Athletic fee:

Adolpho and Buchanan's position was that the athletic fee should not be renewed, as it does not provide significant benefits to the students.

Administrative raises:

Buchanan expressed concerns about the proposed raises, saying that they could be seen as a form of taxation by the students.

Last February when Baltimore Orioles pitcher Steve Bechler, 21, was found unresponsive in the team’s guest room at the Marriott Executive Park hotel in Orlando, police officers were told that Bechler had consumed Ambien, a sleeping pill, on the night before. The death of the promising baseball player was the latest in a string of deaths linked to the use of the tranquilizer, which is often prescribed for people who have trouble sleeping.

According to an obituary published in the Orlando Sentinel, Bechler’s death was ruled a suicide, but the cause of death was listed as “drug intoxication.” The obituary notes that Bechler had taken Ambien, which is also known as “Halo” or “Sombra,” before his death.

The use of Ambien has been linked to other deaths, including two in Florida. In 2002, two people died in Orange County after ingesting the drug. One of the victims was 21-year-old Christopher Lee, and the other was 23-year-old Tania Espinosa. Both men were found dead in their homes on the same day, April 5, 2002. The coroner ruled that their deaths were caused by an overdose of Ambien.

In 2003, a man in Miami Beach died after ingesting Ambien. The victim, 28-year-old Michael Alfonso, was found dead in his apartment on March 24, 2003. The coroner ruled that Alfonso’s death was caused by an overdose of the drug.

Since then, there have been several other deaths linked to Ambien, including one in California in 2004, one in New York in 2005, and one in Texas in 2006. In each case, the cause of death was ruled to be an overdose of Ambien.

In 2007, a study was published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, which found that people who take Ambien are at a higher risk of dying from an overdose. The study looked at data from the National Vital Statistics System and found that people who took Ambien were 3.4 times more likely to die from an overdose than people who did not take the drug.

In 2010, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) issued a warning about the risks of Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause drowsiness and dizziness, which can lead to falls and accidents. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2012, the European Medicines Agency (EMA) issued a warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The EMA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2013, the FDA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2015, the EMA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The EMA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2017, the FDA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2019, the EMA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The EMA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2021, the FDA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2023, the EMA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The EMA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

As a result of these warnings, many doctors have stopped prescribing Ambien. Some doctors have recommended that their patients switch to other medications, such as tembutal, which is a similar drug but is not as likely to cause side effects.

In 2025, the FDA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2027, the EMA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The EMA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2029, the FDA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2031, the EMA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The EMA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2033, the FDA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2035, the EMA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The EMA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2037, the FDA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. The FDA also warned that people who take Ambien should not drive or operate heavy machinery until they know how the drug affects them.

In 2039, the EMA issued a new warning about Ambien. The agency said that the drug can cause changes in behavior, including agitation, hallucinations, and delusions. Many of our patients with Molluscum rarely have genital warts, otherwise called Human Papilloma Virus. With an eroded eye the virus may appear similar and do just get treated.

Molluscum looks like a reddish, elevated bump on the skin and often appears between 2 weeks to 6 months after exposure for the bumps to manifest.

The virus seems to be more prevalent in warm, humid climates. Molluscum can occur on just about any part of your body.

Adults often find them on their genitals, thighs, buttocks and abdomen. They can occur on just about any part of your body. They may be genital warts, but are sometimes similar.

Most conditions will be similar and so will the treatment.

Many patients find them after exposure to this virus. Many patients look for treatment without treatment due to an embarrassing response.

Molluscum is often treated with liquid nitrogen. This treatment is mildly uncomfortable. After the skin is treated, your skin may become red, irritated and mildly blistering to some people. Eventually this treated lesion will disappear and the skin will heal. Keeping your skin dry and clean is essential, and clicking may irritate them

Administrators going back to classroom

Cunningham explained, "Many are expected not only to teach, but also to generate external funding. That is true of many departments across this campus."

He added that he believes it's a healthy for faculty in administrative positions to teach at least one course a year, "It should be expected so that they can maintain their credentials," he said.

Elliot Vittes is the director of UCF's Liberal Studies Graduate Program. He said that many of the difficulties exist because "UCF is trying to maximize its services with limited resources. It's a difficult process."

Some professors expressed concern that the shortage of professors might force some administrators to teach, even though they might hate being involved. "It's part of the job we do," he said.

He pointed out that because his students take their classes in many different departments, "It's a good barometer of what's going on across campus."

The college is making an extreme effort to make sure classes are there in a way that makes sense to students," he said. "They have spent an extraordinary amount of time figuring out how to best serve students, including doing last-minute to make as many seats available as possible."

Though some could say just how many courses were being held together by their efforts, the idea seems to be working. CAS almost 78,208 total were this spring, which is a 5.5 percent increase over last spring.

It also provided 111 more sections this spring, though officials were unsure how that compared with what was offered during the fall term.

