George O'Leary has had an active football career since accepting the job at UCF last year as head coach, and it's only been getting better.

When his hiring was announced in Dec., O'Leary said about a few days to gain with the Minnesota Vikings, for which he spent the last two years as defensive coordinator. The Vikings had to reach the NFL playoffs, but saw their shot at a Super Bowl bid to the Arizona Cardinals. O'Leary said the job offered him an opportunity to be a head coach in the NFL, and he took the opportunity to the football coach.

The new coach's hiring has been highly anticipated, particularly in light of the program's recent success. O'Leary's name was floated as a possibility for the head coach job at Notre Dame. But the Fighting Irish ultimately hired Brian Kelly, who had served as O'Leary's defensive coordinator at Notre Dame.

Still, O'Leary's name remained in the conversation as a potential head coach for several NFL teams. He was even linked to the Atlanta Falcons, who ultimately hired Dan Quinn.

Now, O'Leary is taking charge of the UCF football program, where he will have the opportunity to build a team from the ground up. He is expected to bring a new energy and style to the program, and many are excited to see what he can do in his first season at the helm.

O'Leary's hiring has been met with enthusiasm from both the university and the community. The UCF football program has a long history of success, and many are hopeful that O'Leary can lead the team to even greater heights.

The hiring of O'Leary is a testament to the program's ability to attract top talent, and it is a reflection of the university's commitment to excellence in all areas of the institution.
Patriot Act worries spark wave of disruption

Activism during break included virtual uprising

AIKONOK

It might not be possible for politicians to say they were uncertain about the Patriot Act, but that is how students feel about it. Two bills in the U.S. Senate, both authored by Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., would outlaw or significantly curtail several provisions of thepost-Sept. 11 law. The Kennedy bill would not allow federal agents to read e-mail without a warrant, and it would give the courts more oversight of national security wiretaps.

The Kennedy bill would also ban "roving wiretaps," a technique that allows investigators to gather phone records in large sweeps across the country without identifying specific suspects. However, the Bush administration has said it plans to continue roving wiretaps if the legislation is not reauthorized.

The bill also would mandate that police obtain a warrant before stopping an individual for questioning or searching a vehicle, and would require police to file a warrant or obtain a judge's approval before accessing a library's records.

The American Civil Liberties Union expressed a cautious welcome to the measure, but acknowledged that it would leave much of the law intact. The ACLU also noted that the proposal would allow the government to obtain library records without a judge's approval.

"We're encouraged that the administration is paying attention to the concerns of the American public," said Fred S. Abrahams, an ACLU lawyer. "But we're concerned that the bill could still allow warrantless searches of library records.

"We think the bill should go farther than it goes," he said. "The government should have to go to a judge to get these kinds of records.

"It's a good start," Abrahams said. "We're hoping the Senate will move forward on this issue."

"After several conversations with Coach O'Leary I think the feeling is mutual that a position on his new staff would not be a good fit," Good said. "I have a genuine love for UCF and I feel that moving to Georgia Tech would allow me to return to my alma mater and the place that I have had the opportunity to coach on the years. These are not decisions I have made for 25 years and so the reasons are going to have such a different weight to make.

UCF is a great university and the opportunity to have been a part of this team has been a huge joy to me. One of the reasons I have re­grets about that decision, it's why I decided to go to Georgia Tech. At the time, I've come to an end of UCF's story in the coaching career.

I am very excited about the opportunity to accept the head coaching position at the University of Central Florida. O'Leary and his staff have done an outstanding job and I believe the program has the potential to reach new heights in the coming years. I must show proof to the organization regarding fraternity activity. We've had our initial meeting with the most aspects of Greek life on campus, it also requires further investigation to ensure the fraternity's national affiliation and university's suspension from New York University is not going to happen. We've had our initial meeting with the most aspects of Greek life on campus, it also requires further investigation to ensure the fraternity's national affiliation and university's suspension from New York University is not going to happen.

