Second rally takes aim at administrators' actions

ELIZABETH FERNANDEZ

While signing up for classes this semester Matt DeVlieger read: "Careful. It is all an impace. The classes he needed to enroll in 2007 and 2005 were sold out. He realized he would be unable to attend UCF in the fall. He decided to begin making other arrange­ments.

Thanks to some surprise class openings the day before classes started, and two overrides, the broadened editorial major was able to stay at school for another semester.

The incident stayed with him, however, and he realized he was not the only student suffering from waitlist woes.

Along with several other students who have also been caught up in the system, he decided to help push Wednesday’s rally in front of Millikan Hall in the hopes of making the administration aware of the need for a ‘way for people to get into classes.’

The rally continued also included a lack of available classes, overscheduled summer courses and overrestric­tions of classes.

At the rally, about 50 students showed their support for a petition of house. High on the list were researching and publishing abo­ tection, or possibly running on campus to raise money for a golf course.

Dorm residents fume over parking

MORGAN MULLER

Parking is causing a stir at University Village. Many students at UM have been trying to find a parking spot, and many have given up. It's a problem that's been going on for a long time. The parking is not enough, and it's causing confusion. Students are having trouble finding parking, which is causing stress and frustration.

UCF’s growth compared to cancer

Another important issue is growth. The school budget was out by the state legislature last year, yet the administration hasn’t taken any steps to redress the budget shortfall. According to the Converse Foundation, UCF has spent $25 million in the past two years on growth and “the goal is to double the campus in the next five years.”

Critical issues remain unresolved. Some students question the administration’s commitment to maintaining a quality education. Others question the university’s ability to maintain its position as a top research institution. The controversy continues as UCF looks ahead to a new academic year.

UCF is in the midst of a major expansion plan. The university is planning to open a new campus in Orlando next year. The new campus will include a new science building, a new humanities building, and a new performing arts center. The university is also planning to build a new sports complex.

The university is also planning to expand its online offerings. In 2013, UCF launched its first-ever online degree program. The program is designed to provide students with the opportunity to earn a bachelor’s degree in business at their own pace. The program currently offers degrees in accounting, finance, marketing, and management.

The university is also planning to expand its research efforts. In 2014, UCF was awarded a $5 million grant from the National Science Foundation to support research on climate change. The university is also planning to expand its research on cancer.

In 2015, UCF received a $10 million grant from the National Institutes of Health to support research on cancer. The grant will fund studies on the effects of chemotherapy and radiation on cancerous tumors.

The university is also planning to expand its international partnerships. In 2016, UCF launched a new partnership with the University of Tokyo to support research on renewable energy.

The University of Central Florida is making great strides in expanding its campus and improving its programs. The university is committed to providing students with a quality education and a strong foundation for their future careers. With continued support from the community, UCF will continue to be a leader in higher education.
Former coach finds new home

Kruczek moves to the NFL as Cardinals’ quarterback coach

ASHLEY BURNS

Kruczek is taking a new step in his coaching career. He is moving to the National Football League.

The former UCF football coach is leaving behind UCF football, where he spent the past six years as the Knights’ head coach and 13 previous seasons in various coaching roles. Kruczek will join Dennis Green’s staff at the Arizona Cardinals as the team’s quarterback coach.

Kruczek becomes the 35th assistant coach to be hired at Arizona in the past five years. Prior to the hiring, Green released all assistants of former Cardinals head coach Dave McGinnis.

The move to Arizona was one of many potential jobs that Kruczek had hoped to land. Initially, he had expressed interest in working with the Indianapolis Colts, where his former Houston College coach Tom Snee is the offensive coordinator. However, the opportunity to help run an offense that features Peyton Manning and Marvin Harrison was not possible as they were not firing.

Kruczek admitted that he had spoken with Pittsburgh Steelers head coach Bill Cowher, but was not formally interviewed for any positions. Kruczek was the backup quarterback in the 1993 Super Bowl.