He said, "We went on a case-to-case basis for the extra workload," she said. "Some asked me if they could teach graduate courses. I know that they are going over and above their normal duties, so they get a lot of freedom." She added, "I never had to force anyone to teach. They are all very generous with their time and energy."

Dean Vittes is the director of the Liberal Studies Graduate Program. He said, "We do it because we enjoy it. It's part of the job we do."

Administrators going back to classroom

"Administrators are going back to classroom because they don't want to lose the students," she said. "Many already are, but now some are teaching more." Though none could say just how many courses were being held together by their efforts, the idea seems to be working. They are trying to be best served when your professor enjoys teaching and feels they are providing you a good classroom is a natural thing. That's to be applauded."

President George W. Bush has started an independent investigation into the intelligence gathering that led to the war in Iraq. That's a good thing, but there's a problem with Bush's plan... Just weeks into the investigation, the White House revealed that the commission has already started digging into the president's handling of intelligence. It's a step in the right direction, but the commission is nowhere near the finish line. In fact, it is unlikely that the White House will ever release any of its findings. That's why it's important that we demand transparency and accountability from our government. There is too much at stake for our country's future. We must hold our leaders accountable for the decisions they make in times of war. This is not a time to be complacent, but a time to be vigilant. We must be aware of the dangers that our country faces and work to ensure that our government is working to protect us. This is a serious issue, and we need our leaders to take it seriously. We can only hope that this investigation will lead to real change and accountability.

Baseball opens the season with a sweep of FIU

UCF baseball snapped a dreary 2004 season, as the Knights swept their second series against Florida International University in Miami.

UCF (2-0) swept the opening game and hung on to the second game from a 6-2 deficit to win 9-6. A solo homer from Kyle Yost knocked in the winning run during the sixth inning when Bridger Hunt earned his first hit of the year.

The Knights opened the season with unceremonious sweep of FIU (1-2) and is off to the best start from the past 51 games.

The Knights' offensive star in the first game was former UC baseball player and current Knights assistant coach Taylor Whitley.

The UCF women’s basketball team dropped its second decision in three days to Lipscomb 52-51 at Allen Arena on Saturday afternoon. This is the first defeat for the Knights on the road in Atlantic play.

Lipscomb center Katie Beck posted a career-high 20 points and grabbed 20 rebounds as part of the Bobcats’ focusing efforts.

“Katie Beck played well on both ends of the floor,” said Lipscomb coach Pat Bennet. “She was shutting down the middle defensively and getting defensive rebounds. She was very aggressive scoring on the offensive end and on the offensive boards.”

The Knights attempted to outscore the Bobcats, jumping out to an early 14-9 lead on a layup by forwards Morentin and Williams with 9:57 remaining in the first half.

UCF (8-3, 7-4 A-Sun) was able to maintain its 29-21 lead going into the locker room behind Beck’s points at the point in the first half. The Knights knocked down 38 percent from the field.

“I just tried to reassure everyone at halftime,” said Bennett. “We were getting some good looks, and we know if we got a couple things would be outstanding for us.”

And outstanding it was. UCF shot 43.9 percent from the floor in the second twenty minutes, and held the Women of Lipscomb without a field goal in the first nine minutes of the second half.

Lipscomb, who finished with a team-high 18 points, was held to one point in the last 1:20.

UCF led by 14 in the first half, and the Knights’ only victory included the completion of the second half.

Less than a week ago UCF was not only one of the hottest teams in the Atlantic Sun Conference, but in the country.

The Knights played a 14-game winning streak, the longest in the nation, that spanned for nearly two months and resulted in the team’s first regular-season title all wrapped up.

The streak, however, ended at 36-28, 25 in Atlantic Sun hit the bulk of their schedule.

UCF won six of six, but their team with 6-2. The Knights’ only win during that stretch, a 67-65 win over Jarrod Owen and Chip Webb.

Loan to aid women’s facilities

The UCF Athletics Association received a loan of $17 million this week that will help build new facilities for the women’s sports. With the influx of the women’s team, the Knights have constructed a new track and field structure. Future projects include the completion of the track team, as well as the construction of a brand new football facility.

The University of Florida is in front of the Knights’ landmark home court.

With Tuesday’s win, Bennett moved to within a game of first.

Small ball baseball's key to taking A-Sun

FRANK KEISHEL

It's time for another good year of UCF baseball, and the possibilities are endless. Already named third in preseason Atlantic Sun Media Polls behind last year's A-Sun regular-season champ ECU and Stetson, UCF looks to qualify for the conference destination for the fourth time in the previous two years, and all indications show that's happen.

Last season, UCF finished third behind ECU and Stetson in the conference pecking order. With the Knights' potential and depth, there is every indication that they will be in the thick of the A-Sun race this season.

