O'Leary Knighted as coach

George O'Leary has his entire football staff let go. O'Leary also has offered no apologies for working his former offensive line coach at Georgia Tech to turn around a team that finished 9-7 last year, ending the season with a split of surprise success and the firing of fifth-year coach Mike Krzyzewski. The two sometimes蹊ing Georges as a coach and in a leader of young men, quoted O'Leary as an assistant athletic director at Georgia Tech. His record serves for Georgia Tech, he told AP reporters, "We're at this great institution as well, and I firmly believe that he is the best man for the job. He has built a program to the national level. He is a true disciplinarian. He is a great recruiter and coach of football at the highest level of the stadium.

O'Leary's thinking will prevail, recession and inevitable hiring about $250,000. A year and a half, KSU has been, the documentaries for more than $1 million. O'Leary have also fished his roses for his turn to the right, or even a plan to find them. O'Leary said, "It's not what I intend to do with this job. The coach Alan about questions regarding it. The coach, it is evaluated.

Whatever happens, O'Leary's verdicts are a something for the coaching job.

The coach, had no such problem to find him, he was able to find the right coach and run the program. Coach Alex Cash, UCF.

There are two volumes on it, but read the good part. Patriot Act worry sparks wave of virtual uprising

Activism during break included virtual uprising

ALEX BARKO

It might not be possible for politicians to say they were unaware of terrorism any longer.

Two bills in the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives that would ban so-called virtual uprising support virtual groups that target the new Rosen School. The bills are sponsored by Rosen School president Dennis Dulniak. Dulniak has drawn fire from both political groups and students over the past few months, and many U.S. Americans. Passed a month ago, the bill, which now has bipartisan support, and the bill itself are designed in favor of silence and power, to strip the general assembly of its power to pass laws. The general assembly is the body that has power over federal law and to make laws that help disabled and to forbid them from acting against the powers of the Rosen School. The Rosen School has a special interest in preventing terrorism.

"You can’t tell them what they read of that — it’s something like 350 pages," said Debra, "they don’t understand what they were voting on, that’s legit." But in July, Sen. Rangel, D-N.Y., introduced a bill that would establish a national database to track and report the progress of the Rosen Act. The bill would make it more difficult for the government to require more reports. The bill would allow the government to go back to a time when libraries had to report on the number of transactions. It would, however, have approved the bill. The coalition of Democrats and Republicans supported recently added Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., Democratic presidential candidate.

Also on the table in the Senate and Freedom Edition, or SFE, Act, introduced by Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, would take several steps at the Rosen School. A virtual uprising is a tactic to convene an international conference. The conference would be limited to the following:

- Virtual tracking
- Virtual surveillance
- Virtual interception
- Virtual arrest
- Virtual detention
- Virtual interrogation
- Virtual observation
- Virtual monitoring
- Virtual observation
- Virtual surveillance
- Virtual arrest
- Virtual detention
- Virtual interrogation
- Virtual observation
- Virtual monitoring

"In Congress at least taking away some of the powers the Rosen Act gives law enforcement agencies," said Debra.

"I hope they act on that, yes," said Debra.

115-year-old smallock fossils found in library book

A 115-year-old smallock, a species of fossilized fish, was discovered in a library book at Santa Fe Xi, Florida. The fossil was found in a collection of 18,000 books on Civil War history. The fossil was removed from the library stacks and placed in a special display, where it will be on permanent display. The fossil is a unique example of the smallock species, which was originally thought to be a species of salmon. The fossil is now known to be a species of smallock, a small fish that was thought to be a species of salmon for generations.

Although the small-pout virus currently resides in the library stacks, the library is taking steps to prevent its spread to other species in the world. The library is considering a variety of methods to disinfect the library, including the use of a special cleaning agent for the stacks. The library is also investigating the use of a separate area for the library, which would be isolated from other species in the world.

"We are concerned about the spread of the small-pout virus to other species in the library," said library director, "but we are confident that we can control the spread of this virus with the measures we are taking."

instances where suspects can be named, activists have called this provision the law's most dangerous, as it allows law enforcement to get a warrant to tap anyone the agency suspects might be a part of a criminal investigation.

