SGA revisits pricey party bill
New legislation mandates scrutiny
HEIDI A. DE VRIS

Concerned about a previously approved $55,000 expenditure for the annual Legislative Dinner, held by the Student Government Association on Thursday, the Senate last night voted to revisit the legislation, which was approved by the full Senate. The amendment was introduced by Sen. Nick Sommerfield, who said that he had received complaints from students about the high cost of the dinner.

"This is a huge problem," Sommerfield said. "I think it's outrageous that we would spend this much money on a dinner that is not even in the best interest of the students." The amendment was passed by a vote of 12 to 1.

The Senate had previously approved the legislation, which was introduced by Sen. Alyssa Merolle, who said that she had been asked by SGA to plan the dinner. The legislation was passed by a vote of 15 to 4.

Merolle said that she had received a lot of positive feedback from students about the dinner, and that she was disappointed that the Senate had decided to revisit the legislation.

"I believe that the dinner was a great success," Merolle said. "I think that the students enjoyed it, and I think that it was a good event for us to have." Bash meant to upstage other state schools

The Golden Knights Celebration was an attempt to replicate the traditions at other major schools, including the University of Florida's Gator Game. This tradition has been a central part of the University's annual celebration.

Betrayal, revenge and tragedy

"Once on This Island," a musical on stage through Sunday, tells the story of a girl, Ti Moune (Kahliah Rivers, top, in the arms of Marjorie Thomas and Reginald Woods), who is given a unique opportunity to test her love for a man. That love is tested when she is given the option of either dying or taking his life. Essential to the colorful production are storytellers who communicate with the gods through song and dance (above and left). The show is directed by Earl D. Weaver, with costumes by Yang Liu.

Protesters and reporters after Friday's rally by the Edwardses called President Bush's proposed constitutional amendment to ban gay marriage "both wrong and treacherous." But he ignored a reporter's question about how he defined marriage, which emerged as an issue after Massachusetts' high court ruled that banning it is unconstitutional and San Francisco's mayor decided this month to issue marriage licenses to same-sex couples. While the issue is certain to be a flash point in the November elections, analysts say it will be less important in Tuesday's primaries in 10 states, including California.

A field poll in Thursday's San Francisco Chronicle showed that half the state's voters oppose gay marriage; 55 percent oppose amending the Constitution to ban it. More than in 10 Democratic Senate primary races, the poll found.

Edwards and his wife, Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts, the campaign's top Democratic presidential nominating opponent, both oppose gay marriage and say it's an issue for the states — not Washington — to decide. Both favor extending partnership benefits to same-sex couples.

Having an MBA still entails a successful professional journey. Masters in business administration are increasingly popular among people of all ages and backgrounds. In fact, the number of MBA graduates has increased every year for the past four years. Although the idea of earning an MBA or waiting until later to do so is becoming more common, there are many different factors to consider when deciding whether or not to take this step. Some people may be more motivated than others, and the reasons for wanting an MBA may vary from person to person.

President John Hit made a keynote speech Wednesday with a keynote speech by the former First Lady. Hillary Clinton addressed the annual meeting of the National Education Association in which she lied about malevolence in the workplace.

Unfortunately, whether the nature of the job or the tenure of Hit's personalitly, students don't much miss the man. He works behind the scenes and takes flack, whenever something big goes wrong at the school.

Much like President George W. Bush, Hit's history is marked by a positive leader. Students don't often get to see or hear him. Few people know his face or would recognize him on the street. At this point in our university's history, it takes more than just leadership to keep it from sliding into the hands of another school.

UCF kept its annual Leadership Institute on Wednesday with a keynote speech by the former U.S. ambassador to China, T. Peter Roover, an outspoken supporter of the Bush administration. Roover's speech was heralded by students and faculty as a reform-minded leader who will be a reform-minded leader and who will make a difference in the workplace.

If we were to hold the office of education, we would be able to offer the people the same kind of leadership that we are offering today. It would be a new kind of leadership that we are offering today.

The theme of the attacks is obvious. Republicans have leaped to the charge that the Clinton administration is a failure. It's no surprise that the Clinton administration is a failure. It's no surprise that the Clinton administration is a failure.

The attack is a response to a series of attacks on the Clinton administration. The attacks are a response to a series of attacks on the Clinton administration. The attacks are a response to a series of attacks on the Clinton administration.

Cops did their jobs.

In response to the letter sent in by the person getting angry about the police taking his weed away ("Feeling humiliated, not protected," Reader Views, Feb. 26), I have only one question: Are you kidding me?

After smoking weed and possessing it of, how on earth are you wondering why a cop came in and took it? Are you aware that smoking weed is a crime, right?

I also believe that we’re complaining about a referral. You should be thanking the cops that he didn’t fines you or hand you off to jail, which he easily could have. This entire letter was completely off base.

Pay well, either. I’m sorry about a referral. You should be thanking the cop who came in and took it? You are aware that smoking weed is a crime, right?

If breaking the law by doing this, he became some resident assistant or three resident assistants who proceeded to interrogate him. He then willingly turned over the weed to the police.

News Flash: Having pot on you anywhere in the United States is a crime. The resident assistants are not me. I would never call someone a racist unless they really are.

Clarity on nooses reaction

I want to clear some things up, because, I think, a lot of people are confused because of the nooses reaction. I called Ashley Burns at a race.

