A cooperative program between FTU and the University of Florida will make it possible for students who qualify to receive a doctorate degree in Electrical Engineering on the FTU campus. Dr. Bruce E. Mathews, chairman of the department of Engineering at FTU, said the program has been designed to allow students in the Central Florida area to obtain a Ph.D. degree in E.E. to work at FTU.

Most of these are part time students who are working and would find it difficult if not impossible to work toward a Ph.D. at U of F.

The degree will be awarded by the U of F, even though the courses are taken on the FTU campus. Mathews said some of the courses are joint appointments with U of F. They are members of both faculties; therefore, they are teaching the doctoral classes.

Mathews said the minimum requirements for a doctorate degree is three academic years past the B.A. or two academic years past a Masters degree. This new degree has evolved from the existing Electrical program, which was a statewide closed circuit TV Broadcasting program on the U of F until 1972. The program has already been approved and will go into effect as soon as students who qualify can be enrolled.

Dr. Mathews’ office is in the process of contacting students at the present time. Mathews said the program will most likely get started next quarter. He expects to have between six and ten students enroll for the first quarter of the program. Requirements for the Ph. D. program are a Masters degree in Electrical Engineering and an entrance exam which will be given by the U of F.

The benefits to the engineering department include allowing the faculty to participate in doctoral level counseling, teaching and research. Mathews stated.

In another degree-related area, Dr. Mathews has proposed a new bill calling for the college to receive $25,000 a year to notify each student who has passed the requirements that he or she is eligible for an associate arts degree. The bill was proposed by Tim Carroll.

Dr. Margaret H. Thomas of the office of Academic Affairs said the proposal was feasible, noting it would take a great deal of time to get several new employees to do the job.

“There are more than 8,000 students on this campus and to constantly review all their transcripts to see if they have passed the requirements for an A.A. degree would be impossible,” she said.

Thomas also said the requirements are listed in the catalog and any student who thinks he has qualified only has to fill out an application in the registrar’s office to have his transcript checked.

The requirements are an hour of course work completed, 30 of which must have been taken at FTU, the basic Environmental Studies (54 hours included).

library Series To Return

BY PAT STRANGE

The FTU Library has prepared a bibliography for the 1975 project entitled “Medicine and Morals.”

This project was directed by Robert G. Fieck, chairman of the Department of Humanities, Philosophy and Religion at FTU. The series was entitled “A Course in Ethics” and consisted of four programs held in Feb., March, April and May of last year.

As the quarter draws to an end, this squirrel, like many FTU students, is “Up a tree,” but still “Hanging in there.” (Photo by Sommer).
The recorder is a woodwind instrument belonging to the flute family and was developed during the 16th century.

In the 16th century the flute was invented, a louder instrument, better able to compete with the instruments of an orchestra, and the simple recorder was all but forgotten. Around the turn of the century, musicians and composer Arnold Dolmetsch reintroduced the recorder to the music public. It has since become a popular instrument throughout the world.

The recorder comes in various sizes and shapes from the soprano and soprano to the alto, tenor and bass.

The students are requested to purchase only soprano and alto recorders as they are most adaptable for the novice.

Presently around thirty students are enrolled in Music 310, which meets from 11:00 to 11:50 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday in the new Music Rehearsal Hall.

The course is aimed at students who have no prior knowledge of how to read music and provides a distinct advantage in later learning how to play other musical instruments.

Student Assistant Donna Lederer works with Professor Stenberg by providing personal assistance by appointment to students.

"You must be willing to risk failure to succeed," says Professor Stenberg adding, "I have a whole lot of respect for the people in my classes."

Patricia Stenberg is also a member of the FTU ensemble, Basically Baroque, and is currently performing oboe and recorder throughout Florida. "You can learn to play the recorder very well in ten weeks," said the instructor who has been playing the instrument for twelve years, but of course, "it requires a life-time to master any instrument."

"You do not need to be a musician to appreciate music. You have a mind and a heart and that is all you need to enjoy music."

