Golden key unlocks doors for students

UCF's National Golden Key Honor Society inducted 481 members into its organization April 10. Family members and friends packed the Student Union's Key West Ballroom to cheer the inductees.

"You have achieved the highest level of academic excellence," said Jill Hall, the southeastern student representative of Golden Key. "Joining this organization will give you the opportunity to develop new friendships and uphold the tradition and strength of our organization. One day you will be leaders throughout Florida and the rest of the nation."

The hour-long ceremony honored juniors and seniors who are ranked in the top 15 percent of their college.

"Since the goal of Golden Key is to recognize scholastic achievement and excellence in all undergraduate fields of study, we will only accept the top students in each college," said Publicity Director Samuel Realista.

Each college sends Golden Key a list of students who are eligible for admission. Then, the organization sends those lists to its national headquarters in Atlanta. The headquarters then sends applications to potential members.

"I joined this to have something impressive on my resume. I also think it shows that many years of hard work has paid off," said inductee Khanh Nguyen.

Nicole King was also proud to be inducted. "It is a real honor to be inducted into Golden Key," she said. "I've worked really hard to keep my GPA [final] is dried up. Shouldn't Student Government inform clubs that there is no money? We've gotten the run-around of who to see to discuss this issue," said Debbie Phillips, advisor for Phi Theta Kappa.

The C&O chair, Charlie Lee, said the Senate and C&O budgets were depleted, and that Jason Murphy, SG president, is the only one that had money.

According to Phillips, since the request was made in February, there have been no calls or responses back. The club did meet with their senator once, but all that was discussed was that the government was waiting for money.

Students try out for 2000 team.

Known for their competitive spirit, dance team members have begun practicing for the 2000 season. "I think that we have a very strong team this year," said Jessica Payton, captain. "I expect that we will win many more competitions this year." I also expect that we will win many more competitions this year.

"Widespread," a local band, performed at the House of Blues last Tuesday. "It was a great show," said club member Jamie Smith. "I really enjoyed the performance and would definitely go again."

UCF dance team and coach selected

Tryouts for the UCF dance were held April 16-18. Along with a new dance team, a new coach was also chosen.

UCF senior Courtney Reditt was selected for the position. Reditt qualified for the position because she has been on the team for two years and is an instructor for the United Dance Association. Reditt has also been in dance commercials and print advertisements. She is a senior and will graduate next semester with a degree in early childhood education.

The UCF dance team performs at men's basketball games, pep rallies and various UCF activities. They also compete in the UDA's College National Dance Championships, which is held in January at the Disney-MGM Studios. UCF dancers placed 17th in the nation last year.

Those who tried out for the team were expected to know basic leaps, turns and possess a level of flexibility. These included triple left and right pirouettes and right and left switchleaps.

All candidates were also taught a dance which they had to perform on the last day of tryouts. This dance was composed of hip-hop, lyrical, jazz and pop. Two cuts were made before the final decision and each girl was interviewed individually to find out their personality and what they were looking to contribute to the team and UCF.

"I have seen girls who could do five pirouettes but not look as clean as a girl who could only do two," Reditt said.

Sixty girls tried out last year and 16 were placed on the team.

"Tryouts were really hard and there were a lot of talented girls," Jessica Weinberg said.
Students encouraged by ‘Matlock’ actress

Actress Nancy Stafford came to UCF April 12 to speak to students about acting and to encourage them in their future endeavors.

“Don’t fear failure and don’t be paralyzed by the past,” she said. “When Thomas Edison was asked if he thought he failed by the 200 times it took for his discovery his reply was he didn’t fail discovering the light bulb, it just took 200 steps to get there.”

Stafford has taken many steps to become a well-known Hollywood actress and achieve happiness in both her personal and professional lives.

Stafford has a journalism degree from the University of Florida and studied Marketing in her Graduate Program. Owning her own public relations agency was her goal, but while working at an agency she went on auditions and saw her interests were in the performing arts.

“When I realized how much fun I was having and the money I could make, I learned more and more into the acting business,” Stafford said.

The fun and the money were hard to come by for many years she said.

“My boyfriend at that time told me to get up every day and do as much as I can. The money will eventually come. Usually you wait for your agent to call you for work, but every morning I was dressed with make up on and making phone calls at 8 a.m. by myself.”

Audition after audition, including the preacher’s wife role in the show “7th Heaven,” didn’t pan out. For Stafford, the rejections would have been harder to take if she hadn’t been mentally prepared.

“There can be a hundred different reasons why you didn’t get the part. You may be too tall, too short, not the right look, not the right voice,” Stafford said.

Unless you come from a place where you don’t need approval to operate, it can be tough to take.”

Stafford said she has proven what it takes to keep coming back, as her acting experience would show. She co-starred in the show “Matlock” for five years, and also co-starred on the shows “St. Elsewhere”, “Sidekicks”, and “The Doctors.”

She was a guest star in the television series of “Fraiser,” “Babylon 5.” “Quantum Leap” and “Who’s The Boss.” In addition to acting, Stafford is also the host of “Main Floor,” the internationally syndicated network series, featuring the latest beauty and fashion trends. She also works for many charities including Professional Assisting the Homeless.

Stafford stressed individualism and the beauty lying within students, and told them that you getting a higher education because these days it’s more needed.”

Stafford said professionals in any field can use her advice about their careers.

“Don’t ever plan your career. Not every road you take will be beneficial. Sometimes you have to take the road you really don’t want to take and do things you really don’t want to do in order to get to where you want to be.”

“Don’t be afraid to try new things and fail at them. That will benefit you to understand what it meant to go through it more than someone who never tried.”

Adventurer favors history over underwater wrecks seal it up, throw them over the side and say 'Good luck.'

Ballard said in an interview Friday that he has enjoyed his lesser-known missions more than the commercially known ones, such as searches for the Bismark and the Yorktown.

"Ships of antiquity interest me now," he said. "I like the great stories, the compelling human stories. I like to study things we don't know anything about."

Ballard said he thought the fascination the public has for the Titanic is due to the fact that was such a dramatic occurrence.

"I think it is because it was its maiden voyage, and the thing took so long to sink, so there was this real morality play on the deck of the ship. Then you had all these well-known rich people, and then the captain saying 'Be British.' The wealthy people were on the deck, the Irish below decks; all the elements were there."

Ballard said the story he will never forget from the Titanic is of the 17-year-old boy who refused to get into a lifeboat.

"He turned 17 the day before the ship hit the iceberg. He wouldn't get in the boat because he said he was a man, and he died. That one always sticks with me."

His experiences from the Titanic taught Ballard some lessons about the limelight, and at least one very painful one.

Ballard's discovery of the ship revealed her whereabouts to the world and to the entrepreneurs who are now selling sightseeing tours and souvenirs from the ship.

Ballard has refused to divulge the whereabouts of his latest find, World War
II aircraft carrier the Yorktown.

"I don't give out locations any more because of the salvagers and the Titanic.
It's just how it's being done, it's very .
disrespectful."

Ballard said it is an emotional experience for him to find a ship, particularly when there are survivors still alive.

"When you find a ship like the Yorktown, and you have these survivors sitting by you, you are filled with professional joy at having found the ship, but then personal sorrow because these people are sitting there crying.

"You have to be respectful, and be calm about it. To be able to take someone back there and give them closure is a very powerful thing."

The hardest part of his job, according to Ballard, is getting the money to go on the missions.

"Once I get out there, I know what to do," he said. "It's just getting out there.
People will say 'I don't know if that will work' or 'Are you sure you can do that?'
You feel like you are endlessly auditioning."

National Geographic recently named
Ballard an explorer in residence, giving a five-year deal to do explorations.

For all his efforts, Ballard said he couldn't do his job by himself. Each mission requires a team of 50 to 100 people.

"You feel like you are doing the Super Bowl," he said.

He said that for all his success, he is always learning on the job.

"I learn about the sea constantly. It's like a creature, a wild animal; cuddly at times, a killer at others."

"It is almost like a detective story, you feel like Poirot or Colombo. But it is a wonderful thing to come back successful.
There's nothing like it."

Ballard will be working on finding ancient villages at the bottom of the Black Sea this summer. He also hopes to look off the coast of the Middle East for lost ships of the fabled "Sea People."

His future plans include searching for Antarctica explorer Ernest Shackleton's lost ship, the Endurance, said to be buried underneath an ice cap.
Students walk for good cause

ERINN FOURNIER

UCF students, faculty and staff will put on their walking shoes to benefit the March of Dimes. The UCF Walk America Team will hold a fundraiser on April 24 atロック, Haven Park.

Betty Conklin, captain of this year’s team, has been with the organization for eight years.

“WalkAmerica is a great way for students to do community service,” Conklin said. “A lot of the sororities and fraternities need service hours and this is a good way for them to get those.”

To encourage walkers, the March of Dimes gives everyone who raises at least $25 a team shirt. Other incentives include a weekend trip, theme park tickets and dinner for two. The walk will begin at 8 a.m.

“Look for us,” Conklin said. “We’ll be the ones in gold.”

