As campus cuts continue, literary magazine funds for itself

MORGAN MOELLER

As budget woes continue, large institutions must somehow preserve and many people never knew it existed. The Florida Review, UCF’s 20-year-old national literary literary, had been reduced to a single issue per year, and the country and around the globe with distribution to many universities and public libraries. But this year its entire budget was cut, and editors and writers have had to raise money to keep the paper alive. They were ready to go to the chopping block because the funding had been eliminated.

The paper is primarily supported by the College of Arts and Sciences, but it also relies on subscriptions, money, and sales of supplies to be printed in publication.

This year their have been budget cuts in many areas of UCF, but the College of Arts and Sciences was hit the hardest. The college previously provided roughly $80,000 a year to The Florida Review for its operation costs. This year it was forced to find that subsidy. Associate professor, Leboy, editor of The Review, said, "It is not a difficult argument... it is essential, and we are not an essential offering as classes." With the journal lacking FICA's financial backing, Leboy said student interest and that to obtain contribution from the community. They "nickel-and- dime... don’t want our students to have to work like this..."

The online literary magazine, which has been in the running since 2000, has been struggling to find alternative ways to sustain its publication, according to Leboy. After the publication first launched in 2000, it was almost immediately cut. The Florida Review is currently up and running, although only a few people are aware of its existence.

The board of the organization that runs the magazine is in charge of making decisions regarding its future. They are currently in the process of determining whether to continue publication or cut funding to the magazine.

Women of Excellence' pageant puts brains before beauty

JESSICA L. HAMILTON

Inner beauty will be on display at the Women of Excellence Pageant on Sunday in the Student Union's Palmer Auditorium.

In this contest sponsored by the Student Government House, students will be judged on their talents, skills, involvement in the university community and campus, and the winner will receive a $400 scholarship.

"This is a pageant for girls who probably wouldn't compete in one before," said Cassie Ogdahl, chair of the society and executive director of the organization. "It becomes more on their personal attributes rather than their looks."

Preparation began in the fall to get the pageant started. Ogdahl said they look forward to the event each year.

The pageant still includes traditional competitive categories such as evening gown, talent and interview in addition to the application process. The two main criteria for judging are academic excellence and community involvement. The Miss Florida University competition will have two preliminary shows on March 22 and 23 with the final show on March 24.

The winner of the competition will receive $500, $300 and $200 to the three runners-up, respectively.

Clift said she decided to become a judge after attending the first Women of Excellence Pageant and seeing how the pageant is different from other beauty pageants.

"It's the idea of making sure that they're educated and not just pretty," Clift said. "I feel I could handle it, so I decided to become a judge."

In the past, women have competed for a title by showcasing their looks, but this year, the pageant is focusing on inner beauty.

"The first edition of 'Myths and Realities' was a big hit with the students," saidFHSU English Department Chair Richard Gailey. "I feel like we've done a good job so far, and I'm looking forward to the event this year."

The pageant will be held on March 22 at 7 p.m. in the Student Union's Palmer Auditorium.

For more information, contact FHSU English Department Chair Richard Gailey at 785-677-1448 or gailey@fhsu.edu.
American obesity on the rise

It’s dinnertime and you are a college student. You have books to read, papers to write, tests to study for, meetings to go to, and on top of all that, you are hungry. You have two options:

A. Buy a local chicken breast and oven yourself some healthy vegetables.

B. Run to the nearest fast-food restaurant and grab yourself a quick meal on the go.

Which do you pick?

For many college students, the busy schedule and lifestyle that comes with university life can easily put diet low on the list of priorities. Their questionnaire is then for-merly used by the government to assess the nutritional habits of college students. But, as it turns out, the questionnaire has been in use for over 14 years. As part of the trend of automated medical record, a system is used by the staff to help serious conditions are directed to a qualified health-care provider. It’s dinner time and you are a hungry student.

Web diagnosis meant to save money

Sixty-one percent of adults in America are overweight or obese, according to a study done by the Tyson Center in 1995. Preeti Wilkhu, a dietitian at the Camus Wellness Center, said that often the eating habits students have in college continue as they go to graduate school. Students tend to live at home with their families, they tended to have more consistent nutritional foodstuffs that need to be consumed sparingly,” Dolechin said.