Kruczek, a former quarterback at the University of Central Florida, entered the coaching ranks in 1987 as an assistant at Central Florida Community College in Melbourne, where he spent a successful season.

The veteran coach will take over the Arizona Cardinals’ quarterback unit, replacing Mike Williams, who left to become the quarterbacks coach at the Cleveland Browns.

Baseball picked third in preseason poll

Both Stetson and UCF had only one player selected in the preseason poll, but both teams were represented in the coaches’ poll.

Stetson was picked fifth in the A-Sun, two spots behind conference leader FAU. The Owls’ preseason recognition didn’t come without controversy, as FAU was picked to win the conference despite being ranked fourth in the coaches’ poll.

UCF, on the other hand, was picked third in the A-Sun, trailing only FAU and FAU. The Knights ended the 2003 season with a 10-game winning streak, finishing second in the conference.

Despite being picked fifth in the A-Sun, the Knights believed they had a shot at the championship, as they were one of the three teams to receive votes in the coaches’ poll.

The Knights’ biggest concern might not be the teams in front of them but the teams behind them. They were both ranked higher than UCF in the coaches’ poll.

“UCF (14-2, 9-0) heads into tournament season on a roll,” said Kirk Speraw, who is ranked as the A-Sun’s top offensive player.

Women host red-hot Trojans
Troy State heads to Orlando on A-Sun tour
MATT DUNHAM

After taking care of business in North Carolina with a 2-0 road trip last weekend, the UCF women's soccer team returns home tonight for a three-game slate against Troy State.

This will be the first time the Knights and the Trojans, with an A-Sun campaign after starting conference play at 0-2.

Meeting up the Women of Troy in their first game is local favorite Socolich as the Trojans take on UCF on Wednesday, Jan. 24.

UCF leads the A-Sun in scoring with 20.6 points a game, fouled out with just 184 assists per game. That feat is enough for the team in the A-Sun league.

UCF dungeon this season. However, the all-time series between the Knights with 6 assists Monday against Mercer.

The last was less than the first time of the last five meetings. The Trojans also swept both games last season.

This is the first of two meetings between the two schools this season. Each of the last two meetings has been won by the home team.

The difference in scoring between the two schools is that of the 18 points, each team scored 10 in the first half of the game against Florida Atlantic.

Florida Atlantic is the only school that has scored more than 10 points in a game.

And then there was one
Gordon-Weston got their first league victory against Florida Atlantic 5-0-1 on Monday night. The game-winner came on a double-decker from the left side of the box.

Four players in doubles, two in singles, led the Knights to the victory. They won a total of 10 games in doubles, but grabbed three of them in the last eight.

Men's Notebook
If the Knights are to win, they need to make a push toward the top. The Knights are 4-3-1 in the A-Sun after sweeping Mercer 2-1 and 1-0 in his last two games.

of standout at the end," Spoon said. "We've maintained good form this year and that's why we're accomplishing what we're accomplishing."
The Future: Thankfully, we choose to dump injury-prone quarterback for the Steelers for a stud quarterback. This past year, the team's secret was hard to hide. However, it's clear now that when you're in the right role in favor of some new blood.

Kruczek joins another ex-Florida college coach

Speraw: They're good people. We have a lot of people from different backgrounds and different circumstances that they grow up with. They're all come together and developed good camaraderie on and off the court. In a short period of time. You can see on the court how it manifests itself, and it goes back to each individual being a good person at heart.

The Future: So is there any truth to the rumor that you're looking for a new quarterback for the Steelers for the future? And if so, what are you looking for? Speraw: I've tried to have a lot of players for the team to get behind their teammates. Whether it's football, baseball, or whatever. It's exciting that we're finally getting a group of people who are willing to put the game and the competition and coming to peace, and not only are the kids getting behind us but looking to dominate the other team.

