FTU Students Complete Commuter Study

Public transportation doesn't turn on FTU students as a means of getting from home to classes and back, if a study just submitted to the National Science Foundation is any indication.

The report, which was prepared by a group of local students under a special NSF grant, makes it clear that personal "wheels" are still the most popular way to go.

The FTU study, one of two of its kind supported by the NSF in Florida this year, was culminated when Allan Duguid, a junior in engineering traveled to Washington for a post-Christmas conference joining 183 student project directors from colleges and universities around the country.

All were participants in NSF's Student-Originated Studies program.

"To put it simply," said Duguid, a 1973 graduate of Sanford's Seminole high school, "people prefer to step out the door and into a car, rather than rely on public transportation."

He noted the FTU study indicated that time rates as the number one priority among students who were polled. The least important factor, according to the survey, is comfort.

Somewhere between the two are convenience and cost.

The FTU study further shows that if private auto's are not considered, mini buses are a strong second choice among students.

With larger, express buses, the cost factor rates first. Paratransits can be kept lower than costs to operate a private auto. And, "instead of driving, one can spend time studying or rapping," says the report.

"However, a bus can only hope to come close to the convenience of having transportation at a moment's notice by having short headways, and more scheduled runs."

Car pools are the most preferred alternative to private transportation, the FTU report continues. Nearly 38 percent of the students polled indicated that option.

The major drawbacks to car pools appear to be incompatibility of class schedules, a reluctance to join a pool, and failing to find another student tor transportation. Car pools are not enough to make pooling feasible.

As for mini buses, it was determined that state ownership would be the answer. Such a plan would allow work-study students to drive the buses, and thus keep down costs.

Another suggestion was campus locaters where bus riders could store personal belongings while in class.

The least preferred alternate form of transportation are regular coaches, which are considered best suited for high density areas, the report indicated.

The conclusion was that reducing traffic in FTU's prime access roads - Florida Tech Boulevard and Alafaya Trail - is a major consideration at the present time.

Neither road is carrying a capacity load, it was noted. There is one more alternative listed. Bicycles.

The student report suggested the construction of two bike paths, one along Alafaya Trail to the campus, the other from SR 66 along FTU Boulevard to the University.

The pollution factor would be insignificant, it noted.

Dr. George Schrader, chair-man of Industrial Engineering at FTU, who served as a science advisor during the study, noted the conclusions arrived at by the student team were the result of "a lot of hard work and midnight oil" and created a "substantial and comprehensive look at a problem which will certainly become more acute as the University continues to grow."

The study is a good example of what students can do when handed the responsibility of such a project, Schrader said.

Others involved in the FTU Student-Originated Studies program were Duguid were Michael A. Stoffo, of Cocoa, the project director, who graduated prior to the Washington conference, Nanci E. LaRueill of Toms Rville, Miss., who has donated its planning services to the FTU Foundation, will take the design through the working-drawing stage.

Child Care Center Planned

By Vicki Blanchfield

Construction is expected to begin by April first for the projected January 78 opening of the FTU Child Care Center, according to John Gorre, Vice President for Business Affairs.

A one-story building will be erected between the campus police station and the handball courts, with further expansion planned when funds become available.

Due to minimum staffing and equipment requirements set by the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, the facility will initially be capable of providing day care to approximately 50 children at one time, ranging from two-five year olds.

Dean of Women Carol Wilson explains, "The organization plans to open around the construction of child care centers in general. A one requirement calls for one staff member for every 10 children in the two-five age group, with additional staff needed for infant care."

"Hopefully in the future we will be able to serve younger children, when space and budget permit."

"Hopefully in the future we will be able to serve younger children, when space and budget permit."

"Practically each center hiring a director manager who will be responsible for the daily operation of the child care center in cooperation with the dean's office."

Another minimum standard requires 25 sq. ft. of usable space per child within the facility, and 40 sq. ft per child within the playground.

Director of University Physical Planning, Oswaldo Garcia, stated, "Because of the limited staff in our planning office, a private firm, Lenton & Magnason of Toms Rville, has donated its planning services to the FTU Foundation. It will take the design through the working-drawing stage."