To participate students should contact Conklin at the UCF Community Relations Office. They can call 317-7725 or email her at bconklin@tul.ulcf.edu. The team already raised $100 for the charity.

grades up, and it is nice to be recognized for that. Being a member is something that I will be proud of long after I’m out of school.”

“Joining this organization will provide these students with great leadership abilities and allow them to work with a diverse group of people who will help prepare them for the real world,” said Kim Fisher, regional director of the organization.

Two of the inductees will be awarded undergraduate scholarships. The new inductees will also have opportunities to participate in many Golden Key activities.

UCF’s chapter has participated in activities from health and wellness fairs to attending Golden Key conventions around the country.

UCF student Alex Porras won first place for web design at the national convention in California last summer. This year, the Golden Key International Convention will be held in Orlando from Aug. 5-8. More than 2,000 members from the United States, Canada, Malaysia and Australia will attend. The convention will give officers, advisors, and the opportunity to learn more about Golden Key and their responsibilities. Members can also network with corporate sponsors to nurture future careers.

There will also be workshops that cover topics such as chapter activities, leadership and personal skills.

“We are all extremely excited that the event is coming to Orlando,” Realista said.

The Golden Key National Honor Society has more than 260 collegiate chapters at major colleges and universities in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Australia, Canada and Malaysia. It has more than 500,000 lifetime members and 8,000 honourary members, including Presidents Clinton and Reagan, Nobel Prize winner Elie Wiesel and former American Red Cross President Elizabeth Dole.

Mishandled requests causes budget ripples

no excuse for the handling of the situation. “I will not apologize that some people just don’t do their job. People at the front desk of SG also don’t handle the situation properly. A number of requests have been routed and sitting on Jason’s desk. Jason really is not under any obligation to do anything with them.”

The clubs and agencies that were not on the proposed budget questioned the reasoning behind the cut, and if quality plans could still be made for the coming year.

“To produce a good Homecoming and get it to Florida and Florida State’s standard, you need more than $25,000. The one thing all students who attend here is Homecoming, so it should be one of the events given more money, not the least,” said Seth Daub, 1999 Homecoming director.

Siegell was assigned to work one-on-one with Daub to look at the funding for Homecoming and to come to a decision. Siegel said the Activity & Service Fee Committee looked closely at how the money was spent last year when determining the proposed budget for this year.

“The clubs requests are estimates for the year,” he said. “We look at what they spent year-to-date, and if there are funds left over in these accounts, why would you request higher?”

Members of the African American Student Union (AASU) said that clubs should not be held accountable for the way SG presented the proposed budget.

“If this budget, it’s written $19,000 was allocated for Black History Month,” said Joyce Miller, president of AASU. “We were told that the money was to be used only for that event. We feel we’ve done our best to abide by every guideline set and we still get slapped in the face by being cut $4,000.”

The way SG presented the budget packet in December 1998 instructed clubs to itemize their requests and gave an example of how to fill out the forms. Airfare, hotel, car rental, and students are welcome to examples, but are not funded in speak. Travel or conference on the budget is not done. Siegel said the Committee makes the budget packet in December Tuesday at an event. We feel we’ve done our funds left over in these was requested.

The travel and conference requests and registration were all listed on the examples, but are not funded in the budget.

Out of the 77 clubs and organizations on the budget, half of them put some type of travel or conference on the budget to follow what SG had instructed them to do.

In the “Funding Practice Guidelines,” travel for clubs will be sent to the Senate C&O Account. This account was increased from $60,000 to $300,000. The travel and conference money already cut from the budget totaled more than $200,000, which does not include the 26 clubs that were referred to Senate requesting $431,430.

Phillips said the increase is not the same as what clubs need for traveling.

“Previously C&O has paid for registration,” she said. “Now that airfare and hotels are on it, the budget will be much higher. How would we pay if C&O is out of money?”

Siegell said funding travel for clubs is something the Senate analyzes carefully and will hopefully do a better job with. He also said that travel is something that could be taken advantage of in the budget.

“Travel is something that can be abused in a great manner,” Siegel said. “We looked at what was necessary, reasonable and fair. This committee wanted a body [Senate] which has more experience in breaking travel down.”

There have been numerous amendments made to this budget that were not at the request of the SG office. The Agricultural/Horticultural Society requested $2,500 for the year, but on the budget it was printed that $12,500 was requested. The same holds true for the UCF Paintball Club, which requested $5,000 for their equipment, but on the budget it was printed in $9,000 that was requested.

The reason for the difference in the requests and what is on budget, according to Siegel, were amendments that were made to those particular clubs.

“Anyone can modify and re-submit their budget during the week following the deadline, which I have no problem with,” he said. “The Committee can determine what should be submitted and changed in the budget. Next year, though, we should have an absolute deadline.”

When OAF will pass this year’s budget and present it to the Senate is still a question. OAF is holding meetings every Tuesday at 5:30 for clubs, organizations and agencies to discuss and ask questions about the proposed budget. All senators and students are welcome to attend. Clubs can sign up in the Senate office for a specific time to speak.

Siegell said the Committee has put a lot of effort into this proposed budget and that the budget is not done. “This Committee has worked very hard, and has spent a lot of time analyzing many different issues,” he said. “I think we’re doing a good job so far. There’s a lot of factors that people don’t see from the outside that we deal with in making it.”

Police at the local authorities received a tip that more than $16,000 in illegal drugs would be at Alligator, deputies arrived with a search warrant to search the private residence where the party was held. Deputies found more than $16,400 in illegal drugs. Crimes may be linked to other violent crimes. Ali was arrested and charged with beating and raping two women in what police say appears to have been a torture chamber: the basement, where they found another woman who was handcuffed and who also appeared to have been beaten and raped.

LAIE OAHU, Hawaii - Three students at Brigham Young University’s Hawaii campus were arrested for setting off a bomb outside a first-floor dormitory room. Campus police charged the three 18-year-old students with reckless endangerment. Ali prepared to leave the property. Police said the bomb could have caused more serious damage, but the victim’s drapes were closed at the time, blocking more glass from flying into the room.

NEWARK, Del. - Police at the University of Delaware have charged a student with possessing child pornography on his personal computer and posting the sexually graphic images on a computer network for other students. Police said Zachary R. Davidson, 20, turned himself in and was subsequently charged with one count of using a computer to unlawfully depict a child engaged in a prohibited sexual act. The case has been referred to federal authorities because it involves the Internet.

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Students at George Washington University who have wondered why their mail never reached them may get some answers now that the U.S. Postal Inspector’s Office is conducting an investigation on campus.

According to the Hatchet, federal mail authorities are investigating a former mail room employee who is suspected of having stolen about $5,000 in cash and checks stuffed into students’ mail in March. The employee, who had worked for the university for only 60 days, was fired after he was suspected of taking mail that belonged to more than 50 students living on campus, said Jim Miller, a site manager for the university’s mail center. Authorities suspect even more goods were stolen and say their investigation is continuing. If convicted, Davidson could face a one to five-year suspension from the university in addition to possible jail time.

Q: Are speed bumps necessary at the crosswalk between the Communications and Visual Arts buildings?

A: “No, there is already stop signs for the crossing.”
---Hal Estes, 25, grad student, education

“I think people already know to slow down, but speed bumps would only help to take care of the more careless drivers.”
---Keith Wasielewski, 20, sophomore, liberal arts

“No, they are not needed. They should put the money to a better use.”
---Clayton Kern, 22, senior, computer science

“I feel that the speed bumps aren’t needed because the traffic usually stops for the pedestrians. The speed bumps are only a hindrance.”
---Bernicia Womack, 18, freshman, undecided

“No, they’re not needed. People generally stop. UCF is a little too good at enforcing traffic violations. I don't feel that they are necessary.”
---Carol Ljeng, 21, junior, accounting

“As a driver, I would say no because they’re annoying. But as a pedestrian, I would say yes because a few of my friends have almost been hit and the speed bumps will slow drivers down.”

In support of the death penalty

A person is condemned to death for a reason. To compare the execution of a repeat violent offender with China's tradition of blatant disregard for human rights is asinine. I question if you have ever been the victim of a senseless violent crime or even know anyone who has. If you were the victim of a rape, or your mother the victim of an assault/robbery that left her comatose, the last thing on your mind would be the perpetrators' civil rights and civil liberties.

Concerning the disproportionate number of African Americans executed in the United States: This trend reflects a long standing tradition of prejudice by those in judicial power, especially here in the southern state of Florida.

However, the issue that needs to be addressed is racism, not capital punishment. Interestingly, certain relevant statistics were absent from your idealistic soapbox manifesto, including what percentage of the total homicides are committed by African Americans.

However, the issue that needs to be addressed is racism, not capital punishment. Interestingly, certain relevant statistics were absent from your idealistic soapbox manifesto, including what percentage of the total homicides are committed by African Americans.

Selective use of random stats to support only any mildly intelligent person.

