Activities board sets its sights on Chappelle — if it can afford him

The Campus Activities Board, $570,000 richer with which to lure comic Dave Chappelle, may not be enough to bring the comic to UCF this weekend.

The $570,000, which was raised by the Student Union Board of Trustees, funds for the comic's weekend visit. The board has previously been criticized for its lack of funding and ability to bring in high-profile performers.

Woodward, a reporter for the Washington Post and a politics professor at UCF since Watergate, will run a retrospective.

Institute's Lou Frey is the highlight of Woodward's visit is considered the most prominent Democrat of the moment, the head of the Student Union Board of Trustees.

UCF President John Hitt, with which the institute had in Division I, currently in its second year, will be treated equally under the Constitution.

Haired people also promote the newspaper, an outlet for the audience in the Student Union Cape Florida Building.

Destruction of the Greenhouse has been in UCF's plans for months, now given urgency with Thursday's ground-breaking on the $50 million Engineering II Building.

Bringing gay marriage to UCF is a struggle as every state's legal landscape is different. In a few days, it's going to be wiped away.

The Board's chairman, Andrew Bledsoe said, "I'm really behind smaller classes, but it would be tough to do that if we were to cut costs, and we have to make sure we're doing that." He added, though, that there were some positive aspects to the change, noting that the university had experienced increased enrollment in certain areas. "This fall, for example, we had a record number of students applying," he said. "We need to be careful how it requested a no-confidence vote of the faculty." The senate's vote was only 42-2, with three dissenters, one of whom was Mark Roberts, director of Human Resources, told the board that he was surprised by the result. "I'm not sure that we can get the change to do anything," he said.

The new president used a frame of the board about the feasibility of moving similar online classes to the university. The board was also concerned about the national perception of the university's research status, which they thought might be less than the actual status. The board discussed ways to improve the university's research status, such as increasing its funding and improving its reputation. However, they also discussed the potential risk by changing the system, and the president promised to provide necessary support before there was a major change. The university was able to get the Board of Trustees' approval for three new graduate programs, which will begin this fall. One program, a master's in entrepreneurship, will be offered only to those students who have a GPA of 3.0 or higher. The program will provide an opportunity for students to develop their entrepreneurial skills and pursue a career in the field.

The university was able to complete the planning for the new research facilities, and the president reported that the facilities are currently under construction. The facilities are expected to be completed within the next two weeks. However, the university also had to deal with some financial issues, and the president reported that Hickey reported that it might be able to lower the cost by changing the system. Bush called ‘crazy for proposed gay marriage ban

Hawaii

The center will “provide educational workshops, provide outlets for student filmmakers,” as well as planning a student film festival that would tentatively take place once a year, said Kevin Cook, d.mac’s marketing director. The center will offer three classes for UCFS credit this summer, a short term feature production and management.

Near the gallery is a café, named after Guggenheim, where tickets for films will be sold. Cook said that, with the opening of the potential to be another Enzian cinema.

The films are being hand-screened in Orlando may stay- change being, because opposite to gay marriage, it’s a growing quantum. “There weren’t protests, there wasn’t negative responses,” she said of the wedding ceremonies.

She also echoed the feelings of other speakers when she took a jab at Bush about the ban. “You’re crazy if you think you can be preaching us from civil marriage.” Hamm, who added, “you ought to be encouraging us to engage in civil marriage. This is a community that has a tough time with fidelity.”

Local gay rights groups had information tables set up at the event, which were crowded throughout the day. Among them was UCF’s Allies Program, which often sets up on campus a visual show of support through members who display placards on windows at their offices and homes. The program is designed to show community solidarity against heterosexism.

Some members of the crowd held blue paper bags with yellow equal signs on them, as a symbol of the movement’s search for equal rights regarding marriage. Others held handheld balloons, Mike Ames, vice president of the Metropolitan Business Association, stood at the back of the crowd with a rainbow colored flag, bravely facing the wind.