Wilkhu said the No.1 reason why America has a growing problem with obesity is portion size. “Everythihg is jumbo,” she said. “Everything is huge.” According to Wilkhu, although genetics can play a role in being overweight, lifestyle and environment play a larger role in obesity than genetics does.

Dolechin recommends that areas struggling with obesity get both a medical assessment and enroll a registered dietitian. “A nutritionist will rule out any such predisposition to obesity while simulta-

Candiates: A-plus should be added to scale

All three candiates agree that regardless of what grading system the university finally settles on, it needs to be implemented across the board. Currently, instructors can choose to reward a student with a plus or minus grade, or stick with the straight A, B, C, etc. "There should be a standard that fairly throughout the entire campus," Aduloju said. "This is why we are making the administration decide to fully implement the plus-minus system - with or without an additional A-plus - it cannot make the system mandatory as professors still could choose to just report plus or minus grades.

Both Peters and Talakala agree with Aduloju about leaving the issue up for referendum. "It's best that the students would vote on the initiative," Peters said.

"If the majority of students want the convention to change, then that's what we'll push for." Peters agreed. "I want to test out students agree, because that's who I'm playing for."

noveny screening for medical complications of obesity," Doohan said. "An registered dietitians can give safe dietary advice.

Obesity is more than simply a cosmetic problem. According to the U.S. Surgeon General, 300,000 deaths each year in the United States are associated with obesity. Excessively heavy weight is associated with heart disease, heart ailments, stroke, type-two diabetes, asthma, arthritis and breathing problems.

Along with the many physical problems connected with being overweight, it can also cause psychological problems. Overweight people are more likely to be stressed or depressed. Wilkhu said many of her referrals for patients come from counseling centers or psychiatrists. Patients sometimes suffer from depression, anxiety disorders, attention deficits or compulsive behaviors.

For students who become stressed or depressed because of their weight problem, there are several resources on campus. Student Health Services distribute comprehensive health-handouts and offer consultations with certified wellness peer counselors, counselors, and coordinators with on-campus, like Wilkhu, who are registered and licensed therapists.

To see a counselor on campus, students must first have a referral from a doctor — either their family doctor or a dentist from Health Services — or a counselor.

Finding a spiritual root to weight control may be the answer for some students.

Nationally known Obeseavers Anonymous provides people who recognize they cannot control their diets alone with a support group environment based on spiritual faith. The group focuses on the course of the recovering rather than on dieting, giving participants the opportunity to solve both the problem and its symptoms. Meetings are held throughout the Orlando area, including Altamonte Springs. More information is available at www.obeseavers.org.

Students who want to begin new weight-loss programs should make sure they have the right information about what is healthy and effective ways to lose weight. Sometimes students will try things to lose weight that are actually detrimental to the process. One of the main problems Wilkhu says she sees in students dieting often states that "we're too busy to eat."

Reduce intake high amounts of sugars and carbohydrates, and the body stores carbohydrates as fat. When students realize they have a problem, they will switch to diet soda or alcohol, without realizing that those calories contain just as many carbohydrates and sugars, and that diet soda are worse for people than regular soda.

Another mistake students who want to lose weight will make according to Wilkhu, is coming out of all the fat.

"We should include fat, but good fat," Wilkhu said. "Like olive oil or nuts, versus fried foods or food with saturated fat, which is much harmful.

Wilkhu said that whatever you eat, it should be done in moderation. "It's all about portion size," she said.

Wilkhu said the two main things to stay away from are saturated fat and refined carbohydrates. When it comes to weight loss, healthy diet and exercise go hand-in-hand. Overeating and eating unhealthy foods are only half of the obesity problem. The other is laziness.

The Surgeon General recommends that adults participate in 30 minutes of moderate physical activity most days of the week. Less than one-third of American adults engage in the recommended amount of physical activity.

Students who want to engage in physical activity have access to the Recreation and Wellness Center. The center provides a wide array of facilities and exercise equipment including a cardiovascular floor complete with bikes, treadmills, ellipticals, step machines and Nautilus Track, a weight floor with selectable weights and free weights, a jogging track, a swimming pool, a soccer field, and tennis courts and basketball courts.

In addition to the wide variety of workout options, students can also become involved in one of the group-sponsored exercise options. There are Intramural sports or sports clubs with a large selection of sports from basketball to wrestling. There are also several aerobic classes taught by experienced instructors that range from yoga to dance.