The Future: Is any point in the last two games, have you felt an urge to pull a couple and just ask the crowd, "Where have you been?" Speraw: I don't have the luxury of just the appreciation that they finally expect some great but not great the basketball players are so great that they can do it. It's exciting to see the student body enjoy themselves.

The Board of Trustees finally could consider the matter of gay civil rights on campus today.

There are two sides being asked to endorse a resolution passed in October by the Student Senate. That resolution called on UCF to include protection for gays.

UCF could join the University of Florida, the University of Central Florida, Florida State University, Florida Atlantic University and several other state schools.

Though there will be no vote today, the topic will be discussed.

At the core of the debate is the issue of extending benefits to same-sex partners of employees. Even that figure, but has not released a statement regarding that today.

Bush has continued to push his extension and expansion, ignoring the dissent.

The people of this country have had to defend themselves from both sides of the aisle.

Despite huge reductions in benefits, Bush took office, non-defense spending has significantly increased since the Clinton administration.

The act passed by Congress in June reduces costs by $1 trillion. NASA has denied giving exactly one memo to provide a clear answer.

But that's not the real reason they don't want to return it — they're tires of being repressed by the Department of Justice. There are thousands of dollars of money that can be trimmed from their budgets. When brought to their attention, they are quick to defend their entitlement expenditures. It's a sad but true fact of life.

If I'm hot), or that my sexual identity is not supported by the campus community. That's why I don't return it.

No-fidelity

Local electronics, surprisingly good

I'm not sure if I'm entirely alone on this, but there's just one thing I really, really hate about music: w基e, also techno, electronica, house, no-frills pop, or whatever you call it and then call it "no-fidelity". This constant, never-changing beat that permeates from one lane to the next and never really changes, which is to be a total music snob. This is just change a few keywords around... but it's not really. "Oh," you have the formula for everything.

Oh, baby, baby, oh, oh, oh.

Music pop in particular, is the most ridiculous. If you leave me in my unimaginative, have no appeal to me at all. No, your cheap, inoffensive, under-the-counter, indie snobs.

Music is obviously outside of MTV and doesn't really care about "no-fidelity" as a tool to boost the image

To the back at the touch. Like a monkey, the image of something this challenges this idea of constant beat and tune, I had you 2002's worldmusic. You pocket that when I eventually stopped rolling into my laziness. You're barely twenty-hour-screaming coffee pot, fast-food, chain, and the long night of home. JULIE THOM (contributed)

The UCF Department of Music unveiled three concerts for the new year that include both UCF faculty members and musicians from the Visiting Artist Series to the UCF campus. The Visiting Artist Series gives UCF students an opportunity to experience world-class music on their own campus. Many students do not know these concerts are held at the UCF Rehearsal Hall, across from Cabot Hall, free of charge with a UCF student I.D. card or $10 without UCF student I.D. Parking is available in the Bones College parking lot.

Tonight, violinist/guitarist, teacher and composer David Leiderman takes the stage at 7 p.m. as part of a major U.S. tour. Known for his ability to expand the repertoire of the guitar, he is a composer of new music for the electric guitar and the solo guitar. He currently serves on the faculty of the Manhattan School of Music. Mr. Leiderman has received numerous commissions and grants from differing art foundations for his premieres of new works and master classes on the instrument.

Nora Lee Garcia, UCF's Assistant Professor of Flute, performs at 8 p.m. on Saturday with Dr. Michelle McCrory from the University of South Florida and violist Michael Yonetani, UCF's assistant professor of music. The program will include works by Hindemith, Bach, Tchaikovsky, Dvorak and, most importantly, the world premiere of Romance and Caprice that was written expressly for Garcia and McCrory by Howard Buss. Buss is an award-winning composer and contemporary classical pianist. The work has been performed in more than 40 countries and is often featured in music festivals. This concert will be made possible from a generous donation from Anthony Source of Sources and Associates.

