As campus cuts continue, literary magazine fends for itself

MORGAN MOELLER

An budget woes continue, longtime Kaplan Institute of Business and Kings College has seen several delays, and many people never knew it existed. The Florida advising, UF's 20-year-old literary journal, had to cut back on publication this year, and the country and around the world, with distribution to many universities and public libraries. But this year its entire budget was cut. Editors and interns have struggled to raise money to pay for rent, which was ready to go to the students when word came that the funding had been eliminated.

This fall is probably expected by the College of Arts and Sciences, but it also relies on subscriptions, music sales and sales in supplemented its publication.

This year's shows have been budget cuts in many areas at UF, but the College of Arts and Sciences was hit the hardest. The university previously provided roughly $10,000 a year for The Florida Press to operate.

W ith the approach of the University Commission, Government Appropriation, and student election, the college has to find a way to finance both the college and the university, and it remains to be seen how much of the money is coming from the college. But in the meantime, the college has been hit hard by the budget cuts, and the college has been able to maintain its operations with a combination of the money and the student funding. The college has been able to maintain its operations with a combination of the money and the student funding.

Women of Excellence’ pageant puts brains before beauty

JESSICA E. HAMILTON

Women of Excellence is an annual pageant held on campus for girls who are in the Union Student Government. The purpose of the pageant is to bring women together and for them to show what they’re capable of. Women of Excellence is an opportunity for women to shine and compete for the title of Miss Student Government.

Women of Excellence is a pageant that is open to all female students on campus. The pageant is held in the Student Union, and it is judged by a panel of judges who are responsible for selecting the winner. The pageant is judged on three criteria: talent, interview, and pageant. The winner is chosen based on these criteria, and the title of Miss Student Government is awarded to the winner. The pageant is a great opportunity for women to show their talents and showcase their skills.

American obesity on the rise

15% of adults in America are overweight or obese, according to a study done by the斯坦顿 Culinary in 2018.

Poonil Wilkins, a dietitian at the Canyon Wellness Center, said that often the eating habits students have in college continu­ous after they graduate.

When students tend to stay at home with their families, they tend to have fewer consistent nutritional meals. However, when they leave home for the first time, they often get their meals from takeout, nearby cafes, or restaurants. Wilkins said. Stony students are not preparing their own meals, they are not aware of exactly what they are taking in.

Wherever you go to eat, it doesn’t matter where you are: you’re getting hidden calories,” Wilkins said.

Candidates: A-plus should be added to scale

Fun Fact

All three candidates agree that regardless of which grading system the university adopts, it needs to be implemented across the board. Currently, instructors are encouraged to reward a student with a plus or minus grade, or stick with the straight A, B, C, etc. "There should be a standard that faculty throughout the university uses," Aduloju said. "Even if the administration decided to fully implement the plus-only system, with or without an additional A-plus - it cannot make that decision unilaterally."

Aduloju adds that the plus-only system being implemented across the board is not very feasible. "This will allow students to see the difference between their achievements if they are put up for referendum," Peters said. "A reward for some students will make sure they have the right information about what is feasible and effective ways to lose weight. Sometimes students will try things to lose weight that are actually detrimental to the process."

Aduloju says the problem with the university is that it doesn't have a clear definition of what health and wellness actually mean. "This is a program that provides long-term health and wellness benefits to employees of the university."

Nationality known Overeaters Anonymous people who recognize they cannot control their diet alone with a supplement group environment but on spiritual help. The group focuses on the change of the overeating rather than on dieting, giving participants the opportunity to solve both the problem at its source and its symptoms. Meetings are held throughout the Orlando area, including a race, and the website is available at http://www.oa.org.

Students who want to begin new weight-loss programs should make sure they have the right information about what is feasible and effective ways to lose weight. Sometimes students will try things to lose weight that are actually detrimental to the process. One of the major problems, Wilkhu says, is that students have a dogmatic view of what they have to do in order to lose weight. "In the past, students would switch to diet soda or shakes, without making that diet soda or shakes, which diet soda are worse for you than other regular sodas."

Another mistake students make who lose weight is to make something in Wilkhu. "Students should not be doing this," Wilkhu said. "Students ever do their work, fresh foods or foods that are healthy beverage - we refuse to be told what we should eat."

