Hitt explains timing of Kruczek’s firing

Board of Trustees also eyes new med school

Athletes dominate talk of Thursday’s Board of Trustees meeting, where President John Hitt revealed the news of the early firing of former UCF football coach Mike Hitt.

‘Hitt was unable to speak in detail about recent controversy’

According to Hitt, Kruczek’s early termination stemmed from UCF football, but in a new coach before the official vote—where Hitt said that in order for UCF to actually fire a new coach, quickly, while Kruczek continued to manage the team. With athletic personnel angioplasty began the end of UCF’s football season. Hilt said a new coach needed to be in place to make decisions and set goals for the team and for the football program. Hilt said that in order for Hitt to actually fire a new coach, quickly, while the board would have to be sure that a decision regarding Kruczek’s future with UCF has already been made. Hilt said that in order for Hitt to actually fire a new coach, quickly, while if the board decided to do so, in fact, that the decision would be leaked presumptively.

Rachel Cannon stood steadily on the steps of Victory City Hall at 3 a.m. in a downtown political rally. Wearing a blazer, long-sleeve shirt and jeans, she looked like she was ready to rally against the Patriot Act. The 24-year-old and a group of liberal and conservative support groups handed out a message to Mayor David Dubay and city commissioners—they want a resolution to be passed on the city’s behalf. The Patriot Act, a group of federal laws passed in the wake of Sept. 11, 2001, was designed to aid law enforcement agencies in combating terrorism. The Act has featured since its passage, especially in post-9/11 legislative resolutions of privacy and civil liberties. Presidents of the Act, grant law enforcement the power to perform “sneak and peek” searches, among other measures: they can examine the contents of e-mails and houses without a legal warrant or a written warrant.

Immigrants suspicious of terrorism: “I will not be able to vote definitely without access to a lawyer, you don’t get a lawyer, you don’t get a trial,” said Susan Ramos, 19, a United Student Government Association student. “I’m just not in the mood.”

By the night running through real social drills, a loaded gun magazine in his hand. His duties include assuring guard posts of emergency presence of war zones outside Tall Air Base and preventing sniper attacks on the army’s main supply road to Baghdaid.

UCF senior Janis Walker wanted to be a police officer, like his father hoped to be more than 25 years ago. But he enlisted in the U.S. military after high school, as his father did. “I decided that my country needed enough people, and I realized that wasn’t enough enough to do to the work that I’ve done in the summer of 2007, the 25-year-old engineering technology major wrote to his father in the fall of last year, I’m considering the military.

In a family with a combined 50 years of military service, Walker is the first member of his family deployed to combat. Another brother of more than 60 UCF students, family and alumni serving in military operations to rethink and stabilize Iraq.

Wadie is stationed at Tall Air Base, 300 miles southeast of Baghdaid and 12 miles away from An Nasiriyah — the site of an Iraqi attack in March that left 11 American soldiers dead and sevenTaken prisoner. He serves there as a military policeman in the 200-degree hot.

It was in his family, he said, “My father, uncle and grandmother were in the army. My brother is in the army and I’m at a workboard of 11 years, and one of my sisters has been in the U.S. Army for almost a year now.

The 6-foot, 4-inch Wadie left UCF for Army Reserve training in August 2006. His unit — the 32nd MP Company — was sent to Iraq on Jan. 18, the night before he graduated from Naval Preparatory. "I was shocked and obviously upset," he said. "I was registered for classes at UCF and already started to buy books. I couldn’t believe it. I thought maybe there was some mistake. I went to the military police, and they confirmed it."

After a nine-week stay at Fort Stantoni, Ga., Wadie boarded a plane for the Middle East in March. "I was told to wait to get the plane when we got to the plane for me to avoid a possible sniper attack," he said. "On April 4, we got the orders to board the plane, but it took a few minutes to get to the plane. The plane took off and everything was fine." Wadie added that in the long run, he’s proud of his service in the military.

Pentagon: Uncertainty is lowering morale

One man, two names, no clue

Ambassador (Ret.) Arnold H. "Buddy" Moorhead, senior advisor to the Pentagon, said the uncertainty of the war in Iraq is lowering morale among the military.

"The uncertainty is killing the force," Moorhead said. "The uncertainty is what is killing the force. It is causing them to lose their confidence."

Moorhead added that the military needs to know what is going to happen next and how long the war will last.

"They need to know that this is not going to be a prolonged war," he said. "They need to know that they are going to be home soon."