"Our offices are working together for final working construction documents."

The Information Center will provide a central location for visitors to campus to obtain information about the university.

Over $2000 has been donated toward the construction of the building by the Women's Club.

humanity Building Opens

The $5.2 million Humanities and Fine Arts building opened last week, creating more classroom space and a variety of complaints from instructional personnel.

The new facilities house the Humanities and Fine Arts department, the dean, faculty offices and Social Science Communications and math classrooms.

Located on the first floor are the practice rooms and studios of the Music department.

The rooms will be used for classes and on-site video presentations, while the third floor will house the art studios and photography lab.

The top floor will contain offices.

In addition to the usual problems associated with relocation, many professors pointed out examples of poor workmanship.

One professor, wishing to remain anonymous, pointed out that producers of the films "Earthquake" and "The Towering Inferno" would probably stare in disbelive if they were able to tour the building.

"Heaven help anyone having to quickly evict the building from the top floor," he commented.

Those not managing to fall (or per) down the narrow stairs' case's top floor, floor length windows would give a view of the nicely landscaped campus.

Other complaints mentioned by University personnel included inadequate soundproofing of classrooms, offices that are too small, the addition of counters or dividers placed in inconvenient places, glue on the door, and electrical problems.

Mrs. Charles N. Millican turns over the first shovel of dirt to begin construction of the FTU Information Center. Looking on are President Millican, Mrs. William K. Grasty and Mrs. Robert L. Bledsoe, president of the FTU Women's Club.
Board of Regents Meets

One of the most significant actions undertaken by the Board of Regents during its meeting Monday at the University of South Florida was their final approval for FTU to operate the Solar Research Center, to be located in Brevard County.

The approval came on a 4-3 vote, after a move by board member Chester Ferguson to have the operation of the center placed under the control of the University of Florida.

Among other items, the board welcomed their newest Regent, Marshall Harris.

Harris is a Miami lawyer, banker and an ex-commissioner in the State Legislature.

Harris has been noted for his criticisms of the Board and Hunter Potts, SI President,的表情 suggested that Harris will bring fresh ideas to the membership of the Board.

The Board also issued a position statement saying that they felt collective bargaining would not be in the best interest of the State University system.

WHY IS TECO'S SKIP WILSON LOOKING FOR TROUBLE?

It's his job. Part of it, anyway.

And that includes preparing for a storm... ahead of the warning. Making certain TECO customers have the electrical power they need whatever the weather.

Anticipating service problems and eliminating them in advance of nature's squalls is just one of Skip's functions, as TECO's head troubleman. But he and his Men of Energy can't always second-guess nature.

Frequently, trouble strikes first. Lightning, wind and damaging rain. Weather that you wouldn't let a dog out in.

Somedays during severe weather TECO's trouble department receives more than 200 calls an hour. Each call is individually plotted on a huge map. Within seconds radio contact alerts the troublemen in the problem area. And back-up crews are readyed in case they're needed.

It's an around-the-clock service, handled by around-the-clock trouble-shooting linemen. It's TECO's idea of team effort. Provided by the Men of Energy in our Trouble Department.

TECO IS LOOKING FOR MEN OF ENERGY.

Engineers who are looking for trouble and who want to do something about it.

Engineers who want to work for a company that gives them the chance to advance into higher management positions once they've proven themselves capable. Engineers who can appreciate the advantages of working in the Tampa, Florida area.

If you're TECO material, please contact your University Placement Counselor... he'll let you know when a TECO representative will be coming to your campus and help you arrange an interview.

The professor flushed the toilet. Suddenly he ran out of the bathroom yelling, "help" as water gushed out of the pipe. The elevator was at FTU. And thus the new Humanities and Fine Arts building had its official christening.

Many repairs are not uncommon when any large structure such as the Humanities Building is first opened. But the thing is that a lot of the real problems are not the kind listed in the forecast.

The opening itself was not without problems. Problems were not excluded from the reached, last minute hustle and bustle as professors tried to move in before classes. For example, professors found only one phone in the building, opening the emergency phone in the elevator. Professors were forced to ride up and down the elevator, talking on the phone, as others stood in line for a turn.

