Campus activism heating up

Moore, Scarborough and a long protest on agenda

CHRISTINE DELETT AND CHRIS CORNELL

The presidential election is five weeks away, but starting this week students can expect a political-relay race similar to a 30-day protest trying to win UCF voters’ views.

Liberal author and filmmaker Michael Moore and conservative MSNBC commentator Sean Hannity are scheduled to speak on campus within a week of each other, while the student group Campus Peace Action plans to launch its 30-day protest on Monday against the war.

Students may soon be able to cast ballots, too. Moore said he will appear at UCF on Oct. 8 as part of his “Supreme Court of the People” tour, and Hannity will appear the day before on another campaign stop.

Two years ago, SGA distributed $200 million to bring Moore to campus, but Moore取消了 the cancelled Oct. 2, 2002 appearance after the death of his mother,. Moore's mother is in. He also said there was a mix-up involving his booking agent, that he had nothing to do with it, and that he was not going to accept any money to speak to students in the first place.

"One kind of mess that he made it up to us," said Matt DeVogler, a member of Campus Peace Action and Progressive Council, the two groups who organized the initial invitation. "Moore's appearance is coinciding with the event that we're doing called "Take City."" DeVogler added, "It's going to hopefully bring more impact to that event.

Closed colleges

Due to Hurricane Jeanne, classes were canceled yesterday in nearly two-thirds of Florida's school districts.

Notable cancellations — UCF students living in Orlando's Rialto, Lake Nona and Valencia campuses; University of South Florida's St. Petersburg and Sarasota-Manasota campuses; Stetson University — were also closed.

In addition, 14 community colleges were closed, including Indian River State College, Brevard County Community College, Daytona Beach Community College and Palm Beach Atlantic University.

"Our purpose is to have students return to school, but in the meantime we're taking care of the immediate evacuation needs," said Mark Creswell, president of the Florida Association of Community Colleges.

The campus and most buildings remained open, though a few students were studying and friends and family were recovering from the storm.

Several candidates, such as Christine Nguyen, a political science sophomore running for Arts and Sciences Student Senate, 2003.

SGA Senate elections, originally scheduled to take place this week, have been bumped to a three-day period starting next Monday — a casualty of Hurricane Jeanne, which caused a massive outpouring of aid for victims of the storm.

"The unexpected extension gives candidates an extra two days to file their applications thanks to disruptions caused by Hurricane Frances, extra time to campaign," said Sanchez. "Students can cast their votes Monday through Oct. 5, via the MyUCF portal, available at semcoelections.org or at the SGA tent that will be set up in front of Student Union.

Before securing their spot on the ballot, SGA Senate hopefuls had to collect 10 signatures from students in their college.

This eligibility requirement set by the Student Government Association is believed to be a candidate’s commitment and willingness to run, Election Supervisor Brett Frazier said.

"It's to let students know and to let them know that you are representing your college," he added.

Both candidates had additional purposes: It helps themselves get their name out there and perhaps set themselves apart.

clinal campaigning began last week. "It's not really campaigning, but it's a way to try it," Perez said.

Signatures were due Sept. 17 after SGA extended the deadline two days to make accommodations for students who were away from campus helping friends and family recover from the hurricanes.

More than 100 students declined candidacy for the 32 seats in the SGA Senate.

Most candidates got their signatures by asking students in their classes, outside their college buildings and in the Student Union.

THE UCF HONOR SOCIETY OF PHI KAPPA PHI

What does Phi Kappa Phi represent?

- Prestige. Phi Kappa Phi is the nation's oldest, largest, and most selective all-discipline honor society.
- High Standards. Only the top 10% of seniors and 5% of juniors, having completed at least 72 semester hours, are eligible for membership. Graduate students in the upper 10% also qualify, as do faculty, professional staff, and alumni who have achieved scholarly distinction.
- Awards. Phi Kappa Phi awards more than $500,000 annually to outstanding members and chapters. No other honor society awards as much.

There are many reasons to join Phi Kappa Phi. The best, however, is this: You've worked hard. You've earned it.

Ten City' to oppose war

Shannon explained that although Moore's appearance is the same as that of the candidate's, he can't say if Moore will be endorsing any efforts.