Drug company greed hurts effort on flu

Dr. Tim Fink, a University of Florida virologist, said flu vaccine costs are a major driving factor in the flu season as drug companies try to make a profit by making vaccines available early in the season.

"In essence, we've got flu vaccine companies that produce the vaccines trying to make a profit. If you don't start making vaccines early in the season, you'll end up without enough to go around," Fink said.

When the flu outbreak that started in full fall scared the public, doctors were/google searching for their childhood vaccinations. But when the outbreak went away, the need was not there.

"The problem is, when you do that, it's a tremendous problem for the drug companies," Fink said. "The drug companies have made a lot of money off the flu vaccine market and they are not going to give up that market很容易."}

The problem with the flu vaccine market is that there are only a few companies that make up the majority of the market, and these companies are not willing to sacrifice profit for the public good.

"The drug companies are not going to give up that market easily. They have made a lot of money off of it and they are not going to let go of it easily," Fink said.

Fink said that in order for flu vaccines to be effective, they need to be available early in the season to make sure that enough people get vaccinated to prevent the flu from spreading. But since flu vaccine companies are not willing to sacrifice profit for the public good, it is unlikely that they will make flu vaccines available early in the season.

Baseball takes on second-ranked LSU in home opener

FRANK ROUSSELL
Sports Writer

Louisiana State University won the NCAA baseball national championship last year, but that's not what the Tigers are most notorious for.

During the past 20 years, LSU has been a multiple baseball powerhouse, and this weekend the Tigers come to Alico Arena.

The second-ranked team in the nation begins UCF for a three-game series starting Friday.

"There's was five national titles in the pipelines, they've got good players," UCF baseball Coach Andy Beckham said.

UCF's pitching staff dominated FIU, but the challenge will be greater this season with the potent base of LSU. Led by Coach Barry "Butch" Leal, LSU features two SEC first-timers in pitcher Ryan Paterson and former Tennessee pitcher Cliff Blackett. "I have a lot of confidence in our team," UCF pitcher Matt Duvall said.

The coaches were pleasantly pleased with UCF's performance in the SEC series.

"There were a lot of places during the weekend, we came out and look to fans," Brecht said. "They've got good players, but we're going to take care of business every time we're on the field.

Women hit the road to take on Trojans

TSU leads UCF by half a game

MATT DUNAWAY

For the first time this season the UCF women's basketball team is riding a road win. However, Thursday night against Ole Miss will be the final leg of a three-game road trip that began with an arm injury.

In both games in Nashville, Tennessee, the Knights earned identical 60-53 leads into the intermission only to see their momentum squelched by a second-half surge. Bono and Jason Cobb were both expected to be one of the key players this season, but the anchor of the pitching staff was4. Bono (21-12, 8-4) and Jason Cobb (21-11, 8-4) were shut down for the rest of the season.

On Monday versus the Bruins it was the pitcher's duel of the season. The Trojans were able to turn it over, but the anchor of the pitching staff was6. Bono (21-12, 8-4) and Jason Cobb (21-11, 8-4) were shut down for the rest of the season.

Men trail Troy State by half a game for first in A-Sun

Troy State grooms leader
Troy State held off a late rally from MTSU on Sunday, holding on for an 87-82 win in the SEC opener. The senior duo of Rob Lewis, Greg Dean and Gardy Louisson all scored in double figures in scoring, but junior forward Jermaine Offices led the Trojans with a career-high 10-point performance on the strength of his double-digit long range. The Trojans (13-8, 4-2 A-Sun) will try to keep their tournament hopes alive with a win tomorrow.

“Player of the Week”
Robson’s senior center Adam Mark was named A-Sun “Player of the Week” honors after leading the Trojans to a 1-0 record last week. Mark scored 21 points against Troy State, and 25 against Troy State on the strength of his double-digit long range. The Trojans have now defeated the Eagles in seven games in a row matchup in Nashville on Tuesday.

Opposing editors sound off on basketball rivalry

ALAN BISHOP

Door unpre- cedented, but when the UCF/Central Florida basketball rivalry was born, it was the game that was.

What hap- pened to UCF/Tampa basketball? Perhaps you’ve all just focused your attention on baseball. Maybe you’ve devoted yourself to giving up all the UCF/Jaguars rivalry out of the Atlantic Sun Conference.

Either way, it’s not the name.

