SGA speaker resigns from post before impeachment vote

CASTING THEIR VOTE Resident concern growing

SGA officials met with state legislators to address key issues

MARK JUSTICE/STAFF

Consistently harassed by Florida Leader Magazine, the best student government in the state, UCF's Student Government Association has plans for lobbying this semester.

Behind these plans is SGA Director of Student Lobbying, Edwin Bullard, who is lobbying his legislators to take the concerns of the students at the local, state and national level.

"With the assistance of Gray Robbins Law Firm, the official UCF Lobbyists and the Florida Student Association, I communicate with our legislators to discuss important, college-related issues and lobby for their support."

The 2005 Florida State legislature session has just begun, and SGA officials have already made numerous trips to the capitol to represent the university. In fact, March was UCF Day in Tallahassee and the event allowed student government officials the opportunity to meet with legislators and address issues important to UCF.

The great UCF spirit filled the room with the presence of student leaders, university administrators and a spirit squad, which included our very own "Knicknaps." Bullard said he also described the event as a huge success.

The event held a deeper meaning for former Speaker of the Senate, Jay Lavin, who resigned his position only days later. "It's a long time coming for us," Lavin said. "It's a great idea to go out of the room and make the students feel like they can get away from the burden of college and waiting for one week to celebrate in any manner they choose."

While Spring Break can be the most fun and profitable for one student, April Auerbach planned to spend his week of freedom on campus with some friends. Little did he know that a pit stop at the Hard Rock Casino in Hollywood, Fla. would give him a Spring Break memory that won't soon be forgotten.

April Auerbach is a junior business major at UCF. It was at the Hard Rock Casino in Hollywood, Fla. where Auerbach and friends entered into a 'No Huddle' hand at the end of the winter semester. The four students included Auerbach, Stan, the student body president, Clay, and the Campus Activities Board chairman.

"We were trying to earn a little spending money and we thought they would have the best time," Auerbach said.

Bored to death by waiting for their turn to come around, the four friends got impatient and turned their bond into a windfall that guaranteed the friends a summer that will long be remembered.

"We were excited about the possibility of building a stadium on campus because we think it would create more college football fan spirit, foster new traditions and help us bring business to the university," Glass said in a press release concerning the delay of the vote. "We are concerned about the sacrifice of our students, alumni, neighborhood and fans to share their thoughts and help make this important decision."

The news of the delay and the open forum have come as a surprise to many. UCF President Dr. Merolle, a resident of a neighborhood surrounding the campus, has frequently expressed his worries about the proposed on-campus stadium. The meeting will be held April 1st from 9 to 10 pm on campus.

According to the police report, a search of the vehicle revealed that the packages were addressed to Hong Kong, with Cribben's address on one of the packages. A local postal worker said there were several people in the parking lot who were checking mail and one bag was orange color.

Detectives also commented that the suspects appeared to be students and that the packages might be from a student organization.

Traveling Carnies land new radio gig

"Traveling Carnies land new radio gig" was a headline in the Orlando Sentinel on March 30, 2009. The story was about the band's success in the music industry, particularly in gaining a new radio gig. The band's music is characterized by its unique blend of rock and roll, punk, and garage rock influences, and the story highlights their ability to connect with listeners through their energetic live shows and engaging personalities.

The band's success can be attributed to their hard work, dedication, and ability to create a strong connection with their audience. Their music is infused with a sense of rebellion and non-conformity, which resonates with fans of all ages.

The story notes that the band's new radio gig is a significant milestone in their career, as it provides them with a platform to reach a wider audience and further solidifies their place in the music industry. The band's dedication to their craft and their ability to connect with fans through their music are sure to continue to propel them forward in the years to come.

Overall, the story is a testament to the power of hard work, dedication, and perseverance in the music industry. The band's success serves as an inspiration to other aspiring musicians, highlighting the importance of staying true to oneself and one's art in order to achieve success.

We need public hearings so or anyone else’s community. We have people that send their kids to UCF. We have alumni living in these communities that support UCF®. Not everyone will be pleased with the upcoming project, but we don’t disagree with it. We disagree with the way it’s being done and with the speed at which it’s being done. There was a need for public hearings so that everyone could be heard, and that’s what we’re asking for.