Since Winter Quarter began, there have been some false fire alarms reported in the dormitories. The dormitory advisor for Dorm B, and all but one of the five occurred after a new Resident Advisor, Campus Police and dorm students have expressed concern or anger over the incidence.

John Smith, Director of the Police Department at FTU, feels that it is hard for the police to do anything about it, as the students can catch someone in the act. Smith believes the solution is not when the alarms are false, but that students are often questioned as to what they might have seen prior to the alarm.

Students or whoever is pulling the false alarms, must realize that the penalties for pulling a fire alarm are high. For the first offense, a fine of $1.50 and-or a six month jail term. Theft or misuse of a fire extinguisher also carries the same penalties.

The procedure used in the case of false fire alarms is exactly the same as one used in a planned evacuation. The Dorm Advisor calls the Police and the Advisor of the dorm, as well as designated after the student, begins a room to room evacuation of the dormitory. In the meantime, the Police arrive and after the building is cleared, the alarm is turned off after checking for possible fire.

Mr. Smith explained that since one never knows if the alarm is real or not, the Police always go through the dormitory to make sure that the alarm is legitimate. Smith also explained that it is not uncommon for the Police to take the alarm in turn to discourage anyone from pulling a fire alarm.

If students will go to the expense of pulling a false alarm, or at least encourage students to grow tired of the alarms and report any information they might have on the false alarm. A room to room evacuation was also initiated by force students to leave the dormitory each time the alarm goes off. This was both for protection and discouragement of false alarms.

Pulling a fire alarm is not a joke. As Sharon Esposto, President of the Resident Hall Association put it, if the boy who cries wolf really does see a wolf nobody believes him. If a fire ever does break out in the dorms, students will just think it is another false alarm.

It could be that one of those days a fire will break out in the dorms. The crisis time for a fire is when people are sleeping and are overcome by fire and smoke in their sleep. This would be after midnight and would be a very anxious time that most of the false alarms are occurring. It would be bad enough if a student was slapped with a jail sentence or a fine. It would be worse if that student was one day responsible for turning off the false alarm due to a false evacuation and the belief that it is another false alarm.

Anyone having any information on the false alarms may call Mr. Smith at 2421.

By Mike Hall

Well, I said I would tear about it if it was wrong, and I did. Yes, I admit I was wrong when I wrote last week's column. In checking past issues of the Future, (should be a past tense, since it's the first place) I found that John Hartford, Brownsville Station, the Association, Don McLean and Renaissance did indeed perform here at FTU, but only Renaissance was sponsored by student government. The rest along with such notables as Axe Trucking Co., Kreskin and Margaret Mead were sponsored by the Village Center. I can only say that I would like to thank the faculty who sits on Mike Hall's shoulder who imparts to him such exclusive information.

Well, I also found out some other violations. How about all the much the Village Center charged FTU students who had already paid, more or less, through the Student Activity and Service fee to attend these events. John Hartford was free. Brownsville Station was $3.50 and the Association was $2.00. Now, that's not bad considering the price of concerts in the outside world, but these are at the V.C. Budget for the past three years you wonder what they have to charge anything. Never mind paying 20 cents to see their movies? Of course, they can't charge us anymore because John Hartford, or any of the others, passed a bill last year prohibiting

THE OLD "ONE, TWO"

Reader Retueses Columnist

The Residence Hall Association of Florida Technological University is an autonomous organization, equal in power to Student Government in the eyes of FTU's Administration. The Inter-Dorm Council is the elected representative board of RHA. IDC's function is three-fold: to provide a better government for all resident students, to act as liaison between the residents and administration, and to provide social activities for the residents.

Through the efforts of IDC and RHA, two major changes have been realized on campus: a regulation allowing possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages in the residence halls and the current modifications of food services. These are extremely commendable accomplishments of an organization that is not yet two years old. The potential of this organization is undetermined if, and only if, all residents take an active interest. Unfortunately, instead of growing interest in RHA has dropped drastically. Two elections were cancelled in Fall Quarter because of lack of participation. One-fourth of the residents were present at the last two meetings. Not once this quarter has more than two people appeared at IDC meetings. Participation at RHA social functions has been less than desired because no one "had time" to chair the publicity committee.

