With millions of men and women suffering from eating disorders each year, a dozen students told us why they love the way they look.

One woman's story finds happiness with body after struggle

Body Smart Week brings awareness

As an effort to bring awareness to a growing problem concerning college students, the UCF Fitness Center teamed up with the National Eating Disorders Association to host an all-day workshop to provide students with a sexual look at the dangerous consequences of eating disorders.

Body Smart Week, which looks into the world of food, will feature a variety of workshops, speakers and a dinner that will address the attitudes and behaviors that contribute to body dissatisfaction and eating disorders, the events planner and students say.

UCF also offers a wide-range of services, including a psychologist, nutritionist and counselors for students who want to discuss eating disorders or make changes toward healthy eating habits.

Her morbidly period by age 13. Francois is just one example among many students who struggle with eating disorders.

B ecause Francois stopped eating. At age 13, she was already fat. of the disease. She had learned that she was "slimmer than the rest of the women in her family," and that wasn't a good thing.

By age 18, Francois had become a diet, her own little world. She had created an all-vegetable diet, an all-fat diet and a liquid diet in order to lose weight. And her friends and family did not make things easier for her. For instance, "They would tell me 'you're eating too much, you might put on another 30 pounds," Francois said.

She discovered if she stopped eating, she would lose weight. Francois was happy. For whatever reason, she started gaining more weight when she started eating. And her mother, aware of her daughter's eating habits, "forced" her to eat until the finally got over it.

The REAL student body

Meet the real student body

In advance of Body Smart Week, the event's organizers interviewed several students about their impressions of their bodies. Here is what they had to say:

"I love my eyes, and my boyfriend loves me exactly the way I am, and I think that really helps." — SEAN DALY, 19, IN JUNIOR IN PSYCHOLOGY

"I love my body because as a Christian, I know that God created me for a purpose." — ELLEN ROBBINS, 18, IN JUNIOR IN PSYCHOLOGY MANAGEMENT

Spike Lee makes a good point

The filmmaker speaks on racism and careers

MONICA PANAVOS
Senior Staff Writer

When filmmaker Spike Lee walked into the Student Union Ballroom Thursday night, more than a thousand fans stood and screamed until he stepped out of the room.

Debuting a pair of leopard-skin glasses and an unsmiling blue sweater and black pants, Lee walked out and looked Paula, the overweight, "Black American Idol tonight? You will all have to wait." he said.

As the event, "An Evening with Spike Lee: America Through My Lens," the black filmmaker, renowned for his powerful movies with themes of men and urban living, addressed segregation, the importance of choosing a career you love and what it means to be Black.

He spoke in part of the Connecting the Community Initiative on Brown's campus, including the theme of love and what it means to be Black.

The event was sponsored by the Student Union, the Student Government Association, the Department of Student Life and the University Library.

President & ADAM NASEEM LINDSAY

Growing competition, this year's Student Government Association presidential candidates each took their case of campus growth.

Winward Truitt, believe UCF's rapid growth puts an inordinate strain on the university's resources. "There are thousands of students without adequate resources," Talakala claimed.

Classroom space is one area that Talakala feels is lacking. Truitt and Talakala agree that class sizes are too large at UCF, especially in some of the general education classes, such as Composition I.

In addition to feeling up resources, Talakala believes a cap would enrich the student body.

Candidate and current Student Body Vice President Willie Bentley Jr. disagrees. "For the type of university we do have, the size is growing on pat," he said. While Bentley agreed an excellence cap might be leaveworthy, he said. While Bentley agreed an excellence cap might be unwieldy, he said. John Kerry is contributing $3 million to the National Campaigns Coalition to support efforts by the next chairmen Howard Dean, in building the organizational support for the party at the state level.

Kerry said Democrats need to have strong organizations at the state, local and precinct levels. Republicans were very effective at grassroots organizing in the last election.

Lee: You have the power to stop racism

For 40 years, "Black, Lee has felt pressured to do well, have to change landmark case which made segregation in schools illegal. He encouraged students to take a stand against racism in schools. "It is up to the young people to turn this around. You have the power," he said. "You have to change." When he attended film school at New York University, he felt pressured to do well, since he was one of two black students. He was told, "Black people just don't make films." But he pursued it anyway. "I'm Black," Lee felt. "I have the power to stop racism.