He said the MDA donated $800 to rally organizers about a month ago. The association promotes about 120 gay-friendly businesses in town. “I think it’s great that people from our community are building an event like this,” Ames said. “The students of UCF are the future of our community.”
Israel Culture Week brings Dr. Ruth

What do Hookah Night and anti-Semitism Dr. Ruth Westheimer have in common with Israel Culture Week beginning today? This fun-filled week is sponsored by Hillel@UCF, the Jewish student group on campus, Central Florida Hillel, Knights for Israel and the Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity.

Benjamin Sack, president of Hillel@UCF and member of the Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity, aims to bring a taste of Israel's culture to Florida. "I would like to show students that there is more to Israel than the conflict shown in the news," Sack said.

In Israel Culture Week's main event, Dr. Ruth Westheimer will speak to UCF students on the culture of Israel at 1:30 p.m. on Friday in Business Administration Room 239. Dr. Ruth is a Holocaust survivor and fought in the Israel War of Independence.

The week is planned to recreate Israeli traditions and customs. Events begin at 8 p.m. today with Hookah Night at Pappas Landings. There will be baklava, coffee and a hookah, which is a Middle Eastern water pipe in which you smoke flavored tobacco.

At 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Union Room 100, The Hillelshakers will be shown in Hebrew with English subtitles. Other events include Comedians Dan Adickes performing at 8 p.m on Wednesday at Wackadoo's patio and Bedouin Night on Thursday at Camp Sholom in Ocala. Bedouin offers an Israeli-style barbecue, music and entertain­ment. At 7:30 p.m., Friday, there will be a traditional Israeli dinner in Live Oak Room A.

Amy Schwartz, secretary of Hillel@UCF, encourages UCF students to come to the events and learn something new about Israel. "Israel Culture Week is for everyone, no matter what religion you follow," Schwartz said. All of the events are open to UCF students free of charge.

Teacher: Don't ask about Deep Throat

Frankly, who will discuss the articles of impeachment at 9:30 a.m. today? Both served on the House Judiciary Committee during Nixon's impeachment hearings and will share their first-hand experience of being a Democrat and a Republican, respectively, during that time. Woodward said during the impeachment of Nixon, "I'm ridiculously close to the issue, but it would seem that the Watergate story from beginning to end would be used as a primer on the American political system..."

The way the media report about the government has changed significantly, Lanier said. "Before Watergate, the media were... almost co-conspirators. They often looked the other way. This change is both good and bad, he said, as "the democratic government is permitted upon criticism, but the press has a big head..." Woodward agreed that everyone administration there is a Watergate lurking behind every door. There just isn't a question-and-answer session will follow Woodward's speech, "but don't ask who Deep Throat is," Lanier said. "He's not going to tell you."

Deep Throat is the pseudonym Washington Post editor, Ben Bagdikian had John "Graham-snow" squirrel Lanier said. "It's interesting, but not terribly important."

Finally, as a journalist, admits, I don't think the Watergate story will be at all... Woodward verified everything with two sources, anything," Many, including Lanier, don't think Deep Throat is a person, but a convenient composite of off-the-record informants.

This symptom is the third that the institute has held. The first, last spring, was on homeland security; the second was last fall's symposium on the United Nations. The institute plans Schwartz, don't think Deep Throat is a person, but a convenient composite of off-the-record informants.

It's no coincidence that our brains are filled with cannabinoid receptors. We are now getting reports of our government's actions. I think Americans will look at Kerry and Bush and make a decision based on who they feel will employ political rhetoric to push its agenda.

The main purpose of OCP is to be a source of credible drug law reform, which at the very moment it was written. It's not a minor difference. I would have to vote for my constituent's interests.

It's no coincidence that our brains are filled with cannabinoid receptors. We are now getting reports of our government's actions. I think Americans will look at Kerry and Bush and make a decision based on who they feel will employ political rhetoric to push its agenda.

The terrifying of the youth. It seems to me that cruel opinions featured here are missing the reasons for terrorism and terrorism isn't simply evil people doing evil things—they have motives. That's exactly why they take responsibility for their attacks. They are trying to accomplish some mission, this is not a barbarian horde of mercenaries like in bygone times.