Less than 10 people have assumed the responsibility for governing and planning for over forty hundred people. This is an unfair burden. The above frustrations have led to my decision to resign from the office of President of RHA. My resignation will be effective as soon as elections can be held in April.

It will be up to all the residents to generate enough interest to produce a new Inter-Dorm Council. Failure to do that will place IDC and RHA in danger of dissolution. Apathy is always destructive.

Anyone wishing more information on IDC, RHA, or the upcoming elections is urged to contact me (No. 2723 or Box 360) or Mike Bisset or Pam Bindman in Student Affairs.

Don't force yourself into nonrepresentation.

Sincerely,
Sharon Esposto

Ron Wood Releases Spirited Album

Ron Wood's first solo release "I've Got My Own Album To Do," is not so much a solo effort as it is a gathering of talented friends for a south London recording session in Wood's studio basement. And with Wood's choice of musicians he presents himself as just another member of a fine rock and roll band.

Of course, Wood has never been that much of a stand-out with any of his previous groups.

With the early Jeff Beck Group, he backed Beck's flashy guitar with a smooth but powerful bass. Later, he moved to lead guitar for a few albums with Rod Stewart and finally with Faces.

Shaping lead guitar and vocals as Keith Richards from the Rolling Stones.

Wood and Richard play guitar in a style which is amazingly similar and on this album it works very well.

Richard's whiny vocals also add a little looseness to the album, which carries the mood through from start to finish.

A couple of Faces rhythm men fill in the background and a few tracks are laid down with Mick Jagger and Rod Stewart helping out on vocals.

The album opens with a straightforward rocker, "I Can Feel the Fire," which comes off in the old Stones' tradition of gut guitar riffs and driving rhythm. On this cut, Jagger clearly takes over Wood's strained vocal, although he is not credited on the album's cover.

Two blues follow the opening cut, "Far East Man" and "Mystifies Me.

The first is a George Harrison tune which, for this album, is a little weak in Harrison's tradition of Far East mystery songs. Wood laments through the vocal and trades licks with Richard, who eventually saves the song with some clean, piercing slide work.

"Mystifies Me" comes off a little better, with Rod Stewart helping Wood along with the vocals giving the song a sense of sincerity.

"Take A Look At That Man" starts the album rocking again as Richard and Wood roll through the vocals and standard rock and roll riffs. The song drifts off at the end into a Jagger-Richard composition, "Act Together." Wood shines on vocals backed by Richard's drunk nasal wail and a soulful choir which gives the song a Stones' gospel sound to it.

This is one of the better cuts on side one, emphasizing the house mood sustained throughout the album.

The song is one of the latest to go in a two chord dirt blues which again sounds like straight Stones' funk.

Richard lays down a gut shoving riff and then drives it in the ground all through the song. Wood and Jagger share the vocals with a little added harp work by Jagger and some tight guitar work from Wood.

This song opens with an over electric rhythm "Shirley." Too much guitar overdubbing destroys the simplicity of a simple rock song whose lyrics run through lines like "Take some notes, type a letter, drop your hoe and be my secretary."

Richard and Wood dream through the next cut "Cancel Everything," a soulful blues number complete with an added electric backup, streaming in the vocals and complimenting Wood's and Richard's painless delivery.

Sure The One You Need" follows with Richard taking over lead vocal, appropriately enough seeing as how he and Jagger wrote the song. For apparent reasons, the song comes off as a Stones' "lost stomper."

Wood, Richard, and a scrathcy (Rod Stewart) sax for an old soul blues tune "If You Gotta Make A Fool of Somebody." One can almost smell whiskey breath seeping through the microphone as "the boys" lament and lay down what turns out to be one of the better cuts on the album.