The elevator itself hit new speed records. Unfortunately the records were for the slowest, rather than the fastest in existence.

The doors are unsynchronized. People have reported walking up or down the stairs faster than the elevator can move from floor to floor. And the fact that there is only one elevator in such a large building would indicate that problems could quickly arise as everyone tries to make class at the same time. This is even a greater hardship for the hard-luck, disabled students, who have no other choice but to walk the stairs. An elevator, which is often so full that one must wait until the elevator returns before getting in.

Another structural error quickly visible to the person suffering from aerophobia, are the narrow, unenclosed stairwells. Besides allowing rain and cold winds to enter the building, these stairwells could prove dangerous in case of fire, when quick, emergency exits would be required. Well, the exit could be quick, but not necessarily so safe, as students could be stampeded or pushed over the rails onto the ground below.

In conclusion, SNAFU, Situation Normal All Fooled Up, seems to be the standard university motto. And the building code.

In addition, the glue on the carpets adds to the interior decoration of the new offices, and the chalkboard walls are not only unattractive but don't even work as chalkboards.

Homecoming will begin Monday, January 27, with a Mr. Logs and Miss Biceps Contest, and a selection of the Basketball Dance Weekend.

There has been much talk about the worth of homecoming. People have been saying that there is no use wasting time and money on a Homecoming that nobody cares about. It would seem a little weird. Besides allowing rain and cold winter wind to enter the building, Homecoming will work out until it is over.

The Student Government came up with the idea of Homecoming in an effort to combat student apathy. Yet there is already apathy about Homecoming before it has even gotten off the ground.

The basketball team at FTU has had several successful seasons yet a few students have ever bothered to support it. The FTU-Bahama game scheduled February 1, will be a good game.

It always has. That part of Homecoming should be worth attending. There is a dance after the Homecoming game. There is another game on Friday night. President Milligan thought "enough about the idea of Homecoming to cancel classes between 11 and 18:00 on Friday, so that every student can attend the pep rally.

It could be good. But it will take a lot of students to support the activities. Maybe the question of whether or not the FTU students are or are not apathetic will finally be answered once and for all.

Don't ask! I have no idea what the hell I did over the holidays...and I hope I never find out!
INVEST Meets Needs Of Retirees

A surplus trailer tucked away in a corner of Florida Tech University's Hammock Road campus is headquarters for an operation which is gathering force in its effort to reach out to area senior citizens.

It's where INVEST hangs its coat hanger, aiming at a variety of targets and fitted to the wardrobes of the seniors' needs.

Since its inception, barely four months ago, INVEST has spread its wings into Orange and Seminole Counties through a growing list of contact with senior adult organizations and clubs, with the business community, and with state and federal agencies concerned with retiree needs.

Through yet in the infancy stage, INVEST shows every sign of rapid and healthy growth, according to program director Dr. Ronald Newell, who is also Director of FTU's Division of Continuing Education.

"We have received splendid response from our contacts in the community and feel INVEST's services are an answer to a need which is still growing. A goal of becoming more critical," said Newell.

He cited population projections that indicate more than two million Floridians over 60 by the end of the decade.

On tap for the immediate future is formulation of a "seniors talent bank" that can be used for reference by potential employers.

Mrs. Bettie Morgan, who assists Newell in coordinating INVEST, noted the bank will become a reality once a planned sequence of seminars and workshops with seniors is underway.

The meetings will be held at the number of sites and will bring what she termed "information packages" to audiences. Included will be briefings on health benefits, continuing education opportunities, budgeting, housing, and transportation.

Still in the offering is a program that will extend FTU courses to seniors, a movement that has been termed "a new thrust of the University" by FTU President Charles N. Millican.

In a meeting on campus with INVEST's recently named Advisory Board, he noted the academic world is just beginning to realize the lifelong aspects of education.

According to Dr. Newell, who has two other soon to be announced programs in the planning stages, considerable more efforts will soon be underway for the more mature student. The majority of these students and their wealth of life experiences call for a complete new look at educational objectives, said Newell.

