students.

Also, collective bargaining would allow the faculty to be more involved in the "university process" and thereby improve education for the students.

AUP and UFF are now beginning a campaign to secure faculty signatures. Either group must get at least 30 percent of the faculty's vote to request an election to determine the bargaining agent.

When one group gets the 30 percent needed, then an election will be held to determine the bargaining agent in either the spring or fall of 1975. Also, any other group that gets to 5 percent of the faculty's signatures is eligible to be on the election ballot. Adicks said he believed "the election could go on for three weeks."

Eder said he felt "UFF should be the bargaining agent because this organization is a part of organized education. We are a merger of Florida Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers.

"UFF is also a part of organized labor. We are affiliated with the AFL-CIO. Therefore, because we have a political base, UFF hopes to influence the Board of Regents in decision making."

The UFF is a state, all-faculty controlled organization. It was formed last May and has nearly 100 members at FTU. There is also a chapter at each of the nine universities in the State University System.

Adicks added that "if faculty members were interested in collective bargaining because they want the militancy found in a union."

He added that some faculty members have told him "if we were able to have collective bargaining, AUP should do it."

"AUP is a national professional organization in which any professor can belong. It was established in 1934 and has been at FTU for five years. According to Dr. Adicks, "AUP will approach collective bargaining as a professional association, as distinguished from the labor vs. management approach advocated by the UFF. University teachers can now decide between two distinctive methods."

Rising prices, or perhaps a rather high-handed means of ensuring civil obedience has taken its toll on another front of student affairs. As if being faced with the possibility of the twenty-cent phone call, more increases in postage, and putting saccharine in coffee because the price of natural sweetener might exceed the price of the java wasn’t bad enough, parking in the wrong place on campus will now cost you $15 instead of a dollar, and will failure to have a sticker which used to cost you two dollars. The ultimate infraction of unlawfully parking your bicycle will set you back five bills.

The periodicity of the harried shopper finding himself overdue on his parking meter and paying fifteen dollars as a penalty is not the issue. Nor is the real unanswerable fact of that uniformity of traffic violation penalties, especially at a fifteen-fold increase, necessarily makes the point. Rather, the logic is the fact that a moving violation that falls under the statutory damage limits can carry a maximum penalty of $25, but an infraction of alcohol possession against the defendant can carry with it a $50 fine.

Police Chief John Smith hit it on the head when he said, “It’s a lot of money to pay for a parking ticket.” Obviously, however, municipal and county judges hearing appeals on non-moving and moving violations, respectively, can charge part of the standard fine and suspend the rest, after hearing the defendant’s case.

According to state Attorney General Robert Shevin, an existing statute provides for establishment of a student court to deal with violations occurring on campus. Appeal to the student court would waive the right to appeal to a civil court but would throw the fine money to the university. Currently, in the interest of temperance and good sense the Board of Regents should adopt Boone’s proposal to establish a student-oriented tribunal familiar with and sympathetic to the problems and circumstances of the particular university.

Chief Smith has designated a one-month grace period for violators of campus regulation infractions which “courtesy citations” will be issued. If the student court is not established by the time the increased penalties go into effect, however, we hope that the new regulations that will be significant deterrent to illegal parking. If not, the average monthly 800 citations given should allow for 15 ties the amount of scholarships the system supposedly provides.

A bigger problem, it seems, is why the vehicle registration merry-go-round exists in the first place. We don’t argue the fact that administrators and staff should have designated priority parking and to that extent agree with citing those students who park their vehicles in the wrong places. Yet requiring the masses of students to buy the privilege of parking at a commuter university seems to somehow separate the concepts of attending college miles away from civilization and having to store the mode of transportation during the school day. As taxis heavily a group of outliers who do not have clear parking privileges, parking facilities on the university charges ten dollars per student to park in spaces where no one else in in the adjacent woods pays thousands of dollars in salaries and administrative fees to give tickets to those who don’t pay their ten dollars. We agree the fines students pay and gives scholarships, and then tell the student body that the thousands of dollars collected for registrations are building all the beautiful new parking lots sprinting up on campus.

Worse yet, Governor Askew’s proposal calls for raising the parking fee to $45 per year and then apportioning the line-up of benefit universities on a priority basis, so that FTU assessments could be paying for FSU parking lots, and vice-versa.

In short, we could argue to be able to argue that a campus should provide facilities for its students to park? And if a separate vehicle registration fee must be made for revenue purposes, should we not see some benefits for its payment?

