Will troubling season keep fans away?

Football team’s losing, but students still plan to party

Duffy Avery
Staff Writer

UCF’s football team has a chance to write the kind of drama that only happens in bad movies about teenage undergrads. Saturday marks the climax of Homecoming Week, capped by a parade, a tailgate party and a football game. If the Knights win, the players will be home, and the champagne will flow. If they lose, the film could be in bed by 10 p.m.

The resolution is a losing record for the season that has fans frustrated and underwhelmed. The Knights enter their third home game of the season with just two wins and five losses. But many still plan on going and partying, as UCF has never lost.

“The game is still going to be fun,” said freshman Tiffany White. “I expect them to be a lot better, but I’m still a big fan.”

Since starting the season with a loss against Virginia Tech, UCF has piled up and down at home — both of these wins were in the Citrus Bowl. The CFP sports marketing department has tried to keep team support this season with ticket sales, which have drawn a few thousand fans.

The game against Arkansas is at 3 p.m.

Resolution mandates use of donated flags

On Wednesday, the board denied Atkinson’s plan during a meeting in Talahassee.

Now, Atkinson, a Republican from Tallahassee, is considering whether to carry his campaign to the Florida Legislature, where he would be required to file the plan up for adoption.

“I have been considered doing this resolution since my campaign launched,” Atkinson said.

Resolution mandates use of donated flags

State Rep. Frank Atkinson plans to introduce the Carey Baker Freedom Flag Resolution in the community. The resolution, initially drafted by Atkinson in the Florida Board of Governors, which oversees education in the state, would require all Florida public schools, including universities, to install American flags donated by private parties in all classrooms.

On Monday, the resolution honors Baker.

Joe MacLellan, the Student Government Association vice president, was charged early Monday in Greek Park with serving alcohol to a person under 21 and having an open container.

The SGA leader, widely known on campus as “Joe Mac,” was walking through the parking lot of his fraternity, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, at about 2:15 a.m. Police said he was carrying a clear plastic cup with a 32-ounce liquid in it. When Officer Paul White of UCF Police asked MacLellan to come in, MacLellan put his arm around a companion, Denise Weeast, 19, and gave the beverage to her, according to a police report. At that point White said he ordered Weeast to sit down, but she started walking faster.

Upon catching up with her, the officer removed the cup with a mobile beverage that he said had an odor of an alcoholic beverage. While asking Weeast to produce identification, she presented an ID showing her to be only 19 years old.

Although MacLellan was not taken to the UCF Police Department, he was charged with two misdemeanors: serving alcohol to a person under 21 and having an open container.

Weeast was charged with possession of alcohol by a person under 21.

The tension will not have any effect on MacLellan’s status as SGA vice president. Only a felony conviction would require that he be removed from his position according to SGA statutes.

He will not have to surrender his position on the Homecoming court. He is a member of the UCF’s Homecoming Committee, which is responsible for the Homecoming court.

A contract signed by Homecoming court members says they are required to attend a professional manner during Homecoming Week.

UCF has temporarily suspended its Sigma Chi chapter over an incident that occurred during the Fraternity’s annual homecoming mixer on Oct. 20.

Past midnight, two trucks collided in a parking lot of the Lake Clara apartment complex, which is a driver licensed for this incident from not turning away in time after taking a corner he was going to hit the other truck. According to UCF Police, one of the trucks was filled with Sigma Chi brothers and the other was hit by a person who had been driving drunk.

According to UCF’s Office of Student Rights and Responsibilities, SAE has been placed on a mandatory suspension status pending a hearing to determine whether housing was being.requested in the accident. A Student Conduct representative said the suspension is typical during a significant student group.

The fraternity’s status prevents them from participating in any kind of official sports or social activities. According to Lipinski, UCF’s Homecoming mixer.

The suspension also noted them from participating in this year’s Homecoming events, including the Homecoming parade.

The suspension will be lifted at an undetermined date. The UCF Student Conduct said that the decision to the matter would likely be resolved within the next 30 days.

The suspension now places two Greek organizations on suspension: Sigma Chi and UCF’s Delta Sigma Phi. A representative of Delta Sigma Phi said that the suspension is typical during a significant student group.

Two score songs and musical outside the Student Union on Monday will link off Black AIDS Week, a week of events to talk about the perceptions about the mentally ill.

Kathie Frenesi, president of the Student Union, the event, which affects, said that many people do not understand mental illness, and on a result, they may often isolate family from others and be the first as Madisons when they may not be. She said that also means that to what a Madison has, has is also often a Muslim, and that Madisons are terrorists. "We want to make people aware of the whole concept of Islam and that those who practice are regular people," she said.