Such programs must adopt non-traditional formats that will take into account past experience as well as the contributions such students can make to the university.

He noted that financial subsidies are under consideration to help bolster the educational efforts for the area's retirees.

Meanwhile, back at the trailer, INVEST is receiving a welcome hand from Orange County's RSVP (Retired Seniors Volunteer Program) which has moved in to handle its many volunteer part-time job placement tasks.

The RSVP crew presently is administering the volunteer end of INVEST and also supplying needed transportation to seniors participating in their program which the present FTU project intends to prove unnecessary, said Mrs. Morgan.

The Advisory Board working with Dr. Newell in giving direction to INVEST includes Ms. Patricia Allen, area programs coordinator, Florida Division of Aging; Lester Ferguson, project director of aging, East Central Florida Regional Planning Council; Richard (Dick) Mills, Community Service Council of Orange County, Inc.; Selden Hill, recent nominee to the Federal Council on Aging, and Dr. William D. Allard, FTU professor of sociology and former delegate to the White House Conference on Aging.

"The cooperation we have received and the interest that has been shown is phenomenal," said Newell. "INVEST was intended to stimulate community-wide university involvement. This it appears to be doing."

Eddie Harris Joins Jazz Greats

By Jeff Johnson

In jazz, as well as rock, there exists a term referenced to "guitarists who play hits". Eddie Harris, one such artist, has developed his own dynamic style of contemporary jazz.

He is a master of electric sax and trumpet as well as electric piano. Harris blows his horn ever so sweetly, almost sonorous, before suddenly switching to a churning, driving array of riffs guaranteed to rock your socks. But this contrast in style can only add to his versatility as a musician.

E. H. is the Y. K. and is to expose the sides of the quick jazz poet that Harris has become. As the title of the album "E. H. in the U. K." suggests, Harris recorded all six selections in England.

Harris called on some of the finest and most accomplished power riffers in Britain, combining their rocking style with very smooth, very sleek, together jazz-rock, so often attempted by other artists, but seldom achieved.

Among those chosen as sidemen, Jeff Beck, Rod Gregg, and the Jazzy Traffic keyboard tickler, Stevie Winwood enhance the jazz with their reputations alone.

The first side exemplifies the rock-jazz Harris has been through four tunes, carrying a definite English blue haze.

Side two propels the listener into Harris' new dimensional perspectives with entranced pushing, lifting the limits of standard improvisational jazz.

Harris' style shines throughout the album.

On the opening cut "Baby", Harris sings the piece through his electric sax.

"Side one concludes with perhaps the album's highlight, "I'm Not So Hot To Look Back," which is Eddie Harris at his best, along with Winwood playing electric piano and Jeff Beck trading riffs with Albert Lee, contributing unique and very mellow blues patterns to compliment Harris' enchanting blues ensembles.

Harris' new release, "Look Back," suggests a more self-indulgent, experimental, hermetic Harris.

The album was recorded in Chicago and it lacks the rock foundations of the previous London based album, although E. H. in the U. K. does not sublime through speakers and shake the walls in the tradition of Eddie Harris - Les McCann jam sessions a few years ago.

But at the same time, there are very few recognizable traits to qualify the new album as having a Chicago-sound foundation.

It is in could be an interpretation of Harris' roots, his own foundations. A kind of "bringin it back home."

The new album has a great amount of variation in the materials offered.

A good deal of soulful rock surfaces in cuts like "Funkorama" and "Look Above."

"Happy Gemini" displays a Latin flavoring and "It's War" comes off as African percussion rock.

Of course, there is also a straight push-pull jazz and Harris' own mystifying eastern blues.

"House Party Blues" exemplifies Harris' piano funk and is one of the heavy numbers on the album.

In any case, no matter where he records or who he chooses to record with, Eddie Harris will be around a long time, soon to be recognized with the best of the new jazzmen.

Because Eddie Harris is hot.

assisted by Community Coordinated Child Care.

