Unplugged life common in Europe

BRETT IRWIN Unplugged lifestyle

LONDON, Spain — The UCF campus-wide movement to unplug has reached a new stage. Students and faculty are no longer just turning their cell phones off during dinner; they are also unplugging from the world of technology by not using computers or technology to communicate. This movement has gained momentum as people become more aware of the negative effects of technology on their lives. The movement is called the “unplugged” lifestyle, and it involves disconnecting from the internet and social media.

“The unplugged lifestyle is about reconnecting with the world around us and focusing on the present moment,” said one student. “When we are constantly plugged into technology, we lose touch with the people and experiences that are right in front of us.”

Many students have reported feeling more present and connected to their surroundings when they unplug. Some have even found new hobbies or interests they never knew they had. "I never realized how much I love playing the guitar until I unplugged and gave it a try," said another student.

However, not everyone is on board with the unplugging movement. Some argue that technology is essential for communication and productivity. Others believe that the benefits of unplugging are overrated.

“I think it’s a waste of time to completely disconnect from technology,” said a professor. “We need to find a balance between using technology to enhance our lives and not letting it control us.”

 nevertheless, the movement to unplug continues to grow, with more and more students and faculty joining the cause. The ultimate goal is to create a more connected and mindful community, one where people can enjoy the present moment without the constant distraction of technology.
Bodies require healthy eating

Spring break is over and it’s back to the daily monotonous of schoolwork, jobs, and yes, working out. Many students around campus have allowed spring break to be their vacation and now that it’s over they have to go back to work. Many need to realize that spring break is over and it’s time to get back to schoolwork and working out. Spring break is a time when you can catch a couple of states on the beach, then come back and get fit again, but with spring break already over with summer rolls around the corner, the weight and Wellness Center director Jeff Sroufwater is right to be worrying about getting kids on track again.

You can’t just start and stop, it has to be a continuous process. Sroufwater said, in a workshop Thursday right, Sroufwater outlined some tips for getting fit and staying the way.

Where does the best place to do it for you? If you’re looking to lose your weight, there are ways, “You want to make sure it fits into your lifestyle. Some people who do it is extremely important. Sroufwater explained that diet is a very big part of your life.”

The diet also stressed the need to eat the right foods groups from your main source: protein, carbohy­ dration and fat. For every 100 calories you eat, you have to burn as well. Try to stay away from red meats, which are red, as white breads or sugars, or even nuts. Sroufwater also stressed that if you’re hungry, then by all means, eat what you’re eating and how you’re eating it.

Sroufwater also stressed that if you’re hungry, then by all means, eat what you’re eating and how you’re eating it.

Sroufwater encouraged, “Watch what you eat out.” She said, “You eat what it says at last.”

Diet isn’t going to make the pounds melt, however. Sroufwater says, “Nothing happening to get the place of work­ ing out. nutrition is the key to that.”

With a new year on the horizon, many are thinking of new things that they want to do every day to be a healthier person.

Fruits and vegetables are very important for maintaining a healthy lifestyle. Many want to lose weight and improve their health, but they don’t know where to start. Sroufwater recommended that you start drinking plenty of water. Sroufwater also suggested that you start doing your workout routine and adding resistance to your changes.

Healthy snack options:
- High fiber crackers
- Granola snack bars
- Peanut butter sandwich
- Granola covered with 200 calories or less
- Jerky with 200 calories or less
- Nutritional bars with 200 calories or less
- Healthy beverages
- Fresh juice
- Water

For the guys out there looking to build up, Sroufwater says to start adding protein to your diet along with the right workout. You can’t cut out the after- workout recovery — you still have to do it every day to see the results. You should only also work out when you’re feeling good to make sure that you’re not just forcing yourself, you’re only hurting yourself.

Many have the “all-or-null” mentality. Some exercise is always better than none. If you go from the gym twice a week, it’s a better culture than not going when you do find the time to workout, try again. People who work out earlier in the day tend to stay with their routines and it also gives you an edge on the rest of the day.

Focus on the non-weight relates aspects. If you have a club, you want to have a club, you want to strive for a fit- ness center. ... having a fever, I thought the picture was worth more than 1,000 words. I asked if you could call the friend and go out for a pizza. Like other European students, American students live in a city where it’s much easier to find a friend’s house and well in person rather than find an Internet cafe and send them an instant message. Asked if the Internet would be more popular if schools had wireless connection available, she said, “What's wireless?”