If you go to your history class, you will probably see a picture of the nooses reaction. This was in the 1920s. The nooses reaction is offensive to me. I’m not speaking for all black people. I’m speaking for myself.

Until that reader gets “hard facts,” he should keep his comments to himself.

More white people in the West, medieval and colonial times hanged for being black, or for crimes they committed. That comment was ignorant and has no validity. Thank you to another reader, Mr. Sevener, for being open-minded.

Believing Christianity

As a suburban newspaper, you have a responsibility to the student body for the content you produce. While Jesus sports figurines and extreme sports are strange, ridiculing those things is more than setting up a Christian “straw man” that can be knocked down easily.

When your publication continually denounces Christianity as an absurd laughing matter, it misses the deeply held convictions of a large portion of the student body — with its beliefs and beliefs.

All I am asking is for the editors to maintain high journalistic standards to balance what has been a biased perspective regarding the Christian faith.

Women's basketball defeats Mercer, Georgia State

UCF extends five-game winning streak in weekend road games

WATT DUNAWAY

The UCF women's basketball team extended its winning streak to five games with victories over Mercer (70-61) and Georgia State (58-50) over the weekend.

On Saturday, the Knights dominated Mercer in a 70-61 victory. The team's defense held the Bears to 30 percent shooting from the field.

On Sunday, the Knights faced Georgia State and managed to come out with a 58-50 win.

UCF now stands at 12-12 overall and 6-8 in Conference USA. They will continue their conference schedule with a game against Old Dominion this weekend.
Conference matchups prove easy for men's tennis

NATHAN CUTHBERT
Staff Writer

The UCF men's tennis team triumphed in a couple of conference matchups this past weekend to remain undefeated in Atlantic Sun play.

On Friday the Knights crushed Troy State, 6-1. Saturday it was FAU's turn to lose to the men in black and gold as they were upset, 2-5.

The Knights looked like their doubles woes were behind them as they claimed their first out of the possible three matches. Catalan Brolly and Antonio Sierra once again paired up to win on Monday Becerra and Charles Van Swelm of Troy State in the No. 4 spot. Right behind them were Joel Allen and Simon Jugert, who teamed to annex the No. 2 spot.

Brolly and Sierra dominated Tameko Baddoo and Asia El-Awadi, 6-3, 6-4, in the No. 2 spot. Gabriel Strangberg picked up the victory in the third match for when Robert van Swelm retired to injury. Allen was against Lang Lim and Jarred pushed past the other Van Swelm to win, 6-3, 6-1, respectively. Finally, Bezen Harris battled with Chris Hartfield and was able to come out on top, defeating them 6-1, 6-7 and 10-8.

The Knights' victory in the Atlantic Sun and kept their overall series with TSU a perfect 6-0.

Saturday again pitted the Knights against an in-season opponent. The Knights once again triumphed in doubles play.

Allen and Jarred won in the first position against Antoone Maret and Christian Paré, 9-7. Then, to give the Knights the second point, Gabriel Strangberg and Emir Strangberg defeated Gianfranco Dover and Maurice Pain 8-3 in the third position.

UCF controlled singles play as four of the six matches were won.

Sierra overcame Magnits, 6-2, 6-4 and 7-6 in the first position. Gawor held his ground in the third slot when he beat David Demeter, 6-3, 6-3. At this point, however, singles play was watched as rain appeared. Strangberg and Jarred were unable to come up with victories at the second and fourth positions, respectively, so it was up to Allen and Paul Rayner to secure the match for the Knights in the final two sets. Allen quickly disposed of Daniel Cusimany, 6-1, 6-1, and Rayner pulled through for the Knights in the final two sets. Allen and Jarred moved on to the semifinals, in three games.

The win this weekend pushed UCF to a 9-7 record overall with a 6-0 record in the ASun. The Knights are back in action Wednesday when they travel to Coral Gables to take on Miami at 6 p.m.

Stingy pitching yields one run to Hawks were joking with me if you get up in the count you better take at least one swing for it, so I did,” Brown said. “I just missed it but it was a run.”

Brown从而 home on runs in the first two innings, as both runners came in to score. Brolly drove in the second run for UCF, which he scored in the fifth inning, bringing in the third run. The final score was 2-0.

In Saturday's game, UCF defeated FAU, 1-0, and scored a run in the second inning to get one out of the six runs scored.

Kevin Richardson got the win as he struck out six and walking only two. Richardson played a strong defensive game.

UCF is 3-0 in games this season.

Brolly and Sierra outscored yet another good, solid job, Brolly said. “We had a little defensive mess-up, besides what we played defenseful.”

On Saturday, Kevin Brolly pitched a career-high six and two-thirds innings, striking out six and allowing only one run. Brolly pitched for 6-2, 6-3, 6-5, 6-1, respectively.

“The first inning I was a little unimpartable, then I started trying to make adjustments and then I could make the pitches that I wanted,” Brolly said. “I just got make it to the seventh inning without giving up the ball or getting run四大 score from there.”

Junior centerfielder Darren Newlin picked up two and two-thirds innings of scoreless, hitting baseball, earning him his first save of the season.

“His pitching’s done our real well,” Brolly said of the guys who have stepped up,” Brolly said.

Kevin Richardson got the win as he struck out six and walking only two. Richardson played a strong defensive game.