Restorative Justice is clearly the best route. It explains his/her actions to the victim, which may help every citizen's civil liberties

LEAVING FRIENDS HARDEST PART OF GRADUATING

Dan McMullan
Staff Writer

When this edition hits the newsstands, I’ll be heading up a U-Haul and getting ready for my move up north—the heat and flatness drives me nuts.

I have a picture, packed away now, of four friends and myself in the Shannon, Ireland airport in March 1991. Glad in our desert camouflage, we grinned broadly with our arms around each other’s shoulders. We were finally coming home.

The three of us, Jeff, Andre, and I had left North Carolina more than 11 months before for what was supposed to be only a six-month deployment.

We were in Guan in August 1990 when Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait and we all knew we wouldn’t be going home anytime soon.

By December we were heading to Bahrain, a small island nation in the Persian Gulf, in support of Operation Desert Shield. Days after we arrived, the other two guys in the photo, Troy and Nick, reported to our squadron, All Weather Attack Squadron 533. They were fresh from avionics training and boot camp.

Since our squadron, like every other squadron, was flying almost seven days a week, 24 hours a day, maintenance personnel worked two shifts—noon to midnight, every day. Everyone worked in perpetual fatigue and under the ever-present threat of war. Windblown sand got into everything and everyone was on everyone else’s nerves.

An argument broke out every day. I have forgotten what most of them were about. However, I will never forget the night the war started. I was standing on the wing of an airplane I was working on. The flight line was lit up with strips of blue and green runway lights. Tailights of aircraft blinked for as far as I could see. Every 30 seconds another plane took off. The air shook from jet exhaust. Our planes, loaded with a formidable array of napalm canisters, missiles, laser-guided bombs and even 2,000-pound bombs, took off to bomb Iraq.

Within a few minutes, President George Bush made his declaration of war. We all listened to a radio inside our maintenance tents; the news barely audible over the roar of the jets.

Mild panic broke out when the air base SCUD missile alarm went off. Everyone scrambled for their gas masks and protective gear. For almost two hours, we milled around in inches-thick coat-lined clothing and we stared at each other through our gas masks. We were all afraid that the missiles might be bearing nuclear, biological or chemical agents. None of us wanted to have practice on each other through our gas masks. We were all coal-lined clothing and we stared at each other.

The three of us, Jeff, Andre, and I are all left the Marines.

Andre’s wife joined the Air Force and eventually wound up stationed together in Washington state. Eventually, though, we all left the Marines.

A few weeks ago, my friends (which took over a year to cultivate) and I were sitting behind the Student Union eating dinner. One of them said, “This is great, here we are all the same ages, eating on campus. It’s starting to feel like a real university.”

To be sure, I miss my Marine buddies. E-Mail and Web pages help “bridge the gap in geography and life styles,” as the song says. But I am going to miss my UCF friends more. It took longer to find them. And with almost 30,000 people here, it’s nice to know that I matter to maybe three or four people, and they matter to me.

Thanks, friends, for making moving on so hard. Good luck and keep in touch.

When dealing with a band like Underworld, one must know what's on the resume to fully understand the present music. It's a similar situation for bands like Depeche Mode, or Skinny Puppy. The members have been in the music scene longer than they themselves can remember, but when one song finally opens the door to the house of mainstream music, the I-loved-this-band-all-along fandom terminates eat the tune alive, ceaseoping it to be the "one-hit wonder" band of the day.

Underworld is as new to the acid-dance scene as Disney World is to Orlando. They've both been here forever and have been major players in constructing their surroundings. Underworld began in the 1981 as Freer. Composed of Karl Hyde, Rick Smith, Alfie Thomas, John Warwicker, and Bryn Burrows, Freer released the albums, door, door in 1984 and get us out of here one year later.

The mid-eighties called for a line-up change as well as a new name. Baz Allen came in and Warwicker and Burrows left the group. Underworld (known as Underworld MK1) was born and in 1988, delivered underneath the radar. In 1989, change the weather came...

The Underworld as we know it now (dubbed Underworld MK2) is Karl Hyde, Rick Smith and Darren Emerson. In 1992, the group released two singles under the name Lenon Interrupt and since 1993, Underworld has released 13 singles and two albums, Dubnobasswithmyheadman and Second Toughest in the Infants. All that and it's still just the beginning. We haven't even begun to talk about Underworld's latest release, Beaucoup Fish (Formula), in stores on April 13th.

Since Underworld's 1993 single, "Mmm...Skyscraper I love you," the trio has been skyrocketing in the techno scene. When "Born Slippy" was released on the Trainspotting soundtrack in 1996, Underworld became a shoe-in with dance clubs around the country. With all of Underworld's transformation, Beaucoup is going to be thought of as one of the most influential house CD's of the 90's. And its creator will be on the list of artists that never stop producing material for the masses.

Hyde and Smith are founding members of Tomato, the creative media group that has been hired by mega-companies Nike and Volkswagen for commercial production, and takes credit for the title sequence in such movies as Trainspotting and The Jackal. Underworld has mixed for such artists as Bjork, Orbital, and Simply Red. Their work can be found on over a dozen compilation CDs. Simply put, Beaucoup Fish is another notch in Underworlds belt.

Such tracks as Push Downstairs, (a continuation of track two Push Upstairs), Cups, and Kittens are sure to hit the Firestone-esque clubs with a hammer. Fish is one of those CDs that will make every Top 10 list at the end of year, but no one will recognize the name.

Sort of what The English Patient did at the Oscars a couple years back. Except Fish is worth three hours of a person's time. Maybe even more.
Dream Blue

And don't forget, Digweed's track CD set is a compilation of tracks re-mixed by on the release, Sasha.

Northern Exposure: Expeditions

Sasha and John Digweed

Northern Exposure: Expeditions (Sony)

It's a fact, if there's quality house music being played, the artist isn't 'American. Hey, no need to fret. We do the alternative thing like no one can and some of America's roots are founded on rock & roll. But when it comes to house, techno, or acid music, the Europeans have us beat—hands down. With that in mind, the race to be the best DJ in Europe is like the race to be the best guitar player in America. And so, while we give them our legends like Guns n' Roses and Metallica (I didn't say they were good), we get techno genius-es like Sasha and John Digweed.

Their latest release, Expeditions (Formula) is actually the third installment of the Expeditions chapter. The double CD set is a compilation of tracks re-mixed by Sasha and Digweed. Original artists included are Blue Planet, Movement Perpetual and Bedrock. And don't forget, Digweed's track "What You Dream Of", under the alias Bedrock, was included on the Trainspottting soundtrack. That alone should get at least two tears to Sonic Boom.

The Hellacopters

Super To The Max!

(Man's Ruin Records)

A long time ago in a galaxy far, far away, Nickle Henderson got fed up with playing drums for the Swedish death metal act Entombed. So the gods of all that rock and roll urged him to start his own band. The result was The Hellacopters. These guys mix the raw power of Iggy and the Stooges with the larger than life attitude of Kiss and kick out the jams like the Mc5. “Gotta Get Some Action” and “Bore Me" are fine examples of rock and roll mayhem at its rawest. "Born Broke" is ideal bar brawl music and "Tab" sounds like a garage band tribute to Black Sabbath. Fans of REAL ROCK are advised to order this CD from your local record store and bare the hell out of WJRR to play them on the radio. You will not be disappointed.

—Ramiro Vazquez

Braniac's Daughter

Behave (Redline Records)

If Braniac's Daughter had a dollar for every time they have been compared to Garbage they would not need a big-time record contract. Even though their sound is similar to that of "G" band, Braniac's Daughter has the potential to create their own sound. "Give Myself To You" successfully combines heavy guitars with techno. Singer Kristy Jo Haima has the look down and her voice has a kittenish charm to it but she is kicking in the attitude department. Maybe she should take more lessons from the Shirley Manson School of Stage Presence. Behave is a decent effort for a first try but it's missing something. I can't put my finger on it but it's that little something that separates the Guns n' Roses from the Faster Pussycats. Maybe next time they'll find it.

Widespread Panic

the next great tour band

Mark James

STAFF WRITER

Widespread Panic has made its name as a live band and is in the second week of a mini-tour that will last through the end of June. Widespread Panic played at the House of Blues in Orlando on Monday and Tuesday night. Their new CD, Till the Medicine Takes, will be released July 27, after which they will return to the road for an extended tour. Guitarist Michael Houser spoke freely in impromptu jams?

CFF: Do you pay much attention to the faces in the crowds?

Houser: Yeah, that’s what we enjoy as a band and the fans seem to like that.

CFF: You turned down an opportunity to open for The Rolling Stones.

Houser: Yeah, I really missed that whole thing so I don’t really know that much about it.

CFF: Do you have different renditions of the same songs?

Houser: Yeah, we have some songs that have 2 separate versions, not many songs. I’d say most of our songs have places that are not the same any night and a lot of songs if we feel like it that night we’ll not end it or in the middle of it somewhere just take it out and maybe bring it back or maybe not.

CFF: Are you working on a live band and is in the second week of a mini-tour that will last through the end of June. Widespread Panic played at the House of Blues in Orlando on Monday and Tuesday night. Their new CD, Till the Medicine Takes, will be released July 27, after which they will return to the road for an extended tour. Guitarist Michael Houser spoke freely in impromptu jams?