"I have to dissent and the right to dissent and the right to organize against oppressive forces. The Housing the Party would be defined as an act of terrorism under the Patriot Act," she also said.

Several of the more extremist protesters yelled in downtown traffic as it passed by and turned the headlight - and cars responded with honks of apparent approval. Protesters waved, jumped up and down, and screamed obscenities into the streets in more strident reaction from the rush hour commute.

"The Patriot Act is unjust," Wilson said. "We need to repeal the Patriot Act for coming - we had all the attention of cameras, with television stations crowded with people - we had our sons and daughters die for our country. We need to agree on the facts before we put the Patriot Act in place."

Uninsured young adults take high-stakes gamble

U.S. News & World Report - Didier Gayet

For 18-year-old Ken Gonzalez, the past few months have been filled with uncertainty. He has been uninsured since he turned 18, and without insurance, he faces a daunting task of finding affordable healthcare.

"I've been without insurance since I was 18," Gonzalez said. "It's been tough, but I'm determined to find a way to take care of myself and my family."

Gonzalez is not alone. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 43.6 million people, or 14.2 percent of the population, were uninsured in 2012. This number is expected to decrease as the Affordable Care Act (ACA) comes into full force.

The ACA aims to provide healthcare coverage for all Americans, regardless of their ability to pay. It includes provisions to expand Medicaid, establish health insurance exchanges, and provide subsidies to low-income individuals.

President Barack Obama has long advocated for the ACA, saying it would bring peace of mind to millions of Americans. "This is about more than health care," Obama said. "It's about our dignity, our respect, and our fundamental belief in the American Dream."

Gonzalez is one of the many uninsured young adults who are facing the challenge of finding affordable healthcare. He is hopeful that the ACA will provide a solution to his situation.

"I'm excited about the ACA," Gonzalez said. "I know it's not going to solve all my problems, but it's a step in the right direction."

The ACA has faced opposition from some quarters, with opponents arguing that it is too expensive, will hurt the economy, and will reduce the effectiveness of the private insurance market.

But proponents of the ACA argue that it is necessary to provide access to healthcare for all Americans. "The ACA is not perfect," said Susan Collins, a pediatrician and advocate for the ACA. "But it's better than nothing."

Gonzalez is optimistic that the ACA will help him find the coverage he needs. "I'm going to sign up for the ACA as soon as I can," he said. "I want to make sure I'm protected.

The ACA is set to fully take effect in 2014. It is expected to provide coverage to millions of uninsured Americans, including young adults like Gonzalez.

"I'm going to take advantage of the ACA," Gonzalez said. "I want to make sure I'm protected."
the football team, he said the teammates had been enthusiastic. A 10-year-old friend of the star quarterly and the athletic department for new players, thoroughly they handled the board.

"Students are the stude- nts first, and they have rights and privileges as students," Mrs. Hill told board members. "Playing football is a privilege, I'm a,enjoy knowing what we were very dis- appointed, we are trying to be an easier to support each other. I hope you know how to do. We insist on high standards in every aspect of our life."

Hill added that, while he is aware of all the details behind the firing of KC, he is confident that Hill and members of the athletic program will make strong decisions on how to rem- public.

Board members also dis- cussed the need to increase the number of tutors made available to students, as well as the need for a computer lab that would provide special needs for student activity.

Several proposals were passed at the meeting involving one that allows UF to begin a feasibility study for a new medic- ical school. Hill noted meanwhile that the study was launched in 1980 and 10 years before a medical school was established at the University. Members agreed that if UF was not to take on the project, the medical school should pro- vide a residency program and research opportunities for stu- dents. Hill said that research money and grants for a medical school could bring UF could contribute to the entire commu- nity.

Despite approval from board members, the proposal for special needs for students were passed at the meeting involving the need for a computer lab that would provide special needs for student activity.

A debate was presented when Student Government Association President Brian Bartles quizzed the fairness of a proposal that would increase fees for the Creative School for Children. The fees would go to salaries, repair and maintenance, counseling instructional programs and auxiliary services. The facilit- ies argued that while stud- ents are paying $119 each year of the cost of running the school, only 40 percent of students actually use its services. "I thought that members need to be more informed," Bartles said. "Currently students pay $25 extra per cent hour in LFC that's about $500 a year to the Creative School. Students that utilize the Creative School also must pay a fee that is not much less than faculty and the commu- nity as well.

"I don't think that this was a fair proportion and the figures need to be further evaluated," Mrs. Hearn, who voted against the increase, agreed. She said he did not support paying the fees to students and parents who were already paying tuition fees. "I think that students should be given priority, thermal, and that there is a great.