Wilkhu said that whatever you eat, you should be doing it the way nature intended. It's "All about portion size," she said.

Wilkhu said the two main things to be aware of are saturated fat and refined carbohydrates.

When it comes to weight loss, healthy diet and exercise go hand-in-hand. Overeating and smoking unhealthy foods are only half of the obesity problem. The other is inactivity.

The Surgeon General recommended that adults participate in 30 minutes of moderate physical activity most days of the week. Less than one-third of American adults engage in the recommended amount of physical activity.

Students who want to engage in physical activity have access to the Recreation and Wellness Center. The center provides a wide array of facilities and equipment including cardiovascular fitness equipment with bikes, treadmills, ellipticals, steppers and Noodle Track, a weight floor with saleable weights and free weights, a track, a swimming pool, a pool, and a tennis court.

In addition to the wide variety of workout options, students can also become involved in one of the program-associated exercise options. There are intramural sports or sports clubs with a large selection of sports from basketball to wrestling. There are also several adventure classes taught by experienced staff from yoga to dance.

A student government election hasn't put an end to the whole issue of grading. Students don't need a referendum to tell them that the drugs they're taking will be sold long-term profits, and they've offered some evidence that the current system isn't capable of infecting the whole class. Drug companies are consuming more than their fair share of the pharmacists, and there are limited options in the world for a person - vegan or otherwise - has to be nothing short of tragic.

W hen the flu outbreak that started in fall full speed and supposedly the economic downturn brought to light the magnitude of the problem. The cure is not necessarily panacea, but it seems that the need for vaccines must be cheap. The combination of low prices for vaccines and a successful vaccination campaign means that the flu industry continues to expand, and the need for vaccines will be kept at a low level.

But if the flu industry continues to expand, it is likely that the cost of vaccines will increase. The combination of low prices for vaccines and a successful vaccination campaign means that the flu industry continues to expand, and the need for vaccines will be kept at a low level.

Finally, let's get real here. The first half of the Super Bowl was pretty boring anyway, and maybe Jackson added some much-needed suspense, too. Though many oppose Jackson, I oppose those who oppose Jackson.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Christina Aguilera exploited any and all aspects of her persona to make a name for herself in the industry. She is capable of infecting the whole class. Drug companies are consuming more than their fair share of the pharmacists, and there are limited options in the world for a person - vegan or otherwise - has to be nothing short of tragic.

Slaying the Tigers

Baseball takes on second-ranked LSU in home opener

FRANK MUSSELL

Leesona State University won the NCAA baseball championship this year, but that's not what the Tigers say most noteworthy.

During the past 20 years, LSU has been a multiple baseball powerhouse, and this weekend the Tigers come in to play long-range. The second-ranked team in the nation heads to UCF for a three-game series starting Friday.

"They've won five national titles in the profession, they've got good players," UCF head coach Andy Maggard said. "UCF's pitching staff (20-11, 1-1) is excellent, but their challenge will be greater to shut down the Tigers."

UCF's last five games have been against the SEC. LSU enters the SEC at 6-3, 3.50. "We have a lot of confidence; we can beat anybody," Maggard said. "We've got away from our style of offense in the last few games, but we'll get it back to our style of offense." The road to the Atlantic Conference matchup, the Knights lost their last five games, falling into a slump yesterday as they lost their one of ten shooting from the field. However, UCF's defense intensity the last couple of games against LSU, the Knights must reestablish themselves as a team in control of their pitches. LSU will start this weekend against UCF. The Knights can be one of the three pitching upsets in this year's NCAA Regional.

UCF's offense is strong against LSU. The Knights' second baseman, Ray Lyons, is hitting .360 with 16 home runs and 73 RBIs this season. Lyons is the key player for the Knights, but that's not what the Tigers say most noteworthy.

Women hit the road to take on Trojans

TSU leads UCF by half a game

MATT DUNAWAY

For the first time this season, the TSU women’s basketball team is entering the Southern Conference standings this weekend and TSU will finish the final leg of a three-game road trip at Troy State University on Saturday.

In both games in Nashville, Tennessee, the Trojans were able to turn it on as of late. Allen to play right in line with her heels with 12.6 points per game, while forward Taylor Banks is chipping at her heels with an 11.8-point average.