CFF: What kind of influences did you have?

Houser: Well I didn’t even throw in for all of us. It doesn’t matter if you’re talking about Neil Young or whatever. Just that era of music. I think that’s the common theme for all of us. It doesn’t matter if you’re talking about Neil Young or The Dead or Black Sabbath or Steely Dan or whatever. Just that era of music for us was the definition of us. It’s a roll.

CFF: What kind of influences did you have back then (when the band came together), or what bands were you listening to?

Houser: We all bring a different set of bands that we loved and that influenced us. We all come from different states and sort of similar back grounds, but each of us brought a different set of bands into the mix. But I’d have to say that all of us were strongly influenced by the rock ‘n’ roll of the 60′s and 70′s. That’s the common theme for all of us. It doesn’t matter if you’re talking about Neil Young or The Dead or Black Sabbath or Steely Dan or whatever. Just that era of music for us was the definition of us. It’s a roll.

Houser: Well I didn't even throw in Santana and Rush, Ted Nugent, The Doors.

CFF: The Rolling Stones weren't in there either.

Houser: I don't know if any of us are big Rolling Stones fans to tell you the truth. I know I've never seen a Rolling Stones CD on the bus. I don't know why that is...I think most of us

60s. Or 70s that. I didn't start playing the guitar from the blues, I started from the bands of the CFF: What do you think about the Sabbath and some Rush and stuff like thing that ever happened to our band.

Houser: Well my favorite guitar player is Houser: You, I'd say that all of us down to the last one are baseball fans.

CFF: You mentioned baseball once before, are you guys baseball fans?

Houser: Well you know one of the things that we love about baseball and why we love it so much is that it's, an individual game and it's a team game all at the same time. You have a team that you depend on but at the same time you have to get up to the plate and be a single person and I think that is really the essence of baseball. The other thing is it's live and they go out and do it every day. Baseball is a very long season and different guys have different days and some times you have good days and everything's going your way and some days you are just horrible days but since it's not only and individual game but a team game then your teammates can bail you out. And then some days the whole team has a bad day so I think that's what we really love about it. It's very close to what we do.

Lead Stories

• According to an April New York Times report, the purchase price in Japan of giant stag beetles has dropped recently to about $20,000. The beetles, which resemble small lions, are avidly collected by traditional Japanese pet owners, according to insect salesman Katsutoshi Misaki, who has sold to international clients for about $6,000. According to Misaki, the beetles are often kept as pets that, according to insect salesman Katsutoshi Misaki, "have different personalities." Indeed, Misaki, "When I hold in my hand, I feel real affection for it." One breeder said a rare pet beetle sold for about $2,000 for about 500. The school board of San Juan Capistrano, Calif., voted in April to approve in principle a new, 600-person middle school that would cater to students of average academic abilities and who avoid extracurricular activities. The board believes such students lose motivation when placed alongside higher achievers. Said a school district official, "This is going to reduce overcrowding." Recently retired Air Force Sgt. Charles O. Hamilton Jr. was arrested at Upper Marlboro, Md., on March 10, 2000, at a school allegedly attempting to enter a toddler's bedroom at night. Police believe Hamilton is the serial burglar who steals into houses overnight, sometimes while the occupants are asleep. Following his arrest, police found about 1,000 pounds of household handwork, along with about a thousand dollars, some of which were marked with boys' names on them with photographs inside showing the named boy wearing the diaper.

The Litigious Society

• Lucia Kaiser filed a lawsuit in February against the Ohio restaurant in New York City, claiming that her 400-guest birthday party there in December (among the guests, Harry Belafonte and Quincy Jones) did not receive proper service. The restaurant owner said it was a lovely party and that he fully complied with the contract, but Kaiser stated that she was so unfulfilled that she wants $50 million in damages.

• In February, III. Roland, Co., Chino, Calif., filed suit against Cilindron for $2,000 for failing to supply a satisfactory sifter for her husband's 50th birthday party. Chilindron stated that she specifically asked for a woman with at least a 40-inch chest and who would do a nurse-like act, but received what she estimated to be a 36A woman who merely did a traditional striptease. After decades of failed or meaningless "studies" by advocates of the medical effectiveness of relieving pain by attaching magnets to various parts of the body, a New York Medical College researcher announced on January 1 that some authorities believe actually passes muster. In a report on 24 patients with diabetes, Doctor Michael Weintraub reported in the American Journal of Physical Medicine, those with magnets enclosed in foot pads reported less pain than those without stimulation magnets in the pad. Weintraub theorized that a certain nerve in the foot might be responsive to the electrical energy created by the magnetic waves.

Recurring Theme

Last year News of the Weird reported on a Missouri woman's bugging a judge not to imprison the man who had shot her in the head (and then sent her into a coma and killed her felons) because she nevertheless loved him and had since married him (and produced a replacement child). In San Francisco in January 1999, Anthony Tyone Davis, 42, was sentenced to 35 years in prison for shooting a woman with a hammer, so severely that he left a skull indentation in the shape of the head of the hammer. The victim subsequently married Davis and refused to testify against him, but he was convicted on a doctor's testimony and the 911 tape of the incident.

Things Are Not as They Seem

• In January, a jury in Ringgold, Ga., acquitted Alvin Ridley, 56, of murdering his wife. Because most neighbors and relatives of the couple had not seen Virginia Ridley in 25 years, and because Alvin was an eccentric knife living in a dilapidated, roofless shed in the Appalachian mountains, many long had it that Alvin had slashed Virginia shortly after their wedding and eventually killed her. However, Alvin said Virginia died of an epileptic seizure and persuaded the jury of the couple's love by showing Virginia's prolific diaries, which describe her simple lifestyle, passion for privacy, and intense, almost high school crush-like obsession with her husband.

• In February, a judge tossed out Chouinard's $2 million in damages for injuries suffered when he tried to escape from prison in 1996. King, 27, tried to escape from prison in 1996. In that attempt, King had attacked a female guard with a homemade knife, but a little while later, two other guards subdued King, causing some bruises and a cut below one eye, severely that he left a skull indentation in the shape of the head of the hammer. The victim subsequently married Davis and refused to testify against him, but he was convicted on a doctor's testimony and the 911 tape of the incident.

Thinning the Herd

A 54-year-old woman was ran over and killed in February by an Amtrak train in San Jose, Calif., she was walking on the tracks wearing headphones listening to the radio. And an unidentified middle-aged man was killed in Nairobi, Kenya, in March when he accidentally ran into front of a bus while escaping from the All Saints Cathedral, where he had just stolen the contents of collection plates. And a 73-year-old man was killed in a daylight in Las Vegas in February; he had just challenged a 69-year-old man over who was tougher.

• In November in Lake St. Croix Beach, Minn., fire­fighters assisted a 13-year-old boy who had gotten his lip stuck in an eggbeater. And in Taipei, Taiwan, in February, doctors removed a chip from the eye socket of Japanese tourist Satoko Kinoshida; it had penetrated more than an inch. And in December, fire­fighters in Gosport, England, were called to a home to extricate teacher John Gueran, 42, who had become stuck headfirst with, according to London's Daily Telegraph, its "backsides in the air," behind a pantry trying to retrieve his son's Christmas gift.

• Latest Highway Truck Spills: 36 tons of Tootsie Rolls, Blow Pops and other candy, near downtown Nashville, Tenn., January; thousands of surgical scalpels, scattered over a half-mile stretch of Route 10 near Walton, N.Y., January (puncturing the tires of a copper Oka, en route from the Denver Mint to the Federal Reserve Bank in Little Rock, Ark., March.

Never underestimate the flavor of a good Italian restaurant. A place called Goodfellas might give an image of big time Mafia guys and their thousand dollar Italian suits. Or maybe an occasional drive-by shooting, or smuggling of illegal merchandise. Goodfellas is more than a pizzeria. It is also a headquarters for authentic Italian food.

Italian food. Goodfellas’ Pizzeria and Italian restaurant, next to Blockbuster Video on Colonial Drive and Alafaya Trail, is where to find a special Italian taste. The atmosphere is simple. No fancy spoons, no tablecloths, no dress codes and no classical Italian music. There’s just some delicious traditional Italian food, low prices, good service and Frank Sinatra on the radio.

The dishes are simple, and not over elaborated. And that’s the best feature of Goodfellas. The common items like lasagna, baked ziti and the chicken marsala taste gourmet. The customer can come into Goodfellas and understand what it says on the menu, and get an extra special meal. Even though Goodfellas is traditional from southern Italy, cheese. And probably the best meal on the menu, the chicken Florentine with spinach, wine sauce and mozzarella cheese.

Finally, while listening to Frank Sinatra’s “New York, New York” or some Bee Gees from Saturday Night Fever, you can get a large 16 inch pizza, or just take it out or have it delivered. Huge calzones and strombolis are equally satisfying. And there are thirty more choices to choose from. Lunch specials are under $5. And early bird specials from four until six offer meals under $7.