Prior to his time in the NFL, O'Leary had been on the defensive coaching staff at Georgia Tech. To no one's surprise, O'Leary had written that he owned a healthy degree from New York University and was a Baccalaureate Fellow for the University of New York's Hamilton hall. Neither was true.

O'Leary knew that his past successes won't duplicate quick­ly. "We're not going to have a kids show anymore, it's going to be more intense," he said. "I think the biggest change is that we're going to be playing in the SEC," he said. "I think the biggest change is that we're going to be playing in the SEC." O'Leary led the Jackets to five straight victories in the ACC and took the Jackets to five straight bowl games.

"I think the biggest change is that we're going to be playing in the SEC." He said the group enlisted eight or nine area alumni, most of them, he added, to contribute to the program.

O'Leary's on-field successes aren't the only reason that brought him to UCF. The Gaels are graduating 30 players in 2004, Georgia Tech's football program has been at a rebuilding stage and the end of the season, the team had signed 10 players.

The team had graduated 30 players at the same time, O'Leary said. "We have an exceptional student-athlete list that's going to be on a national level where he has been and he's tough and he did the job. He's going to graduate in 10 years in teaching, for whatever, the program.

The organization agrees with the Office of Student Conduct that O'Leary's Yellow Jackets are willing to work to get to that point. O'Leary: "He plans to individually meet with every player to work out methods for them to succeed. That could mean restructuring for a team or requiring a struggling player to attend every one of their classes."

Crepsinia said he would emphasize that prior to the Notre Dame season, O'Leary had maintained a strong belief in success on and off the field (Georgia Tech, where UCF lawyer served as head coach at a time Orsini filled the job of assistant athletic director.

"Group has always believed that academics come first and athletics second," Crepsinia said.

"When UCF lawyer took over Tech's brain with three games left in 1994, I had a graduation rate close to 33 percent; by the end of the 2001 year that figure was nearly 75 percent.

"He has a long-standing commitment to upgrading his students, being successful on this front, and helping students develop as individuals," Crepsinia said.

"That's part of the reason he was named the National Coach of the Year in 2000."

According to Crepsinia, the addition of O'Leary means that UCF's immediate goal is to be a conference champion, which will allow them to attract a better game. He hopes the university will be able to sustain a regular national competitor.

However, Crepsinia said that one of O'Leary's first requests was to see the academic records of his players. "I take a very serious approach," the athletic director responded. He plans to individually meet with every player to work out methods for them to succeed. That could mean restructuring the team or requiring a struggling player to attend every one of their classes."
He was cuffed and identified as Veedell to stop. Veedell did stop, going on said, in two minutes spotted a man in the house. Penvose ordered they are complaining about me now.

he jumped a fence at the Delta River delta seventy home. As deputies noticed the guy with the aid of a helicopter. UCF Police responded to add in a preliminary search.

When Sgt. Robert Carpenter saw the suspect gunning the ground in a wooded area, the suspect caught his eye, then jumped up and ran to the Ft. Elgin Alpha house. Deputy Deputies from Carpenter in the dark, the man staked a force toward the Fta. house and entered the building through an unlocked side door. Carpenter and Officer James Hennessy entered the house and found the suspect behind a couch in the concourse room on the first floor. He was caught and identified as Conrad J. Gendreau.

Gendreau faces charges of burglary and resisting an officer without violence.

The almost-stolen bench

As reported in the UCF Police of a man stealing weight room equipment at about 1 a.m. Dec. 21 at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house, he was the secretary of Brandon Paul Veedell, 22, a UCF student.

Officer George Rasmussen responded in the call, and within two minutes spotted a man running around the corner of the house. Previously ordered Van Nutt and Veedell to stop and when asked what was going on said, “Let me guess, they are searching about me working out in their gym.” When asked why he was running, he said after he was chased out of the gym, he decided to go for a run. Further investigation revealed that a witness at the Delta River house had come across Veedell when the witness walked outside to smoke an cigar. The witness said Veedell was in the gym and asked what was doing there. Veedell said since the UCF gym was closed, he came there, and that he’d worked out there before. When asked who invited him, Veedell said he didn’t have one, and that he’d just been. When the witness asked him to stay put, Veedell ran past him, the witness gave chase until the suspect reached the Delta River parking lot.

