Senator resigns to return to activism roots

Sticking to campaign promises tops list of Matt DeVlieger's reasons for stepping out with SGA

ASHLEY BURNES

Chairwoman, SGA

Matt DeVlieger isn't an ordinary student. In fact, his actions and words profile a person who wants to be anything but ordinary.

He had served as a SGA senator since last November, but he abruptly decided that his time with the Student Government Association had come to an end. At Thursday night's Senate meeting, DeVlieger told his fellow senators that he was resigning to return to activism. He said that a number of factors made the decision overwhelmingly clear for him.

"I felt that there was a part of the Senate that wasn't doing what they said they would. This was a dream and a home for somebody else. DeVlieger felt that there was a part of senators as many of them had already caught wind of his impending news. Despite the knowledge of his departure, many senators were still upset with his decision because they said his character and opinions would be missed at Senate meetings. DeVlieger admitted that some senators had wanted him to talk him out of his resignation, but said that a number of factors made the decision overwhelmingly clear for him.

As talk continues and the excitement grows for new on-campus athletic homes, the UCF men's basketball team charged to the fore to help create some dream homes for somebody else.

On Saturday, the men's basketball team and UCF Athletics Association teamed up with Habitat for Humanity and Families for Habitat to build a home for a less fortunate family.

The players worked with assistant coach Craig Broom, their top day off to work together for a good cause. "I'm proud of them for getting up early and going some of their time," Brown said.

Anthony Williams, a criminal justice sophomore, and Troy Lindback, a marketing senior, were two of the players helping out. "We have been sweating all day, but it is a wonderful thing that different people are coming together for one purpose — to build a nice home," Williams said. "I feel that there is a part of senators as many of them had already caught wind of his impending news.

Keithy Williams, a junior from San Antonio, Texas, was a key contributor for the University of Central Florida men's basketball team during the 2017-18 season. Williams, who averaged 5.6 points and 4.4 rebounds per game, was a valuable asset to the team and a positive influence on his teammates.

During the season, Williams played in all 30 games, starting 24 of them. He scored a season-high 15 points in a 70-64 win over the University of South Florida on February 20. In that game, Williams also had seven rebounds and three assists.

Williams was a key contributor to the team's success, helping them to secure a spot in the NCAA Tournament. The team's season came to an end in the second round, losing to the University of Kansas 81-51.

Williams has high hopes for his senior season and is looking forward to helping the team achieve their goals.

A letter to the most clutch of them all

'Big Shot Bob' is money in the bank when he has to be

THE EXTRA POINT

ANDY VASQUEZ
Sports Editor

Dear Robert Horry,

When you are going to retire? Am I like 65 years old? OK, I know you aren’t that old, but it seems like you have been playing forever. It definitely has been a privilege watching you play, and I am going to miss your presence on the court. But I am glad you are leaving on top and with a bang.

You and your teammates have done everything right to this point. Your San Antonio Spurs have the NBA Finals on lock and are one win away from winning the title.

You stepped up and hit every big shot your team needed throughout the playoffs, including the game-winning shot to beat the Los Angeles Lakers in Game 1 of the NBA Finals. You sealed the series with a big assist in the decisive Game 7. You have made your teammates better and your presence on the court has been invaluable.

Your solid play averaging 16.5 points per game has been a huge reason for the Spurs’ success. You have been clutch throughout your career, but that isn’t what is most impressive.

It’s the big moments when the defense is applying pressure that make your teammates in effective. It’s game three, and it seems like the Lakers are in control. And who could forget game four of the 2002 Western Conference Finals? The Lakers are leading the San Antonio Spurs by two points with just seconds remaining. Kobe Bryant drains a last-second shot, but the Spurs’ Tim Duncan fiches the ball back to you, who was walking back to the bench in disgust.

As the ball somehow came straight to you, your eyes lit up like it was Christmas, and of course you took the shot. You sunk the shot, and the Spurs did the impossible. Single-handedly beat the Kings and tied the series. You were simply amazing.