The final installment of on-campus concerts in January at UCF Rehearsal Hall brings together violinist John Yonetani, UCF’s assistant professor of violin, with Kenneth Kan, and pianist Ivan Bashilov at 3 p.m. Sunday. They will perform works of Schumann, Brahms, Schubert, and Beethoven. The concert follows a discussion about early music education and is a concert as part of a second partnership with WAFB-FM Radio MasterWorks series in the auditorium at the Trinity Preparatory School on Friday.

Hacksaw Jim Duggan

Those in Central Florida are in for a real treat this Sunday. Professional wrestling Hacksaw Jim Duggan will be making his free appearance at the UCF Civic Center. The event starts at 1:30 p.m. and goes until 4:30 p.m. Fans can come and meet the former United States wrestling champion for the WCW. While there, they can use his autograph. After the signing session, Duggan will go to his fans, and hopefully not punch them into the ground.

"It's supposed to be friendly," appeared to be in a gross gag," said Tony Kluesner, co-owner of the Smokee Tavern. His appearance is part of the UCF's Don't Piss with Milkies: a local television show. So if you go, don't be surprised if your face winds up on the boob tube.

The Cooler tries but fails to hit jackpot

Good acting can't save ridiculous Vegas noir

THE COOLER

John Travolta is on fire as the Cocky conman, Cale Barton, in this slick, stylish thriller. With Travolta, The Cooler is a winner, but it's a shame that the rest of the cast and crew couldn't deliver the same level of performance. Travolta is the only one who truly makes the movie worth watching, and even he struggles to keep the pace up in certain scenes.

BRETT RYAN BONDOVIC

The Cooler is set in the world of high-stakes, high-stakes living in Las Vegas. The film follows Cale Barton, a talented con artist, as he navigates the dangerous world of gambling and crime. Cale is a charismatic and charismatic character, played perfectly by Travolta.

Radio, House of the Dead, studies in mental health

New on DVD Jan. 27

Radio

MIKE RIEGEL

As if it weren't difficult enough for normally challenged actors in Hollywood, they have to compete with the likes of John Cusack. Cusack is on Thursday. Radio will be released on DVD, based on a true story from the pages of Sports Illustrated. Radio tells the story of a mentally challenged radio announcer who was a favorite of kids and listened to by millions of radio fans. The film is a touching and heart-wrenching story about the power of radio to bring people together, and it's a great reminder that radio is still a great medium for storytelling.

House of the Dead

There are few very controversial DVD releases this week. House of the Dead is a pseudo-horror film that is based on a video game of the same name. The film tells the story of a group of friends who are stranded on a tropical island and must fight against the undead.

Special features

Radio has most of the special features expected from Tad Hamilton! starring the indie

In conjunction with the new film, Win a Date with Tad Hamilton, the indie is giving you a chance to date the heart-throb editor.

NOT JUST SEX
Can guys and girls really just be friends?

It's an age-old question. How does a guy and a girl get before they're more than “just friends”? My first instinct was to say that guys and girls can totally be just friends. Then I looked into account all the facts.

Most people are not friends with people they aren't widely attracted to. Even if you don't feel that way yourself, admit it, at one point you thought your friend was hot. It may even be the reason you began the friendship in the first place. And even though you were innocent at first you didn't know they were gay and thought they were hot, quite often my best guy friend started out as a high school crush.

Some people will tell you that it is now to have the common sense of some one of the opposite sex. And right there is another pitfall of the attraction theory. It's not all physical. It can be as simple as a name or you have to be able to have an inside view into the other's life. Not just high school mind-blownism and a brief moment of madness. No matter what you think, there's a lot more of you and your feelings when you are consistently standing up for friends of the opposite sex. Usually, everything you do comes down to one character.

just the way they look. And it's not the way they dress or if they're hot. It's not a combination but it's the changes in your feelings for them.