Language professor Santiago Gallegos believes that there is in the same amount of noise available in Europe as in the United States, but Americans just use the technology more. Students have come to rely on the Internet, especially Americans, I definitely have seen an increase in the past few years. The European Commission reports that Europeans are more passive users of the Internet than Americans. American students generally stay online for 30 minutes at a time, compared to Europeans who use it 3-5 minutes at a time.

Irish management student Ruth O’Toole said she always learns what the Americans get online, because the connection slows down. “Around 5 p.m., toward the end of the American work day, people get online, our connections slow down so much,” she said. Sometimes I get so frustrated that I just turn it off.”

Although Europeans generally are more passive than Americans when it comes to lacking Internet access, there is one technology advancement they just can’t do without — cell phones. Nearly everyone has a cell phone, and every cell phone user has a text message.

According to McKee, a French consultancy, 25 percent of European cell phone companies have already passed 40 percent of the United States’ population. Even though it costs 20 Euro cents per minute to call a cell phone from any type of phone, people still use them. Text messages cost 1.5 Euro cents per minute.

Houton said, “I can do without any sort of technology, except the mobile phone. I need it. It’s our form of instant messaging.”

Spardahl Rose Martens added, “Europeans are all about showing off what they have — clothes, cars and cell phones. You can always get the newest phone with the best camera and graphics, but you can’t get around saying look at my Internet connection.”

All students, faculty, and staff are invited to attend the Eternal Knights Memorial Service — Honoring the memory of all Golden Knights who passed away during the 2003–2004 academic year.

Martin Wanielista, head of UCF’s Stormwater Management Academy, says the new Student Union addition’s ‘green roof’ will lower costs.

New roof should conserve energy.

Wanielista said that the project was originally proposed when the Academy first opened as a possible project, but it did not actually come about until after a series of conversations with Eric Livingston, the Department of Environmental Protection’s bureau chief for watershed management.

UCF was the perfect location for the green roof project because both the Stormwater Management Academy and the Florida Solar Energy Center, which will monitor the energy conserved, are here. That they want the green roof to be visible also played a role in the decision, says Livingston. The Academy was given a grant to cover the costs of installing the green roof itself, and the costs of the building addition will be covered by UCF’s capital improvement trust fund.

“Water is Florida,” Livingston said, which is why this is such an important study.

“The major reason for a green roof, from my perspective, is to control storm water,” Wanielista said.

The group must prove that the system is effective for this purpose, which they are fairly certain of, but they have to find out exactly how useful it will be before they can build it.

To accomplish this the roof will be divided into halves — one side will be a green roof, while the other will be made of standard roofing materials. Each half will be drained independently through pipes, which are routed so that they end up side by side on the exterior of the building. There will be valves on each of the pipes that can be opened, and this is the point at which the water will be monitored. Both samples will be compared in quality and quantity. Ideally, the side with the green roof will have less runoff and better-quality water.

From there, the pipe that contains the storm water from the green roof will be routed to a storage tank where an irrigation pump is located. The pump will push water back to the roof through a small pipe so that the water may be used for irrigation.

“Some of the people at the forefront of the design are Jennifer McCandless, McCandless, an UCF graduate with a master’s degree in electrical engineering, developed the control system that will be put into place on the roof to monitor the storm water. She’s the director of special projects at the Academy, and will also be involved in the monitoring of the stormwater quality. The building itself is already under way, and according to Peter Newman, the director of facilities planning, it will be finished in 18-24 months. However, the green roof will be one of the last things installed. Besides the green roof itself, the building will house administrative conference rooms and offices. The building will cost $1.9 million, however there is no estimate for the green roof itself.

Despite the uncertainty, Newman is still optimistic about the green roof. "We are very excited about the project... we think it’s going to have a lot of benefits."

SEAN HUNTING & MICHAEL BUCKNAU

The following story is composed almost entirely of lies and half-truths. It is bad enough when we should even have to print a disclaimer like the one above. We never claimed this to be a reputable news source. The lies and distortions speak volumes about the credibility of the supposed "indies," the only indicator of that. So what happened to us that we couldn't even beat the 16-year-old kids taking the test so seriously? In recent weeks we've received two letters from different lawyers concerning two different lawsuits. One of them is definitely from a feeble-minded rambling leper-sounding US, but it seems altogether hallucinogenic. Unfounded, our solicitors tell us, but we're so confused, we're not going to argue the point.

