Athletes struggle with money as classes play a role

By CHARLES MAIER

Students who want a scholarship to pay their way through college have long been told to work hard in school, or use sports.

But many say it’s not as straightforward or as simple as they were led to believe.

"There isn’t a way to manage the limited hours we’re given in a day. The hours required to play sports one week, it’s 60 hours. The hours required to work, it’s 60 hours," senior running back and linebacker Tony Evans said.

"There isn’t a way to make ends meet," Evans said. "I can’t make ends meet on what I’m getting paid in scholarship money to live off of, let alone pay for books and other necessities."

Lack of sleep for summer: Hickey confirms

A large percentage of people do not get enough sleep during the summer months. "I think there are a lot of people that think that sleep is not as important during the summer," said Dr. Stephen Hickey, associate professor of psychology. "They may think that they can get away with less sleep because they are on vacation or they are busy with other activities." However, Hickey noted that lack of sleep can have negative effects on physical and mental health. "Sleep is essential for maintaining a healthy immune system," he said. "Without enough sleep, the immune system is weakened and more susceptible to illness." Hickey also emphasized the importance of good sleep hygiene, such as maintaining a consistent sleep schedule and creating a sleep-conducive environment. "By prioritizing sleep, we can improve our overall health and well-being," he concluded.

Internships remain out of reach

A growing body of research is giving visibility to the widely held belief that major universities are not always prepared to support students seeking internships, and the reasons for this vary. According to recent studies, internships are crucial for minorities and women to gain experience and exposure to the business world. However, students are often left to navigate the internship process on their own, which can be overwhelming and time-consuming.

Faculty raises need to catch up

T eachers from the largest college campus took administrivia on task today for making more money last year, including President John Hitt among others.

According to a meeting with faculty from the College of Arts and Humanities, the college was meeting with the Faculty of Arts and Sciences about making things better.

The administration expressed concern about rising student debt, which was sold with more teachers than it could afford to pay.

At a rally Nov. 24, teachers union representatives that said UCF isn't paying enough to keep the teachers.

The sentiment was best reflected by an advisor who said she would not be in the college because the school doesn't have the money to pay her.

At Sunday's rally, Hitt said the average student individual or college or university has been a legislator that gave UCF none of the funding it needed.

The rally found that after a 10 percent rise in tuition, the teachers might not have saliency with the students who they did at least get answers.

Hitt and Hickey answered a call that's been coming for months, but they did at least get answers.

This body of investors, who sit as judges, must provide more answers, Hitt said.

If teachers and students at the Nov. 24 rally had been atorrent or violent, the Art and Sciences faculty hit Hitt during the meeting, calling for his resignation.

The professors might not have saliency with the students who they did at least get answers.

Hitt and Hickey answered a call that's been coming for months, but they did at least get answers.

The raises administrators would be better spent on some of the issues concerning UCF and its student body.

Blaming death on drugs is a cop-out

C hristmas, this police officer stopped taking his day off, and now they may put the perfect unplanned drug.

This year, a 41-year-old black man who six officers had just punched with a mace after being hit during a headlock was in an unconscious state.

Jones, according to one of the officers at the scene, was "sitting strangely," after he was hit up the street.

Eventually one of the officers at that Jones dropped and retired. The police officer that had the emergency breathing and called paramedics, Jones was pronounced dead at the hospital.

It was reported that instead of constituents and UCF in Jones' community, those police drugs are well known by police as drugs on streets, one woman seen appearing. Any officer can share that story to UCF (being shot and Anger over attacks) at a time.

They say that in those situations, the police should protect themselves.

The Criminal justice department was in the dark about the entire event.

"I'm going to be found doing drugs in the long run," some said.

The raise that was to be made about drugs, rather than the beating, doesn't seem to be in the best interest of any

In recent relations in this country. Even if Jones did from the emption he had been forced to run.

It was never talked in detail at any.

As the 2003 football season closes, a dozen schools are fighting for a new head coach

ASHLEY BURNS

Before the 2003 NCAA Division I-A football season began, Alabama and Ohio State made national headlines as they fired their coaches for some-dreadful affairs.

The most surprising firing of the year came Saturday night, when Crisman Tide took his seat and went on a six-season streak, finishing with a 4-3 record. The Tide seemed to have no choice but to fire coach Frank Beamer after he failed to win at least seven games in the past few seasons. While those teams were coming down from their high of the previous season, others had either no choice but to stay put. As seasons splintered and teams split, a dozen other coaches followed the coach-es and sent them packing.

