UCF Police seek campus rape suspect

TAN NGUYEN

A UCF student was abducted and sexually assaulted early Saturday morning as she walked to her on-campus apartment, UCF Police said.

Police said the woman was last seen at around 7 a.m. as she was walking to class and was later found in a car outside the student union. She was taken to the hospital and later released with non-life-threatening injuries.

The suspect is described as a white male, approximately 6 feet tall, with blue eyes and short, brown hair. He was last seen wearing a white t-shirt and blue jeans.

The Board of Trustees unanimously voted Thursday to endorse the concept of an on-campus stadium, even though they will not vote on the feasibility study and the decision to build the stadium until at least three to four more months.

Thursday’s meeting to vote on the football stadium was no different than any of the prior public forums, and both sides showed up to make their voices count. While the supporters of the stadium who spoke during the open forum segment outweighed the opponents of the stadium, LCD, the result of the three-hour meeting did not exactly favor the side which will build the stadium to be built immediately.

“We’re talking about weeks, not months,” UCF President John Thrasher said of the length of time he believes it will be before the trustees finally vote to resolve the matter on the table. He also informed the speakers of a committee that had been created to oversee all athletic projects to ensure that UCF was receiving quality work and the best value, two areas that have been questioned by people on both sides of the stadium argument for months.

The vote allows the UCF Athletic Association to develop financial and construction agreements, with a 10 million dollar allowance to do so. During the meeting it was announced that the university’s donor base gave the school a million dollar donation towards the stadium.

UCF Vice President Bill Merck again outlined the feasibility study for the on-campus stadium in front of the trustees, as well as UCF Athletic Director Steve Couric, UCF News Editor NGUYEN

DeLay's demise imminent

House majority leader Tom DeLay continues to weather charges of corruption, but it's hard to see how he'll be able to weather the political storm that's building around him. DeLay's legal and political troubles are unlikely to go away any time soon, and it seems likely that he'll be facing an uphill battle to stay in power.

DeLay's legal troubles began with allegations of ethics violations, but they have since escalated to include charges of campaign finance violations. DeLay's brother and campaign manager, Tony DeLay, has been charged with fraud and money laundering, and DeLay himself is facing multiple investigations.

DeLay's political troubles are also growing. His influence in the Republican Party is waning, and his ability to control the House Republican majority is in doubt. The party is facing a potential leadership crisis, and DeLay's future as majority leader is in question.

Despite these challenges, DeLay remains resolute. He has vowed to fight on, and he has been successful in recruiting new members to his leadership team. However, it seems unlikely that he'll be able to overcome the political forces that arearrayed against him.

One thing is clear: DeLay's time in power is running out. The question is only when, not if. It's likely that DeLay will be forced to resign or step down before the end of his term, and his legacy in the Republican Party will be one of corruption and scandal.
Frustration builds over block scheduling

Meanwhile, primo class times at 10:00 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. are quickly filling up while I sit on my hands trying not to punch the walls. One dean I need to take can't register for the intermediate classes come out for the spring semester. I have been slowly watching the number of available seats dwindle every day for the past week.

I have been receiving phone calls from some of my younger friends about scheduling. I have recently gotten over the screw-job that UCF gave me last year when I was told to take certain classes which I somehow can't see as someone who earned it. I hate you, Philip Greber. I sincerely hope the writer was a person who is not having a problem with this new concept that UCF can't finish. Implemented.

I have to admit that I was amused by Philip Greber's diatribe regarding the UCF Police Department's "Police priorities." April 11th, I think that if he wanted to be taken seriously he probably should have been more realistic in the descriptions of the OCP Police and their activities. First of all, there aren't that many places in Pogona. Potentially where I live also, where bodies match the street or are situated near parking spots. (ie: Philip, you'll have to forgive me if I call your statements into question). I somehow can't see a uniformed police officer knocking around the bushes just wanting to jump out and "beat up" for whatever they said." What is the point, if they do indeed walk around at night looking for parties to "burst" at someone who wakes up all time, I don't mind that at all. Look late-night parties on a week-end. Some of us have places to be in the morning, try to keep it down thanks.