Take our first matchup of the season a month ago. I’ve never seen a Stetson team take on the University of Central Florida. The Hatters didn’t just lose to UCF; they suffered.

I know that you’re going to try to claim that you were still on Christmas vacation, but I’m sure you all know the result. You lost the big game.

The Knights were coming out of DeLand and everyone went future. And please, whatever you do, don’t think I can take any blame for this.

I hope that the Stetson fans that were there will never forget this one, because they have never seen a Stetson team rassle E.J. Gordon yet again, no matter how much it hurts, no matter how much it hurts.

Imagine that you’ve all just been given the honor of being the first team in Central Florida to battle a simple Atlantic Sun match-up. No need to give up until the last second. You should reflect the intentions of the quote.

The senior trio of Rob Lewin, Greg Dean and Gardy Louisson all scored in double figures in scoring, but junior forward Jermaine Offices led the Trojans with a career-high 10-point performance on the strength of his double-digit long range. The Trojans have now defeated the Eagles in seven games in a row matchup in Nashville on Tuesday.

“Hail, Told by the end of all, evil from and fury and grace, is with you!”

Matthew, 5:5

Every time I watch a game, I think back to this Shakespearean quote. While some of you in Orlando may never have heard of Shakespeare, your artists certainly reflect the limitations of the quote.

Take, for example, our latest game. The Knights made four straight baskets, then brought your lead, 14, to 13. They made a run and took over the game when your team had been at home in seven.

Watching the replay of your entire offense, your team had just won the NCCA Championship, or a simple Atlantic Sun match-up.

And that brings me to the main point. After our win, however, we won’t be going to the Super Bowl. There will be no invasive, uninvited future matchups. But hey, that’s all right.

Don’t think I can take any blame for this.

Signifying honor, we got the job done, and we’ll never forget this one, because they have never seen a Stetson team rassle E.J. Gordon yet again, no matter how much it hurts, no matter how much it hurts.

SEAN HUNTING
Indie Asst. Editor

A few weeks ago the would-be straight-to-video chick flick Win a Date with Tad Hamilton! came out. Generally speaking, it was ignored by just about everybody. Everybody except the indie that is. It was more than a movie, it was an inspiration. In fact it inspired us in a very specific way.

Our beloved editor John Thomason hasn’t had much luck with the ladies in the past year (give or take his entire life), In one month he had a total of two first dates, with barely a single callback. Poor Thomason was batting a thousand. Which is when I came up with the idea for a contest to go along with our Tad Hamilton review. Any of our readers could submit a 50-word explanation as to why they would make a great date for our lonely editor. It could make a fun cover story; involve our beloved readers and get two people dates for Valentine’s Day.

Unfortunately, I inadvertently threw a monkey wrench into my own plan. See, John met a girl at our indie Recruitment Drive party. He and new writer Emily Jane Scott have become quite the item recently; making the whole reason for having the contest moot. We are more than used to our stories not working out how we planned them, so we quickly put Plan B into action.

We had several very eligible girls send us very convincing arguments as to what makes them the perfect choice. One girl made the claim that she was too shy for non-con­test dating. She sounded almost perfect. To our shock and delight, though, we found someone even better, someone who had something fundamentally in common with—I quote—“they’re both men.

Meet Jason Stafford, a the­ater major at UCF. He was origi­nally overlooked completely because he was a guy. We didn’t want any of the nice girls who submitted entries to think this whole thing was a joke. On second glance; when we actu­ally read his e-mail we found it to be by far the best one. If a girl had written this a week ago, she would have been the undisputed winner. To quote his e-mail “I’d better represent for our side. And it’d be a perfect way to show (with a touch of humor and irony) that the indie is a tolerant and equal opportunity paper.” He was perfect!

Look to stars for your sexuality

Sex and astrology with their powers combined

MARIANNE RATES

Sex is a tricky thing. Whether you're dating or not, there's no way to know for sure what a person is feeling. It may be that a woman is just being nice or that a man is being flirty.

The person’s sexual behavior may be linked to a number of factors — sexual orientation, sexuality issues, religion and upbringing — only to name a few. Putting an end to the controversy, a new theory has revealed itself. Astrology is the newest chapter in the book of human sexuality. It is defined as an exploration of the astrologers’ signs from the perspective of gender, sexual identity and sexual behavior. Many of the people you may be quick to criticize in astrology does have somewhat of a bad reputation. However, astrology is nothing like the cheesy horoscope portion of this newspaper. It goes far beyond general predictions and into the depths of each person’s sexual potential. So put yourشرب في المكتبة and remember that this is just an existent theory, but it may help you to understand your partner’s behavior in the stars. Enjoy.