"I think the study is going to show that this is a good area and that there is a great area," Bartles said. "We have a lot of incisions that use emergency care, we have a large elderly population and a large veterans population and being the center of the state, services are very good. I want it to be a good medical school that really serves around the country, and if we get it to stages and places that I feel.

Also passed were two propos- als to establish additional departments in the Rosen School of Hospitality. The festival will be perfect for lawyers, doctors and veterinarians. The study is expected to begin next year.

Medical school is needed but costly

U.S. President John F. Kennedy has high hopes. He wants, because of the increasing enrollment in medical schools, that the number of medical schools be increased. The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) should build its own medical school.

The monthly meeting of UCF’s selective officers decided that the school should consider building a medical school. It is estimated that there will be a need for 10,000 more doctors by the year 2000. At UCF,clipart medical students have been welcomed by the local hospitals and universities. It is not too late to start building the medical school, but the money will have to come from private sources. The possibilities are numerous, but the cost of a medical school is estimated to be $100 million.

Kennedy’s plan was to build a medical school at UCF with the help of a multi-million-dollar appropriation from the state legislature. In this way, the university would be able to provide medical education at a lower cost. However, the funding for the medical school would have to come from private sources. The possibilities are numerous, but the cost of a medical school is estimated to be $100 million.

As a final note, it is important to mention that the construction of a medical school is not the only solution to the shortage of medical doctors. There are other ways to address this issue, such as improving the quality of medical education, increasing the number of medical students, and providing financial aid to medical students.

OUR STANCE

Stomach surgery can’t turn fat to happy

Fat is life and their parents are taking the easy way out by letting them eat whatever they want. This is a major problem in our society today, and it is important to address it.

An American woman was caught on tape saying that she weighs 300 pounds. She was interviewed by a local television station and admitted that she eats whatever she wants.

The driver of the car was asked why he always eats so much. He said, “I don’t know. I just do. I’ve always been like this.”

The driver’s family has been trying to help him lose weight for years. They have tried everything from dieting to exercise, but it seems like nothing works.

In conclusion, it is important to address the issue of obesity and its causes. It is important to educate people about the dangers of obesity and the importance of healthy eating and exercise.

Seniors: 30-hour waste of time

For many seniors, the end of the semester is a time of relaxation and fun. However, for those who are still in school, the end of the semester is often a time of stress and anxiety. Many seniors are stuck in the cycle of studying, exam taking, and studying some more.

One way to combat this cycle is to find a way to make the end of the semester more enjoyable. One idea is to plan a senior trip, which can be a fun and rewarding experience. Another idea is to plan a senior prom or dance, which can be a memorable event.

In conclusion, the end of the semester can be a time of stress and anxiety for many seniors. However, there are ways to make the end of the semester more enjoyable and memorable. It is important to find ways to make the end of the semester a time of relaxation and fun, rather than a time of stress and anxiety.
Why should a president that questions the preparation I receive by the professors be allowed? I trust that my professors are the best of journalism professors. Why can’t the president understand a president who degrades a profession that I love and made my ability as a journalist without ever giving me a chance? Did not publish the illustration, neither did any other journalist working for the Future, nor any other student in the journalism program today. Journalists have a right to fair treatment in a country such as U.S., because he’s a public figure. It’s time for Hitt to let it go.

Vegetable protein does the job.

In the article, ‘The college student’s guide to eating well,’ it’s stated, “True proteins come from animal sources.” This implication is that plant sources do not have “true” proteins. A protein is a protein.

I cannot believe that such a misleading statement was published and supposedly authored by a dietitian. The statement in the article only helps perpetuate the established myth that you need to eat animal products to get adequate protein. The simple truth is that plant sources provide enough protein for humans. Plants can provide all the essential amino acids.

I’m surprised that the so-called dietary industry wants the population to believe that drinking milk when producing strong bones wasn’t included as well.

A vegetarian diet is not hot because it doesn’t include chicken; the excessive sodium, the excessive saturated fat, the excessive calories, or the quickness setting of an animal becomes hidden.

Men's soccer repeat as A-Sun champs

ASHLEY BURNS

The men's soccer team completed their Atlantic Sun Conference championship season last weekend as they added the 2003 A-Sun Tournament Championship to their regular season championship. Led by a high-powered offense, the Knights easily did away with second seed Florida Atlantic on Saturday beating the Owls 5-1. "It seems like a lot more because it's our second time around," midfield/forward Patrick said. "We thought we had the best team in the league and we proved it with our record."