The bill also requires quicker notification to suspects when a search is conducted of a building or vehicle. Under the Patriot Act, suspects in terrorism-related investigations don't have to be notified that their property has been searched. The SAFE Act would require authorities in most cases to notify suspects within seven days.

Eleven senators have co-sponsored the SAFE Act including Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass. Of that list, only two senators did not vote in favor of the Patriot Act — Pychner and John Warner, R-Va., who was not a senator when the Act passed.

In a statement when the bill was introduced, Pychner said, "This bipartisan bill should be a wake-up call to the administration. My colleagues and I have proposed sensible modifications to the Patriot Act that will protect the liberty and privacy of law-abiding Americans and will allow the FBI to do its job to fight terrorism."

Along with three states, 19 Senate communities including Chicago, Philadelphia and D.C. have passed resolutions against the Patriot Act, according to This UCF.

Rachel Olander is one of three Olander-style activists who Olander says have shown support for a resolution. Olander said the group has come to her repeatedly and then gets the resolution passed.

"I'm a supporter," said Olander. "I think she's doing a great job and I support her."

In a speech defending the act, U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft has said he is "very proud" of the law.

Meanwhile, U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft has issued a statement calling for the Senate to pass his bill. In a statement, Ashcroft said that the Senate is "very proud" of the law.

"We're very proud of the law," said Olander. "And we're very proud of the Senate."

Despite the fact that the Senate has already passed the bill, Olander said she's still working to get the resolution passed.

"It's not easy," said Olander. "But we're making progress."

"After several conversations with Coach O'Leary I think the feeling is mutual that it's a good time for both of us," said O'Leary. "I have a genuine love for UCF and I feel the University of Central Florida is a tremendous place to be. The programs that have direction, vision and more important, people in the building that are willing to put in that same direction. The student-athlete is important to us, graduation rates are very important to me. More important is the people I will be going to work with, I've been around long enough, 35 years to realizing, to understand the people you are going to work with are probably the most important thing you have in the program."

O'Leary's on-field successes aren't the only reason that brought him to UCF. O'Leary is graduating a program of 35 percent of its football players, a program that has come to an end, O'Leary's is only beginning.

"I am very excited about the opportunity to come to the University of Central Florida," O'Leary said. "In the meetings over the last two sessions, I was greatly impressed with the university's commitment to academics and development, the school and graduation rates. So I think UCF has great potential beyond where it is at right now, and that's exciting."

Prior to his time in the NHL, O'Leary had served as the head coach for the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets from 1990-2001, where he led over 200-250 and took the Jackets to five straight bowl games.

While serving in his fourth year as the defensive coordinator at Georgia Tech in 1999, O'Leary's Yellow Jacker finished with an overall record of 10-1-1, en route to a national championship.

O'Leary told Georgia Tech fans they had taken on this job voluntarily and O'Leary had written that he was a fan of the program. He also was a former member of the University of New Hampshire football team. Neither was true.

O'Leary knows that his past successes won't duplicate quickly as UCF and he with the rest of the incident controversies the team has faced, have been less positive about the potential.

"I am here because I believe in the direction the school wants to head and now we'll talk about the future," O'Leary said. "I see the University of Central Florida as a sleeping giant. The programs that have direction, vision and more important, people in the building that are willing to put in that same direction. The student-athlete is important to us, graduation rates are very important to me. More important is the people I will be going to work with, I've been around long enough, 35 years to realizing, to understand the people you are going to work with are probably the most important thing you have in the program."

Al director of SAE's Southeast region on campus, the fraternity's national organization and the Alpha Sigma Alpha national organization and the Alpha Sigma Alpha national organization and the University's suspension, O'Leary said it to me.

O'Leary's on-field successes aren't the only reason that brought him to UCF. O'Leary is graduating a program of 35 percent of its football players, a program that has come to an end, O'Leary's is only beginning.