The week of events starts on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union from 8 p.m. until 10 p.m. These events include discussions on the various countries, visual displays, panel discussions, and free tattoos. At 7:30 a.m., "The Message," an event where the Student Union floor will be decorated with pictures about the U.N.'s refusal to participate in the global literacy. With an estimated 1.2 million people who are illiterate and poverty affects America's inner cities, the event is being held to discuss how the relationship between illiteracy and poverty and the government rules and regulations affects America's inner cities.

While recent controversies and events have made it difficult for the U.S. to be a leader in the area of global literacy, the event is being held to discuss how the relationship between illiteracy and poverty and the government rules and regulations affects America's inner cities.

North Carolina, a major concern for the U.S. government rule and regulations, has raised concerns about the U.S. government rule and regulations.

Attkisson said. "It's a big issue for the U.S. government rule and regulations, has raised concerns about the U.S. government rule and regulations."
THE RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF UCF STUDENTS

If I get an underage drinking ticket at a UCF football game or at a bar or club what happens and what should I do?

If you receive a ticket, the first thing you should do is cooperate with the officer. If you are given the opportunity to pay the ticket, STOP and THINK. Paying the ticket is an admission to guilt, and if ever asked if you have plead guilty or no contest, you would have to select yes. The next thing you should do is obtain information from either Student Legal Services or the SGA Judicial Advisor. However, it is extremely important that you don’t ignore the citation, it will only make matters worse. Contact Judicial Advisor: Willie Bentley (407) 823-4719. Student Legal Services (407) 823-2538.

What are my rights as a student when I get pulled over on campus by a UCF Police Officer?

When you are pulled over on UCF’s Campus, you are granted the same fundamental rights that you have as a Florida citizen. It is important that you cooperate with the officer. However, the officer must have probable cause to search your vehicle. If you feel that you are being treated unfairly, you do have the right to ask the officer for their name and badge number.

What is the process that I can go through when I would like to appeal a parking ticket?

If you receive a parking ticket, you must first choose whether or not you want to pay the ticket. If you choose not to pay the ticket, you do have the right to appeal the Citation. First, it is important that you are notified that you have seven days to file for an appeal. Appeal forms are available from the Parking Services office and at the visitor’s booth. A letter can be accepted in lieu of the official appeal form as long as it is filed with the website is http://www.parking.ucf.edu. If you have documentation, please download a copy of the form, and mail the documentation with the completed form to UCF Parking Services, P.O. Box 168351, Orlando, FL 32816-1531. The letter must be postmarked by the seventh business day of the citation being issued. If you wish to send a letter in, please include the following: your full name, your address, citation number if possible, license plate number, your phone number the reason for the appeal, and any pertinent information.

Who do I communicate with when I need to talk to a lawyer or an Impartial Advisor?

If you need to talk to an attorney concerning a criminal or civil matter, you should contact Student Legal Services. The office number is (407) 823-2138, and their website is http://www.stulegal.sdes.ucf.edu. If you are dealing with a Student conduct issue you can contact the Judicial Advisor, and his number is (407) 823-4719.

If I get a grade in a class that I am not satisfied with, what can I do to appeal it?

Well, in order to appeal a grade you have to meet one of three criterions:

a. Alleged deviation from established and announced grading policy;

b. Alleged errors in application of grading procedures;

c. Alleged lowering of grades for non-academic reasons including discrimination.

The first thing that you must do is contact your instructor and try to settle the issue. I/an agreement can not be made you need to contact the specific Deans office of your college and submit a written appeal, and the appeal will be reviewed. You will then have to get before the grade appeals committee. If you need assistance through this process or would like to have representation, contact the Judicial Advisor (407) 823-4719.

What is the golden rule and how can I find out more information on how it affects me?

The Golden Rule is the "UCF CONSTITUTION". You can access the Golden Rule at http://www.goldenrule.sdes.ucf.edu. The Golden Rule informs students of their rights and responsibilities. Each and every student will be held responsible for what is contained in the Golden rule, and NOT KNOWING, is not an excuse. If you would like to pick up a hard copy you can go to the Office of Student Rights and Responsibilities (Student Resource Center 154), or you could stop by the Student Government Association (Student Union 154).

Where is the Student Legal Services office and how much does it cost for them to assist me in my legal troubles?

Student Legal Services is located in the Student Resource Center building 154. Their office number is (407) 823-2538. BELIEVE IT OR NOT, THEIR SERVICES ARE ABSOLUTELY FREE FOR ALL STUDENTS!