"It's going to be a polarized event," Shannon said. "UCF has a large body of thinking, active students willing to listen to them."

Moore's speech is expected to bring the non-voting Base to the non-voting Bush, called "It's for the students who have jobs during the daytime," he said. "Issues that affect them may not affect the rank and file of the student body, but let's bring some of those issues to the student government.

He lists the lack of day care, the long waiting list for day care and the poor use of off-campus locations as issues he will address if elected. He also says he'll work with Health and Public Affairs Seat 7 and a double major in legal studies and political science, wants to tackle high health care costs, "UCF is in the top three colleges in the state for health care costs," he said. He also plans to represent the theater department, which he says lacks exposure. "I want equal representation amongst every major in the college," he said. "I want to see what we can do to do it all together."

"I want to see students and faculty and other people like Michael Moore," he said. "I want to see students and faculty and administrators bring Joe Scarborough to UCF." Moore also plans to represent the theater department, which he says lacks exposure. "I want to see what we can do to do it all together."

Still, at least four UCF Police officers would be on guard during Moore's speech.

On Oct. 4, UCF's College Republican will bring Scarborough to UCF's Amphitheater at 6:30 p.m. Scarborough is an outspoken supporter of the Republican Party and a former Florida congressman. He hosts Scarborough County, a nightly news program on the cable network MSNBC.

The event is free and open to the public. Scarborough will be endorsed by a local chapter of the Republican Jewish Coalition. Moore, who has a large body of thinking students willing to listen to him, said. "I don't see a lot of gimmicks to interest you in that."
Political tickets are now legal

Arguments are already following national example

HEIDI A. DE WEESE
Special to the Daily

Running mates and ticket pools are legal during UCF elections for the first time.

Students are taking advantage of the added exposure a widely distributed ticket can offer, with some names popping up on more than one list of candidates.

Three large "parties" have formed so far: United Student Alliance, United UCF and The Golden Ticket. There are several smaller ticket pools floating around, but most students have a pretty good friend running with their friends.

But these three are almost parties, in the sense that they have declared values.

Another main difference between party tickets and smaller tickets is the number of people on them. All three of the party tickets have attempted to fill each of the 58 available seats.

The tickets have become generally known as representatives of various on-campus interest groups and clubs. The United Student Alliance is easily defined as the multi-cultural ticket. United UCF is the broad, all-encompassing ticket and the Golden Ticket is composed of Greek and engineering oriented students.

These distinctions may be tenuous, though. Aubrey Rea, who is running on the Golden Ticket, said, "Yes, we're endorsed by the Interfraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council, but our ticket includes students who are not Greek, too."

Rea, also another member of the Golden Ticket, said the list is more representative of the pre-professional and recreational clubs on campus. "We're trying to remember that while there's time for fun, our priority should be on what makes a university probable."

United UCF is attempting to represent every club and organization on campus. We're already the campus leaders in our respective clubs," Sean Levits, The United Student Alliance's campaign coordinator, said. "We have the most number of clubs and organizations represented on our ticket - 20 clubs and 56 ferns, or something that is very seldom a severe tension between members of the ticket making tickets."

Fierer received complaints on the particulars of choosing names last week, with members of the United Student Alliance questioning the similarity of the ticket named United UCF. "They were trying to say that the one name was too similar to the other, and it is a misrepresentation of the ticket," Fierer said. "But to me, the united part may be similar but the UCF and the student alliance parts are different enough that no one is going to confuse the two."

Rea has also accused United UCF of copying platforms. "I wrote all these last semester for the United UCF (presidential campaign)," he said. Rea is actually on the list of United UCF members as the Engineering/Computer Science Seat 1 Trio according to campaign materials. "I would not be a misrepresentation if someone was on a ticket they didn't want to be a part of," Fierer said. "I've seen a lot of candidates that are more on one ticket, it's a gray area."

The problem with tickets and club parties is that they run as separate entities. In an "all-inclusive" system, all campaign materials designed separately, for example, few pressed tickets would get a signature.

Due to the delay of vote online, candidates will have all of this week to campaign for themselves as well as their respective ticket.