Now more than ever, vehicle registration must justify itself, with students paying through the nose to park both legally and illegally.

Our beloved administrators took a long overdue step out of the dark ages last week. Rex Brown (as if to make a liar out of me for my last column) passed an RHA proposal allowing the consumption of alcohol in the dorms.

Needless to say I think this was a laudable move. I was very surprised when I heard the news, however, I really didn’t realize that we still see alcohol in the dorms before I graduated. Many students have fought the administration for years for this sudden victory. I dig into the PurEgore mortgage to see just how long students have been trying to get the right to have booze in the dorms. I found an article dated July 31, 1970 which told of such an attempt then RHA president Angela Yount. It was vetoed by Rex Brown because, he said, alcohol is an "abused drug" which "is not essential to the accomplishment of the aims of the university." Besides, he continued, "There is no valid research available to prove that alcohol is addictive or harmful to human beings."

RHA President Writes Letter

An open letter to all resident students, staff, and administrators:

Looking back over the past ten weeks, I see the Residence Hall Association has finally formed Inter-Dorm Council gaining recognition as an important organization at Florida Technological University.

Our accomplishments this fall include: a Halloween party with children from the Lutheran Home, two ice cream parties, the First Annual Veteran’s Day Auto Rally, a dance with Rock 'n Horse, and a picnic at Lake Clair sponsored by the Resident Advisors. Of course none of these activities entailed 100 percent attendance of the resident students, but most of those who did participate had a good time. And who could ask for more than that?

Topics still being researched for next quarter range from reserved parking to guest speakers to another dance co-sponsored with the Village Inn.

The accomplishment that we are most proud of is the recent acceptance by Dr. W. Rex Brown of the regulation allowing possession of alcoholic beverages within the remit halls. This acceptance came about by following the painfully long procedure of the "system." But all our work and patient lock-off proving that the system may have faults, but it does work. Many thanks to the following people who were of great help: Emler Seifert, Jesse McLeod, Leo Goff, Pann Berman, Mike Bisesi, Dean McKahun, Dean Wilson and Dr. W. Rex Brown.

Anyone interested in working with the Inter-Dorm Council for Winter Quarter, please contact me at 275-4732.

Sincerely,
Sharon Espinosa
President RHA
Potts Writes Brown
Concerning Alchohl

Dear Dr. Brown,

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks for the recent policy change allowing the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in the residence halls on campus. I feel that this change was long overdue.

At the same time, though, I would like to express my utter dismay with your memorandum announcing this policy change and the apparent disregard of Student Government's actions in this matter. I must remind you that the Student Senate initiated the efforts to effect the necessary policy change. The Student Senate, with the passage of Senate Bill 6-5, compiled a thorough report of similar policies and practices at other state universities and the Student Government Executive Branch conducted an indepth survey of resident student problems, including several questions on the alcoholic beverage policy. The Senate bill, committee report, and survey results all indicated the need for a policy change.

This bill was vetoed, but now, less than a year later, the same basic policy change called for by the Student Senate has been effected. The only action since that time (ignoring the Senate's efforts to seek a compromise) was the passage of a resolution by the Residence Hall Association. The research conducted by the RHA was no more comprehensive than the obvious need for a change.

I really wish that I did not have the concerns I've expressed but I know that these feelings are shared by many. In the hope of making PTU one of the finest institutions of higher education in the country, I hope that we can all take a more honest, open, and positive approach to change without worrying about whether or not students should be able to have a drink in the privacy of their own room.

Sincerely,
R. Hunter Potts
Student Body President

New Drama Course Available

By Alan Cruise

You have heard of broad lines and dull bowl blues, but did you know the Great Depression was an exciting period for the American Theater? Dr. David D. Mays of the FTU Theater Department, in announcing his 'Great Depression' Drama Course for the spring quarter, talked about what the Depression did for theater.

According to Mays, who did both his Masters thesis and Doctoral dissertation on Depression drama, the years following the Wall Street "Crash" was the only period when the theater and other arts were government subsidized. W.P.A., the government's work program, usually meant new roads, post offices and municipal parks, but Mays pointed out that projects also included works by writers, playwrights, painters and sculptors.

Mays added that "according to Congress," the art projects were cancelled when they were overrun by Communists.

Mays said the American theater developed a new form during this period: the "living newspaper," which used all the current media from live drama and radio to newsreels and motion pictures.