More than making good pizza, Goodfellas out performs the other Italian franchises in price, selection and quality. At the same time, Goodfellas provides a friendly atmosphere and a tasty traditional meal. If Joe Pesci lived in Orlando he’d know where to go.

Timothy Olyphant passes 'Go' on way to fame

Ian Spelling
College Press Exchange

Timothy Olyphant thinks "Go" has a lot going for it. Certainly, it stars the actor—best known for his role as the killer's apprentice in "Scream 2"—in a new film that deservers to be considered far more than "Pulp Fiction" for teens, as it's been dubbed by way too many sound bite-loving journalists.

"It would suck if all there was was a simple catch-phrase for the film," he says. "The fact is that it IS in the 'Pulp Fiction' genre. The perspective, though, is that of an 18-year-old girl (Sarah Polley) trying to pay her rent. You've got this celebration of youth happening. The screenwriter described the film's title, described 'Go,' as motion without purpose. It's a time of the future. Everything is just not marriage material. That impressed me. We shot the movie before she exploded into the huge level of fame we see now, but we did some reshoot after that. In that time, maybe five months, she'd become a huge star. Man, it was amazing to see that transformation happen so quickly. And it's amazing that when I first read the script, I was happy to see that he comes full-circle, that you see him be a little vulnerable, a little human. He starts as a cliche, but he doesn't end as one, which I liked."

Olyphant, who's 30, married in Los Angeles, also liked his sexy scenes with Holmes. Thanks to "Dawson's Creek," the young actress is all the rage.

"She's just a sweetheart," Olyphant praises. "She couldn't be more solid or grounded. That impressed me. We shot the movie as it's been described the film's title, described 'Go,' time of the future. It was amazing to see that transformation happen so quickly. And it's amazing."

Women’s golf beats pressure, wins TAAC Championship

DAVID MARSTERS  STAFF WRITER

The UCF Women’s Golf team shattered records en route to winning the TAAC Championship last week at Southernness Golf Club in Stockbridge, Louisiana. The Knights took the lead after the first day of the tournament and never looked back, finishing the three-day event with a school record low score of 896. The previous mark of 909 was set back in 1992 in the Sun Belt Conference Tournament.

Beginning the tournament with a first round score of 307, UCF took a one shot lead into the clubhouse over Campbell University, while Georgia State trailed by only two strokes. Line Berg led the Knights early, firing a first day 74 which put her in 2nd place overall. On the second day, Campbell improved upon their first round score by ten strokes, shooting a 10 over par 298. UCF was up to the challenge, however, and extended their lead over the Fighting Camels by two strokes after firing an eight over par 296.

Freshman Monica Gundersrud led the Knights with a one under par 71, while Line Berg remained in 2nd place with a 72.

On the third and final day, there would be no backing down for UCF, as they handled the pressure and shot a tournament low round of 293. Both Berg and Gundersrud fired even par rounds on the day, while Olivia Hartley finished with a one under par 71, while Line Berg remain ed in 2nd place overall. Hartley finished seventh with a three day total of 218, overall with a 228, while sophomore Chrissy Atchison also placed in the top 10 at 230. Beate Faanes shot a 236 to finish in a tie for 20th place.

The 2nd place finish was the second of the year for Berg, who also has won two tournaments this year. Berg’s recent success is all the more more amazing, considering that earlier in the year, she had to withdraw from the Lady Gator Invitational to catch an immediate flight to Norway, where her mother was in the hospital in a coma-like state.

Fortunately, her mother, who had been diagnosed with cerebral meningitis, began to recover and was soon released from the hospital, with Line at her side. After ten days in Norway, Line returned to UCF, only to depart two days later for the Dominican Republic for the Casa de Campo Tournament. She hadn’t picked up a club during that time period, but came back to take 9th place in the tournament after challenging for medalist honors.

That kind of effort is a big reason for UCF’s success.

With the win, the Knights claimed their second tournament title of the year, with the other coming at the inaugural UCF Women’s Invitational in February. Their victory was a vast improvement on last year’s 6th place finish in the TAAC Tournament, and they will be looking to continue their success in the conference for some time to come, as none of the players who competed last week were seniors.

Next up for the UCF Women’s Golf team is the NCAA Regionals where they will take on some of the best collegiate women’s golf teams in the country.

Culpepper to learn under childhood hero Cunningham nation’s elite flooded the screen as the new Division I-A power had its coming-out party courtesy of two of its biggest contributors.

Culpepper, who recently became the only Golden Knight football player to have his number retired, was the fourth quarterback taken, but steps into the best situation of the fire drafted in the first round.

He’ll learn from childhood idol Randall Cunningham, the 26-year-old signal caller who resurrected his career with an All-Pro season last year. He’ll be surrounded by the most powerful offense in the NFL, littered with the likes of running backs Robert Smith and Leroy Hoard, as well as receivers Jake Reed, Cris Carter and last year’s rookie sensation, Randy Moss, who should end up on the receiving end of plenty of touchdown passes from Culpepper.

Best of all, he won’t be rushed and is under no pressure. It’s the ideal situation for a young quarterback with so much potential.

“Look at him as the guy for the future,” Vikings offensive coordinator Ray Sherman said.

“That’s why you take a player like that. We felt he was the best guy on the board for us.”

NOTE: Former UCF offensive guard Marcus Jenkins and wide receiver Sisa Burley may have gone undrafted by the NFL over the weekend, but it doesn’t mean either won’t have a chance to pursue their dreams.

The Pittsburgh Steelers will bring in Jenkins, while the Miami Dolphins will give Burley an opportunity as free agents.

Two other players also could get a look, though neither has been made an offer. Linebacker Dean Porter has been contacted by the San Francisco 49ers and the Seattle Seahawks, while tackle Cornell Green has heard from the New Orleans Saints.

At press time, no other Golden Knights had heard from NFL franchises.

Vikings felt Culpepper was the top quarterback prospect available was evident in the smiles on their faces as they made the pick. High fives all around.

"We felt that he was the best of the quarterbacks," Vikings coach Dennis Green said. "Let's just say [his rating was] about as high as you can get. He's the fastest of the five quarterbacks, he's the quickest of the five quarterbacks. Good teams rarely have a chance to pick the No. 1 quarterback.

As nice as it is to have a ringing endorsement from his coach, it's even nicer to have the man who signs the paychecks singing his praises.
"I think the Culpepper pick was gigantic," Vikings owner Red McCombs said. "You get a guy come along like Culpepper, and he'll be the outstanding quarterback in the league for a 10-year period. I think that's a huge, huge step."

If we had the first choice in the draft, our people would have taken Culpepper first ahead of all the quarterbacks."

Mike Earys, the Vikings' director of research and development put together all of the team's scouting reports. Of all the ones he saw, Culpepper's stood out the most.
"I can't recall a more impressive total scouting report on a player," Earys said.

"Culpepper didn't have any negatives." And aside from the early lack of playing time, this situation doesn't have any negatives either. Unless you count the cold weather, as Daunte is a Floridian through and through. At least the Vikings play their home games in a dome.

"Hold that clipboard high, Daunte. You made an entire university and community proud. When your chance comes, show the world what Central Florida already knows.

Traina drafted 11th by USBL franchise

Travis Bell

Former UCF basketball standout Brad Traina has the opportunity to showcase his skills to hopefully make a career in professional basketball.

The Gulf Coast Sun Dogs selected Traina with the 11th pick in the first round of the United States Basketball League Draft.

"It makes a statement for Gulf Coast because they thought enough of him to take him with their first pick," UCF Coach Kirk Speraw said.

Traina joins six former UCF players in the USBL, including three who played last year. Howard Porter, Chuck Roberts and Ochiel Swaby played together on the Tampa Bay Windjammers.

After playing behind Harry Kennedy and Mark Jones for his first three seasons, Traina stepped in as the senior leader last year, setting career highs in scoring (16.7), field-goal shooting (.494), three-point shooting (.407), and free-throw shooting (.796). Kennedy played overseas after UCF and Jones was drafted by the Continental Basketball Association and also was exploring options overseas.

"Getting players drafted gets us good recognition and proves that we have good players," Speraw said. "We had enough players having success (in professional leagues) to gain that recognition."

The USBL has been a steppingstone for many players to the NBA. Charlotte Hornets forward Anthony Mason, Orlando Magic guard Darrell Armstrong and forward Derek Strong, San Antonio Spurs guard Mario Elie, and New York Knicks backcourt mates Chris Childs and Charlie Ward all spent time in the USBL before garnering success in the NBA.

"I don't know where he'll end up," Speraw said. "He improved every year at UCF, and he'll attain the highest level that he is capable of attaining."

Traina has much to offer the professional ranks with his 6-foot-5 frame because he can play guard and forward. He has proven he can rebound, setting a single-game school record with 19 and he is a solid outside shooter (156 career three-pointers). He also can shoot well from the outside, and he has great skill and ability.

Dolphins visit Golden Knights in pivotal series

UCF gets its first chance against a Tran America Athletic Conference power when Jacksonville travels to Orlando for a three-game series at Tinker Field on Saturday and Sunday.