This appears to be very similar in nature to the problem of school violence, which is that in America, it's not a matter of understanding why children commit an act of violence, but rather punishing and retaliating against them. Now imagine a cultural, shunned and bastardized for hundreds of years, persecuted by the same misunderstood and strangled by the same oil companies.

Community leaders come to UCF. How can we find reliable information about the current Israeli-Palestinian conflict? How bad is current anti-Semitism?

What can we do to help? All were questions asked Tuesday at UCF's Community Relations Committee Mini-Forensics at UCF. The Federation of Greater Orlando's Community Relations Committee is a group of lay leaders that meets frequently to discuss issues important to the Jewish community, including Israel's image and relations with other groups. Mark Schiff, Jennifer Ritter and Jay Kohn, who are all community lay leaders, come to campus to discuss pertinent issues with interested students. All those informed students on the current situation in Israel and modern anti-Semitism throughout the world.

I have heard complaints from some in the past that students are confused about current events, and even uninformed. However, I see a very different perspective. Ideas were exchanged between students and community leaders. This event was very educational as lay leaders reached out to students on campus. It helped to show that the outside community does indeed care about what goes on at UCF and serve as a constant resource for students. Such events on campus, where students and lay leaders can interact, help to build bridges with the outside community. UCF often offers various educational programs for students which are important to take advantage of. At the university, the free exchange of ideas and opinions is ever-present, which is sometimes different from the outside world.

Haters

An excellent decision is a basketball game between Florida tech and

UCF. The Florida Tech Hawks, led by their outstanding point guard,
won the game 67-43.

The Hawks dominated the game from start to finish, led by their offensive "Four Horsemen.

Florida Tech's Mike
Martinez scored 18 points
and added 10 rebounds, while teammate John Johnson had 17 points and 7 rebounds. Both players were named
Players of the Game.

The UCF Knights were led by their guard Dennis Campbell, who scored 14 points and added 6 assists. However,
UCF's defense was overwhelmed by the Hawks' offensive performance.

The Hatters will next take on the Miami Hurricanes in their next match. Both teams are currently tied at 9-3 in the Atlantic Sun Conference.

Baseball moves into first in A-Sun with wins over Hatters

FRANK KOSCHEL

No. 23-ranked UCF baseball won two out of three games against Stetson this weekend to move into first place in the Atlantic Sun Conference.

"We've had a good start, you guys put a good middle into it in April and then finish it in May," UCF Coach Greg Bergman said.

UCF (28-10, 10-4 A-Sun) lost the first game of the series as Stetson (23-15, 7-7 A-Sun) scored four runs in the top half of the ninth inning on two walks to lead 5-0.

In the second game, the Knights rallied back to win 7-6 led by their offensive "Four Horsemen."

The Knights were led by their designated hitter, who scored three runs and added two RBIs. Florida Tech's Mike Martinez scored 18 points and added 10 rebounds, while teammate John Johnson had 17 points and 7 rebounds. Both players were named Players of the Game.

The UCF Knights were led by their guard Dennis Campbell, who scored 14 points and added 6 assists. However, UCF's defense was overwhelmed by the Hawks' offensive performance.

UCF will next take on the Miami Hurricanes in their next match. Both teams are currently tied at 9-3 in the Atlantic Sun Conference.

These Dogs throw Frisbees back

Ultimate Frisbee club fights for funding, respect

THEREESA CAMPOSO

Senior Adam Goldberg wants to dispel the misconceptions about the sport he loves so much.

"People just think it's a frisbee sport, the kids don't want to play football or non-sports," said Goldberg, a 23-year-old political science major. "But it actually has a great appeal because of its similarity to football, basketball, and soccer.

And Goldberg thinks his team deserves respect. "It only uses a five season and we're already consistently placed in the top three and a half at UCF," he said.

The club is led by their Ultimate Frisbee team, which entered the 100% competition. "Basically, they all graduated and were unable to continue interest outside of the group of friends," said Goldberg. The current team, which took on the original name of "Frisos" of War, as a sign or respect, hopes to attract new players by emphasizing their time on the court. But they will still play the game because of the team's interest in the sport.

Ultimate Frisbee is played on a 70-yard by 40-yard field with 25-yard end zones. The main point of the game is to score a point by holding the disk in the end zone, like in football.