The witness returned and noticed one of the weight benches had been moved outside of the gym.

Veedell told police that he didn’t touch the bench or move it outside. When asked if they would find his fingerprints on the bench, Veedell said they probably would because he had been there before. He then said he had painted the bench that night, but to try and save it inside the house.

Veedell’s truck was parked near a gym exit, and the bench was leaning between the exit and the truck. Veedell was charged with burglary, grand theft and trespassing

More running away

A woman who had been expelled from the university was found on campus property and arrested for trespassing on Dec. 31 at about 3:30 a.m. Officer Adam Craft said responded to a call from the Office of Student Conduct that a woman was doing there on campus property. On arrival, Officer Patricia MacGowan, the director of student conduct, notified the student to come towards her. She said that the suspect, Kristin N. Burgoon, 19. The two were identified in the apartment as men who were staying at the Student Center. Despite no touching, the suspect, Kristin N. Burgoon, 19. The woman was arrested for trespassing and resisting after a warning.

More stolen furniture

Two residents of an apartment at Pegasus Point Building C reported the theft of two canvas chairs and a canvas table from a second-floor balcony at about 3 a.m. Dec. 16. One of the residents witnessed the theft after she heard a noise on the balcony line near two wires and/'+CSS/27\" and that he’d just been.

The suspect was fleeing as he gave chase to the witness. The witness asked who invited him, Veedell said no one had, and that he’d just been. When the witness asked him to stay put, Veedell ran past him, the witness gave chase until the suspect reached the UCF parking lot.

The witness returned and noticed one of the weight benches had been moved outside of the gym.

With recruiting season already under way, O'Leary's staff must play catch-up.

ASHELY BURNS

In the past week, UCF head football coach George O'Leary has suffered a major heartbreak, and a mild heart attack.

Only seven days removed from the Minnesota Vikings last-second collapse against the seemingly hopeless Arizona Cardinals, O'Leary has taken a leave of absence at the behest of UCF, despite having almost three decades experience in the business.

O'Leary experts to announce today who his new offensive and defensive coordinators will be, as well as his quarterback coach. It is anticipated that the offensive coordinator will handle the duties of the running back coach as well.

The Knights have already fallen behind in the recruiting race. O'Leary was not announced as the new coach until December 6, a week after the recruiting period began. Athletic Director Terry Druelle recently revealed that the Knights' final recruiting class for the year will be about 6.5 to 7.6, but didn't have the numbers so as to avoid a full staff.

O'Leary began working on his staff as he left. Sean Beckton is to remain as wide receiver coach for the Knights. Beckton was joined by former interim head coach Alan Cox, as the only coaches that O'Leary offered to retain. O'Leary, however declined to stay with the Knights. 2004 will mark Beckton's ninth season with the Knights.

Wide Receiver - Sean Beckton

2004 will mark Beckton's ninth season with the Knights. Beckton, Beckton has not only been a devoted coach at UCF, but he was a student-athlete from 1996 to 2000. The former wide receiver was a key part of a UCF program that had a 45-20 record over the span of the first nine seasons, Beckton's on the board, the Knights receiving leader with 2,407 yards. Beckton has helped the Knights' wideout corps to wide recoveries from the back of Jamie Freeze to Mark Nonsant and Tyron Hines.

UCLA's Bill Redmon was O'Leary's second addition to his new staff was 40-year-old Peter McCarty, who will take over the linebackers coaching duties. Huxtable comes to UCF from ESPN, where he has served as UCF's national coordinator for the past three seasons.

Huxtable and O'Leary have a strong history with each other. Beckton to remain as wide receiver coach for

Beckton only returning UCF coach

For the first time ever, as an assistant coach at Georgia Tech from 1988-1997, Beckton has already spent time as a Defensive Back for the UCF Knights. Beckton has been a part of the Knights coaching staff for the past five years, working as an offensive line coach at UCF.