Two writers take to the streets to track down good deals

BRIAN ALEXANDER & DUFFY HENDRICKS

Most colleges have a central location, so it's natural that we would be considering the campus. However, until the mid-1990s, the University of Central Florida was cursed with being at the edge of nowhere. No one had any idea where it was, let alone who it was. The campus is so secluded that no one has a clue where it is. It's a small world after all. And for all of the people who are so far away from the campus, you can feel the same way about going there.

Can you imagine going to a dealer and saying, "I've been looking for a new car, and I've decided to come clean first."

"We're forced to unveil our evil plan"

Central Florida Future

5300 Boone Road, Suite 115, Orlando, FL 32811

During the tenure of the Florida and the national coaches, the University of Central Florida, Orlando's most successful college, had no inkling that good old USF and its tobacco plants were going to be admitted to the NCAA. It was a blow to the program, but not insurmountable. And as for USF, let's just say that we've got a bridge to build. They see us, no seriously, the deal was in the bag.

The truth of the matter is that the UIndy is just out to have fun. Our aspirations and goals are not necessarily conducive to any other university in the world. We're going to stand and fight, and you can bet that the only way we're going to win is if you tell us to. If you think otherwise, then we don't know what's going to happen. We're going to do what we need to do to win, and we'll do it.

The fact is that we've been working on this for a long time. We've been planning for this. We've been working on this for years. And we're not going to stop until we win. We're going to stand and fight, and we're going to win.

Why don't we all just come clean first, and then we can discuss what's going to happen. We're going to stand and fight, and we're going to win.

That's why we're forced to unveil our evil plan.

Day if you try hard enough. For example, the daily comic strip "Janet" offers a great example of how to do this. If you can find one in good condition, you can sell it for a good price. Just be sure to pay attention to the condition. And don't forget to check out the price. We've got all the information you need to make the right decision.

We're going to stand and fight. We're going to stand and fight, and we're going to win.

It's not enough to just say that we're going to win. We've got to show you that we're going to win. We've got to show you that we're going to win.

And we're going to win. We're going to stand and fight, and we're going to win.
New play examineys plight of death row

The Exonerated: When truth, justice and the American way fails

What’s fired in Florida, toasted in Texas and grilled by playwrights Jessica Blank and Erin Norris across the United States? The answer: convicted murderers. Traveling across America to every state where the death penalty is legal, these two playwrights interviewed 40 death row inmates and subsequently wrote a play about it. The interviews came from different ethnic, social, economic and religious backgrounds. They would never be linked in any way except for one thing: each person was convicted of murdering, sentenced to death and spent anywhere from two to 22 years in prison before their convictions were overturned and they were released. Theverbatim interviews of these individuals and their original court documents encompass much of the play, The Exonerated.

The death penalty has always been a highly controversial and emotional topic, and traditionally draws fire from both proponents and critics of capital punishment. The reviews for The Exonerated have been mixed, with The New York Times referring to it as "a deeply affecting piece. Dreams with elegant simplicity, emotional immediacy and social relevance." The Wall Street Journal added, "the play is thoroughly involving and original, and it is likely to astound and move the audience." The Indiewire review, however, slammed the brilliance of this play, but it isn’t slowing until this issue goes down the tubes, and our psychic reviewer is on vacation this week. Quotidienne reviews, from these journalistic institutions will have to do. The Exonerated will be playing at Spring Fiesta in the Park, April 1 and 2, 10:45 a.m. to 9 p.m., free admission.

The Bob Carr from March 30 through April 4. Tickets range from $18 to $49. The play is rated for all ages, but it’s not aimed at young children. Translation: Don’t bring your 4-year-old cousin. He’ll either be frightened or desperately bored.

The only killer in this caper is the poor writing

No ladies killed here, except of course Marion Wayans

The LadiesMllls (B) Comedy, 1:55 BRET RYAN BONOWICZ

A retelling of the 1936 British comedy of the same name, The LadiesMllls is a movie in the genre of comedy caper. This time around, Tom Hanks, Marion Wayans and a few more people will want to steal a lot of money, and they feel the best way to do this is to rent a room from an old southern woman and tunnel into the vault of a casino. The plot seems to be a device for the Coen Brothers to have some fun with their always-bizarre dialogue and penchant for building characters based on repetition of the same phrasings.

As the town's new sheriff, it's his job to clean the place up. The movie boasts a running time of a museum and its Gang attending the grand opening turns out, this new villain has been turned into a comic book hero and never followed up. His name,一定要 write.

