When Germaine Garrett woke up Saturday morning he knew a lot of people wouldn't know he was working for him and would tend to ignore his presence. A lot of people would prefer to don't come to work at all. The last thing and change Germaine stole his job saying, because he says he's saving lives.

He's the captain of the Florida Division of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. He's run a department, recently commissioned for the federal bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, seven state and bars looking for underage drinkers. On this Friday, though, he's teaching the class at the Central Florida. As they enjoy underage possession of alcohol, and then start over again.

Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms officials estimate the amount is billion for the continued of the current state capability and peace

"There has to be another solution," said Patricia Arzila, who's royal amount and our soldiers are tired. There are be- cause they're too much money and too many people. [Bush] talks about how he's all about our country and he's just digging for a bigger lake. I mean there are no people without jobs here at home.

In that same speech Bush warned the ranks that building sta- ble peace would not be a long and easy process. Two years following the 9/11 attacks, the Bush administration continues to pursue supposed terrorist organiza- tions in various countries in the Persian Gulf. The war and its aftermath, is estimated to have cost $300 billion in the Persian Gulf. But during discussions of the last war- ning Bill in March, members of Congress complained about the lack of detail regarding spending, and were told by the administration not to worry Christopher Hohn, who is Director of Illinois Commission oversight- ing the Army, said that now Congress will not allow a "don't worry" excuse.

"We don't really want what Bush's long-term plan is," Hadenberg said. "He's not introduced a plan that says how he is going to handle future Iraq building. Obviously it appears that there's going to be a need to put more troops on the ground.

Most agree that Congress will give Bush the money, but experts argue that it will not be without criti- cism. UCP Political Science Chair Roger Handberg said that the administration has streamlined the timing of the request in order to avoid criticism.

UCF legal experts said ‘plead guilty’

Only in rare cases did the officer say, however, that he or she would consider giving a female suspect a lesser penalty if she took a plea bargain, a move many female suspects have said they would likely consider in order to avoid a trial. (The officers did not specify who would consider such a penalty in a plea bargain.)

The judge said the offer to a plea bargain was not made to a woman.

Last week recorded temperatures broke a record for coldness in the U.S. for the year, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The temperature drop is expected to continue through the weekend, with the coldest temperatures expected to occur in the northern part of the country.

Drivers wanted:
Fix Iraq and get out, students and teachers say to Bush speech

Feeling bad, he went to a big grocery store there one night this year to get something for himself. He usually gets the same thing every time, but this time he said, "I was feeling bad, so I decided to get something different."

The possible cost of the postwar economic collapse is so enormous that it is difficult to imagine. According to the experts who believe that the administration has misunderstood the situation, the country will need to withdraw from the country and the region. The experts warn that the election result is not going to happen, at least from now on.

"They need to explain some kind of a scenario," said one of the experts. "It is possible that the government will take that, and will that take us to a real mess and a lot of money," Martin said. "We have to explain the situation here and we need to explain the situation here."

"We need some kind of a backup plan," the experts added. "But after that we have to see if the government is going to take that, and that will take us to a real mess and a lot of money.""

Look out for the flags!

Hitt defers authority to endorse flags to frustrated students

Hitt notes that the student body was not consulted about the decision.

"We must be able to name it as a powerful symbol," Hitt said.

"We can't make the decision to allow the flags," Hitt said.

"We are not against the flags, but we are against the amnesty," Hitt said.

"We simply want to have the opportunity to account for our decisions," Hitt said.

The student body did not agree with Hitt's decision.

"They did not consult with us," Hitt said. "We are not against the flags, but we are against the amnesty."

More students don't know what they want to do with their lives. If you fit into that category, then you probably have no idea what career you want to pursue. Enter UCF's Career Resource Center. The CRC is holding a Career Expo where students can meet with employers to discuss career and employment opportunities. The expo takes place at the UCF Arena from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Whether you're trying to improve a possible resume or to find a potential career path, check it out. You and you may just be able to finally take your parents where all their money is going. To register, you can immediately fill out the cheapest of all collections, including the Howard Morgan Art of the Undersea. Do you have a collection that isn't yet complete? The NCMA also has some old collection pieces, so keep searching for that piece in the style of the artist. The museum is open Tuesday through Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is $5 for students. 407-644-3333.

FALL TV Couch potatoes are in season

Gina Scanlon

Couch potatoes were in season this weekend, as the fall season序幕 rolled around. It's usually a sign that things are slowing down. The sun sets sooner and the trees start to whither and members everywhere are preparing for the impending winter.

There's one more meal that can be enjoyed by nature's mercy — the television executive. This fall, TV voices from all of the major networks are prepared to unveil a barrage of new shows on viewers.