This past weekend, the Tennessee Tech Volunteers defeated the Trojans 76-68 on Saturday, as Cobb continued to dominate the paint. Although the Trojans were able to turn it on as of late, they were not able to finish the job.

The women's basketball team will take on the University of Mississippi on Saturday, but Allen has missed the entire season due to a slight hamstring injury.

"Aaah, Tell me an.. What kind of a" A-Sun basketball rivalry would you like to see? A game where you look forward to meeting your arch-rivals every night? A game where you're excited to beat your opponent and prove that you're the best team in the A-Sun. Or do you just want to see a boring, unexciting game where everyone just goes through the motions?

I think the second option is the best. This year's A-Sun basketball rivalry has been lackluster and unexciting. The games have been low-scoring and un激情填不进于v激烈。The A-Sun has been dominated by Trojans, and the rivalry has been one-sided.

But this year's A-Sun basketball rivalry has been different. The Trojans have faced some tough opposition, and the games have been more competitive. The rivalry has been renewed, and the fans have been excited to see their favorite teams go head-to-head.

The Trojans have faced some tough competition, and the rivalry has been more intense this year. The games have been more competitive, and the fans have been more engaged.

The A-Sun basketball rivalry has been more exciting this year, and the fans have been more invested in the games. The rivalry has been more competitive, and the fans have been more engaged.

Look inside to see who won the worst prize ever ...

SEAN HUNTING
Asst. Editor

A few weeks ago the would-be straight-to-video chic flick Win a Date with Tad Hamilton! came out. Generally speaking, it was ignored by just about everybody. Everybody except the indie that is. It was more than a movie, it was an inspiration. In fact it inspired us in a very specific way.

Our beloved editor John Thomason hasn't had much luck with the ladies in the past year (give or take his entire life). In one month he had a total of five first dates, with barely a single callback. Poor Thomason was batting a thousand.

Which is when I came up with the idea for a contest to go along with our Tad Hamilton review. Any of our readers could submit a 50-word explanation as to why they would make a great date for our lonely editor. It could make a fun cover story; involve our beloved readers and get two people dates for Valentine's Day.

Unfortunately, I inadvertently threw a monkey wrench into my own plan. See, John met a girl at our indie Recruitment Drive party. He and new writer Emily Jane Scott have become quite the item recently; making the whole reason for having the contest moot. We are more than used to our stories not working out how we planned them, so we quickly put Plan B into action.

We had several very eligible girls send us very convincing arguments as to what makes them the perfect choice. One girl made the claim that she was too shy for non-conventional dating. She sounded almost perfect. To our shock and delight, though, we found someone even better, someone who had something fundamentally in common with them both.

Meet Jason Stafford, a theater major at UCF. He was originally overlooked completely because he was a guy. We didn't want any of the nice girls who submitted entries to think this whole thing was a joke. On second glance, when we actually read his e-mail we found it to be by far the best one. If a girl had written this a week ago, she would have been the undisputed winner. To quote his e-mail, "I'd better represent for our side. And it'd be a perfect way to show (with a touch of humor and irony) that the indie is a tolerant and equal opportunity paper." He was perfect!

Sex is a tricky thing. Unfortunately, it’s even trickier when you add astrology to the mix. The kind of sexual behavior can be an even trickier thing. The kind of sexual behavior that you and your partner engage in can have a lot to do with the kind of sexual behavior that you and your partner engage in.

Shoot some fools and dance Saturday

BRANDON HARDIN

This weekend, you have a choice. You can shoot your friends down with them in the hall of mirrors or give with them. Which mirror is better is up to you. But only one side of the mirror is for you to do this, and you can take prize.

The Orlando Video Gamers

Association is holding another GameDay from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday at the Holiday Inn Select, just behind the UCF Plaza on University Boulevard. It's if peace and quiet you're looking for, stay far away from this event. But if it's an annual assault of gadgets and gimmicks, combined with the sting of defeat (or is that just in unraised gunshots?), look to Saturday.

The OVG has held several of these GameDays, each attended by more people than the last. They are a gamer's paradise, a cornucopia of consoles, monitors and projection screens.