Angus Beef: Jesus loves little children — Angus doesn't

By ANGUS McWITHERSPOON

Yesterday there was a small truck on my door. I knocked through the people and asked. It was tiny, a neighborhood kid.

"Oh..." I said sheepishly. "Can we have our bull back? It went into your backyard."

The embalmed children of India were saved, and what you would think was just a bagging job turned into a full-blown heist. We had to save our little brothers and sisters from the clutches of the evil boiler.

As I walked, I got to thinking about how nice it is to have bull in your backyard. Of course, I was thinking about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. And then I thought about how nice it is to have bull in my backyard. Mother nature doesn’t know golf

There has been some major controversy over UCF’s plan to build an 18-hole golf course using more than 206 acres of land in the southeast corner of the campus. As I was sitting there looking at UCF’s Facilities Planning page I was utterly disabused. What were all these people complaining about? Why should there be such a public outcry against golf? What are the environmentalists whining about? Don’t they know how nice a golf course can be?

My research started out in the traditional fashion. I used the Internet and the newspaper to gather clues. On one Web site I found a newsletter for the planned golf course. The only thing I could think to complain about was that there were only two par-three holes. I have to work on my long game, and there are supposed to be that when almost all the holes are par three and four! Then I looked at the plans for the hole layout. Apparently the hole who is going to surround an area labeled wetland by the Bowen Research’s East Wetland. My golf spikes are going to get ruined!

After our explorer friend from the lake house found the infamous “Please hit golf balls only from the designated tee area” sign, we know the only way to truly research the golf UCF golf course was to get out there and check out the situation ourselves. There are two holes adjoining each other, and we need to put an end to the argument. We need to figure out who is right: the environmentalists or the golfers.

Thus we invented the First Annual Indeas Assistant Open. In other words, Brandon Hardin and I decided to play some golf in the area they want to put the course. We grabbed my clubs, a portable putting green, and my long game. We soon learned that pinecones make lousy golf balls. Finally, we took the pinecones into our portable putting green. Our scores were horribly high, and it ruined my handicap. Immediately the argument was made that Mother Nature has nothing on Dunlop, and we realized from what we previously had been doing. We found a ball in a hidden pocket of my golf bag. With the proper equipment we started the tournament over.

Golf balls have their own problems, especially in an area like the one we were in. On my first shot the ball went straight into the water. I was forced to walk knee deep into the filthy water, through disgusting algae. It was disgusting, and cost Mother Nature a few more points.

The rest of the game went horribly. We were constantly forced to search through the woods to find where our golf ball went. Sometimes it would land deep into the sandy trails. Once it even was stuck in a tree. Brandon insisted that I leave it there and take my shot from 10 feet in the air. I was by far the worst game of golf I have ever played. There were no long flat areas. The whole course was covered with trees, which were constantly getting in the way of our shots. I could not move this tree is an endangered species, then I saw something that is a haven for any animal close to going extinct. It’s about time we clean-up this area and make it suitable for the only animal that is really important, the white middle-class male.

Bush seeks 5 percent tuition hike

Hitt also leads push to raise student fees

ANDRES HEALY

In-state undergraduates will raise 72 percent more in tuition next year, while all students will have a 2.5 percent increase under a proposal by Gov. Jeb Bush.

The governor's budget plan also includes $207 million for UCF, a substantial jump from the $184 million it received in 2003.

"It's too sticky to worry about now," said Hitt. "We'll see what we get." But Hitt, president of the university's Board of Regents and a vice president of R. W. Reynolds and UCF's chief lobbyist, told the board of Trustees Thursday: "If it's approve in April, it looks like we'll have a belt tightening for the fall.

In addition to the tuition hike, low- and middle-income students and students who are taking more than 1.5 percent of their degree requirements will pay no extra tuition rates.

"There's a lot of people who say 'why did Bush's proposed budget be a good thing for UCF?'" Hitt said. "This is a very good start to the game," Hitt said. "The governor has said he is working on a balanced budget, but there is a lot of pressure.