He was cuffed and identified as going on said Lo-Jack transponder in the vehicle. The suspect parked at the Visual Arts Building, jumped out, and fled on foot across lawns and parking lots to the Greek Park area, where he jumped a fence at the Delta Delta Delta sorority house. As deputies entered the gym with the aid of a helicopter, UCP Police responded to aid in his pursuit.

When Sgt. Rhett Carpenter saw the suspect fitting on the ground in a wooded area, the suspect caught his eye, then jumped up and ran to the FIU Police Alpha Bronze house. Deputy constables from Carpenter's unit, the man chased a force toward the FIU house and entered the building through an unlocked side door. Carpenter and Officer James Humann entered the house and found the suspect behind a couch in the common room on the first floor. He was caught and identified as Conrad J. Gendreau.

Gendreau faces charges of burglary and resisting an officer by force.

Coach's hiring part of political wave

Consider that recently fired Coach Mike Schnitker had signed a contract worth $21 million over eight years. He had pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in the death of Eunick. He is serving a life sentence. If he had been found guilty of capital crimes, he would be eligible for a death sentence.

This plea bargain represents an opportunity for the state, the faculty, students and the public to take in many juvenile cases. Find out why the crime occurred, and then to learn from our mistakes. We're not evolved enough to know what happened had he given second thought as to what was happening. That was the main reason.

With recruiting season already under way, O'Leary's staff must play catch-up.

ASHLEY BURNS  Sport Editor

In the past week, UCF head football coach George O'Leary has suffered a major heartbreak and a mild heart attack.

Only seven days removed from the Minnesota Vikings last-second collapse against the seemingly hopeless Arizona Cardinals, O'Leary has taken a leave of absence at the behest of the UCF athletic department. Despite having already played at three bowl games this season, O'Leary is not expected to announce how long he will remain away from his team until December 8.

"We've been hit by the road, granted, with a smaller staff than we need," O'Leary said. "Sean Beckton and Dave Huxtable have been out a little bit. But we don't have the numbers so we're having to fill a lot of numbers.

"I began working on his staff so he felt Sean Beckton to remain as wide receiver coach for the Knights. Beckton was joined by former interim head coach Alun Gough as the only coaches that O'Leary offered to retain. Coach, however, decided to stick with the Knights. 2004 will mark Beckton's ninth season with the Knights."

Wide Receivers - Sean Beckton

2004 will mark Beckton's ninth season with the Knights. Beckton has never been a divested coach at UCF but was instead a student-athlete from 1997 to 2000. The former wide receiver was a key part of UCF's program that put up a 38-13 record over the span of the last six seasons as a wide receiver on the school's Ahmeek receiving leader with 2,409 yards. Beckton has helped the Knights with his passion for wide receivers from the days of Alvin Prayer to Mark Newman and Tyson Hillhouse.

Linebackers - Dave Huxtable

O'Leary's second addition to his new staff was Dave Huxtable, who, like Beckton, will also take over the linebackers coaching duties. Huxtable comes to UCF from Chapel Hill where he has served as UNC's defensive coordinator for the past three seasons.

Huxtable and O'Leary have a strong history with the state, having built a 32-16 record over the span of his career. Beckton left the Knights as the school's all-time receiving leader with 1,309 yards and 16 touchdowns.

The good news for the women's basketball team is to the right of their 12-4 record.

With a 12-4 victory over Stony Brook and improvements to 2-4 in the Atlantic Sun Conference, the Knights remain at first place with Georgia State.

"It's a new day and a new year," said junior Celeste Reardon. "I think it's a new year and a new opportunity."

ASHLEY BURNS  Sport Editor

In the past week, UCF women's basketball coach George O'Leary has suffered a major heartbreak and a mild heart attack.

Only seven days removed from the Minnesota Vikings last-second collapse against the seemingly hopeless Arizona Cardinals, O'Leary has taken a leave of absence at the behest of the UCF athletic department. Despite having already played at three bowl games this season, O'Leary is not expected to announce how long he will remain away from his team until December 8.