The last song does not do much of anything as a final cut. Over extended and quite a bit flashy and overworked, "Crockhod Music" (an instrumental) sums up an album of high spirits that will merit itself as one of the better rock and roll albums of the year.

Energy Drive Still Strong

He added, "There is a light over in the Humanities and Fine Arts Building that are worthless because of their bad light."

The campus dormitories are another area of concern to Eller. He stressed "Dorm students should be particularly conscious of the energy conservation program. Their participation in our energy conservation projects is vital if we are to save as much money as possible.

Neubauer and Eller agreed that higher costs in other areas of education, such as traffic, are helping to pay rising utility bills.

Eller put it bluntly, "A lackadaisical attitude is preventing us from saving money that could be used to build something beneficial to the PTU campus.

He further stated, "This is basically an awareness program. We must get people to understand that what they each do is individually important to the drive. It must also realize also that they can save themselves money at the same time."

Perel summed the condition up by saying, "It's to the interest of the entire campus community to cooperate in the pursuit of energy conservation in every conceivable way. It's everyone's duty to help in the effort."

Winemaking Among New Courses

A host of new courses will be offered by PTU's various colleges during the spring quarter.

Dr. Frank Jugie will be teaching the Science of Wine and Winemaking, Monday nights, 7:30 PM.

The course will concentrate on basic scientifc concepts, classification, characteristics, and evaluation of wine. Credit is applicable toward Environmental Studies requirements.

Three new courses are scheduled by the College of Business Administration, according to Dean C.E. Gilliland, Jr.

Two elective courses, BADM 210 and BADM 211, a practical course offering students the chance to work with small business administration firms, and "Special Topics: Management Game" (MGMT 391), based on computerized business management simulation which stresses decision making in all functional areas of business, will both be offered for three hours of credit.

A unit on financial models (FIN 391) is a course as a study of different types of solar energy systems, their implementation, design and characteristics.

Comparative Religion 491, the first course on exorcism in Florida, will be offered again, taught by Dr. Husain Kassim.

Rashid incorporates Rollph's theory of God and the ideas of the contemporary existential psychologist, Robi May.

These two courses are applied and used in phenomenologically analyze and explains demons and demonology.

William Blatty's best-seller, "The Exorcist," is required reading, along with numerous other accounts of demons.

Kassim, who has taught comparative religion in universities for six years, finds the sudden popularity in exorcism both "a curse and a blessing."

The College of Humanities and Fine Arts will run a French 100 program, this quarter for the benefit of music students as a guide to pronunciation encountered in French songs and opera.

The FTU basketball squad continued its consistent pattern of playing well at home and having difficulty on the road as the Knights crushed Florida Institute of Technology 103-76 at home and were trounced 165-07 by South Florida in Tampa. Against FIT the Knights found themselves behind in the early going as the Engineers raced to a 6-2 advantage. But with Bennie Shaw, Jerry Prather, and Tal Lingelbach providing the scoring punch, FTU ran off a 16-0 scoring spree to seal the victory early. Head Coach Terry Clark was happy with the win that assured the Knights of at least a 500 season. "Both teams had a chance to go and they did," Clark explained. "We both wanted to speed up our attacks." Shaw continued his torrid scoring pace with a 35 point performance. Clark had special praise for the slick shooting sophomore.

Bucks' GM Embry Visits College Mate In Powell

By Joe De Salvo

If you're wondering who was the biggest star man with Dr. John Powell, FTU's athletic director, last Thursday and Friday, he was Powell's fellow roommate at Miami of Ohio. So what's so tremendous about that, you say? It happens to be Wayne Embry, a former National Basketball Association star and presently Vice-President and General Manager of the Milwaukee Bucks. The 6-8, 280-pound Embry was in the Central Florida area on a scouting trip, especially to catch Stetson's Otis Johnson last Thursday right against Northern Illinois. Johnson blew the opportunity to show the Buck's hidden what he can do on the court as he was held to 12 points by Powell.