One of these projects, entitled "One-third of the Nation," documented the history of American Housing.

"It sounds dull, but it fascinated audiences," said Mays.

Another, entitled "Apochrypha," celebrated a cure for syphilis.

According to Mays, the American theater was never more politically oriented, with Broadway boldly daring to denounce totalitarianism and the threat of fascism from Europe, as well as the collapse of capitalism.

Mays said support of the Negro in the theater was also introduced during the depression, featuring plays and movies such as "Green Pastures," with all-black casts dramatizing the plight of American Negroes.

Orson Welles, famed producer of radio 'War of the Worlds,' and the critically acclaimed film, "Citizen Kane," was instrumental in the forming of "Unit 81," a major Harlem theater project.

Mays said his course, Theater 691 section 04, will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights from seven to 8:50 p.m.

The course will focus on popular entertainment during the period 1929-39 including plays, films, radio and other amusements that detracted our parents from the grim realities of that difficult time.

According to Mays, the success of the Depression course will have a direct bearing on whether he will negotiate to offer a similar course in the spring quarter, dealing with World War II.
FES Shows Concern

By Cameron E. Pyle

Amidst fears of a growing lack of interest, the FTU chapter of the Florida Engineering Society (FES) is seeking to instill the FETU community and future college students with the possibilities that exist within the various fields of engineering. President Henry Popkin expressed concern that career opportunities in engineering have not received enough critical attention.

FES is a national organization of professional engineers and the FTU chapter is open to all students within the College of Engineering who are or plan to become registered as professional engineers. The organization meets on the second and fourth Thursday of the month, and according to Popkin, anyone with an interest in engineering should feel free to attend.

The upcoming FEBRUARY 18 will sponsor the fourth annual Engineer's Work Fair extending with National Engineer's Week during the 18-22 of the month. The fair will feature competition in individual and group classes with awards given for the best engineering projects on display and exhibits by Central Florida industries. In attendance last year were Martin-Marietta and Florida Power Corp. among others. Some of the entries in last year's competition included a cubic slide rule, solar refrigerator, and a safe with an electronic lock operated by a hand-held digital computer.

Popkin said that in the past an automobile oriented towards total safety which was designed by one of the engineering departments, eventually made it to a second place finish in national competition.

Another activity planned by FES to promote engineering is to circulate among area high schools with prepared presentations utilizing up-to-date films and slides to give students an accurate picture of the field. Popkin stated that this was not to be a hard-sell enterprise and is intended to show not only the good points of such careers but also focus on the hassles and drawbacks involved as well.

This kind of demonstration, said Popkin, is something which is badly needed by high school students as opposed to the distorted representations of "life outside the classroom" that they usually receive.

For students at FTU who have already decided upon an engineering specialty, the Central Florida Chapter of FES periodically sends volunteers to our campus to take FES members out into the field for a little practical experience in how engineers actually put their training to use. Popkin pointed out that such experiences are invaluable to students before they invest so much time and money in technical training that they can't back out.

Better to be back on the farm than to spend four years of college preparing for something you're going to hate!

Marketing Club Sees Success

Since last spring, the FTU Marketing Club has grown from seven members and has become one of the top college chapters of the American Marketing Association in the nation.

Although geared primarily to marketing and business majors, the club also accepts students from many areas and is designed to give them working experience in business and marketing.

To kick off their second year, the members decided to hold a seminar that would provide information to the community as well as the club. The theme, "Multiple Opportunities for Professional Enrichment," (MOE) was held October 16 and attracted 130 who paid $7 each to hear lectures by Burton, President of AXO; Gruen; Head of Legal Services, Inter Park Phone; Boss; Associate; "Who Sees Success," and Durst, President of FES.

Topics and speakers included "Moving from Non-management to Management" by Dr. Waldo Berry; "Consumerism Challenge for Marketing in the '70's" by Dr. Ronald S. Rubin; faculty advisor; "Who's Who, Why's Who, and How's Why in Television" by Olvel. The program was well attended and attracted the 130 who paid $7 each to hear lectures by FTU faculty members.

Dr. Rubin noted that the full-time faculty and part-time instructors in the program have, in addition to their teaching credentials, practical working backgrounds in their particular fields.

They represent areas such as law, corrections, correctional administration, local government administration, and general public administration.

A major feature of the Public Service Administration program is the availability of internships that place students in positions in government, where they can acquire knowledge of the various activities involved in the governmental process and skills that will enable them to perform more effectively when they are employed by public agencies.