Lee signed books after his talk. About a thousand people came to hear him. Patricia Crepeau, Larry Spencer, Jackson Hole and Tianna Smirnoff bought a special edition of the movie in the holy city of Mecca. When he is doing what he loves, Lee has encountered many counterparts."I'm Black," Lee felt. "I have the power to stop racism.

It wasn't pretty but it wasn't ugly either.
UCF's 9-4 victory over Bethune-Cookman College at Jay Bergman Field on Tuesday night will not win an Academy Award for "Most Beautiful Victory," but at 3-0 on the year, the Knights will take it.

Sophomore newcomer Courtney Probst provided the spark for the Knights in the leadoff spot. The Seminole Community College transfer showed that he could fill the cavernous shoes of graduated leadoff specialist David Mann, going three for five with two doubles, a single, two RBIs and a pair of runs scored against the Wildcats.

"Courtney's that type of hitter," UCF Coach Jay Bergman said of his leadoff man. "He's had a little trouble getting adjusted to everything and didn't play in the first game, but the last two games, he's been batting three and going offensively, and he's a good, solid defensive center fielder.

Sophomore shortstop Matt Ray, who pitched three scoreless, three-hit innings featuring two RBIs. Junior catcher Drew Best went two for four with an RBI double.

"He's a big reason why we won," UCF Coach Jay Bergman said of his leadoff man.

"We lost that championship game in our conference tournament really makes a difference," UCF Coach Kevin Lusse-Copp said. "They've got their last chance.

USC's chop to become Titans offensive coordinator

SOUTH Bend, Ind. - Colin Chow, who worked as an assistant offensive coordinator at Connecticut, was named the University of Tennessee's offensive coordinator on Wednesday. Chow, 58, joined the Volunteers' coaching staff last month.

"This is an exciting opportunity to get into the highest level of football," Chow told the Los Angeles Times. "But my family is very sad to leave USC because it's been such a great experience.

"The Volunteers have a very strong tradition on offense, and I am looking forward to working with the players and coaches to help them reach their full potential," Chow said.

Chow replaces Mike Hockmeyer, who was hired as the head coach at Connecticut. Hockmeyer had been with the Volunteers for three seasons.

Chow, who has more than 20 years of experience in the NFL, coached in college football for 20 years. He spent four seasons as the offensive coordinator at Florida State University and four seasons as the head coach at Eastern Kentucky University.

Chow led the Volunteers to a 13-0 record in 2001, including a victory in the Sugar Bowl. He also coached at the University of Texas, where he won national championships in 1996 and 1997.

Chow's appointment comes after Tennessee fired its previous offensive coordinator, Dave Collins, last month.

The Volunteers are set to open the season against tiny West Virginia State on Sept. 22.

Hazing policies are too hazy

Diplomatic talks between the European Union and Iran over the past year regarding Iran's nuclear program have made little progress. The international nuclear agreement between the U.S., European Union, and Iran is currently in place. The goal of the agreement is to prevent Iran from developing nuclear weapons, and to preserve the region's security. However, there are several issues that need to be resolved, such as Iran's refusal to allow inspections of its nuclear facilities, and its support for terrorism.

If Iran were to proceed with its nuclear program, it would pose a significant threat to the stability of the region. Iran's support for terrorism is a concern, as it has been involved in conflicts throughout the Middle East. Iran's expansion of its missile capabilities is also a concern, as it could be used to deliver nuclear weapons.

The issue of hazing, while seemingly minor, is a serious problem on college campuses. Hazing policies are in place to prevent harmful and dangerous activities, but these policies are not always effective. In some cases, hazing can lead to serious injuries or even death. It is important for students to be aware of the risks associated with hazing and to take steps to prevent it.

There are several solutions to the problem of hazing. First, colleges and universities should have strong anti-hazing policies in place, and students should be educated about the dangers of hazing. Second, there should be consequences for those who engage in hazing activities, such as suspension or expulsion from the institution. Finally, students should be encouraged to speak out against hazing and to report any incidents that they witness.

These solutions require a concerted effort from the college administration, faculty, and students. It is important for everyone to work together to create a safe and healthy environment for all students.