The Knights have moved up the TAAC standings after early season struggles and are firmly in second place at 14-4. JU is three games behind in the loss column at 14-7. This is a crucial series for UCF which attempts to stay with conference-leading Florida Atlantic (17-1).

"(This series) is huge, but it also gives us a chance to play with FAU in the end," Coach Jay Bergman said. "They've got one loss and we've got four, but that's something that you've got to worry about later on."

Jacksonville has proven it can play with top-notch opponents, having defeated Florida, Virginia and Maryland while compiling a 26-15 record. The Dolphins looked to be the only team able to keep pace with FAU as they started 13-1 in the TAAC, but have since gone 1-6 in conference play and have lost eight of their last nine games.

JU has relied heavily on its pitching but suffered a big loss when Nick Regilio had his tonsils removed. Regilio was 6-0 in seven starts with a 3.07 ERA and had struck out 47 in 41 innings.

Palmer Ebanks and James Ray have anchored the rotation along with Regilio. Both have earned TAAC Pitcher-of-the-Week honors. Ebanks has a 3.26 ERA with 69 innings in 14 appearances. Ray has a 5.08 ERA in 39 innings.

The Dolphins are hitting .312 but have only hit 35 home runs. They have a .474 slugging percentage and have committed 52 errors for the third best fielding percentage in the conference. Offensively, Jacksonville averages 7.5 runs a game, while its defense and pitching have helped hold opponents to less than five runs a contest.

"JU is a team that doesn't beat themselves," Bergman said. "They play good defense and have had timely hitting all year."

Senior Kirk Asche has led the Dolphins with a .402 average and a .734 slugging percentage. Junior Josh Vollstedt has been the catalyst at the top of the lineup with 21 stolen bases and 37 runs scored.

Bergman gets a chance to face the Dolphins for the first time since 1992. Bergman is 12-12 against JU since coming to UCF, but the two teams haven't faced each other since the Golden Knights joined the TAAC.
UCF sweeps Hatters with two blowouts, Walsh's heroics

Keith Walsh played the role of unlikely hero with an extra-inning three-run home run on Sunday, helping UCF record a three-game sweep of Stetson. UCF (20-12) improved to 14-4 in the Trans America Athletic Conference and dropped Stetson (21-22, 10-11) closer to not making the conference tournament. "It was great to get a sweep on the road against a good team like Stetson," Coach Jay Bergman said. "But I think what went unnoticed is that we only gave up six runs in three games. It's great to have somebody else be the hero, and there were a lot of heroes in the third game."

Walsh, who was hitting .159 entering the final game, got his chance after UCF tied the game in its last at-bat in the seventh. Three consecutive walks led to the tying run, and Walsh belted the game-winning home run to secure the 5-3 win. "I just tried to hit the ball hard somewhere and get it through the infield, but I got under it a little bit and it got through," Walsh said. "It worked out for the best."

Starting pitching improves in sweep

The reason UCF held Stetson to six runs in the entire series was the result of solid starting pitching.

David Rankin, Justin Pope and Troy Satterfield started the three games and threw 19 innings, allowing 15 hits and five runs with 16 strikeouts and only two walks.

Rankin held the Hatters hitless for 5.2 innings before yielding a hit to Jason Shipler in the Knights' 20-3 win.

The doubleheader, which was played Sunday due to rain on Saturday, got off to a good start as Pope threw a five-hit shutout. Satterfield returned to his old form in the nightcap, going five innings and allowing only four hits and two runs. "I've been trying to get that first shutout all season because the pitching staff has been talking about it," Pope said after his first career complete game. "I gave everything I could to make sure we got the shutout."

Offense explodes for 37 runs in two games

UCF's offense gave its starters plenty of run support in the first two games, as UCF won, 20-3 and 17-0.

Dustin Brisson keyed the outburst in the first game, going 5-for-6 with seven RBIs and a grand slam. Matt Bowser went 4-for-4 in the opener on Sunday with two doubles, two home runs, and seven RBIs.

Tim Booth was the leader on Friday at the top of the lineup. He was 4-for-5 with three runs scored and five RBIs, including a double and stolen base. Mark Batia added three hits, and Ivan Trujillo, Darryl Stephens, Mike Fox, and Brent Spooner had two hits apiece in the 22-hit barrage.

"We just had one of those nights offensively that a team dreams about," Bergman said. "Tim Booth set the tempo for us offensively. I thought our right-handed batters stepped up since Brisson and Bowser have been our main RBI guys all season."

During the 17-0 win, UCF pounded out 16 hits and drew nine walks. Batia was 2-for-3 with three runs and three RBIs, and Booth scored two runs, drove in one, and stole two bases. Stephens and Trujillo had two hits apiece, and Spooner added three RBIs.

"We're just taking games one at a time," Bergman said. "We're letting the kids enjoy each ballgame because this has been a year that nobody expected us to do this. We've really overachieved."}

Men's tennis falters in TAAC Championship

TONY MEJIA
SPORTS EDITOR

The UCF Men's Tennis team went into last weekend's TAAC Championships on a roll and with the mindset that they could win it all. They would have to get through some tough teams to do so, including Florida Atlantic, who had beaten them this year, and #57 Georgia State.

The Knights were the third seed in the tournament, and received a first-round bye. After a fairly easy quarterfinal victory against Stetson, UCF avenged the earlier loss to Florida Atlantic, knocking it out in the semifinals.

Unfortunately, the second tough team the Golden Knights needed to get through was just too much. Georgia State awaited the UCF men in the Monday morning final, but the Knights just had nothing left. The match started out on a positive note, with Novak and Camacho defeating the (#49) doubles team of Nicolas Brochu and Karl Lindberg 9-7 in the #1 spot. David Winberg and sophomore William Guerin won 8-6 over Mitja Pavlinic and Tadej Senk at #2 to clinch the doubles point, but it was all downhill from there. Georgia State quickly took the first four singles matches, earning the title of TAAC Champions with a 4-1 victory over the Knights.

Senk tied the match at 1-1 with a 6-1, 6-2, win over Greg Novak at No. 5. Pavlinic gave the Panthers a 2-1 lead with a 6-3, 6-1, win over Camacho at No. 2. Daniel Wajnberg put GSU on the brink with a 6-3, 6-1, win over William Guerin at No. 3. Pablo Perez-Gras clinched the win for GSU with a 6-3, 6-1, win over Johan Westin at No. 6.

In the semifinals, Florida Atlantic, who had beaten UCF 4-3 back on February 19, played the Golden Knights in a match that would prove to be just as competitive, once again coming down to the final set. Greg Novak, repeating his heroics of the day before, won his match in a dramatic third set tiebreak to send the upstart Knights into the conference final, 4-3 victors over FAU.

Unfortunately, they didn't have much time to celebrate, losing to the Panthers less than 24 hours later.

The UCF men's season ends with a record of 19-5, one of their best seasons ever. Seniors Pedro Pacheco and David Winberg ended their careers at UCF as one of the school's most successful duos. Pacheco finished with 61 career singles victories, tying him with Steve Bryant (1975-1978) for the most in UCF history. The Knights return a strong nucleus next year, bringing back six players from this year's team, including Federico Camacho, William Guerin, Johan Westin, Greg Novak, Fernando Martinez, and Houston Muzio. All made significant contributions this year and will step into bigger roles next season.
Bria leaves UCF to revive Ohio

Lynn Bria guided the Golden Knights to several firsts last season: their first No. 1 seed in the TAAC Tournament, the team’s first TAAC Player of the Year and TAAC Coach of the Year awards and its first TAAC Championship in four seasons.

Now, Bria will attempt to reproduce her success as the new women’s basketball coach at Ohio University.

Bria, who coached UCF for three seasons, officially accepted the job at Ohio on April 13. Bria guided the Knights to a 20-11 season last year, including a TAAC title and an NCAA tournament appearance.

Bria compiled a 50-36 record, placing her second in UCF’s all-time wins category. Athletic Director Thomas Boeh is hoping Bria can duplicate her success as the Bobcats coach.

“Lynn is clearly a rising star that possesses all the necessary professional tools and complements them with a truly engaging personality,” Boeh said.

“We are very enthused to have her take over the Ohio women’s basketball program and believe that it simply could not be in better hands.”

Ohio’s program can best be described as struggling, as it completed a 4-22 season, including a 2-14 finish in the Mid American Conference. Bria will leave the Knights with a solid team and a good foundation for the future.

While the Knights will spend time looking for a new coach, UCF’s roster is solid. The Knights lose only three seniors. Unfortunately that group includes TAAC Player of the Year Chariya Davis.

But, Bria did not leave the Knights empty-handed. She had one of the most successful recruiting seasons in school history and has signed four underclassmen. The Knights’ recruiting class is ranked in the Top 50 by The Women’s Basketball Journal.

“Yes, she leaves us with a solid team and a good foundation for the future,” UCF Athletic Director Steve Sloan said. “The assistant coaches also deserve a lot of credit for the progress made in the program.”