The programs in the new department are designed to educate and train students for careers as corrections officers, law enforcement officers, court administrators, research assistants for State's Attorneys or public defenders, administrative assistants, legal assistants, court service workers, probation officers, juvenile legal assistants, planning and research officers, and advisors to law enforcement agencies, said Young.

Information on the various options offered in Public Service Administration and correspondence procedures may be obtained by writing to Dr. Young at 275-3601 or the FTU Admissions Office, 275-261.

Glamour Contest Scheduled

GLAMOUR students are invited to participate in GLAMOUR Magazine’s Top Ten College Contest for 1975. Young women from colleges and universities throughout the country will compete in GLAMOUR’s search for ten outstanding students.

A panel of GLAMOUR editors will select the winners on the basis of their solid records of achievement in academic studies and - or in extracurricular activities on campus or in the community.

The Top Ten College Winners of 1975 will be photographed by leading New York photographers and featured in GLAMOUR’s August College Issue.

During June, the ten winners will be invited to New York to meet the GLAMOUR staff and will receive a $5,000 cash prize. Anyone who is interested in entering the search should contact the Dean of Women for more information.

The deadline for submitting an application to GLAMOUR is February 15, 1975.

Mark Twain Looks At Watergate

By John Bridges

In 1872, Samuel Clemens published "Roughing It," which represented this ideal in the continuing line of the works of Mark Twain.

In chapter 48, turning his attention to jury trials, Clemens wrote:

"... a jury-list was made out, and Mr. B.L., a prominent banker and a valued citizen, was questioned precisely as he would have been questioned in any court in America: Have you heard of this homicide?"

"Yes. Have you held conversations upon the subject?"

"Yes.

"Have you formed or expressed opinions about it?"

"Yes.

"Have you read the newspaper accounts of it?"

"Yes.

"We do not want you."

"A minister, intelligent, esteemed, and greatly respected, a merchant of high character and known probity, a mining superintendt of intelligence and unblemished reputation and a quart's mill issues of excellent standing were all questioned in the same way and all set aside.

Each said the public talk and these newspaper reports had not so blursed his mind but that sworn testimony would overthrow his previously formed opinions and enable him to render a verdict without prejudice and in accordance with the facts.

But of course such men could not be trusted with the case. Ignoramus alone could mete out unequal justice."

"When the peremptory challenges were all exhausted, a jury of twelve men was impaneled - a jury who swore they had neither heard, read, talked about nor expressed an opinion.

It was a jury composed of two desperadoes, two low-living house politicians, three barkeepers, two rambancers who could not read and three dull, stupid, human donkeys.

It actually came out afterward, that one of these latter thought that secret and arsenic were the same thing.

"The verdict rendered by this jury was, "Not Guilty."

"What else could one expect?"

"The jury system puts a ban upon intelligence and honesty and a premium upon ignorance, stupidity, and perjury."

"It is a shame that we must continue to use a worthless system because it was good a thousand years ago.

In this age, when a gentleman of high social standing in intelligence and probity swears that testimony given under solemn oath will outweigh street talk and newspaper reports based upon mere hearsay, he is worth a hundred jurymen who will swear to their own ignorance and stupidity, and justice would be far safer in his hands than in theirs.

"What could not the jury law be so altered as to give men of brains and honesty an equal chance with fools and ignoraceants?"

"It is right to show the present favoritism to one class of men and inflict a disability on another in a land whose boast is that all its citizens are free and equal?"

Over one hundred years after Clemens wrote that passage, a jury was named to hear the proceedings of the Watergate cover-up trial which involved a President of the United States and which had caused over two years of political turmoil.

The jurors named were:

Sandra V. Young, 38, a pharmacist's assistant.

Dock Bond, 40, hotel doorman

Gladys E. Carter, 40, hospital machine operator

Ruth C. Gould, 57, loan specialist, Department of Agriculture.

SPEECH CONTEST
Dr. Ed Wycoff, coordinator of Speech 101, programs, has announced the names of six tentative judges for the speech contest to be held Dec. 16.

The judges are: Dr. William Grasty, Dr. Bernard Kissel, Ms. Carol Birdsong, Dr. Roy Buchaman and Dr. K. Will Taylor. Grasty is the vice president for community relations.

Kissel is the dean of the College of Social Sciences.