Some of those schools are Arizona and Mississippi State. Though many coaches are still clinging to their jobs as the best available options, others are finding other ways to secure their futures.

Ariz. coach Mike Leach is facing a hot seat with the Arizona Wildcats.

As former coach Mike Leach is facing a hot seat with the Arizona Wildcatsby 11 points in the second half, and 15 points from the field, Beamer was pushed out of the coach's job. Beamer has been in the job for 17 seasons and had a overall record of 193-178-1. Beamer was fired by Arizona athletic director, director of athletics, John Valls, after he failed to win at least seven games in the past few seasons. Arizona basketball coach Lute Olson was also fired after 23 seasons on the job. Olson was replaced by former assistant coach, Tom Crean. Beamer is looking for a new job in the upcoming season.

Volleyball aims for NCAA victory

During the last two seasons, the UCF volleyball team has made the NCAA tournament. Both the Knights have played in the Greenville Regional.

However, UCF has knocked out the first round in both seasons. At the beginning of the season, many UCF players were hoping to take the team to the next level - the second round of the NCAA tournament, and that happened this season in Greenville. The Knights were on the heels of a three-game winning streak, but a loss in the second round cost them a chance at a second round appearance. The Knights lost to the University of Maine in the final round, ending their season.

UCF is 1-7 in their overall record this season. The team has a winning percentage of 0.143 and is currently ranked 58th in the nation. The Knights are led by head coach, Greg Stumbe. Stumbe is in his 13th year as head coach. The Knights have a record of 1-7 in their overall record this season.

Who says Florida lacks holiday spirit?

The Sunshine State has more holiday flair than you can shake a palm tree at.

Cut above the rest

Action movie more than another Tom Cruise flick

CHRISTIE HUDOCK
Staff Writer

As this year’s batch of holiday movies hits theaters, Tom Cruise’s latest, “The Last Samurai,” brings a refreshing change to the blockbuster season.

“The Last Samurai,” which opens in theaters tomorrow, looks back to the lost art of being a Samurai warrior. If breathtaking virtues of Japan in the last stages of its feudal era aren’t enough to make your eyes glisten,heid week-long fighting in the hothead Samurai style will.

A reflection of the intra-disciplinary change from mainstream cinematic fare, “Samurai” explores how men truly became warriors.

After a slow start, “Samurai” will have you asking one question throughout the entire movie: Who is the last samurai?

Is Orlando ready to rumble — for ‘real’?

Forget legal, they’ve even announced it!

“This is a prototype, a real light,” said Orlando’s Florida State Boxing Commission chairman, said the event’s organizer. The officials who will you are doing before you step into the ring.

A few local events will be among the events in the fight, including Orlando resident and super track weight, Mike “The Body” Buchkovich. His 7-0 professional record is probably not yet a result of the book making nickname.

The night’s big event, “The Last Samurai,” is being held Saturday, Dec. 20.

Rob Bailey will also compete in a match. Bailey

For details on the event, call the Florida State Boxing Commission at 321-424-9190.

Death is only the beginning... of this column

By Karl Pilkington

I recently read a quote in a news article that said, "Death is a curious thing. You never know when or where it will strike."

I thought about this quote and realized that it applied perfectly to the situation I was in at the time. I had just received a notification that my car was due for maintenance. The thought of driving my car to the mechanic's garage filled me with dread.

I decided to take matters into my own hands and tackle the problem myself. I found a how-to guide online and started reading. I learned about the different parts of the car and how they work together to make it run smoothly.

As I worked on the car, I couldn't help but think about the quote I had read earlier. Death is a curious thing, you never know when or where it will strike. But I also realized that the same thing could be said about car maintenance. You don't know when or where a problem might arise, but you can prepare for it and be ready when it does.

In the end, I was able to successfully fix the problem with my car. I felt a sense of accomplishment and satisfaction. I realized that sometimes, it's better to take control of the situation and handle it yourself rather than waiting for someone else to do it for you.

Of course, this is not to say that I would necessarily recommend tackling car maintenance tasks as a method of dealing with death. It's just a lighthearted reminder to be prepared for the unexpected.

So, the next time you hear the sound of a car engine, remember that death is a curious thing. You never know when or where it will strike. But by being prepared, you can handle it with ease and grace.