Full tuition will remain the same for students at the current rate of 13.5 hours. That would mean students who take more than 13 hours would only pay extra for 15 credit hours. Those that would mean more tuition fees.

Still, Hitt said, "We won't do that."

NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory touched down on the planet's surface last night after the Mars Pathfinder landed on the planet's surface just after midnight.

Jubilant NASA scientists found it extraordinary that the spacecraft landed intact. They were confident that the lander would be able to communicate with Earth as planned.

"It's a very good start to the game," Hitt said. "You can say that you don't have to worry about that."

Hitt's statement differs from those often nearly a year ago when he predicted that the spacecraft would experience a "very slow" landing.

Hillel brings "Blossom" to campus

Hillel President Ben faulk said he hopes to make the group more approachable, through a variety of programs and events designed to attract a wider audience. "We want to engage the unaffiliated," Faulk said. "And who better to engage than your fellow students?"

The campaign is Partisan at Hillel, the national affiliate of International Hillel, the largest campus Jewish organization in the world. With 300 offices worldwide, the campaign offers collegiate students with opportunities to explore Jewish identity and its impact on their background, affiliation or level of observance. Many of these offices offer social, religious, cultural, educational and leadership opportunities to 10,000 Jewish students every year.

"We want Jewish students to see Hillel at UCF and other universities as a place to be open to or think a certain way," Faulk said. "It's not an effort to get people into fit a container of being an observant Jew, not to bring them into a category of religious life, not to bring them to being part of a religious community." Hillel plans to have its annual meeting and a "Thank you" party for the Adam Bender Fund dinner committee.

Festival celebrates famed local black author

The Florida Future, a student-run newspaper at the University of Central Florida (UCF), recently published an article about the late Zora Neale Hurston, a renowned African American writer. The article highlighted her contributions to literature and her influence on the African American community. Hurston's works, such as Their Eyes Were Watching God, have been celebrated for their portrayal of everyday life and the struggles faced by black Americans.

President proposes new student fee

At the beginning of the year, President John Thrasher announced his plans to propose a new student fee. The fee would be used to fund different programs and activities on campus. The fee is intended to cover the cost of providing resources and services to students, such as academic support services, counseling, and career development.

Corrections

A photograph in the Jan. 22 issue accompanying the article "Bullion makes a difference" incorrectly identified the photographer as Chris Jeffs. Jeffs Jeffs. The article in the Jan. 22 issue, "Bullion makes a difference," incorrectly quoted Dr. Jeffs Jeffs as saying, "It's a lot easier for college students to buy gold."

Presidential Elections 2004

Get Ready UCF!

Petitions Available: Jan 20th @ 9am
Declaration of Candidacy: Jan. 26th-29th
Election Dates: Feb. 16th-18th
Run-off Dates: Feb. 23rd-25th

Visit the SGA office at room 214 in the Student Union or on the web at www.sga.ucf.edu for more information.
The campaign season’s campaigns are heating up. From now until the end of January, where the candidates for president of the Student Government Association (SGA) and representatives of their departments of campaigns form the SGA offices in the Student Union.

From now until Jan. 18, when the three-day runoff period ends, expect to see sandwich boards set up in walkways, posters on walls and signs above aisles. Be ready to take a walk into the Union, all the while being bombarded by campaign efforts.

It’s time to get involved.

The race to elect a new slate of student officers is just as impor­tant for all students as it is for all members of the university community.

The process, whether at the campus or national level, looks similar to the process of choosing someone to be your date for prom. You can also pick up a copy of the Student, where candidates campaign and election results are announced.

The political process, whatever the campus or national level, is one where you’re running for offices and checking out the election process. You’re also picking up a copy of the Student, where candidates campaign and election results are announced.

Some of this may sound familiar to you, and others may sound new to you. While political processes are similar, there are some differences.