In the end Philip, thanks to your letter, you come off exactly like the "punk kid" you accused the UCF police officers of seeing you as. I have been noticed carrying cases of beer to my apartment several times before, and yet have never been stopped. Perhaps you look underage? Who can tell.

I sincerely doubt you've ever been stung out in any way. So, to do it bluntly, stop calling attention to yourself and maybe the police won't have cause to notice you again. Not to mention the fact that half of you have changed majors after figuring out what you were not going to pass calculus.

Poor sophomores; you are experiencing the worst of college. Congratulations on finishing your general education requirements. Are you ready to pick your major? I hope you completed your prerequisite courses. If not, I have a "ha ha gotcha" sign on the wall in my office that you are welcome to come by and use.

Poor juniors; here you are ready to begin your final year when you discover that you can't even register for some of your classes yet. You've walked through the admissions of UCF for three years now. You will be a senior soon. Prepare to have the worst of your academic future.

Women's titles hoped ended by FAU in A-Sun tourney semifinals

NATHAN POHERST
Sports Editor

The competition is ready to see Bethune-Cookman and Belmont Now record, but it's still music to the ears of women's tennis team in the semifinals of the Atlantic Sun conference, and one thing is for sure: the Mercer Bears on Friday. The time has come for the Knights to leave the Atlantic Sun conference and title. The weekend was a memorable one. The confident, hard-edged, and versatile Megan Hunter will be their last as Coach Patricia Alllund's team had an impressive week that started with an 18-2 sweep of the Bruins and improved their record to 35-8, giving them their sixth consecutive and eighth overall A-Sun conference title in Nashville at the Vanderbilt Track. The title will be their last as UCF will move to Conference USA in the fall.

UCF was down by four points early in the competition on Saturday, but that didn't last long as the Knights came back to collect 158 points by the end of the meet. Troy finished a distant second with a total of 110.5 points. Florida Atlantic finished third with 83 points. The Knights were led by star Simon Jaeger, who won Friday's Female Performer award and field leaves A-Sun as champs.

Jeff Sharid Staff Writer

It's starting to sound like a broken record, but it's still music to the ears of Knights fans. UCF's offense unleashed its power batting again this week with victories over Bethune-Cookman and Belmont. Now it seems the pitching has caught up to the hitting as UCF fans were last seen. With a dominating performance over Belmont on Sunday, the Knights completed a sweep of the Bruins and improved their record to 26-6, giving them the most wins in all of NCAA Division I baseball. The Knights won 4-2 behind the usual red-hot bats, and some dominant pitching as the win marked a change. JohnMichael Howard had another impressive performance as he went five scoreless innings with eight strikeouts. It was only the second second win for this season for the Knights, their only previous sweep coming against Campbell. Yesterday's victory capped an impressive week that started with two wins over USF and Bethune- Cookman on Tuesday and Wednesday respectively, last week.

Women take a fall, men take it all

JEFF SHARID
Staff Writer

Fourth-seeded Florida Atlantic University shocked the UCF women's tennis team in the semifinals of the Atlantic Sun conference championships Saturday by knocking the top-seeded Knights out of the tournament.

The Knights (20-3) were favorites to win and looked strong after a 4-0 thrashing of Belmont in the quarters on Friday. BEM, however, relied on consistency play and determination to overcome the Knights.

"It's just not enough how much this team battled and battled," said Orells Coach Ed Heywood. "They brought a determination today that I didn't think they had."

"It was a disappointing loss," said UCF Coach Patricia Alllund. "To play the way we played all year and to come here as the favorites. You can say all the shoulda coulda woulda, but today's match could have gone either way.

The Knights began the match in another fashion as sophomore Megan Hunter and Gretzen Poerkert won in A-Sun tourney semifis.

Confidence a key to the Knights’ success

Snow fell on Friday, Nov. 5 at No. 3 doubles, Junior Pam Fernandez and sophomore Becky Gordon looked on from the sidelines as the Knights went into a tiebreaker. The eight Knights and the sophomore Kyla McNicol. At 8-4 focused on the No. 2 doubles and No. 1 doubles 8-4. All eyes sophomore Becky Gordon lost the pressure off.

The Knights, however, have been strong in singles competition throughout the entire season.