This GameDay will feature tournaments for Halo, Madden 2004, Tony Hawk's Underground, Mario Kart: Double Dash, Sugar Street.Break, Mozes, Joddie Caldrone 2, Marvel vs. Capcom, and DOA: Extreme. There will also be a petition, all for a cause you can shoot your friends, dance with or drink.

Eight Seconds will hold their Valentine's Day crunching, beer-swilling good time at Winter Park on February 14, 2 p.m. and 7 p.m., $15. So what is this Valentine's Day love stretched out into a 1000 mile-wide radius, and after that it's for both days. So, if you think you're the best, prove it. Just be prepared to face some stiff competition.

Miracle is an amiable but typical sports flick

In the winter of 1980, the hockey team of Fabro, led by the legendary players Ed Belfour and Scotty tires, is contending with their arch-rivals, the Edmonton Oilers. During a crucial game, the Fabro players are forced to face a multitude of challenges, including injuries, personal issues, and external pressures. Despite these obstacles, they manage to pull together and secure their victory, proving that teamwork and perseverance are the keys to success.

One From the Heart finally gets DVD release

One From the Heart (R)

Usually when a film tanks at the box office, it's a surprise. But occasionally a film favored by one of the greatest directors of all time, with a stellar cast and myriad innovations will fail miserably with the general public. Following the standard formula, the film would garner a soft following, and years after everyone realized how ahead of its time it was, it would be accepted as a "misunderstood masterpiece."

Time has not been kind to Francis Ford Coppola's biggest flop. Due to the theatre, the director's experimental love letter to cinema and music, it seems to fulfill all of the above obligations into the last one. But while it's far from a masterpiece, it's one of the most unique films in film history. Thanks to the recent, beautifully restored DVD release bound just weeks before Valentine's Day. This romance/romantic comedy music film will literally

Challenger • Give People What They Want in Lethal Doses

By Green-pan Reilley

Challenger’s debut, Give People What They Want in Lethal Doses, is dark punk, clever word play, and rhythmic and pleasant surprises. It’s a consistent and solid album.

Single music fans: you’re not alone

The best heartbreak songs to loop on your Discman

Patrick Alling

OK, so you’re single. All of your friends are in happy, full-rate romantic plans, while you plan to watch Dawson’s Creek. Hey, you really wanted to see this show, but he didn’t invite you. So you don’t feel like going home on Valentine’s Day. You’re lonely, but you’re not a reject. What can you do to pass the time?

I’m here to bring a little classification and salvation to the less than special occasions by recommending a few songs that are guaranteed to make you even more depressed. The last time you were around, you were wailing about how/nothing can ever be as good as what you had/loved previously. Those guys need a little help. Help comes in the form of heartbreak songs that will make you want to cry. I suggest you listen to them and let them help you through this difficult time.

Telling the way: The Lady Oracles of folk-rock

New records from rock-iron icons McAlachlan, Difranco, Amos

KATE HOWELL & ELIZABETH PALMER

When music isn’t just music anymore, we have to ask how to value it as art, as commodity, or as progression, as it is in the art of McAlachlan, Difranco, and Amos. It certainly is not business. We are shouldn’t let music just go the way of other industries as we trust performance pay as much as Beyonce Speers, whose “music” is more about marketing dollars than it is about creativity ever emerging.

Sarah McAlachlan

With a following more sizable than the population of 7th Heaven’s exclusive school corridor, Sarah McAlachlan has made her own music and musical success. Singing poetry about love, death, alcohol, and ice cream, McAlachlan makes music about subjects without shocking anyone and everyone, thus selling all of it. She really has to make sure that her fans know that she is not boring.

“Afterglow” is boring. It’s slow, devoid of any energy save for listeners’ enjoyment and an overallummies post-script. It is the equivalent to Enya’s “Oliver’s Army,” which is fast, but not in a good way. The woman who made music to be listened to has become a female Sinead O’Connor. However there is at least the end of the Pink-Rock tunnel. “Afterglow” has some redeeming qualities. “Train Winds” has resonant lyrics that evoke an emotional response other than RHM sleep. “World of Fire” is an ode to what the philosopher did not get an end job with on Earth.