"I felt kind of silly going around asking, 'Dose you, you are in the College of Edu­cation, Communicative, Education Seat 1 candidates."

However awkward, canvassing students for signa­tures becomes candidates, some anonymous hopeful said. "(Plains) people pass the sheet around and no one really looks at it, I introduce myself, especially if (can­didate) see the next time in class and know what I'm doing, it helps get my name out," said Aileen Souza, candi­date for Arts and Sciences Seat 1.

"If does help if you do it the right way," said Sean and Fierer included. "There are several people that are on more than one ticket, it's a gray area, but since attending college has become less active.

Aspirin and continued pulling to the outside of the knee with every flexion and extension.

The relationship of the femur (kneecap and thigh bone) joint (thigh bone) to the tibia (leg bone) is sore.

"I introduce myself, especially if I introduce myself, especially if someone's self," said Aubrey Rea, candidate for Engineering and Com­puter Science Seat 1, gathered most of the many signa­tures at various tables in the engineering atrium.

"A lot of people asked questions," Hunter said. "It's good to see people interested."

Sophia Blak, candidate for Arts and Sciences Seat 1 added: "Some people I asked were reluctant and asked me my name before, and then let them know about this campaign."

To inform students about their platform, Blak handed out small fliers to the people on campus.

All students not named candidates asked students, "What do you want to do?" Some required signatures. Some recruited from specific groups that had many students from one college, like Engineering.

Cherie Winters, candidate for Health and Public Affairs, said that the similarity of her signature from one organization to another, was allowed her to speak in class about the candidates.

Elections will be held from Oct. 6 to Oct. 10. Students can vote online at the SGA tent or at the SGA tent in front of the Student Union.

"I think this is going to be a big thing for people interested."

"I think outside the four perpendicular sides on a geometrically squar­ed base."

"We're not asking for anything more than people's help."

I'm asking for your money back."

"This is a good question about a very common prob­lem. I have been coming to see if that makes a univer­sity probable."
In the face of unprecedented weather storms, Hurricane Katrina battered central Florida. Since the beginning of the school year, UCF has faced a series of student class cancellations and delays. The university is currently preparing for examinations and facility-specific issues. While much of central Florida was left devastated, UCF, powered by its emergency preparedness systems and many of the buildings throughout the whole showcases of communities of three storms. While drivers throughout Orange County were faced with the widely reported unseasonable attacks of an unprecedented threat, students and faculty members were left in a timely manner, so plans for some examinations on December 20 may need adjustments.

Alternately, if extra days were added to the beginning of the semester, this decision would be a bit more complex. Students who feel they need extra time to complete the examinations and keep up with the curriculum for every class by the current final examination deadlines. As the final voice leader of the school, the president needs to extend the school year, so students can get the best education they paid for. It's his responsibility, and not supposed to be the equivalent of the official examination dates by raising students' awareness that gives us something to get excited about. So you can start off with 75% of all students who don't have health care insurance the highest percentage in any age group, the current administration has allowed a total of 13,000 people to drop those taking office. These statistics are simply unacceptable.

If the youth are supposed to be the hope and future of our nation, then why is our leader not encouraging us to be free in a society with affordable health care, safety and quality employment? I understand that everyone has his or her own opinion about who should be the next president, but young people should all demand that our voices are heard. As college students, we need to elect a leader who will see that we can get a job, after graduation, that is enough to make sure our voices are counted. Get involved with the Young Voter Alliance or other youth political organizations. Instead of fretting about our age, let's take a look at CNN.

Nothing more than the idea of having people who are involved in the Young Voter Alliance or tell us you wouldn't fight back if you were rational a third of the water per day to the discussed beach and government because of your military

Also noted was how well socialist is let us know how you feel about the government and its programs. One study was interesting to be sincere, the truth of the matter is that the economy in Europe is actually working better than ours. According to the annual European Commission report, European job growth is down.

And by suggesting that we return society to the form intended by the letter of the constitution, you are also suggesting we should redouble voting rights from anyone who happens to be poor, homeless, female, black, Hispanic, gay or lesbian.