Both Grasty and Kissel have served as chairmen of the Department of Communication. Birdsong is the assistant dean of Academic Affairs and formerly taught Speech 101 for several years. Buchaman is the present chairman of the Department of Communication.

Taylor is the former president of the Faculty Senate.

The main speech contest will be held in the Engineering Auditorium, Tuesday, Dec. 16, at four p.m.

All students are urged to attend.

GEOLGY OF THE NATIONAL PARKS

One of the new programs to be offered next quarter will be "Geology of National Parks," initiated and taught by Dr. Kujawa.

The class is suitable for advanced Environmental Science elective and features six-week panorama projection taken by Kujawa in such parks as Yellowstone. Yosemite, Grand Canyon, Death Valley, Bryce & Zion Canyons, Grand Tetons, Great Smokies, Badlands, Meteor Crater, Painted Desert, and Mt. Rainier.

Kujawa took these slides for the course at his own expense during the summer of '72 and '73 while taking an instructor's course in dynamic rocks at the Yellowstone National Park.

The Rotary Club of Seminole County South will sponsor the First Annual Rotary Bowl, on December 6, at Lyman High School Stadium.

Two outstanding football teams from area high schools will participate.

AP POSITIONS

A unit representative from the 919th Tactical Airlift Group will be on campus Friday, December 6, from nine a.m. until one p.m. at the Village Center to answer questions about the reserve program and positions available.

The only Air Force Reserve flying unit in Northwest Florida, the 919th Tactical Airlift Group will soon be converting to AC-130 Hercules aircraft and needs 800 additional reservists, both officers and enlisted.

Selected students will be airdicted from McCoy AFB to Eglin AFB, one weekend each month and for a two-week encampment each summer.

Posner Brings Poetry To Schools

By Ada M. Cruise

"What does that clock look like?"

"A circle. Na, that's too scientific."

"A donut. Yeah, it does kind of." "A snake without a head."

David Posner, an instructor of English at FTU, bears his impression like a drill sergeant, but his recruits at Florida Elementary School are being asked to shrink regimentation and look at things in a different way.

Posner is an active participant in the Poetry in the Schools Program, a national program funded by a grant from the National Enforement for the Arts, with matching funds from the Orange County Public School system.

According to Mr. Lawrence Wycoff of the English Department, the purpose of the program is to put "practicing, publishing poets" into the schools to appeal to the students' creativity.

"Quite simply, we're here to turn them on," said Wycoff.

According to Wycoff, the program was established because elementary students cannot read or write.

Wycoff added that educators have known that children who can read before starting school actually regress after being exposed to the regimentation in public schools.

Students' creativity is stifled, because they soon learn the "right" answers.

"Do the time they reach the fourth grade they already dislike writing."

Wycoff said when the students know someone is coming in to teach them poetry, mild hostility is everywhere, but by the time the poet leaves they are always asked to return.

Posner said, "Sometimes experiments work sometimes not, but the kids know I love them. They can smell it, the minute I walk in, and then you can do anything."

Wycoff termed the program "creative education" and added, "We appeal to their senses and ask them to write about things instead of ideas." In the first five minutes we learn what they already know about poetry and throw it all out," said Wycoff.

"Now close your eyes. When you open them, you will be a Poe, Shakespeare, Yeats, a circle, beat, cricket, bird, son, horse, tree or cat. Then write a poem telling me why."

Wycoff said instead of approaching the students with rules you get them excited about writing.

"After that they ask about structure, spelling and better grammar."

The program will continue throughout this school year, in sessions lasting a minimum of four weeks.

Besides Wyatt and Posner are six FTU students and graduates. The best poems are printed in a magazine published by the Orange County Public School System.

One, entitled, "The Bottle," opens "A poem is a bottle with a note from the island of the self, not love in a sea of others."

One poem by Cheryl Fox of Pineloch Elementary School Read: "I seem to be hungry, but I'm sick, I feel real dark red sick. Like a plate of tomatoes being thrown away."

Animal Control Problem In Central Florida

By Jim Holmes

Col. Hausser, executive director of the Greater Orlando Humane Society, reported an ever increasing animal control problem here in the Central Florida area.

Hausser said "last year we handled 30,000 animals, of which only 20 percent were adopted out." Some 16,000 unneutered animals were destroyed for lack of a home.

Needless to say, a problem of this size requires large financial expenditures.

The combined expenditures of the Orange County Animal Control and the Orlando Humane Society amount to a staggering $570,440.