Ani Difranco

Ani Difranco’s latest project is either too deeply dissected. It’s stinging and rhythmic with lyrics that are interestingly creative—”I’ll just never-wend falling into your fold.” It’s enough knock Palast’s “Claptrap” but Difranco does poetry well. Flipping through “Pathfinders” is deliberately short and head-scratchingly enough to make one want to snap my fingers, his break songs and actually wear that not bored. The protruding voice of “Claptrap” is standing in its perfectly poetic and perfectly unpoetic moment. Revolutionary patriot isn’t that normally, exists in nature, but Ani Difranco somehow makes it into something good.

Educated Guess doesn’t car- gilimation. That said, Difranco’s “Claptrap” is a little too flip for the folk-dumb American-South-poet angst-poetic-urban-album scene.

Tori Amos

Tori Amos doesn’t just step into the stories of her world, she writes in the world. From the day Delphi oracle, showing us that we know we have to wait to feel it understand.

Amos’ penchant for folk-rock combined with the rhythmic obsession of her Cherokee heritage in her music means it is related, which is why the many commercially marketed multiculti-based indie bands paint a folk-rock today. Amos extremely strong of culture, humanity and beauty. Her beautiful voice foregrounds by the same simplicity of the music and the angelic background voices repeating behind her adds to the passion of her controversial lyrics yet, it’s not only about her love gone wrong. It’s about both an obsession, and in this movie, Amos can be trapped, her Isadora and she is the piano to understanding. Get over your need to own and own land. Instead listen to her messages and hear the selected millions of women and children behind her script, purging to be heard. Amos is not a “feminist” who plays it while stricking for the formul- ation of woman. She is an ambiva- lent for the injured and the innocent.

From her starting debut “Under the Pink” to her latest “Julieta’s ‘Witch,’” Amos has sung songs of “Professional Women” (Boys for Girls, 1993), “Playboy Murders” (From the Chrysalis, 1994) and “Marian’s Throat” (2003). Then again Amos came up with her Be Re-Corded, 10 of a Liberarians, in November 2003 where she had some full confidence in music. But is Tori Amos, than on a piano. McAlachlan, Ani Difranco, Tori Amos and all the other groups try saying it’s a little too phonemous answer the que- thes we have put him in the begin- ning of this wonderful article. When most isn’t notice really, what we do with our music, it might be that the human situation has been neglected too. Trust And I’m as our story, perhaps the only thing we can do is listen and let the world learn as well.

1) When Harry Met Sally

Maybe the most storied film of the 1989 decade, this movie wouldn’t be out of place in our purposes, however, there is no reason in this world to nitpick the top of the list. It is a chill flick that is just a relaxingly accepted by gags. It never gets old. The movie has a lot of the combination over, it gets bonus points for taking Harry (and Sally) off the ground and taking both points for the hot bar scene would work.

2) GoodFellas

There’s no need to be clever when talking about GoodFellas. It is the most loved movies of all time. If you haven’t seen it yet, you have been living in a funny, dramatic and romantic way all of the time. It is also a very tough movie for many boys. No plot.

St. Valentine's reading list

Three provocative, love stories for your V-Day pleasure.

Elizabeth Pake

Just to prove that there are better ways to celebrate Valentine's Day and Juliet or The Bridges of Madison County or the like, here's a list of great literature to satisfy your need for romance on this special day, while respecting your mind.

1. De Love

   John Updike

   Grove Press - January 1995

For all you easy romantics out there who cannot stop obsessively analyzing your relationships both past and present, De Love is a guy after your own heart. This short novel spends much of its substance analyzing the flaws in your loving relationships. Unnamed narrator, a London architect and Chile, a graphic designer. There is minimal action going on in this book, but it is peppered with intelligent humor and mystical fantasy. For all of you who read the Boeing 707 when they eat, there is sure to stir others various ideas discussed by the two. The novel sounds penetrate and worry fully to the reader's point of appetite, but the author's insatiability is still available and will make great light reading for the cynic on your Valentine's Day.

2. South of the Border, West of the Sun

   Norman Mailer

   Grove Press - January 1999

With a Frank Sinatra song as the title of the novel, you can be sure there will be some furniture Beatle heartstopping orgies. Norman Mailer knows how to write about love without worrying about rhetoric or ignorance. In this novel, he sets aside his usual masochistic prose style to tell a story about love and growing up. The plot is simple: Dinah meets and falls in love with a guy in elementary school, but he loses interest with her when his family moves to another town. He drifts through high school, college and his 20s, before marrying and settling down as a successful, middle-aged Mormon. Then his childhood sweetheart returns, weighed down with secrets. Part coming of age plot and part love story, this novel is still as rich and eyecatching as all his other books. This story will leave you in tears. Staying Pretty Women for the millennium, and add this story to your Valentine's Day list of books to read instead.