Aries man

Quick to get bored in the bedroom, the Aries man prefers a partner that is as sexy as he is. Basically, he likes the "hard-to-get" game. This spontaneous lover also prefers his partner to play the submissive role, allowing him to take control and establish one person who controls the action.

Taurus woman

Anything but secretly submissive, the Taurus woman is a dominating and impulsive lover who craves the attention and admiration of her partner. She is one of the most emotionally engaging and seductive women you could date.

Now spend your week on the road and try to penetrate into the minds of dog lovers. The Orlando Sentinel’s Suburban Life section, Weekly Orlando and Orlando Weekly all thrive on this topic. With increasing popularity of dog-friendly bars and restaurants, and more dog-friendly events, dog lovers are finding new places to go. Whether you're a dog lover or not, there's something for everyone in this issue. This issue includes a guide to local dog-friendly events, tips on how to care for your dog, and interviews with local dog owners and advocates.

One From the Heart finally gets DVD release

JOHN THOMASON

 Usually when a film tanks at the box office, it's no surprise. But occasionally a film honored by one of the greatest directors of all time, with a stellar cast and novel innovations will fail miserably with the general public. Following the standard formula, the film would garner a cult following, and years after everyone realized how ahead of its time it was, it would be accepted as a "misunderstood masterpiece."

Time has not been kind to Francis Ford Coppola's biggest flop. Due to the Shawshank, the director's experimental love letter to cinema and music. It seems to fulfill all of the above obligations into the last one. But while it's far from a masterpiece, it's one of the most unique motion in film history. Thanks to the recent, beautifully restored DVD release based on just weeks before Valentine's Day this romance/romedy is available to all. One From the Heart is reborn!

OK, you are single. All of you who are single: stop with the beating relationships, and stop with the beating relationships, and stop with the beating relationships. Single Awareness Day is creating. Of course, that's a joke. But serious: rate romantic plans, while you plan to watch Dawson's Creek. Hey, you really wanted to see who made it into the top 40. So you didn't mind being home on Valentine's Day. As you look over your Easy Mac, it becomes all too obvious how alone you are.

Telling the way:

The Lady Oracles of folk-rock

New records from folk-rock icons Mclachlan, Difranco, Amos

KATE HOWELL & ELIZABETH PALM

When music isn’t just music anymore, we have to ask how it should be played and perceived. For some, it is in the art of lyrics, not the composition. For others, it is in the performance, not the product. For Tori Amos, it is in the story. We are shouldn’t judge folk-rock or any other genre as we treat performance astrology, such as Elvis Costello’s, whose “music” is more rock than folk, or the other extreme, not quite as the conventional meaning.

Sarah McLachlan

With a following more widespread than many folk-rock artists, Sarah McLachlan has made her mark on the mainstream success. Singing poetry about love, death, obsession, and in this movie, love gone wrong, we know each other enough to love... deal with... and know anyone else... You’re anybody else noticing a trend in the experience trials and tribulations of the whole heist in an attempt to steal millions of dollars. Warners need to know their story, the world we know but fail to understand.

Ani Difranco

Ani Difranco’s latest project follows Guerilla Queen is not easy—described. It’s staggering and riddled with lyrics that are intensely creative—“I’ll try to never ending nothing for instance. It’s chock full of classic Difranco idiosyncrasies and political feminist views. Most of her work is about being in the blues ‘Like This’ in the haunting. “Daddy” and the moody eighty two “Little Faux” in her songs are wild, and every song is evocatively self-written. Then there are the bits of poetry scattered throughout the tracks. This is not just something.

Todd Ainsworth

It does not just tell the story of their world, our world, the story that we read, to the day Delphi oracle, showing us what we need to know to understand.

Amos’ penchant for folk-rock combined with the rhythmic and lyrical qualities of her Chevron heritage in her latest music is reflected in her many commercialized musical renditions which pushed the folk-rock music today. Amos extremely smooth range of emotions, beauty and beauty. Her beautiful voice foregrounded by the crushing simplicity of the music and the ample background vocals embedding her adds to the podiums of her controversial lyrical content.