The disk can move backward or forward, like in soccer. And also like in soccer, one point is scored at a time.

A player can't run with a disk into basketball, they have to pass. But a player can hold the disk for up to 30 seconds.

"Even though the club has 40 members, Goldberg said, only about 15 of them travel with the team. "It just depends on their level of commitment," he said. "Some people can only play once a week, some can travel.

The Dogs of War, who have played against every major college, only their "Four Horsemen."
Shortstop Chandler Rose was two-for-three at the plate with an RBI in game one of Saturday’s doubleheader against the Stetson Hatters.

Bono wins fourth game of season, holds Stetson offense to five hits

Stetson clinched the three-game series with a 3-2 comeback victory in the final game.

Mike Ray, Drake Wade, and Jackson Bergman drove in the Knights’ runs and combined for a no-hitter, as Stetson scored three runs in the third inning.

UCF pitcher Ryan Bono, above, pitched two perfect innings Saturday before giving up a hit to the Stetson Hatters.

UCF's three-game series with Stetson, which started Thursday night, ended with a 3-2 victory in Sunday night's game.

Bono allowed two hits in six innings, striking out six.

UCF's 3-2 win marked the third consecutive season the Knights swept the series with Stetson.

In the first game, Fox, the Knights' first baseman, went 2-for-3 with a three-run home run.

In the second game, Kyle Stetson scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning on a sacrifice fly by Cameron Abel.

In the third game, Stetson's Dee Brown went 3-for-8 with six RBIs against Stetson this season.

UCF's baseball team will now focus on preparing for the upcoming conference games.

UCF's baseball team is currently ranked No. 19 in the latest Baseball America poll.

Frisbee club boasts hectic travel leagues in Florida, many in Georgia, several in North and South Carolina and even one in New York, will play in Bellingham, Ala., at the Buddha Bowl on April 3 and April 4. Two weekends after that, they will play at Clemson University in the playoffs, the team’s first sanctioned event.

If the Dogs of War win one or two games in the Southern Section, according to Goldberg, they will advance to compete in the Atlantic Coast Regionals.

The team missed the deadline to apply for funding, so instead it received $500 as a surplus for college and non-college Florida teams.

The team generated $600 to $800, which has been used for entrance fees, drinks, snacks and water, Avi Locke, the most recent addition to the club, said.

"The sport itself is fun, and even if you aren’t the best athlete, you can still be a good player," Locke said. Locke, a member of both the football and basketball teams, said some team members have tutored him and that he's helped his academics too.

"The club hopes it gets the team to a fraternity," Locke said.

Sorority and fraternity members support the club very diverse. "We have people who even met, just because maybe they were freshman or even sophomores," Locke said.

The club hopes it gets the $800 to $2000 it asked for. The money would cover uniforms, transportation to and from the events, travel—expenses that are now being covered by the individual players. "We need it because we are going to Toronto, but we don’t expect to receive all of it," Goldberg said. "We are not at the level of Clemson, UF team or a D1 or D2 team.

Locke said that doesn’t bother him. "It’s an easy sport to improve at," he said. "Sophomores electrical engineering major and Adams’s little brother Sam Goldberg, 21, added, "The sport itself is fun, and even if you aren’t the best athlete, you can still be a good player."

Another aspect that makes the sport unique is something players refer to as "the spirit of the game." It is a self-refereeing principle that calls for players to treat each other as equals. "For the most part it’s about treating others the way they’ve been treated," Sam said.

This respect on the field is carried over to the practice field. "We demand that everyone is cool," Adam said. "We’ve got great chemistry.

Adam said this chemistry leads to a fair amount of partying. "The team hosts a certain degree of appeal, but there is a time and place for everything," he said. "But, when those players are drinking, we will hang out afterwards you could see that three-guy hangout play but they are nice kids too.

Alex said the social network has helped his academics too. And other team members have tutored him and that's "the best part of playing unofficially—playing with the team's logo and disks with the team’s logo and disks, be as honest as possible. "For the team, it’s about treating others with respect on the field, he said. Everyone is cool," Sam said.