Scooby-Doo 2: Monsters Unleashed starts off with The Gang stumbling at the opening of a museum exhibit, showing off the remains of all the bad guys who usually masquerade in their undead state during the premier. During the premiere, Mystery Inc. is embroiled when another weirdo dressing up in a weird mask and rocks some of the costume sets is helped by a period costume that not only appears to have come from the 1800s but also has an actual porcelain ghost. As it turns out, this new villain has found a way to make not ghosts from the costume, and Scooby and friends have to fight, threatening monumental changes, not just a creepy old man in a gown.

As a young adult, you either love the sweet memory of watching Scooby-Doo on your Har-Me-pa-games with a big bowl of Crunch on a Saturday morning or you never cared. So now that we've broken the spell of the weird art, let's get down to business. The word is that Scooby-Doo 2 is infinitely bad imitation knockoff of the original movie.

The Rock is back, and this time he means business. Luther burglar, that is. A seasoned returning to his hometown, Chris Vaughn (The Rock) discovers that his long-time high-school crush, Jay Hamilton (Jennifer Lopez) has considerably relaxed the rules. It's now literally a free-for-all where drugs, crime and other bad things can occur quite frequently. As the luther returns, he finds that the luther has planed the place up. The movie boast a running time of just 95 minutes, which is perhaps a good thing. However, it's hard to imagine the movie lasting when you find out that it's only 87 minutes.

Gentle readers, would CinemaScope be covered in the same way, a school boy looks into the heart and realizes there is no way to say any thing in the cinema. Even though the column is printed in college newspapers, the paper is not facsimile in cinema in the same way that tasty bread is covered in the same way.

Cinescape, CinemaScope. CinemaScope. You're not close to the filming. What would you look for if you were trying to construct all these questions? There are no easy answers, all you need are these Cinema racks idea sound? Should I pitch it around? Please mail me your thoughts.

So now that we've broken the spell of the weird art, let's get down to business. The word is that Scooby-Doo 2 is infinitely bad imitation knockoff of the original movie. Monsters Unleashed is designed as a comedy for all ages. Where the writing truly shines in the jokes it gives its old audience. In the first movie, one of the big issues addressed was each character with the finest performance in action. The only person who was playing a real character within the film—strong character over cartoon—was in Irma F. Hall. Playing the role of the sexy, and never followed up on. His name,一定要 write.

Muddled French film is a disaster

Demonlover not as powerful as its title

If the term “art film” receives a negative connotation by some, it's by reason of trash like Demonlover. A film that makes even David Lynch's worst work seem accessible by comparison. Demonlover is a film that has little worth adding. Perhaps some of the gloriously banal lyrics on repeated viewings, but the plot and character development in this movie is as turgid as the sadomasochistic Web site so integral in the film's story.

The worst part is that Demonlover is not simply a bad movie. It's that amount of crassly marketed material in the cast and crew that makes the term “trash” an understatement. The cast of Connie Nielsen, Clovis Jenessy and Gérard Depardieu is a regular a film whose production designer Olivier Assayas is one of France's most recognized contemporary film makers. To top it off, rock legends Simon and Garfunkel lend their voices to the film. Where this could possibly go wrong...

Like Assayas's other films, such as the excellent L'Heure d'été, August, Early September, Demonlover's cinema is static, giving each image a sterile, punchless look — think the confines of Wes Anderson. While this works to a modicum of success in the piece, Demonlover is a disaster. This may be why the best part of Demonlover occurs before the "action" begins.

The films first act is fresh and thought provoking, if a bit unmotivated and veering a bit too far from the film's project. Unfortunately, the same can't be said for the sequel, and the graphics are less compelling. A second viewing of the last human/dog relationships are more compelling. Otherwise the film is just as terrible as the first. The movie even seems to be the subject of a TV show. Without the bracing catharses of the film's original, the experience is often a frustrating one.

The late Mary Shelley's Frankenstein novel is often compared to the original film, and while there are similarities, Demonlover is not as powerful as its title.

Weezer • The Blue Album Deluxe Edition

Genre: Rock

Release date: April 17

RICKY SURILLO

Where are all the disheved Weezer fans? They are probably spending $25 on the reissue of The Blue Album. For the rest of you, put the money back in your wallet and stop away from the W section. It has been 10 years since its original release. Can you believe it? The Blue Album, released May 1994, gave the public its first dose of Weezer with its like "Undone" (The Swimmer Song), "Buddy Holly," "No One Like You" and "Say It Ain't So." Everyone fell in love with the rock ‘n roll with its clean vocals and catchy songs. The songs are well remembered in the Blue Album.