Junior Pablo Girona, Chris Kiper and Jaf Tavares provided the effective fire power for the Knights, as each had a goal in the title game. As always, sophomore midfielder Leo Malcom played at his top level, as he stopped three shots and allowed just one goal. Girona scored early on a header from a long free kick. Kiper added the game's second goal less than 15 minutes into the game. Malcom was shut down on a breakaway attempt, but Tavares went in with him and pivoted the ball to the goal line as the Knights' lead 2-0.

"I'm the Offensive Player of the Year," senior Tavares said. "I didn't kill Malcom's potential for the title game with a goal. All I did was keep the ball away from him. Tavares has 17 goals, and he was truly in the mix for the title game. But the Knight's offense was the key."

Tuesday will host the 2003 Sudden Death Championship at the state soccer finals. Florida Atlantic will be the opponent as the Owls are coached by former Knights' head coach Jimmy Waters. "The Knights have been preparing for the Owls all year," senior Tavares said. "They are a great team, but we are the best team in the league."

yards and three touchdowns, Wallace rushed for 147 yards and seven scores.

However, Wallace also saw a few more signiﬁcant playbooks that were better than some bad games. On four occasions, Wallace has rushed for less than 50 yards, while Charles has had rushing totals of just 50 yards or worse each of the last two years. In 2017, Charles had scoured the nation's highest rushing totals for the majority of the season. For the second consecutive week, Charles has scored a touchdown. The last time he scored two touchdowns in a game, he did so in his collegiate debut.

GC's running back, Tim Hill, has been a consistent threat for the Knights, averaging 6.8 yards per carry. Hill has a total of 788 yards on the season, which is good for seventh in the nation. Hill has scored six touchdowns this season, and his speed has helped the Knights control the game against most opponents.

The UCF defense hasn't been as consistent as expected, allowing 402 yards and three touchdowns to Marshall. The Knights will need to improve their defense if they want to keep their playoff hopes alive.

NEW ON DVD

MURDER SHE WROTE

Almost as much a crime as the murder itself, "Murder, She Wrote," stars Angela Lansbury as a world-renowned mystery writer who becomes an amateur sleuth when the man of her dreams is murdered. This case, "Murder She Wrote: Death Comes in Short Order," is one of several special features included on this DVD. For those who love mysteries, this is a must-have addition to your collection.

Are you ready to rock? "AC/DC Live at Donnington"

For those who rock, "AC/DC Live at Donnington," featuring the iconic band AC/DC, would be a perfect addition to your collection. This DVD captures the band's electrifying performance at the legendary Donnington Park festival in 1991. With classic tracks like "Highway to Hell" and "Back in Black," it's the ultimate celebration of AC/DC's masterful blend of primal rock and blues.

Student-artist questions beauty with art exhibit

"Knowing Fantasy" is an art exhibit that explores the beauty and complexity of fantasy art. Curated by Casey Middleton, the exhibit features works by several artists, including paintings, sculptures, and photography. Middleton hopes to inspire viewers to appreciate the intricate details and creative visions of fantasy art.

Rachel Beek

Casey Middleton, winner of the Woman's Research Center's Art Competition, kicked off her undergraduate art exhibit with a reception last Tuesday in the Visual Arts Building. Middleton's exhibit, "Knowing Fantasy from Reality," features several paintings and sculptures. She is especially proud of her "Looking Beyond" piece, which explores the boundary between reality and fantasy.

Middleton's artwork, "Looking Beyond," is a mixed media installation that uses elements of nature, such as leaves and branches, to create an immersive experience for viewers. Middleton says that her artwork seeks to challenge the viewer's perceptions and encourage a deeper exploration of the imaginary.

Middleton's exhibit at the Visual Arts Building is open to the public, and her artwork is sure to inspire and fascinate viewers. Whether you're a fan of fantasy art or simply appreciate the beauty of art, "Knowing Fantasy" is not to be missed.

Tim Allen & Master P release holiday videos

This holiday season, Assault Entertainment & Founder, Business and Publishing, Dieter L. L. Hörberg, together with Master P, present us with a new video series that is sure to bring smiles and laughter to our faces. The video series, "Tim Allen & Master P: Holiday Special," features the stars performing skits, songs, and interviews, with special guests joining in for a fun-filled holiday experience.

"The idea is to energize everyone's holiday season with laughter, joy, and the spirit of giving," said Tim Allen.

"I'm excited to work with Tim on this project," said Master P. "We've been planning this for a long time, and I think we've got something special for our fans."