“We wish Lynn the very best in her new position at Ohio University. She made a major contribution to the growth of our women’s basketball program at UCF.”

ed Samford in the finals. (#51) Veronica Widyadharma returned to her winning ways following a semifinal loss, beating Danielle Dodds 6-1, 6-1 in the #1 singles spot, while Svantesson overcame a one set deficit to win at #3 singles to win 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Also picking up singles victories for the Knights were Gaelle Gouttefarde, Sonja Prokopcic and Hadas Ronen.

“Been a very tough season, had a lot of ups and downs,” said first year head coach Michael Dublin.

“Veronica Widyadharma has helped stabilize the team. It was awesome to see the team come through in the championship.”

Widyadharma, the two-time defending TAAC Player of the Year improved her singles record to 22 - 5 on the season, and she and Gouttefarde ran their doubles record to 21 - 3. They are the #47-ranked doubles team in the country. Hadas Ronen ran her record to 21 - 6 on the year, while Daniela Okal is 19 - 7. All seven of the UCF women have collected 16 or more singles victories this season.

Next up for the Lady Knights are the NCAA Regionals, beginning on May 14 in a location that has yet to be determined.

The team looks focused after trouble on the second day of the tournament when the Knights ran into some trouble. After taking the first three singles matches from Jacksonville University, the Dolphins stormed back to win the next three, including Silvana Vargas’ 6-3, 1-6, 6-0 upset win over Widyadharma. The match was to be decided in doubles play, where UCF has excelled all season.

Widyadharma atoned for her singles loss by teaming up with Gaelle Gouttefarde to win 8-2 at #1 doubles. The match was then up to the #3 doubles unit of Svantesson and Hadas Ronen, who had only played together five times this year. Svantesson and Ronen responded, and beat Greta Perovic and Tiffany Pincioti 8-4 for the deciding point.

The close call could be just what the team needed to keep them focused on a solid showing at the NCAA Tournament.

Culpepper and Miranda selected in NFL Draft

ESPN's Mike Tirico called it a red-letter weekend for the University of Central Florida, as two of its former stars proved that being a Golden Knight is no longer a hindrance in achieving a professional career.

With the 11th overall pick, the Minnesota Vikings select ... quarterback Daunte Culpepper from the University of Central Florida.

And thus, UCF's greatest player's professional journey begins, turning in the black and gold for the Golden Knights, owners of the AAC.

Culpepper will wait his turn before taking purple reigns

Tony Mejia

On Saturday afternoon, Daunte Culpepper became the best clipboard holder in the NFL. And he couldn't be happier about it.

Central Florida's pride and joy was selected 11th overall by the Minnesota Vikings, who were one chipshot field goal away from the Super Bowl last season. They have three of the NFL's top corners in Jake Reed, Cris Carter and Randy Moss.

And they have 36-year-old Randall Cunningham running the show, with Culpepper firmly entrenched as an apprentice. He has been on the sidelines for the entire year as his childhood idol calls it a career.

While he won't get many chances to throw the football in the regular season, expect the Vikings to give Culpepper plenty of action in the preseason. In addition, with the way Minnesota scores points, a couple of routes are inevitable. Culpepper may be the beneficiary of mop-up duty.

Imagine that. Daunte Culpepper relegated to mop-up duty. And happy about it.

Former Buffalo Bills quarterback Jim Kelly, now an ESPN analyst, said Culpepper's situation probably will lead him to having one of the more productive careers of any of the quarterbacks taken in the first round.

There is no better situation than Culpepper's. Kentucky's Tim Couch will have the burden of the No. 1 selection and testy fans in Cleveland, while Syracuse's Donovan McNabb was booed by Philadelphia Eagles fans in attendance at the draft. He was in trouble before he even put on his new team's hat.

Cincinnati Bengals' selection, Akili Smith, is in a good situation, especially since he should be a backup after only one full season as a collegiate starter, but he doesn't have the luxury of the offense that now surrounds Culpepper.

UCF gets plenty of attention on ESPN's draft coverage

It was just another day at the office for the UCF Women's Tennis Team last week at the TAAC Championships. For the Golden Knights, owners of the past two TAAC Tournament titles, it was business as usual.

UCF travelled to Stetson University last weekend to take on ten other schools in hopes of advancing to NCAA Regionals. Last year, they did not even drop a set in the TAAC Tournament, and this year were once again the favorites and had earned the No. 1 seed.

After a surprisingly tough semifinal match against Jacksonville, UCF cruised to its third straight title, 5-0 against sixth-seeded Wofford.

Election Results: Patton Voted New President

by Brian McMahon

Judicial Board's decision to disqualify Patton-Cupicha was overturned

After several weeks of meetings, hearings, and appeals, Director of Student Judicial programs, Dr. Garth Jenkins, overturned the Election Commission's decision to disqualify Patton-Cupicha. After several weeks of meetings, hearings, and appeals, Director of Student Judicial programs, Dr. Garth Jenkins, overturned the Election Commission's decision to disqualify Patton-Cupicha.

Election Commission disqualified the Patton/Cupicha ticket on March 8 for failing to pay a $5 fine in the time specified by statute. Patton-Cupicha immediately appealed to the Judicial Board citing several discrepancies with the disqualification process. According to their appeal, the Election Commission did not hold a meeting according to Florida State Statutes. There was also a discrepancy over the definition of "10 school days." According to SGA statute, Patton-Cupicha had 10 school days to pay their fine.

After a long session, the Judicial Board decided to uphold the Election Commission's decision to disqualify the Patton-Cupicha ticket. Patton-Cupicha then appealed that decision the UCF Administration on April 7. The Administration overturned the Student Judicial Council's decision to sustain the Election Commission's decision.

In a memo written by Jenkins, he states, "The Election Commission meeting on March 8...broke Florida Statutes. The members did not physically convene to deliberate as a body on the issues and subsequently take a collective vote." He also wrote about a conflict of interests among some members of the Election Commission.

When asked about Jenkins' decision, Patton stated, "We are excited that this is all over and hope students would not be turned off to Student Government. Rather, we hope they would have a desire to get involved next year and help SGA support the student body." Now that the appeals process has ended, Darin Patton and Andrew Cupicha will take office this summer and lead our students into the next millennium.

Letter From the President

Dear Fellow Knights,

It's that time of year when every student is stressing about exams. Well, don't fear, summer is around the corner. I bet all of you are envisioning a summer filled of visits to the new Universal theme park and visits to beaches. Hang in there, there are only two more weeks!

I would also like to address the issue of our past presidential election. It is our hope that you will be patient as your governing body goes through the transition of changing administration. When the new president takes office, we hope that you welcome him with open arms. I know that your support meant a lot to me and I am sure it will mean a lot to him. Although the system is not perfect, have faith that it is working for the betterment of the student body as a whole.

Since this is the last issue of the Quest, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for an incredible year. I have learned so much and grown as a person. I also want to remind you that the new president has the responsibility of leading us into the next millennium.

We are ready to start planning for the 1999-2000 school year to make it the best year ever for the students of UCF," Patton said.

Aquatics & Outdoor Adventure?!?!

What is that you ask?!?

by Debbie Madison
Dir. of Aquatic & Outdoor Adventure

Good Question!...and it's up to you to decide! For the students, facilities, and staff, I am creating new adventures in aquatics and outdoor fun. Currently, Aquatics and Outdoor Adventure has become a popular event, especially on the lake. I am also developing a new course that will be offered by Recreational Services, and it's the best opportunity you will have to learn how to dive.

I am also working with the UCF Scuba Club and the Outlanders to develop and promote different activities such as dive trips, camping, kayaking, paddleboarding, sailing, snorkeling, SCUBA lessons, lifeguard and CPR Training, and Swimming.

However, this is only the beginning! I want to hear what kind of adventures you would like to try! You can email me at dmadison@mail.ucf.edu! I have not peeked your interest, offer a suggestion, or would love to hear it and might just try it! Life is an Adventure - Live it!

Jay Mohr Presents:

Wednesday, April 21

Jay Mohr burst on the screen and received critical acclaim for his role opposite Tom Cruise in the box office hit “Jerry Maguire,” directed by Cameron Crowe. As the rival agent to Cruise’s ‘Maguire,’ Mohr was singled out for his outrageous portrayal of a desperate, manipulative showman. He once again proved his talent and went on to star opposite Jennifer Aniston in “Picture Perfect.”

Mohr first gained critical notices and attention with his starring role on “Saturday Night Live,” especially with his amazing impressions of Christopher Walken, Ricki Lake, Sean Penn among others.

Joy Mohr has also appeared in numerous other movies including “Cherry Falls,” “Playing by Heart,” “Go,” “True Austin’s Mafia,” and “Small Soldiers.”

Mohr will be appearing at the UCF Arena on Wednesday, April 21 at 8pm to perform his stand up comedy routine.

Volunteer UCF

Volunteer UCF is in the process of completing another successful year promoting community service to UCF students across Central Florida. This past fall, VUCE hosted the Hunger and Homelessness Banquet. The banquet educated participating students about the hunger issues facing America and the world.