Wilson defines this as "a nonprofit organization founded by United Appeal and Orange County whose purpose is to coordinate the efforts of both public and private child care centers in the area to improve the quality of life for small children." Ideas gained from the above sources have been incorporated into the architectural designs for FTU's Center.

Garcia outlined the following provisions:

1. A Central Point from which children will arrive and depart.
2. An Isolation Area where children who become ill while at the Center will remain until parents pick them up.

He added that the majority of Center space will be reserved for two basic rooms, a Specialized Room, and a TV room. The Specialized Room will be the center of most indoor activities, including music and TV entertainment and napping space.

A small observation room with a one-way mirror will be situated adjoining the Indoor Play Area.

Garcia commented, "Eventually, students from our college of education, Sociology and Psychology departments may utilize the Center to observe and experiment with some of their educational ideas."

Garcia said that a fenced in outside play area will also be provided, which will include a tricycle trail and an area for outside games.

Wilson explained that the child care center must be self-supporting and fees will be charged for services, on the basis of need.

Initial funding for the program began with a $2,000 allocation by Student Government (SG), followed by a $50,000 grant last April from the Edyth Bush charitable Foundation.

Wilson praised SG for their financial contributions to the project. "I feel very strongly that the willingness of SG to provide funding for this type of service was quite instrumental in helping us to receive the additional grant money." She added that budget finalizing will be made within the next several months.

Wilson stressed the difference between FTU's projected Center and the services available at Rollins College and Valencia Community College by saying, "Their programs are designed to train day care workers, as an academic program for students. The purpose of ours will be to provide a service to students."

To her knowledge, the University of West Florida is the only other four year school in the state that maintains full child care service to students, but other schools are investigating ways to fund and develop programs also.

At least one third of FTU's student body is married and Wilson commented, "Because of the trend of women returning to the classroom, today there is a greater need for this service not only at FTU, but across the country. Institutions are finally recognizing this need." Garcia believes that, "a child care center is a very vital service that needs to be provided to the college community. It can become an educational opportunity for some students as well, if we can cooperate with our Sociology and Psychology departments and College of Education in the future.

Critical planning for an education complex on campus and other Lemon and Megginson contracts are slowing action on the Center somewhat, according to Garcia.

Garcia stated that construction bids will not be sought until further planning is completed.

Although they had their Cinderella bubble burst early with last week's stunning loss to Stetson, the FTU basketball team earned the respect of all another opponent.

After upsetting Valdosta State to gain the finals, the Knights upset string was halted at four by a showstopping group of C. W. Postmen, led by freshman George Johnson, 78-73.

Johnson was a man on one-man as he went on a 23 point scoring spree including 19 of his team's final 26, to secure the victory for the Postmen.

But the Postmen didn't always have things going their way. FTU led 41-33 at intermission and held a three-point advantage midway through the final period.

However, when Willie Belotte picked up his fourth personal foul, sending him to the bench, Johnson went into his scoring routine and the Knights lead was rapidly diminished. The Postmen fought back with six minutes remaining, but were never headed.

FTU managed to tie the score in those final three, decisive 90 seconds. But after Bonnie Shaw had knotted the score, Johnson netted seven straight markers and the Knights' fate was sealed.

"We got hurt when Willie (Belotte) had to sit out," said FTU Coach Tony Clark. "That was a bad time to lose him."

Johnson got plenty of scoring support from Bert Platt and Cal Corso. Platt, a smooth outside sharpshooter, ran his tournament total to 16 points with a three-pointer, outwitting a 41-60 rebounding total. 18, with the majority coming on inside shots.

FTU received another stellar performance from Shaw. The gout-plagued left hander had a tournament high of 36 points. Jerry Prather tossed in 15 markers for the Knights.

Belotte added 10. Bill Corso finaled a fine evening with 10 points and a dozen rebounds.

In the second stanza, the Knights methodical attack were indeed the keys to victory as FTU controlled the tempo of the contest from the opening tip.

The Knights shot on a 9-0 advantage in the early going, thanks to the efforts of Belotte, Shaw, and Prather.