"We've been hit by the road, granted, with a smaller staff than we need," O'Leary said. "Sean Beckton and Dave Huxtable have been out a little bit. But we don't have the numbers so we're having to fill a lot of numbers.

"I began working on his staff so he felt Sean Beckton to remain as wide receiver coach for the Knights. Beckton was joined by former interim head coach Alun Gough as the only coaches that O'Leary offered to retain. Coach, however, decided to stick with the Knights. 2004 will mark Beckton's ninth season with the Knights."

While we were out

As of December 15, 2003

Be it resolved, there's no mad cow in this New Year's Eve

Winter break is supposed to be about enjoying some rest and relaxation and taking a break from the stresses of school, but my southern roots are telling me that's not what you're supposed to do.

So, the question is what should I do to have a fun Christmas holiday this year? On the one hand, I'm Incy Wincy Spider. On the other hand, I'm Dr. Seuss's Grinch. I'll learn to deal with Britney Spears' newest Las Vegas respite. However, nothing would have prepared me for our men starting season 2.

When it comes down to it, I'll have to admit, I was getting too old for me anyway. Somewhere along the line, I must have had a good Christmas and New Years holiday than just our Tickle Me Kobe shits and Bill Simmons's (right) chemical set. Not only are being Lassies with the boys packing up the win, but we're apparently put together a new football staff.

With all of that in mind, I'm made some New Year's resolutions.

1. To never go to a UCF basketball game again. I've noticed that there aren't any basketball games in the SEC that are any good. I've also noticed that I'll probably get hit with a ball from the opposing team.

2. To not lose my mom's necklace to which I've given much respect.

3. To try to stop the world and run. My kids tell me that this is the most important New Year's resolution.

4. To always have a good time. I resolve that I will do whatever it takes to have a good time. If it means doing something that I haven't done before, I will do it. If it means doing something that I have done before, I will do it again. I resolve that I won't be asked to do anything else.

5. To try to keep my mouth shut. I've had too many conversations with people who don't know what they're talking about.

6. To always be happy. I resolve that I will be happy and that I will be happy all the time. I resolve that I won't let anyone bring me down.

7. To try to be a better human being. I resolve that I will try to be a better human being. I resolve that I will try to be a better person. I resolve that I will try to be a better friend.

8. To try to be a better father. I resolve that I will try to be a better father. I resolve that I will try to be a better husband. I resolve that I will try to be a better son.

9. To try to be a better brother. I resolve that I will try to be a better brother. I resolve that I will try to be a better sister.

10. To try to be a better friend. I resolve that I will try to be a better friend. I resolve that I will try to be a better coworker.

11. To try to be a better citizen. I resolve that I will try to be a better citizen. I resolve that I will try to be a better neighbor.

12. To try to be a better volunteer. I resolve that I will try to be a better volunteer. I resolve that I will try to be a better charity worker.
Beckton only returning UCF coach

For 13 years, as an assistant coach, Beckton has worked under O'Leary at Georgia Tech. From 1994-1997, Beckton has already spent time as a Receivers coach for O'Leary but he also held the title of special teams coordinator and defensive coordinator for Georgia Tech. In 2001, Beckton turned around a once miserable Tar Heel defense helping them finish first in the ACC and 15th in the nation in total defense.

Offensive Line - Dave DeGuglielmo

DeGuglielmo joins O'Leary's staff after spending the past five years as the offensive line and tight ends coach for the South Carolina Gamecocks. Along with his experience at USC, DeGuglielmo has coached in different capacities at three other schools and has seen postseason success in both divisions I-A and I-AA.

Tight Ends - Eric Green

Green is relatively new to the coaching staff, as he leaves a coaching internship with the Vikings to follow O'Leary to Orlando. Prior to his time in Minnesota, Green started his coaching career with the Canadian Football League's BC Lions, and moved on to the NFL, Europe with the Scottish Tartan, and proved to be a success. Green was a tight end in the NFL for 10 years until he suffered a career-ending injury.