SAE banned from Homecoming Week activities

On Wednesday an emergency meeting of the Interfraternity Council met to discuss the matter. At the meeting IFC president Ryan O'Rourke, a member of SAE, stepped down from his post.

"While I am deeply dedicated to the betterment of our entire Greek community, I have an obligation to my own chapter," O'Rourke said. "I am submitting my resignation to the IFC with utmost respect and буду.

O'Rourke said his return to the board of IFC is imminent on the matter being resolved, or new officers being elected. In O'Rourke's absence the IFC's executive vice president, Matt Burns of Lambda Chi Alpha, will assume the duties of president.

Pertinent to O'Rourke's announcement, the new IFC president will be a man of integrity. O'Rourke said, "I am certain that this will be a success."

With UCF’s proximity to the Space Coast, the university draws a number of people looking to make a career out of space observation and exploration. This interest has led to a number of groups organized and dedicated to promoting the best chance of experiencing the universe.

One such group, the UCF Astronomical Society, seeks to tap into this sentiment with free public viewings of various celestial objects.

"The Robinson Observatory houses the largest telescope in the state of Florida that is routinely open for public viewing. The observatory is located at 1100 W. Central Florida Blvd in Melbourne, Florida. The observatory is home to the 26-inch Schmidt-Cassegrain telescope, which has been donated to the observatory by the Central Florida Astronomical Society. The telescope is used for public viewings of various celestial objects, including planets, stars, and galaxies. The observatory is also home to a number of smaller, portable telescopes used by the UCF Astronomical Society to accommodate all of the public looking to make a career out of astronomy.

While the equipment may not be as bright or detailed as some of the larger telescopes used by professional astronomers, it is certainly a treat to see objects from up close. The observatory is open every Thursday night from 8 pm to 11 pm, and it is free to attend.

"In recent years, the observatory has been able to attract a number of groups organized to accommodate all of the public looking to make a career out of astronomy. The observatory is open every Thursday night from 8 pm to 11 pm, and it is free to attend.

UCF's Conservatory Theater looks through the controversy ...

While most beachgoers have no desire to share the ocean with sharks, Gail Kennedy, a freshman international business major, lives for the sport.

"I'm completely obsessed with sharks," Kennedy said excitedly.

Numerous shark posters decorate the walls of Kennedy's apartment, including pictures of Great White sharks and Sand Tigers, her favorite. She even has a fake shark hanging from the ceiling and two stuffed animal sharks lying on her bed.

"I even have shark pictures in my bathroom," she confessed. Kennedy keeps up with the latest on these underwater creatures by compiling a book filled with articles, statistics, and pictures of shark attacks.

"I hate sharks," Gail Kennedy, a certified scuba diver and a shark fiend, confessed. Kennedy especially remembers the day she had a face-to-face encounter with "ragged-tooth tigers," her favorite. "I have been to swim with sharks, and, to date, she said, "I have absolutely no fear of sharks,"

Kennedy, an international business major, is a certified scuba diver and a shark fiend. "I had the opportunity to explore a World War II shipwreck," Kennedy said. Kennedy especially remembers the day she had a face-to-face encounter with "ragged-tooth tigers," her favorite. "They are the kings of the ocean," Kennedy said.

"I have no desire to swim with sharks," Kennedy said. "It will make the audience think that the world is more dangerous than it actually is."

The Buccaneers have a huge match-up against Charleston on Tuesday night. The Chanticleers have a 3-0 record and are ranked tenth in the region. They are ranked ninth in the region, but have only scored 19 points in their first two games. After their loss to Coastal Carolina, they have only scored 28 points in their last two games. When the Bucs faced Coastal Carolina, they were able to break off enough running plays to buy Schneider some more time in the pocket. "UCF was without its starting quarterback for a majority of the game and it was not able to play the game it wanted," Dellinger said. "We're back now and should be able to throw it. When Schneider was out, UCF did run the ball effectively and has the potential for a good mix- ture." The Knights, however, are not the only team that is experiencing issues on offense. Last week, the Chippewas gave up 422 rushing yards to Toledo. While UCF doesn't have the running prowess of the Rockets, the Knights should be able to break off enough running plays to buy Schneider some more time in the pocket.

The world is getting smaller.

Which leaves more room for your imagination.

To us, imagination has always represented the most exciting frontier. At Northrop Grumman, we use the power of imagination to push our defense and aerospace capabilities years into the future. With projects ranging from the Firehawk VTOL unmanned surveillance craft to the CAISR systems that will control the network-centric battlefields of the future, we think there are plenty of areas left to explore. Join us and discover a place where the adventures are just beginning.