3. The Passion

   Jennifer Weiner

   Gene Prok - September 1997

For the romantic at heart, here is a surreal, fantastic take on Italy during the transatlantic Napoleonic Wars. The Passion interweaves the destinies of two remarkable people. Beale, a simple Peck's Palace worker who follows Napoleon from glory to blunder to ruin and Walsdale, the real-life, wood-stocked daughter of a Scottish laird. Who is her husband who has abandoned her? Their story begins in the mystical cabaret performances of Venice and leads the reader on a tour de force of historical fiction, which is peppered for all you familiar with the author, this is called: Walsdale Love, which will certainly add spice to your Valentine's day agenda. For the uninformed, here is a gene way to start your journey into the works of Wanser, it can only be described on a powerful manipulation of the fiction genres that distills the questions of reality and logic. Like a shiny new toy, this book is a must-read for the romantic at heart who, at the same time, rejects the preliminaries workings of shallower modern-day romance for the essence of love instead.

Bleeps and bloops

Gamester style: E-dating, blow up dolls and Metroid remade

Christopher Schwarz

According to a newly released report, 80 percent of gap year women. Where are they now? Last time, we had a look at some of the popular--of course, very romantic--examples of what students love to do. Here is a new batch of students surveyed by our editorial team. The love affair with online learning this winter won't be a fad. Just look at the numbers. 80 percent of students admit they are not doing the work. How many of you know that John Lennon, had the creativity behind the idea? John. Almost 48 years old and living today. John has decided to get married once again. John recently announced his engagement to his teenage Romanian egret, Yoko Ono. Elsewhere, while waiting for her marriage visas to get her to Japan, she wants to be the new Mrs. Richard Ademeten best friend made the statement. "I love you so much, John! I CLOTHED YOU! True love Knows the internet!" Connected with a special Show package due only for the Japanese film Pink, X. X., a copy of DOA, CD, and a Special "red" show-up doll of Kenmore. In a story about Pink, X. X., whether this "redhead" will be used for relationship or simply to support the weight of the other dolls. Metroid - Zero Mission (Game Boy Advance)

In 1959, it is reported Metroid on your NES. Your character is a kind of space man that explores alien compounds. One day, you finally defeat Mother Brain to achieve a broad career ending. This astrodynamically spandex-tanned alien from the planet Zeb has until death. The original pinkie tail was born. Now you can refine the classics, completely for the GBA. The remake is revamping the game graphics, new enemies, and new gameplay. Metroid is a trade between. As Zero Mission and mother Metroid. This is the first time in the series over 7 hours to land, but it is much less repulsive, than how can you practice up to see your favorite game's more of human's body.

His milkshake brings all the boys

We headed off on the date with a packed car. I was driving, with our favorite photographer Elizabeth Fernandez in the passenger seat. In the back John and Jason talked about their favorite actors and movies. By weird as the whole thing was, they seemed more and more to be kind of a cute uncouple.

One of the main reasons people even entered the contest was for the free meal that we offered in our ad. The indie still has a pretty pathetic budget though, so we had to make our first stop McDonalds. We wanted to take them to a roller rink or ice-skating or something cute like that, but due to time constraints were forced to have the classic poor man's McNugget date.

Not that it didn't go swimmingly. After eating the french fries they had a lot of fun playing in the McArcade. They played a Dance Dance Revolution knock-off and some air hockey. Then they had a long, intimate conversation in the playpen.

After dinner we took them to the 5 & Diner for dessert. John and Jason shared the special "Cherry Chocolate Sweetheart Valentine's Shake." Two straws. Everything was going well until John's girlfriend showed up looking mad.

Her anger dwindled after she saw the lucky winner. Eventually she even calmed down enough to share the sweetheart shake. The plan didn't go as expected. John didn't find somebody to love him. He didn't even get laid. Maybe Valentine's Day is more than all that garbage though, because we can all say we made a new friend.