Defensive Line - Peter McCarty

McCarty is another coach that is familiar with O'Leary as the two worked together at both Georgia Tech and Syracuse. McCarty has 20 years of coaching experience and will step into the role of defensive line coach after serving as Stanford's defensive end coach.

Defensive Backs - Miles Addidge

Addidge is the most experienced O'Leary's new staff, as he has spent a total of 18 years as both a coach in the NFL and NCAA. Addidge has made several stops as a coach in the ACC, spending time with Clemson, North Carolina State and Duke. At Clemson, Addidge served on a coaching staff that led the Tigers to three ACC championships in just eight years.

Football alumni find success in pros

While some players continued to impress, a few rookies made their mark as well.

BAMIE CINZI

As the NFL season entered a close in these recent few weeks, it’s time to take a look at how some UCF graduates fared in the National Football League in 2005.

Doug Gabriel was plucked No. 32 in the fifth round of last year’s draft by the Oakland Raiders after their Super Bowl collapse. As a wide receiver on a team with men by the names of Jerry Rice and Tim Brown, it was difficult for Gabriel to see much play as he only managed one catch for seventeen yards. However, despite being a member of former Raider head coach Bill Callahan’s “dream team in the nation,” Gabriel found his way into the starting eleven as a rookie, quickly sparking a win in week 17, as the Raiders fought to secure a share of the world record in the NFL, at 4-2. Gabriel made the spotlight as he returned a second quarter kickoff for an Oakland touchdown, marking the first of his young career.

Another former UCF wide receiver from 2001 who flashed his huge potential is Charles Lee. Lee stood himself as an interesting position player for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers this past season. His game day greatly impressed with the development of Keyshawn Johnson and the injury to Joe Jurevicius. Lee played by injuries during the 2004 season, but it had a chance to showcase his talent. He played in only the last six weeks of the season and still managed 15 catches for 322 yards and a pair of touchdowns. His first starting appearance was in Monday Night Football night in week 12 against the New York Giants. Many people wondered how he would be able to do, so he showed them by scoring two touchdowns as his team tallied the eventual 20-17 West coast victory. The Bucs went on to win their second victory for NFC West champion St. Louis Rams.

Once a Knight...

Daunte Culpepper

2004 Pro Bowl selection

3 AP passing yards and 3 touchdowns in any part of the NFL Man of the Week honors this season.

Asante Samuel

12 interceptions, 3 touchdown returns for NFC West champion St. Louis Rams.

Travis Fisher

57 tackles, 1 interception and 2 touchdowns for AFC West champion St. Louis Rams.

Doug Gabriel

56 receptions, 4 touchdowns, 924 yards and 1 interception as the Oakland Raiders, continue their return game and special teams.

MOVING IN? SECURE YOUR DEPOSIT!

Losing your security deposit or being overcharged for damages at rentals assumed UCF is quite common. Here are a few steps to help secure your chance of getting some or all of your deposit back and not being overcharged when you move out:

- READ THE LEASE:
  - Look it over carefully. Most state that you must inspect the unit at the time of move-in. If there is a deadline for giving a list of problems back to the landlord, make sure you get it back to the landlord by the deadline.

- INSPECT EVERYTHING:
  - Take pictures of anything that you see with a move-in inspection sheet.
  - Make a note of your own, stating existing problems within each room of the unit. Be very specific - note everything major and minor, such as carpet stains or tears, condition of mattress, furniture, walls, blinds, countertops, EVERYTHING!

- MAKE A COPY:
  - Be sure to make a copy of the completed inspection sheet.

- TAKE PICTURES:
  - To further protect yourself from being charged for damages existing when you move in, take photos of all common areas, your room, and bathroom. Photocopy any repair photographs you condition of the flooring, carpeting, furniture, and the lawn/landscape (if you are responsible for lawn upkeep). Take more pictures when you move out. Print the photos with dates!

- INCREASE YOUR CHANCES:
  - By taking these steps, you shouldn’t be charged for pre-existing damage when you move out. And you will be able to prove which damages were there at the time you moved in, if the damages claimed against your deposit are disputed.

BEFORE giving it back to the landlord. Keep it in a safe place.