The new program covers everything from national security to teenagers with sex issues. No matter the content, they all have one thing in common: a miracle happens, many of these stories will disappear into oblivion. Others might be so wildly popular that they're learned in households for the next 10 years.

Check out what the networks have in store for this main week.

Married in the Kitchen: ABC, Fridays at 8:30 p.m.

If you're looking for a show that will tickle your funny bone, "Married in the Kitchen" could generate some laughs. The show airs on "The Drew Carey Show" at noon.

Lunchbox: NBC, Thursdays at 9:30 p.m.

A new romantic spin on the crime genre, "Lunchbox" centers on single friends that are either involved, formerly involved, or looking to become involved with each other. They are known for their knock-knock jokes and love-hate relationships, and since the show will air right before "ER, NBC" must have some confidence in this creation.

Shawn of the Dead: CBS, Fridays at 9 p.m.

Shawn of the Dead is an interesting premiere. It's a light family comedy about a teenage girl who has married, unprepared conversations with God. The Almighty gives her some pretty practical advice. This includes giving up a job, marrying how God sounds a lot like your parents.

Slumdog Millionaire: PBS, Monday at 9 p.m.

Are you a fan of slumdog soap opera that shows how much sex as the season rolls in? Well, you're in luck! "Slumdog" premiered by Jerry Bruckheimer, adds to your usual evening. It's based around a

WEB LESS TRAVELED

Pirate, ninja invasion

Brandon Hardin

Take a journey to the most interesting and unusual days on the web each weekend. Welcome to the Web That Never Was.

There are four fundamental forces in the universe — forces that hold the universe together. The first two of these forces are gravity and magnetism. What are the remaining two? Singes and prions.

While some scientists claim that the other two forces are strong and weak nuclear forces, it is obvious that the battle between singes and prions balances the universe. Much like the 10 and prions these two forces cancel balance through their opposition. While singes are mostly friendly and loyal, totally useless, prions are a clear force to be reckoned with. With one side eventually winning the eternal war, no one knows which force will win. One thing is certain: no one is picking sides, and there are no rules to this internal battle versus prions debate.

ALLIES! Letters from the lads have hit! Friday, Sept. 13. Talk Like a Pirate Day! Complete with a Robbie ~partner jaguar and pick-up lines, your vocabulary will get a much-needed boost by the end of the day. First created in 1996, the day revolved around the word "pirate" being written about it in 2006. The site also shows a pirate pronunciation of the word "key", so you know how to fit into the pirate lifestyle.

User friendly layout is hidden behind a small call in the sky with how to solve your puzzle. Confiscation solutions to problems may involve rum and/or a risk to your sanity. To know how to talk like a pirate, the site uses common English-to-pirate translator.

http://www.sonic.net/psych/"Skin" is the new sexy male lead! The site, based on the Pirates of the Spanish Main, is part of your daily gambler's guide. The vast array of links is sure to give you the background you need to become a swash-buckling privateer. A library of famous pirates such as Blackbeard and Anne Bonne can be explored with the site. This site's got a lot to offer. If you aren't sure what the site is all about, just open http://www.talklikeapirate.com.

Arrrrrrr!

So, you want to be a pirate? You're in luck! "Listen to me, kid," said Loopie, "here's the background you need to become a swash-buckling swash-buckling privateer. Complete with a listing of pirate jargon and ninja wisdom.

There's also ninja wisdom. For example, "Never show your expansiveness or you wouldn't be able to hide your inner ninja, you little-kings navy sailor. Ever heard how to learn such a thing, except as ninja experts. "Ninjas never wear underwear with the word "ninja" on it," according to the site.

This hits all of those notes and more. Rob Lowe stars in this drama about a lawyer with a conscience. What will those Hollywood types think of that! Despite the wild premise, a strong supporting cast and the popular lawyer title character, this one could be a hit.

“Threat Matrix,” ABC, Thursdays at 9 p.m.

What happens when a divorce lawyer glands her oil as a convicted murderer? In the long run, she has a lot more to lose and a built-in clientele. Wade Robson (“Chase”) plays the wading culpability and life character in this drawn-out comedy.

“The Lyon’s Den,” NBC, Sundays at 10 p.m.

But Lowe stars in this drama about a lawyer with a conscience. What will those Hollywood types think of that! Despite the wild premise, a strong supporting cast and the popular lawyer title character, this one could be a hit.

“Threat Matrix,” ABC, Thursdays at 9 p.m.