The team is eager to get back on top and make some noise in this year's A-Sun campaign, which will be played at Stetson University in May 2001. "Everyday is more focused on winning than last year's disappointment," Coach Kyle Bono said. "This year the guys know what it takes to get over the hump."

UCF is a team built on speed, pitching and defense. "We've come together the past couple of years with Clay Timpner and Kyle Bono, along with others," Coach Bono said. "Clay Timpner has been a great leader, and Kyle Bono has been a great pitcher." Clay Timpner is a senior at the center of the Knights' defense. He has been a consistent leader for the Knights this season, averaging a .347 batting average.

New faces add power to softball's lineup

MATT DEKIRK

The UCF softball team was one game away from a second consecutive Atlantic Sun Tournament, but Florida State shut the Knights down in the regional tournament. However, the team returns seven players from last season's squad, and has brought in 10 new faces, a mix of freshmen and junior college transfers.

"This team is as confident as we have ever been," said second baseman Jordan Shaw. "We are as confident as we have ever been."

In just two short seasons, catcher Sarah Spence has helped build the Knights into a nationally recognized program. The Knights are expected to start the season ranked in the top 25 in the nation.

Outfield

UCF boasts some veteran leadership in the outfield thanks to all-state performers Melissa Schilling and Rachel Schmidt. Schilling is coming off back surgery, but she says she is pretty much ready to go.

"I think all of us are pretty much ready to go," said Beshe. "You just have to be ready to go, and I think we're all ready to go."
Spring is in the air
And on the eighth day, God said, ‘let there be baseball’

I don’t want for anyone to begrudge the spring, but I sure don’t need some glorified softball season.

All I need is a breeze. The season doesn’t start until the weather gets into its routine. Right now, it’s breezy, and sometimes the baseball players are breathing.

It’s baseball. It’s our national pastime. When pitchers and catchers start throwing, it’s the season. When it’s quiet. It’s the off-season.

The players come and go, so it begins in February, but baseball is there to stay.

As the weather warms up, there’s always a breeze. It’s a sign that baseball is on the way.

At UCF – March 25 – With the Permanent Parking Ban in exactly one month, the Knights’ first series of collegiate baseball began Thursday.

The Knights will play in the NCAA Super Regionals, continuing the trend in Atlantic Sun conference play.

Last season the Knights were two of three from the league in the NCAA tournament.

At Florida Atlantic – April 10 – UCF will be in a must-win situation in the MAC region.

UCF is the present Favorite in the MAC region.

At South Florida – April 30 – The Lightning have had a successful season thus far.

Their record is 14-4, but they have yet to win a game against the Knights.

At Jacksonville – March 27 – UCF will be in a position to win the conference championship.

At Arkansas – April 10 – UCF will be the team to beat in the MAC region.

At Tulane – April 23 – UCF will be aiming to win the MAC region.

At LSU – April 26 – UCF will be in a must-win situation in the MAC region.

At Florida State – April 30 – The Seminoles enter the season as the defending Champs in the nation.

They have a challenging schedule ahead, but UCF will be focused on getting their first win of the year.

But as the weather warms up, there’s always a breeze. It’s a sign that baseball is on the way.

UCF baseball team is in a very solid place with many versatile players. Last year we didn’t make any noise at all for the first half of the season, but we let the team play in the spring.

UCF is known for producing good hitters, but the only thing that’s consistent is the pitching. Last season the Knights swept last year’s doubleheader against the Dolphins last season.

of the day. As the Knights shut out Boston College 5-0, Deanna Gillmore and Lezley McKeyton combined for the three-hit shutout, scored on White's double in the eighth inning with a home run and triple against BC.

The Knights (5-0) cruised through the first two days of the tournament with their only loss coming in a 5-4 loss to Marshall University (2-1).

UCF starting pitcher Stephanie Boudreau broke up a pitcher's duel in the fifth as she dropped a single in shallow right field scored by Lindsay Lindholm from third. Herd third baseman Leigh Wimberly hit the game-winning hit the ninth inning with a walk-off single to center field.

Marshall second baseman Laurie Scott scored the winning run for the Herd in the top of the seventh inning on a UCF fielding error. UCF pitcher Lindsay Edles pitched the complete game and gave up only one run earned run while striking out five. Marshall pitcher Jonatha Novak gave up one run on eight hits and struck out 11 UCF batters.

Prior to the Marshall loss, the Knights slaughtered Indiana University 11-3. Whitley and Whitehead both had home runs and four runs scored.

"It's a real sad," Senior said of the Knights' starting lineup "If we have a runner on and you look at the most likely hitter if she doesn't get a hit more than the next will Thar's no real sign of someone not being able to put the ball in the gap and hit it hard.

Right fielder Rachelle Schmidt sparked a nine-run inning with a solo home run. Eight players in UCF's starting lineup had at least one hit against Indiana.

The Knights travel to Gainesville this Thursday to take on the Florida Gators.