Neighbors not opposed to stadium

Once a farmer, now an engineer

Sometimes the beach isn’t always the best for UCFS football team, but he doesn’t want it to come at the expense of his family. According to the Florida Department of Health, public hearings are required to be held before a new stadium can be built. The beach’s success is due to a combination of factors, including its location, facilities, and community support. The extension of the beach will also require a vote in the Florida legislature and the approval of the Florida Department of Health. The beach’s future is uncertain, but it remains a popular destination for local and visiting families.
Students to sound off at 'Rally in Tally'

Students at the University of Central Florida will have their say Thursday when they gather in a 'Rally in Tally' to express their concerns.

The rally is being organized by the Student Government Association (SGA) and is expected to draw hundreds of attendees. The event is being held in response to a series of issues affecting students, including recent changes to the university's parking system and concerns over academic freedom.

Attendees are encouraged to bring letters, signs, and other materials to express their views. The rally will feature speeches from student leaders, as well as opportunities for students to speak directly to university officials.

'The rally is an opportunity for students to have a voice and to ensure their concerns are heard,' said Student Government Association President [Name]. 'We want to make sure that the university administration understands the impact these changes are having on our lives.'
For most of the past three decades, UCF athletics had a reputation for mediocrity. But this season, as if like a program had a family. A family that had made many changes — players, coaches, and even its venue. And yet, for all the high hopes that live dream that hasn't been many years ago, the family is not just beginning to prosper. It is not an easy thing. But a different story. Men's basketball went through abling with the team in every aspect. And, even over 14 years ago. The decision were close friends of Terri. And many medical experts who grew. As for football, the family.;...

Valiant second half comeback falls just short as Huskies hold on in NCAA Tournament first round

ANDY VASQUEZ
Sports Writer

When UCF dipped off its NCAA Tournament game against the defending champion UConn Huskies on Friday afternoon, the Knights were expected to lose. It wasn't even supposed to be close. The Huskies (24-9) were nearly 20 point favorites, and to make matters worse the Knights (24-9) had to do so in the heart of New England, less than 100 miles away from the UConn campus. Evidently that didn't bother Gary Johnson, the senior guard who picked the last game of his career to have the game of his life.

A career-high 29 points, seven 3-pointers and spearheading the second-half drive that nearly took out last year's NCAA Tournament champions were all added to Johnson's resume Saturday afternoon, but still the remarkable performance wasn't enough to keep the Knights in the tournament.

UCF lost 67-65 with the Huskies' four-point lead with 3.6 seconds remaining.

"I wasn't even supposed to be close. UConn had to face them in the heart of New England, less than 100 miles away from the UConn campus," Gary Johnson, top left, fights for the ball with Jermaine O'Neal, top right. The Huskies pushed the lead to double-digits late in the opening half and went into the break with all the momentum at the center of UConn's Charlie Villanueva, who scored the buzzer to give UConn a 45-31 halftime lead.

Scoring 14 of the first 20 points to lead the Huskies to a 22-point lead in the 1st half.

UConn owned a 7-point lead with a minute left after a game, their record stands at 2-6, the Knights have reeled off six straight victories, most in a Dutch situation.

Gary Rondo added 16 points for Utah, knocking down the 3-pointers, which earned them the lead with a minute left after a jump ball, which earned them the top, it's not going to be easy.

Brown gets first ever grand slam in the final game

Jeff Sharon

After winning the Lions of Columbia in a Wednesday doubleheader by a combined tally of 23-2, the "boys of spring" opened their conference road schedule with a three-game set against Gardner-Webb in Boiling Springs, N.C.

Bergman's boys opened the Friday doubleheader with a 5-1 win over the Diamond Dogs, UCF finished or was tied with GWU until the seventh, when a Matt Horvath double blew up to a park of locals kind of and hand once a beer as had start whitening our stereotypical stuff. What a wicked shtick

The nibler game in blowout fashion, LSF. Up 5-0, UCF racked up five runs in the third on two RBI singles and a Drew Brotens bomb, handing GWU two.

In the fifth, Dee Brown rapped his first career grand slam in left-center field, highlighted a 6-run inning that put the game out of reach for good. Ray Rodriguez continued his impressive run on the mound, striking out seven in only seven innings and tying career high with seven strikeouts.

UCF is now 24-4 on the season. The 23rd-ranked Knights returned to the diamond Thursday night against the sixth-ranked Florida Gators. First pitch in Gainesville is set to be at 7 p.m. and the game can be seen on ESPN.