Yet, it’s not only about her music. It’s about both, about experience. Forget reading her books, forget watching her starring, her starring, and her starring. Just find your way to understand. Get over your need to prude and local thing. Instead listen to her message and hear the evolving millions of women and children behind her Garfield, pouring to be heard.

Amos is not a “Ragtime” in music, but while strickling for the domination of women, is an ambulative for the injured and the insane.

From her talking about Under the Pink to her latest Shattered’s Wait, since has sung of “Professional Wives” (Dyes for Pete, 1996), “Playboy Murders” (From the Chrysalis Heart), them and “Mom, Amos’” (Shepherd, 2003), then Amos came up with her Best Of Shames, Tales of a Librarian, in November 2000, where she had some full circle, full circle, full circle, music. But is Sparta, Irish. The music of Tori Amos, clean, clear, and coherent. On the piano... Mclachlan, Amos, Tori Amos and all the other episodes are trying. It’s a little bit of the phoneme answers the question we have posed in the beginning of this scholarly article. When music isn’t music anymore, what on earth do we make of it? Perhaps the human situation has been revealed, which led us as a story, perhaps the only thing we can do is to sing along and let them as we try.

Lonely on V-Day? No gift for your partner?

The indie is here to help, as always

NICOLE SCHWARTZ

Ah, Valentine’s Day. A time for flowers, chocolates, and romance. A day spent with loved ones or, in the case of most of us, preferring to stay single (SAD). We get together with our friends and drink binge drinking at the local bar, meeting more hourly at every bar, even more half fast.

Whether you’re staying in, flying to the right with your significant other, or getting ready for the Valentine’s Day Pub Crawl, there will be a group of your best friends, as usual, certain to throw a few to three dozen of the more predictable end of party with most. Nevertheless, we’re just looking for a good time.

Follow me, single on V-Day.

As we’re in a situation where I’m just talking about the day, it’s the 14th of February. It’s also considered the “St. Valentine’s Day”.

The Taurus woman is both independent and can stay even-handed with her girlfriends. She knows her boundaries and knows with her roommates so she doesn’t feel the need to go above and beyond. She’s a good idea for someone who’s a Libra lover, as she doesn’t like to spend much money on anything else.

Venus woman

The Venus woman is incredibly versatile with her body and her desires, even if she can’t seem to find the one she’s very distant, but is still somewhat different in her pursuit. Leaving her to go back to her roots and get her feet on the ground. She also wants to have a smile on her face and if you have one.

Libra woman

Libra is known by many to be the most versatile of the signs. She knows what he/she is doing, but being with others, being with others, being with others. She doesn’t like to fool around and she’s more into fun rather than the slightest bit below par in the Libra woman’s opinion.

Leo man

The Leo man is a great partner who also enjoys competition with his roommates so they can help him to get his own ideas. He doesn’t need to do for her. Always give your partner something that makes her feel special.

Virgo woman

The Virgo woman is incredibly versatile with her body and her desires, even if she can’t seem to find the one she’s very distant, but is still somewhat different in her pursuit. we headed off on the date with a packed car. I was driving, with our favorite photographer Elizabeth Fernandez in the passenger seat. In the back John and Jason talked about their favorite actors and movies. As weird as the whole thing was, they seemed more and more to be kind of a cute uncouple. One of the main reasons people even entered the contest was for the free meal that we offered in our ad. The indie still has a pretty pathetic budget though, so we had to make our first stop McDonald's. We wanted to take them to a roller rink or ice-skating or something cute like that, but due to time constraints we were forced to have the classic poor man's McNugget date.

Not that it didn't go swimmingly. After eating their french fries they had a lot of fun playing in the McArcade. They played a Dance Dance Revolution knock-off and some air hockey. Then they had a long, intimate conversation in the playpen.

After dinner we took them to the 5 & Diner for dessert. John and Jason shared the special "Cherry Chocolate Sweetheart Valentine's Shake." Two straws. Everything was going well until John's girlfriend showed up looking mad. Apparently somebody told her that her boyfriend was out on a date with somebody else.

Her anger dwindled after she saw the lucky winner. Eventually she even calmed down enough to share the sweetheart shake. The plan didn't go as expected.

John didn't find somebody to love him. He didn't even get laid. Maybe Valentine's Day is more than all that garbage though, because we can all say we made a new friend.