The half then developed into a saw-saw struggle that saw Belotte, Shaw and Fletcher provide a balanced firepower with their outside shooting. With Alston hitting from the wing and Fletcher scoring from the top of the key, the Knights finished with FTU holding a slender 31-30 margin.

Although they both would rather not admit it, the bigger story line of the game was Johnson's at the Coast Guard Academy this past weekend. "I feel the year of experience has been the biggest reason for improvement," explained the Virginia Beach, Va. native. "I thought I was tired of wrestling after doing it all through junior high and high school, but after not competing for a year I realized how much I missed it." He then remembered a certain Coach Gergley who had recruited him in college.

"The part about "most improved," stated Gergley. "He didn't always do well in his first year of collegiate competition. Now 3-0 for the 1974-75 season, Willie has learned he'll have to improve if he wants to be a true contender."

The coach also said, "Belotte is still valuable, but Willie is the one to watch."

But the coach should have added, "Willie is one of the harder working guys -- he never complains and has no hard feelings about injuries. Simply, he is a winner!"

The part about "most improved" in the above description may surprise some since Wareing has become a very complete wrestler. He has a great take-down style, is hard to take down and is also great at getting out of the holds. He also controls his man well when he's on the mat.

And the coach's superlatives continued. "Mike is one of our hardest working guys -- he never complains and has no hard feelings about injuries. Simply, he is a winner!"

Mike Wareing
Wearing "Most" Improved

FTU's most improved wrestler? Take it from Head Coach Jerry Gergley -- that honor belongs to 150-pound Mike Wareing. The Postman's revised leader in points (14) and co-leader in wins (13, 23 with 13-25-78).

"We beat a fine basketball team today with Fletcher scoring from the top of the key," said Johnson, who finished with Fort Pierce holding a slender 31-30 margin.

The court's tournament high of 36 points, had to sit against Florida State collegiate championships. Although this definitely set himself his first year of playing football as a freshman at Ferrum Junior College in Virginia while competing in his first season against college foes.

The coach also said, "Belotte is still valuable, but Willie is the one to watch."

But the coach should have added, "Willie is one of the harder working guys -- he never complains and has no hard feelings about injuries. Simply, he is a winner!"

The part about "most improved" in the above description may surprise some since Wareing has become a very complete wrestler. He has a great take-down style, is hard to take down and is also great at getting out of the holds. He also controls his man well when he's on the mat.

And the coach's superlatives continued. "Mike is one of our hardest working guys -- he never complains and has no hard feelings about injuries. Simply, he is a winner!"

Mike Wareing
Wearing "Most" Improved

By Fred Cary

FTU's most improved wrestler? Take it from Head Coach Jerry Gergley -- that honor belongs to 150-pound Mike Wareing. The Postman's revised leader in points (14) and co-leader in wins (13, 23 with 13-25-78).

"I feel the year of experience has been the biggest reason for improvement," explained the Virginia Beach, Va. native. "I thought I was tired of wrestling after doing it all through junior high and high school, but after not competing for a year I realized how much I missed it." He then remembered a certain Coach Gergley who had recruited him in college.

"The part about "most improved," stated Gergley. "He didn't always do well in his first year of collegiate competition. Now 3-0 for the 1974-75 season, Willie has learned he'll have to improve if he wants to be a true contender."

The coach also said, "Belotte is still valuable, but Willie is the one to watch."

Roller Coaster Ride For FTU Grapplers

By Joe DeMelo

The FTU wrestling team continues to go through their tough schedule like a roller coaster car. The Knights rose to great heights against Ship­pen­burg (Pa.) State, Jan. 13, winning impressively 21-9. While in the span of three days, nationally ranked Man­kato (Minn.) State on Jan. 10, slammed on the brakes, beating FTU 21-14.

So the past weekend, FTU finished in second place in the Naval Training Center (Navy) Open to start their climb once again.

The 2-3 Knights will be trying for win No. 3 tonight when they tackle visiting Bradley University.

Against Shippen­burg, FTU overcame an early 14 Roderick lead to easily defeat the visitors.