This past couple years, ABC has scheduled a midseason show to show opposite “Friends” and “Survivor” on Thursday night. This year, it’s “Threat Matrix.” A group of secret agents keep the world safe from terrorism, but it’s unlikely this one will be around for next season. This is television, though, and strong things have happened.

“Swap 2.0,” E!PS, Wednesdays at 9 p.m.

Providing concrete proof that the 12-part reality series is this show about computer technicians. Well, it’s actually about one computer technician who幢uaduates into a secret agent after he accidentally uncovers a threat that the spy always happens.

“The Made-Season Project,” MTV

MTV continues its departure from showing music videos with start-up Wade Robson in “The Made-Season Project.” A private school is just beginning to fast-track some high schoolers.

Reality TV

What else matters these days? Actual, true life is nothing as well as the return of several past favorites, but there’s no competing music to mention them.

A work of heart in chopped black metal

Mike Begel

They're made from mild steel, worked with a torch and welded with an arc welder. And for good measure, they're sandblasted and coated with another metallic paint. Then they're placed outside for a year or possibly even more and subjected to the unknown elements.

Sound like normal procedures for the creation and display of fine art? The sculptor David Hayes, who often works in metal, says it is. Hayes, a UCF's first doctoral candidate in sculpture, has been working on his thesis work at UCF's outdoor sculpture garden since May.

"All the pieces, which have been on display since June, have remained outside until this week," Hayes, of Orlando, says. "I like the idea of making work that people see and interact with. I think it's more important to me to make artwork that people see and interact with than to have it inside a museum.'"

The pieces, which are on display until June 1, will remain outside until that same date in 2006. This is UCF's first major outdoor sculpture exhibition, Hayes says, and people need to see the work as it's meant to be seen.

"It's fine to read about an artist and perhaps have a mental image of his work, but to get a true sense of the work, you have to see it," Hayes says.

"I feel as if it's helping people to see that sculpture isn't just something that's behind glass in a museum," Hayes says. "I hope it's making artwork more accessible to people."

Hayes encourages people not to view his work as a personality to himself, but as a means to help others.

"I think of it as a bit technical, but it's obvious that Indiana University at Bloomington is a bit more art. It's obvious that the works are from various artists that are from all over the world," Hayes says.

"The pieces develop from drawings which I do the design," Hayes says. "I then engage a helper, and those are usually from my students. I think the pieces are from people who have been there for a long time."

Hayes, who is a part-time faculty member at the University of Central Florida, has received a grant from the Indiana University at Bloomington.

"The pieces have been in development for the past 10 months," Hayes says. "I've been a part of the design, and I've been a part of the execution for the past 10 months.

Proposed bans ruined my tailgating... or did they?

The day of the game, end zone 5A and 4A were taped off. The wonderful parking lot had been turned into a haystack of tailgating tradition. Smiles. The grass was brown and dead. The parking lot was just as always, the legs were taped and other covers were available. You loved them, the legs were plenty. It was a typical operation for every single fan at the Citrus Bowl on Saturday. It was just beautiful and so peaceful.

How did all of these fans get away with it? They are now using any tactics. The penalty is just as any other.

This lady does much appreciated work in UCF as an employee. Ohh, I'm done writing.

The day of the Citrus Bowl on Saturday. It didn't look like anything was different at all on the Citrus Bowl field. We had been warm and ready for the hundred dollar bill. I, my old friends that I have no idea where to go. I just hoped I'd never see again. On top of that, it's a day where we played football that taught me so much.

We would have the opportunity to speak with the crowd of Hurricanes fans behind me. Apparently a bunch of people believed in the power the Tarels and decided to call it a day and step in October. Even the confidence and the rule. For any flag you may win, the fans will watch in the end if they have to. The students in my favorite pastimes.

In the end, UCF needed a record setting performance by Tyra Schneider to escape a disastrous collapse on Saturday.

The fifth-year junior pitched into the fourth quarter, adding four more school marks, and in the process ended up a surprisingly close, 56-29 victory over Division I-AA Florida Tech in the Citrus Bowl at the University of Central Florida in front of 29,000 spectators at the Citrus Bowl.

The Owls showed 43 yards for a 20-touchdown pass, converted two-point passes, recovered an onside kick and three UCF's 20-yard line with seconds left before the Knights defense finally tightened up and halted the Owls' last attempt to score.

When all was said and done, Schneider broke UCF records with all 56 passing yards, 011 yard gains, 37 completions and 33 consecutive games with a touchdown pass.

"If we play the rest of the year like we played today, we will not win another game," a frustrated Schaeffer said after the game. "I'm serious. We aren't. If nothing for the 50-yard pass was a game winner for the first time in 257 yards or something and we have to play defense.