You have won five NBA championships, and you have played a huge role in each of them. You have been a clutch player throughout your career, and you have been a huge reason why the Spurs have been so successful.

I know you aren’t that old, but it seems like you have been playing forever. It definitely has been a privilege watching you play, and I am glad you are leaving on top and with a bang.

Robert Horry, no doubt you are a bad man to the game of basketball. Please take your time to enjoy your retirement and have a great life after basketball.

And thank you for all you have done for the game of basketball. You will be missed, but you have left a huge impact on the game.

Sincerely,

Andy Vasquez

Home of the Lady Knights

Remember when the Lady Knights were the premiere team in the country and the symbol of Florida State University? The Lady Knights were a college basketball team that played at the Florida State University campus. They were known for their impressive record and their dedicated players, who worked hard to achieve success on and off the court. The Lady Knights were a beloved part of the Florida State University community and had a loyal fan base.

Here are some facts about the Lady Knights:

- The Lady Knights were a women's basketball team that played at Florida State University.
- They had a long history of success, with many conference championships and tournament appearances.
- The Lady Knights were known for their strong defense and their ability to play solid basketball.
- They had many talented players throughout their history, including standout performers like Dawn Staley and Sheryl Swoopes.
- The Lady Knights played most of their games at the Pan American Center on the Florida State University campus.

In the end, the Lady Knights were a beloved part of the Florida State University community, and their legacy continues to be remembered by fans and alumni alike.
In the long drawn out process that has been George W. Bush's "War on Terror," the war on terrorism has taken many forms. The well known form is the military action that has taken place in various parts of the world, most notably in Iraq and Afghanistan. However, the "War on Terror" also includes diplomatic efforts, economic sanctions, and other non-military actions. One such effort is the promotion of democratic values and the development of civil society in the Middle East. This is often referred to as the "War on Terror," but it is a war that has been fought by many countries and organizations, including the United States, the United Kingdom, and the European Union.

With the election of Barack Obama as president of the United States in 2008, there was hope that the "War on Terror" would come to an end. However, the new administration has continued the military action in Iraq and Afghanistan, and has also increased its focus on economic sanctions and diplomatic efforts. The "War on Terror" is a complex and controversial issue, and it is not clear what the ultimate outcome will be.
Marriage is imminent if Clarkson hits town

By Jodie Bums

Sure it’s true, Big 10 fans raison alway the level of local favorite to be a cause for celebration. Three years ago, the Kelly Clarkson Fan Club, a chapter of the UCF Student Union, was established as a result of the singer’s growing popularity. Now, the group is preparing to welcome a new member to its fold: the incoming freshmen. The news has sent the local music community into a frenzy, as it is expected to bring a new level of excitement to the campus.

Editor’s note: I fully intended to write this column immediately after reading this column. It was going to be a fun, lighthearted piece about the joys of summer and the upcoming school year. However, as I was preparing to write, I received a call from my mother. She had just heard the news about the incoming freshmen and wanted to know if I was going to cry because of the excitement. She said that she had been looking forward to this moment for a long time.

I think she thought they were doing the right thing, and that the principles they used to reject those who were doing it were wrong. I agree with her. It’s time for change. I am disappointed to have not been consulted, but this setback will not cause me to surrender the public square. Truth and justice are both broken in this fight, but I will not give up. I will continue to pursue more just public policies by remaining a voice in the public square. I encourage every citizen to do the same.

Speaking of Kelly Clarkson, one of the trio’s original bands, the Smashing Pumpkins, appears to be reforming after breaking up more than five years ago. Now all we need is to see Ashlee Simpson rejoin, and we are ready to be rocking again.

The song seriously makes me want to kill puppies. That’s how horrible that trash is. We’re talking worse than anything by Billy Ray Cyrus, the Cranberries and 98 Degrees combined. The song is garbage, G-A-R-B-A-G-E . . .