In 118, the 19th ranked Emerson dropped a 10-0 decision to Drew Kropf. Scott Silverman got the first of FTU’s seven victories in the weight, beating Glen Barker 9-2.

Pat Murphy made a first fall 2-0 and stand up as the 134-pounder

FTU’s Tom Hammons contends with Mankato’s Dave Borella in their 158-pound match. Hammons took 5-0 win.

TKE Little Sisters Grab Football Crown

By Linda Mitchell

The TKE Little Sisters came out on top last Thursday to capture the campus football championship with an exciting 13-7 victory over Tri-Delta.

Little Sisters moved deep into Tri-Delta territory, during the first half, but two bad snaps and a penalty forced them to give up the ball.

Tri-Delta’s quarterback, Claudia McGee, went immediately to the air and was intercepted by TKE defender, Linda McHurtz. TKE’s quarterback, Maddy Gicobbe, ran in the first score of the game, and Ginger McDonald caught the extra point, making it 7-0.

The Little Sisters kicked off to Tri-Delta. With three minutes left in the first half, McGee threw a long bomb into the waiting arms of receiver Kim Ackley. Ackley’s catch got the Tri-Deltas in perfect scoring position. McGee tried to run it in, but the tough TKE defense held. The score remained 7-0.

It was the second half that brought the explosion of both teams’ offense and defense. TKE quarterback Gicobbe drew for the sideline to receiver Becky Sims, but the alert Ackley scopped up the pass and headed for the goal line. A penalty for guarding the pass pushed the Tri-Deltas back, but quarterback McGee again skillfully went to the air and quickly made up for the loss with a series of long passes to Brenda Scoville. Tri-Delta then got their touchdown when center Barb Scoville stopped the football in her hands and strode calmly across the goal line. Ackley leaped high between several TKE defenders to nab the extra point and tie the score, 7-7, with 6:45 left in the game.

It appeared as though the game would end in a tie and go into overtime, but TKE’s free Gicobbe surprised everyone when she shot down the field through Tri-Delta’s defenders and scored the tie-breaking touchdown with less than two minutes to play.

Tri-Delta tried to make a comeback, but the TKE defense held and won by a final score of 13-7.

TRIVIA MASTERS
Who was the first screen Tarzan?
Who played Eddie Haskell and what is his new acting job?
If those are stumpers, who was the Lone Ranger on radio?
These and other meaningless questions will be answered tonight at the Village Center's presentation of Trivia Masters. Joe Albain and Denis Golden will be on hand at the Pegasus Sail for two performances at 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Albain and Golden are billed as Doctors of Trivology. Both men are from Boston where they have their own radio show on WMEX. In their weekly trivia bouts, they handle up to 15,000 questions a night from callers. Albain and Golden will be prepared to take on all challengers. The rules for playing are simple: "You must be ready to ask or answer a trivia question and be a "connecting adult."

Kathy Cavanna, assistant program director of the Village Center, noted that die-hard trivia nuts will be able to brush up on useless knowledge with a paperback book, "Nostalgia Quiz Book," which is available in the bookstore. Admission is free for FTU students and $1.00 for the general public.

CLASS SCHEDULING
FTU students claim they had much less trouble in getting classes this quarter. Most of the students polled who had problems getting classes had special circumstances as causes. A graduating senior who preferred to remain anonymous, had to reschedule all her classes after finding that one class she needed for graduation was closed, because there were not enough students who wanted it. Michelle Murphy, a transfer student who came during late registration, found she had to take what classes she could get. A sophomore in General Communications, Jenny Nichols, had to sign into two courses, one being a night course, the other at a time inconvenient for her.

Annie Martin, a senior English major, said she had no problems, while a junior English major, Brenda Gordon, thinks last quarter was worse than this one. A graduating senior in General Communications, Bob Kershner, had to take one independent study, but found himself happy with the prospect.

The director of records and registration, Ed Knight, said that the class schedule is determined by the department head of the different colleges, based on available funds for instructors and prerequisites which have been fulfilled by students majoring in that college.

Knight said that the basic scheduling, to his knowledge, was no different than it had been in previous quarters.