The former Cincinnati Royal who are now based in Kansas City - Omaha Most Valuable Player and NBA all-star took the opportunity to be a house guest of the Powells. Conversing with Embry in Powell's office, I asked him what he looks for in a prospective pro player. "He has to have physical skills such as quickness, agility, and a shooting touch," said Embry, who at 240 pounds, is a scorer and forward. Powell said, "Wayne was always the leading rebounder, and Embry played college ball at 280 pounds.

The recruiting center was first introduced to the Bucks' organization in the 1968 expansion draft. Powell signed his last season in 1960-61 and ended his 11-year career with a total of 751 rebounds and a 12.5 points-per-game average.

Embry received his present position in the Bucks' 1970-71 season, the year the Bucks were first and so far, their only NBA title.

"They don't have to necessarily have all playing skills. The intangibles such as mental toughness and concentration are so important, said Embry putting on a big cigar.

Commenting on if the Southeast bullplayers are different from the Midwest or West, Embry said, "I think they are basically all the same."

Embry feels the "big man" in the college ranks presently is Wayne Aplin, Leon Smith and Eddie Davis providing the offensive firepower the bucks need to at least a 16.3 judge in the early going and were never headed.

Again paced all scorers with 36 points, Smith followed with 36, most from long range, while Aplin had 22 and Davis pumped home 22. The loss dropped FTU's season mark to 12-5. Tomorrow night the cagers travel to Orlando with little hope arch rival Rollins. WMFE TV (Channel 24) will broadcast the game live with tipoff show coverage slated to begin at 7:30 a.m. Stan Savran of WRKO radio will handle the play-by-play.

It was no contest as all nine matches were decided in two straight sets with the match coming to a forehand.

"We’re playing as a team," said a very satisfied Coach Jerry Gergley. "They’re starting to gel which was first indicated during the last match against Sanford match."

In that match, PTU was able to take a come from behind victory over the Alabama visitors when darkness prevented the end of the match and a "come from behind team spirit," added Wood.

In the No. 1 singles, recently elected captain, Joe Lacroute, cut only a small moment to dispose Bruce Shaffer 6-0, 6-2. At No. 2 Mike DeBreuil came out of the gate low with a 6-0, 6-2 win.

"The highly talented" Bryant, who will be a freshman, comes from South Africa with outstanding credentials. Bryant was ranked in the top 10 in the junior standings and played in the adult rankings.

You would think PTU is playing the University of Florida in a big football game by looking at the Beat Florida" signs posted all around the Physical Education building this last week.

Actually, it’s Coach Gerald Gergley’s art work in hopes of spurring his 8-4 wrestling team to victory over state powerhouse Florida tonight. "It’s going to be a difficult meet," the coach, co. "I’m pretty sure we’re going to take a come from behind victory of the Gators as it would be a super effort."

Wood feels sure her girls can beat the Knights and feels her toughest dual is the one with the renovated "48’s" at Lewis Smith 6-1, 6-2.

"We’re being defeated," said Wood. "I’ve never been in a situation quite like this."

"It’s going to take patience and as long as we don’t break down, we’ll win under our belts we’ll be okay."

If the PTU team is "okay" like the rest of the Knights’ teams, the Knight squash is on its way to a successful future.

By Walt Morris

The PTU swim team is regrouping under a new coach this year. Summer Thomason, Lamar’s new coach, comes to PTU with a record that few men can match. Lamar has had 29 state champion teams at four different high schools.

"It’s going to be difficult arranging meets with schools that have long been established," Lamar said. "But I know we’re going to have the junior colleges and community colleges are interested in swimming against us."

"We don’t want a competitive schedule this year, but plan to enter next year with a competitive frame of interest."

Lamar has coached the Winter Park Y.M.C.A. and Winter Park High School teams and he hopes this will help build the team.

"These kids have the potential to look back in years to come and say I helped start it, the program. Lamar commented. "To me it would be a delightful memory."

Lamar believes there are some great ones left in PTU that will hurt the team, but adds at the moment all schools are having financial problems. "We have a great facility here," Lamar boasted. "Anytime you have a facility that is like ours you can win in our league."