With increased cost of operations, Orange County residents can be sure they will be paying more and more for animal control services.

In fact, the Orange County Animal control department has increased its budget by more than $25,000 for next year. But to make matters worse, the animal population explosion and the entire Animal Control problem is needless.

Mrs. Sow, with the County Animal Control, said if all cats and dogs in the county were fixed, neutered or spayed, in order to control the ever growing pet population explosion, there would be no pet control problem at all.

No one seems to know exactly how many pets there are in the Central Florida area, but the Orange County Animal Control reports there are "way over 50,000 dogs" and no one has any idea how many cats there are in the County.

Dr. Christopher Tetter, a N.Y. biological statistician, reported that "use unspayed female dog or cat and the survival of reproduction of all progeny over a ten year period will produce 2,390,000,000 dogs or cats. Unless Orange County pets are spayed the problem is never ending.

One minor drawback to the people in charge of the animal control is the cost of spaying. To have a small pet spayed, it costs $10.00 and up. $15.00 for a medium pup and $50.00 and up for a large dog.

However, if someone is unable to pay for his pet fixed, Pet Concern Inc. is a non-profit organization which may be of help.

For more information about the Pet Concern Inc., contact Mrs. Mary Bruce at P.O. Box 46, Casselberry, Fla.

Comm. Course Offered

Upper level communication majors will have the opportunity to meet some of the most important newsmen of the day and acquaint themselves with the realities of professional journalism in the major news centers of the country in a special course to be held one week during the spring break, March 24-30.

Proposed by Dr. Timothy O'Keefe, Associate Professor of Communication, completing the course will earn students 4 credit hours and it will be offered through continuing education.

Central to the course will be a one-week trip to Washington, D.C. and New York. Students will meet with key personnel from such agencies as the "Washington Post", the Overseas Press Club, the White House and White House Press Corps, the Pentagon or State Department, and the New York Times, the United Nations and Time-Life Publications.

Prior to departure, students will be assigned four or five books and several articles to acquaint them with the men and the organizations they will see. In addition, they will be required to submit a term paper on the trip after their return.

The total cost of the tour for each student is estimated to be $120 to $120.

According to O'Keefe, FTU is the first university to offer credit for such a trip. If the course is successful this year, it may even become an annual or bi-annual event.

"It is a good way to get students out into the real world of professional journalism," O'Keefe stated.

Interested communication majors should sign up in January through Continuing Education. The reading assignments will be made by mid-February and the itinerary will be finalized.

Reference Dept. Explained

By Pat Strange

The reference department of the library, headed by Mrs. Jane Stillman, gets requests from faculty and students alike. Stillman said the pets requests from students for bibliographies on topics for classes and for research projects.

This is made possible by getting a readout on all books on any topic from the computerized card catalog, a process called Selective Dissemination of Information (SDI).

The reference department sends copies of the table of contents of any or all journals for any faculty member who requests this service and offers a telephone reference service.

Professors sometimes send their students into the library for classes on how to use the reference tools.

The students are helped in a group basis with any question they might have, from a two-word answer up to a graduate research paper.

The department has catalogs from most other universities and colleges in the U.S. on microfiche and also serves as a depository for both state and federal government documents, receiving any document the government prints for which a demand is anticipated.

Any document they do not have may be obtained from the University of Florida, which is a regional depository and has copies of all government documents.

The government documents have a separate card catalog as do the periodicals.

The reference department also has photo copying machines located on the third floor.

Stillman said the reference department has been much busier than usual this quarter, "I know enrollment is up, but it is more than that. There are more serious students coming in here. We have really been busy," Stillman said.

The department has five to seven professors, and four student assistants to help students with questions.

Stillman said, "Our student assistants do an awful lot of work. I don't know how we get along without them - they practically run the circulation department.

The meet, to be sponsored by the Vero Beach Recreation Association, will be held in the closing seconds, 6-2. The Knights led at halftime 32-31 but had their chances of victory taken away midway through the second half

Led by juniors Bennie Shaw, David Green, and freshman Jerry Prather, the Knights stayed close in the final stanza only to fall victim to Georgia Southern's superior height advantage in the late going.

Shaw led FTU scorers with 21 points with Green adding 19, and Prather 14.

Saturday night FTU made its home debut a successful one by squeaking out a 75-74 victory over the Brahman of the University of South Florida.

Shaw canned a free throw with 10 seconds remaining on the clock to give the Knights their margin of victory over the heavily favored visitors.