In addition to the already established programming, VUCE's Board of Directors developed five innovative programs providing more diverse opportunities for students to become involved in community service. These new programs include Adopt-an-Agency, Suddenly Service, a literacy program entitled, “A New You: My Type, Blood Drive, and Back to School with the Proper Tools.”

Volunteers are always needed to join no matter how little or how much time they can give. Student participation is the only way the program can be successful. If you are interested in volunteering, contact VUCE in the Office of Student Activities located in the Student Union, Room 204C or call 823-6471.

On Campus Around the Nation

- University of Kentucky - Starting quarterback Tim Couch has been predicted as the number one draft pick in the 1999 NFL Draft. Last season, Couch led the nation in passes attempted, completions, yards per game, and completion percentage.

- University of Northern Colorado - More than seventy employees and researchers have already volunteered for the 1999 Special Olympics World Summer Games in the Triangle. That is one fourth of the entire Special Olympics staff.

- Purdue University - College Board OK plans for a $38.5 million Kraunert expansion. This expansion will add 7,000 students to the Business Management Building and make Purdue one of the top twenty five business schools in the country.

- Princeton University - Though Princeton's 10.8 percent acceptance rate for the Class of 2003 appears to be the lowest in Princeton University history, the majority of Ivy League schools and peer institutions also reported more of a selective admission than last year.

- Georgetown University Medical Center - Two recent studies done by the National Cancer Institute at Georgetown University Center have determined that a gene in the brain may be responsible for whether or not a person starts to smoke or has an easier time quitting the habit.

- Yale University - Yale University prepares for it’s 300th birthday bash with memories of it’s bicentennial celebration in 1921 still fresh. In 1901, they celebrated by erecting buildings and throwing a huge party.

- University of Pennsylvania - To stop the rapid abuse of alcohol, The University of Pennsylvania has adopted a zero-tolerance alcohol policy for undergraduates. This major decision was brought up by the recent death of a 26 year old alumnus named Michael Tobin.

- University of Connecticut - University of Connecticut fought and won for the NCAA National Championship basketball trophy by beating the Duke Blue Devils in a tight battle. The newly crowned National Champions were led down the stretch of the game by sophomore point guard Khalid El-Amin. Khalid recently decided that he would not enter the NBA draft this season, and he will come back to college and try for another National Championship.

- University of Florida - The College of Journalism and Communication has received a $600,000 donation to compile the first database of public access information from the states. Longtime Orlando broadcast executive Marion Brechner’s donation is expected to be matched with $420,000 from the state. Marion Brechner is the widow of Joseph L. Brechner — whose previous donations to UF led to the creation of the Brechner Center for Freedom of Information.
Don’t miss this hilarious movie where “Life begins at 3am”!

Word of caution: For any film majors and/or resident movie critics, READ NO FURTHER. However, if you are like me and you like good movies that happen to get bad reviews from the experts, then keep on reading.

It always seems that when I see a movie and thoroughly enjoy it, some critic rails it for lack of plot or character development or poor camera angle during chase scenes or some other obscenely inappropriate point.

And even though I have yet to see a review of Go, I can predict 4:1 odds there will be bad reviews because I enjoyed every second of it. The movie was enjoyably unpredictable from the start and hilarious throughout.

The other thing I hate about movie reviews is the fact they run through the entire plot running every twist and turn and just like you can’t peel your eyes from the sight of that dead dog lying on the side of the road, I can never stop reading about how the big boat sank!

Well, by God, I refuse to spoil the movie for you! You will not read about the death of Katie Holmes or how Jay Mohr kisses another man or anything relating to the movie save the fact that it would be well worth your $29 at the movie theatre ($26.95 with student ID). Editor’s note: That was a feeble attempt at sarcasm.

So please, take my word for it. Go is an entertaining movie full of laughter, suspense and twists. Whether it’s romance, comedy, action or suspense, Go has it all! Do not listen to the reviews - only mine. You will not regret it!

Go was presented through Network Event Theater on Tuesday, April 6 in the Student Union’s Cape Florida Ballroom. Go is currently showing in movie theatres across the country.

UCF- SAE to Host 1999 Mini Baja Competition

The University of Central Florida’s Society of Automotive Engineers will be hosting this year’s Mini Baja East Competition on May 6-8. The objective of the competition is to give engineering students a chance to practice what is learned in the classroom. They must design and fabricate a prototype vehicle that is capable of negotiating rough terrain and deep water without damage, is safe, is fun to drive, and is easy to maintain.

UCF- SAE has been competing for 21 years. Last year, they finished 3rd overall in the West Competition and 4th overall in the East Competition. They have 2 cars competing in each competition this year.

For more information on the 1999 Mini Baja Competition, visit their web site at www.mmae.engr.ucf.edu/~baja/MiniBaja.html

How to Stay Informed and Make a Difference

by Fred Piccolo

If I was to tell you that this year, your tuition might be raised another 10%, would you know about it? If I were to tell you that if you have been convicted of a drug offense you would be ineligible for financial aid, would you know about it?

Lastly, if I was to tell you that you can be heard and actually influence votes, would you know how?

Well, the plain fact is that the state legislature, while similar to the U.S. Congress, has a tendency to be more responsive to correspondence. On average, a legislator receives 20 calls on a single issue and half as many letters. In essence, that is akin to the smallest clubs on campus, spending 2 minutes to make a phone call or write a letter.

If we wanted to take a step up, let us look at a single fraternity or sorority getting together for this. If your organization has 100 people, that would mean 5 times the normal amount of correspondence on a single issue. Whether the real interest is there or not, the perception that there is interest remains on the brains of your representatives. At the state level, this is a unique opportunity to use your voice, and make a difference. Perception is reality, and perhaps that clarity and truth in that statement is not better exemplified than in the legislature.

If you want to know more, or want to get together on an issue, call 823-2191. Take the initiative even further and visit the legislature on-line and get all the information you need to make an informed choice. The address is http://www.leg.state.fl.us. Either way, know that “the price of freedom is eternal vigilance.” I encourage you to stay vigilant, informed, and heard.

New Recreational Services Building On the Way!

by Brian McMahon

UCF is now accepting bids from architects to design the $11.6 million building.

Recreational Services is one step closer to a brand new $11.6 million facility as they accept bids from architects to design the multi-phased recreational building.

"We are so excited to get this much needed space," said Mr. Loren Knutson, director of Recreational Services.

The Building Program calls for a 9,600 square foot building with 65,000 square feet of assignable space including a 4 court gymnasium, weightlifting room, indoor track, indoor pool, indoor racquetball courts, and classrooms. However, after the architects are selected, they will go through a program verification to decide the specifics of the building.

"Right now we are at the decision of do we build a lot of a few things or a few of a lot of things," says Mark Hall, director of the Student Union.

The decision to include several different types of recreational facilities will be made according to costs, needs, and desires of the university students.

Ground breaking is scheduled for Christmas of 1999 with the completion slated for the fall of 2001. However, according to Knutson, the building could not have come at a better time.

"Currently we have 4000 square feet of useable aerobics and weightlifting space. A university of our size needs at least 10,000 square feet in weight lifting space alone. In phase I, we will hopefully have half that and another 5000 square feet of aerobics space," said Knutson.

Other plans for Phase I include a possible climbing wall, miniature golf course, 2 courts designed for floor hockey, and a snack bar/lounge area. Phase II will include 4 additional basketball courts, an indoor soccer field, an expansion to the weightlifting area, and any other facilities needed at that time.

All of these plans are still very preliminary. "It all depends on the costs of certain facilities as well as the needs of the students as to what is exactly put into the building," said Knutson.

However, even if half of the planned facility is built, it will be a much needed addition to the UCF campus. Expect to see some exciting new changes to Recreational Services in the coming years!

Baseball Blowout

by Brian McMahon

Come support your UCF Knights at every home Baseball game!

The 1999 University of Central Florida baseball team was thought to be unrecognizable to people on the college baseball scene. After a 23-10 start, the Knights are making their mark.

A nation leading ten players, including seven juniors, from UCF's 1998 roster were drafted last season. All of them signed professional contracts leaving Head Coach Jay Bergman and his staff with big holes to fill throughout the team.

Fourteen players returned from last season, but just three position starters and two pitchers with 35-plus collegiate innings under their belt are among that group. The other six position players and three pitchers are only in their second season at UCF and saw limited action last year.

With some of these freshmen and not so experienced returners anchoring the 1999 squad, the season was thought to have been a struggle, but with a 13-4 March record, the Knights are 23-11 for the season with six games left.

Anchoring the Knights offensive power is 1998 third team All-TAAC and all-Tournament selection Dustin Brisson and freshman All-American Matt Bowser. Batting .407 and .394 respectively, they have combined for 49 extra base hits including 24 home runs, (Bowser - 11, Brisson - 13).

The Knights need you though. Come out and support your 1999 UCF Knights baseball team at the last 3 home games of the season. They take on South Florida April 20 and Jacksonville April 24 and 25. Watch for the SGA Spirit Patrol handing out free T-shirts and other promotional items.