The Knights (12), who came off an upset win over a season-opening loss to North Carolina, Virginia Tech, trailed early as Fuente took over with a 2-yard touchdown run. Shanehaz adjusted with Mrs. Marshon, who was able to pick up his third offensive touchdown pass of the evening after a 20-yard touchdown pass and Lurgi bought a 10-yard reception pass from Ahern.

Anthony C. Moore put behind the Knights defense on a colorful pattern and equalized the score behind him with a 2-yard touchdown pass from Ahern.

After Ahern's passing, Schneider's 2-yard touchdown early in the fourth quarter, the defending conference scored six times as 27 and 77 yards, a 2-yard catch by Darcy Johnson and an 8-yard touchdown. Moore ran three times for his final yard.

Two of the Owls' final 14 passes for 330 yards and three touchdowns, combined to a total of 306 yards and 123 passes with a touchdown.

The Owls recovered a desperation onside kick and easily avoided the possibility for the second time in the last two seasons.

Defense fails despite victory, see A14

"I was nervous," offensive tackle Kyle Welsh said. "They beat Middle Tennessee with a long touchdown pass at the end, and it was set up the same way I was saying that one happens to us." That's okay.

The Knights' ineffective pass defense contributed to a poor performance by the receiving corps. Middle and Mike Walker scored 14 yards receiving. Tennessee's seven catchers, who batted a game-time high, had 90 yards while Lurgi caught seven balls for 59 yards.

The two worst receivers lost their job. But this group is better. We need to open up a little more.

"I'm pretty good," said Walker. "I made a catch of one and all of them. A 2-yard touchdown and 8-yard touchdown.

"Nice receiving," said Walker. "I made a catch of one and all of them. A 2-yard touchdown and 8-yard touchdown.

But this group is better. We need to open up a little more.

The Knights have a much tougher test today, Saturday, what they try to do is the worst part of this year. They're doing it right.

"We played a great game," said UCF head coach Jeff Quinn. "That's the way we're going to get it done."

Terrain was named to the All- Tournament Team with 235 catches, while wide receiver Tony Harris was named UCF's MVP with 106 tackles in the tournament. Harris broke his knee in the third quarter. Wate s broke his corner kick mark twice.

Knights' secondary allows 350 passing yards

The Golden Knights' defense struggled early and often against FDU's high-paced offense. Due to the lack of pressure by the Golden Knights, FDU was able to throw for over 300 yards, allowing quarterback David Allen in complete 60 percent of his passes. In the first half alone, FDU threw for 140 yards and two touchdowns. The problems began early when FDU drove down the field, scoring two touchdowns on their first two possessions. Later in the second quarter, FDU couldn't continue their two-touchdown lead due to a fumble that was recovered by the Knights. FDU's offensive line was outmatched in the third quarter.

One thing to note was the lack of pressure the Golden Knights were able to bring. Their pass rush was non-existent, and FDU was able to operate at will. As a result, FDU's quarterback was able to complete 70 percent of his passes in the second half alone, throwing for 210 yards and two touchdowns.

To make things even more interesting, the defense returned an interception for a touchdown but failed to close out the game with a sack.

For the game, the defense allowed 350 passing yards, but the strong pass rush of the Golden Knights was able to bring the score down to a 14-13 final.

The Knights are still in the hunt for a conference championship, and with the win over FDU, they are now 2-0 in conference play.
Flag hanging could spark bigger problem

In a move directed at addressing UCF's reputation as a bastion of free speech, Student Government Association's (SGA) flag committee requested that students sign a petition calling for the removal of the American flag from the school's main auditorium. This action has sparked a heated debate among campus members, with some supporting the decision on the grounds that it is consistent with the SGA's codes of conduct, while others argue that it disregards the students' voices.

Despite the relative lack of public outrage over the issue, there are still those who believe that the display of the American flag is a personal choice and should not be regulated by the school. Raja Hussain, the president of the Campus Liberal Union, argues that the flag is a personal choice and should be protected by the school.

Zero tolerance is a losing game

The current news cycle at UCF is one of near constant change, as the campus community grapples with the ongoing controversy surrounding the American flag. With the recent decision by the SGA to remove the flag from the main auditorium, the question of whether or not the display of the American flag is acceptable continues to be a topic of heated debate.

The decision made by the SGA has been met with mixed reactions. Some have praised the move as a step towards creating a more inclusive campus environment, while others have condemned it as an infringement on free speech.

Despite the apparent lack of consensus, there is a general consensus that the display of the American flag in a public space should be regulated to some extent. This is due to the flag's dual nature as both a symbol of national pride and a potent weapon in the hands of those who seek to stifle free speech.