The win, probably the greatest in the history of FTU basketball, was preserved when Dave Rogers blocked a Leon Smith shot in the game's fading seconds.

The Knights got a balanced scoring attack led by Shaw with 22. He was ably assisted by Prather who added 17 markers, Calvin Lingelbach with 12 points, and Bellote with 11 points and seven rebounds.

Shaw again led all scorers with 28 points, with Prather chipping in 16, Lingelbach 14, and Green 13.

The toll of playing four games in five nights caught up with FTU on Tuesday as the Knights succumbed to Florida Southern, 96-80.

Utilizing their superior height, the Moccasins jumped out to a 43-31 halftime bulge. Former Winter Park High standout John Edward used his 6'6 frame to his advantage and poured in first-half points for the hosts.

But FTU came out pressing in the second stanza and narrowed the margin to 74-69 before once again they encountered foul trouble. With Bellote, Prather, and Green on the bench via the foul route, the Mocs sat on the half the rest of the way to seal victory.

Edwards led all scorers with 31 points with Wright scoring in 20 for Florida Southern. The Knights relied on a balanced attack with all five starters hitting in double figures. Bellote paced FTU scorers with 13 points, while Green added 16, Prather and Lingelbach 13 respectively, and Shaw 10.

FTU's next game is Friday December 11 against Baccusne College in Miami. The Knights return home after the holidays to face the University of Maine on Dec. 30.

Shaw Plugs Gap In Knight Attack

By Fred Cay

With eight of last year's top nine players gone due to either graduation or attrition prior to the season, an undesignated transfer forward appeared to be the main hope of this year's FTU basketball squad. Early-season performances have done nothing to alter this forecast.

Bennie Shaw, last year's leading scorer in Florida junior college ranks, has averaged 24.7 points per game through Monday as well as pacing the depth-starved Knights in rebounding and as usual, Shaw is shooting holes in the contention that, at 6'1, he is too short to be effective playing primarily on the front court.

"I'm still playing forward," grinned the native Orlandoan, "same as when I was in high school. I've always had to play against people 6'8 and so I'm used in it now.

Secret to Shaw's success, most observers agree, is his explosive quickness of hands and feet which enables him to penetrate inside of taller defenders and fleet in his variety of short jumpers and driving layups.

"Bennie's one of the few who can play either inside or outside," confirmed Knights' Coach Torchy Clarke. "He's blessed with those quick first two steps to the bucket. He doesn't take a back seat to anybody when it comes to playing offense.

Moreover, like most, Clark doesn't believe that Shaw's niche is playing forward against major college competition. "He is going to have to be an outside player," stated the coach.

In fact, it is just this feeling about a 6'1 player during the type of things on court that Shaw can do that caused him to be bypassed by most major universities despite his state lifting scoring mark at Seminole JC (25ppg) a year ago and allowing FTU to grab an athlete Clark describes as "possibly the best ever at this school."

Although he was contacted by several out of state schools Shaw "just didn't want to leave Florida."

Clark's self-set approach also appealed to Bennie. "He didn't push me or try to force me to come as some others did and I respected him for it. That was maybe the main reason why I came to FTU."

Despite his early-season brilliance, Clark surprisingly pointed out that Shaw "has not been playing full out" due to a painful left condition which sometimes makes money running up and down the court a chore. Shaw, however, has led his squad in minutes played and retired to the pain alleviated netcitcule with his performance.

The Boone High grad's primary goal, aside from leading "as many wins as possible" to establish a new field goal shooting percentage record, is mar at SJC last year was a phenomenal 62 per cent.

"I just like having him on the team," added Clark. "I've been hug him on from the beginning."

And after just three games, FTU followers have learned why...

The Knights opened their 1974-75 campaign with the traditional tournament in the Tennessee city only to have one man place in the two-day meet.

Freshman standout Mike Strouse, from Norfolk, Va., finished fourth in the tournament in the 110-pound class, losing a 7-6 decision in the consolation finals.

Strouse “impressed” Roisse since his regular weight class is 118. “He really worked hard and did a good job,” said Roisse, who's in his second year as Head Coach Gerald Gergely's assistant.

Another first-year man who competed in his FIU wrestling career on an impressive note was 134-pounder Mike Gillies. The native Manniian finished the meet 2-2, including a pin over Jim O'Grady of Miamian. The Miamian finished the meet 1-1.