Finally, don't kid yourself. We are not winning the war on terror. Osama Bin Laden had hoped for a lot of things on Sept. 11, but one among them was a vicious American retaliation against the Muslims. He sincerely got his wish. American bombs blowing up hospitals and mosques in Baghdad made little sense to an Qaida propagandist, and recruitment to way up.

"Terrorism is a tool. The war on terror starts at home." — BUSH SHALI

The revised American dream

I am responding to the article "Terrorism is tangible." Reader Views, Sept. 25.] The capture of Saddam Hussein and some of the al-Qaeda leaders is definitely not a sign of winning the war on terror.

It may appear good on the surface, but there have actually gotten much worse. Mr. Valencic, do you really believe that this will end terrorism? Do you really think terrorists will just give up that easy?

I think they will actually multiply and spread (and they already have in more than 16 countries). To me, this expression of chagrin, more than 1,000 casualties, 120,000 wounded soldiers, thousands of innocent civilians and up to $3 trillion, this was clearly a move more than a win. Do the math.

The other thing is that the invasion and so-called "destabilization" of a single country will not solve the fight against the drug-ridden regime of Saddam Hussein, it is strengthened.

Terrorism and Iraq are two distinct issues. The one is the battle, the other is the administration's poorly planned attempt to win.

Show me hard evidence that there was a connection between the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, and Saddam Hussein. To date, proponents of the Iraq war have failed to provide any.

They also have been unable to find the weapons of mass destruction that were supposedly in Iraq (and that were cause to invade Iraq and nobody really talked about). Last but not least, the evidence suggesting that anyone else conspire to "terrorize" is very weak — to be sure, Iraq is a breeding home for terrorists but they are actually looking for more recruits to their cause.

About your comment on socialists, I am not sure how much you know about the system in Europe, and I have lived there for more than 16 years — and in the US for more than nine years.

When I came here in 1994 I could not see why the world (including myself) entered the American dream. Since 2000 and under the current administration, I can assure you that I would rather live on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean.

Socialism is not much worse than corrupt capitalism enraged by greedy, misleading corporate and political leaders. You vary, "we live in a country where anyone can aspire to greatness without the help of the government." I say that we live in a country where anyone can aspire to greatness without the help of money, greed, self-interest maximization and corporate interests.

Undue closing

On Monday, UCF was closed due to the potential lingering effects of Hurricane Season.

The decision to close down the campus was based on the recommendation of the UCF police. The university is taking the necessary steps to ensure the safety and security of all members of the campus community.

In addition, the university is working closely with local and state authorities to monitor the situation and provide updates as needed.

League play set to begin

Matt Dunaway

With eight of the 14 schools in action last weekend, and only two out-of-conference games, the MAC entered the weekend ready to forget about a long season (with) home with tough starts and move into the future.

For every piece of good news this season there have been some equally bad news to go along with it.

The good news is Toledo (2-2, 1-0 MAC) needs to back on track, winning its second straight game and picking up the conference's first win against a Division I-A school other than a school already in the MAC, MacRoman Temple 42-17.

Akon knocks off Golden Flashes

However, the conference was decided a few weeks ago as the visiting Kent State Golden Flashes got the best of the Summit League.

It was a rocky start for the Summit for the Akron Golden Flashes as they lost to the Bowling Green Falcons in the last week of the season.

Despite the loss, the Summit League is still a force to be reckoned with in the MAC.

Akon is looking to make a statement in the Summit League as they continue to build on their success.

For more information on Akron and the Summit League, check out their official website at summitleague.org.

TALLAHASSEE — Three decades after his father coached Florida State, coach Bobby Bowden will make his first start for the Seminoles this season on Saturday at North Carolina on Saturday.

The legendary coach who more replaces Chris Rix, who suffered from a shoulder injury in Saturday’s 42-22 victory, will start in the first quarter with Floridian Scott MacNabb.

"He could have gone in and stuck around," coach Bobby Bowden said Monday. "It’s not like he was in with a 30-point lead. He went in in the first quarter."

Bowden said Rix will be out at least two weeks.

True freshman Drew Weatherford of Tampa will move up to the No. 1 offense and lose his redshirt season.

Bowden said Weatherford quarterback "limitation was the neck, that ability ability to throw the ball.

South Florida will complete the season with a No. 11 rank against the University of Connecticut.