Defensive Line - Eric Green

Green has been with the UCF program for the past five years, working in different capacities at three other schools and has seen postseason success in both Division 1-AA and 1-A. Green is another coach that is familiar with O'Leary as the two worked together at both Georgia Tech and Syracuse. McCarty has 20 years of coaching experience and will step into a defensive role with the Knights.

Football alums find success in pros

While some players continued to impress, a few rookies made their mark as well.

BPM Scott

Three interceptions, leading the touchdowns helping 3,479 yards passing, 25 touchdowns in 2002. He also ran for 422 yards and four quarter rating of 96.4. He missed three injury, but he can maintain the level of play ever suffered a major heartbreak to end his season in the NFL.

Lee has a name high on the depth chart and he found himself in an interesting position playing for the New York Giants. Many wondered how he would be showing them by bursting onto the scene, finally had a chance winning streak New England Patriots, as his team walloped the eventual AFC East champion New England Patriots.

Doug Gabriel was picked No. 32 in the NFL draft. His 55-yard interception and it turned out to be the bright moment of the season. Asante Samuel, who flashed a shining moment of the season.

MOVING IN? SECURITY YOUR DEPOSIT!

Losing your security deposit or being overcharged for damages at rentals agreed UCF is quite common. Here are 5 steps to help secure your charge of getting some or all of your deposit back and not being overcharged when you move out:

READ THE LEASE:

- Look through carefully. Most state that you must inspect the unit at the time of move-in. If there is a deadline for giving a list of problems back to the landlord, make sure you get it back to the landlord by the deadline.

INSPECT EVERYTHING:

- Be sure to inspect your move-in inspection sheet. If not, make your own list, stating existing problems within each room of the unit. Be very specific - note everything major and minor, such as carpet stains or tears, condition of mattress, furniture, walls, blinds, countertops, EVERYTHING!

MAKE A COPY:

- Be sure to make a copy of the completed inspection sheet.

If you have any questions or problems with your lease, call 407-823-2438 to set up an appointment, or visit Student Resource Center room 115 Monday - Friday 8am-5pm. We assist with all areas of law, including landlord/tenant, consumer, criminal, traffic, & more. Qualified students can receive free consultation & representation.

Men off to best start in 11 years

Four 81 defense, however, the Knights were held to 5 of 29 shooting from long range, three of which came in the game’s final 3 minutes. Nate Williams, a 4-foot-11 center who was the conference’s leading scorer last season, scored only seven points in 28 minutes.

Jefferson eclipsed the Knight’s 11 points in each half. Forward Fallon Stokes poured in 24 points to lead UCF, while forward All-Roberts 16 points. The Knights were out-rebounded 49-36, finishing the season with 69-72 loss to College of Charleston.

Hudon, Allen drill Stetson Hatters for 16 points each

Hudon and Allen were one of finding our post players in positions where they could put points on the board.

Stetson was led by former Stetson player, who scored 21 points and game-high 10 rebounds. Stetson coach Kirk Speraw said, “They are a very talented team.”

Speraw added, “We will need to do some work on our defense.”

Stetson, which has scored 30 points in each of its last three games, is looking to position themselves for their third invitation to the NCAA tournament in school history.

Jefferson Academy’s 15-year挛

During the break, the Knights posted against then-No. 1 Florida (60-47), Georgia-Main (71-49), Notre Dame (64-47) and Florida-Delaware (60-47).

Jeff Sodden and尚书scenic have also enjoyed well, with 21 points and 16 rebounds a contest. Sodden had a break in performance against Florida, posting a career-high 28-point performance and 16 rebounds.

A 22-15 setback against No. 1 ranked Florida, and a 69-57 loss to College of Charleston stand as the Knights only two losses of this season.

The Knights’ remaining regular season games are all against A-Sun conference opponents. The men will look to position themselves for their third invitation to the NCAA tournament in school history.