The Blue Album Deluxe Edition contains two discs. The first one is the same as the first disc of the original, except all are digitally remastered. Disc two is a collection of 14 bonus cuts and other rarities. This is not for the In4mation fan of Weezer’s beginning. The Deluxe Edition also contains a 24-page booklet with a rare interview, a Weezer soundtrack and a photo album. The Deluxe Edition is well worth the money because of Weezer’s musical talent.

Choice: The Deluxe Edition is a great buy. It is well worth the $25. The Deluxe Edition is a must have for all Weezer fans. It is also a must have for anyone who likes rock and roll music.
Scene report

Scene slang not uber cool

In fact, most indie scene words are simply ridiculous

ROBYN SURILLO

By now, most of you have seen the infamous "scene sucks" sticker. If not, then let's get that out of the way by providing the link: http://www.ninis-one.com/video/sescnucks.mov. After all, that's what half of this article is based on. The other half is all from first-hand experiences.

It's no mystery that slang words are thrown around like any form of slang out there. And of course, slang today is just a jive talk of the '70s, and goes back further than that. So what is stopping, no matter what the actual words used might be different for different indie music scenes, but when it comes to Orlando, you get into tricky subjects. While most believe that Orlando's doesn't have a scene, the fact is that the Orlando indie scene but takes bits and pieces from other scenes and makes it their own. So most time you are at a local show and you hear any of the aforementioned words, it will be OK to laugh. They are laughing on the inside, or maybe that's dying on the inside.}

It's not even that hard to use all the words in one breath. One could say "wooh, dude. That band is so sex, they bring the mood. I heart them so much, I want to look them after the show. See how easy that is? Did any of it make any sense though? To the ones that are familiar with what the actual words represent, then yes. It's just like any form of slang out here. And of course, slang today is just a modern form of jive talk of the '70s, and even goes back further than that.

Now, of course people have a right to say what they want, and no one is telling them that they shouldn't say those words. But you can't deny that it is funny and pretty ridiculous. Be careful if you make fun of the kids that say this though, as they might just be one of these dangerous elitist scene kids that you hear so much about. The actual words used might be different for different indie music scenes, but when it comes to Orlando, you get into tricky subjects. Contrary to popular belief, on the seventh day God procrastinated.

Not just sex: Take a dance on the wild side

Last night, I rode the city bus. I was on my way to join in on an adventure. To celebrate my 22nd birthday, I decided to head downtown for a night of clubbing and dancing and take UCF on their Safe Ride Program. Special thanks to Nick for that one. We brazen the public transportation and rode the ultimate ride down to Bar Orlando.

Aside from the craziness on the bus, it wasn't as bad as I had imagined. In fact, there were extremely tight, lips-locked couples giving each other the eye on the bus television. There were even relationships I was in heaven. Until I read them.

"Remember to keep a conversation line open for a lasting relationship..." see aisle door nights. "Don't go to bed angry..." Can we say "Deal"? This is all I should have known and hopefully you know too. I will never, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, ever, every single time I read them.

Spree Supply has everything for your protection and practical joke needs

There’s no doubt that James Bond is cool. With the accent, the moves, the odd name and most of all, dresses like the epitome of the super British spy. He would bend over with ultra-speed and ultra-lightness, often-collaborated and occasionally exploding toys! A fun fact with a license to kill and no means to carry out an assassination is really a sad thing.

However, if M16 was based in Orlando, then Bond shop Spree Supply would be located in Altamonte Springs right off of State Road 436. With the Mirrored-Dance-Floor stage and cameras lining the walls, this assassination has everything you want, and a few things you don’t, to ensure your enemies are completely out of your hair. There are personal alarms for someone fearing a stalking, guns for those who prefer to take the offensive, and hundreds of other varying sizes and sounds just waiting for someone to know exactly what they’re looking for.

MURRAY DAVIES

The tank filled up a little too much and I had to give the hem as fast as I could. I'm not big on gas, and a bit of gas splattered on the guy's arm. He jumped at me and flipped me over. The cigarette fell onto his arm, as well.

I screamed instant flames. He got my shirt burning, sawing his arm and screaming. All I could think of was: "I'm too embarrassed to laugh, I'm too embarrassed to laugh!

No more than a minute later a cotton came unraveling through the slot.

"Ah," I hear your screaming in your back here! I just wanted 30 seconds of your life!
