OSI office upgraded to serve more students

A 42-inch plasma screen TV is among additions

MARK JUSTICE Staff Writer

One of the most recent changes at the university famous for being "under construction forever" is an extensive remodeling of the office of student involvement located on the second floor of the UCF Student Union.

The improvements to the OSI office, which serves as a hub for student leaders overseeing programs such as Homecoming, did not happen overnight.

Using money from the Capital Improvement Trust Fund allocated by the state, UCF was able to add space to the OSI office and improve the facilities available to student leaders.

The office upgrades student leaders are enjoying today are the result of a plan outlined several years ago by former student body presidents and UCF President John Hitt.

Leaky ceiling in Convocation Center has new resident upset

SEAN LAVIN Staff Writer

Jessica Cruz was the first to move into her Convocation Center apartment and was all alone when just after midnight on Thursday, she heard a mysterious dripping noise coming from outside her bathroom door.

At first Cruz was worried the dripping was coming from her sink, and that an intruder had entered her home without her knowledge.

"It was past 12 a.m., and I heard dripping coming down," Cruz recalled.

Her imagination started running wild and she began thinking to herself, "Oh my God, what if someone's in here?"

After Cruz mustered up enough courage to leave her room and determine the cause of the drip, she discovered something she considered almost as frightening as hearing in a home invasion.

The sophomore entered her bathroom and found water covering the floor. She then looked up above her toilet and saw a steady drip of water leading from the air vent on her roof. Cruz ran to her kitchen and grabbed a pot to put under the leak. The water was coming down so fast it filled the...
Hurricane season won’t stay quiet for long
Experts warn that storm activity will be greater than originally predicted

Hurricane season

ADDITIONAL TRENDS

As the one-year anniversary of Hurricane Charley approached, it was clear that the summer of 2005 had passed only a few weeks ago, many wonder what to expect for the upcoming hurricane season – predicted to be worse than last year.

However, according to a presentation by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the outlook just became a little rosier. According to preliminary forecasts, 8 to 14 storms are expected to form before the hurricane season ends in November. That would be the highest number of storms from 1980 to 2005. For those worried about the recent hurricane season in the last few years, that is a hopeful sign.

This season has already been quite active and tropical storms formed during June and July, which could be an indication of what’s to come. In fact, the National Hurricane Center says that the difference between a storm and a hurricane is the wind speed.

According to NOAA forecasts, as least two to three hurricanes will be on the horizon over the next few weeks. This is due to the increased activity in the eastern US. As for Central America and the Caribbean Islands, one to two hurricanes will last for more than two months.

Despite the prediction of the higher number of storms, the NOAA still can’t predict when the storms will form and when they will hit. Because of this, officials are warning residents of any areas prone to hurricane attacks to be more prepared than ever.

"Knowing precisely where a hurricane will strike and at what intensity cannot be determined even a few days in advance," said Mas Mayfield, director of the NOAA National Hurricane Center. "Residents and government agencies should be prepared. By embracing hurricane preparedness efforts and activities, you will have a better chance of a safe season.

According to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which runs the Atlantic Ocean Sea, experts reported that storms are predicted to have formed in the eastern US. As for Central America and the Caribbean Islands, one to two hurricanes will last for more than two months.

SALT LAKE CITY — Two weeks after saying that use of Indian mascots, names or to represent their athletic teams could cause NCAA sanctions, the governing body of college organizations was responding to its stance — but only for schools that have the cooperation of tribes.

By Friday night, officials said that approval from American Indian reservations could be a "primary factor" in deciding whether Indian mascots could be allowed. In schools that have not been negotiated, including the University of Utah, the university has the bad recommendation of Utah's state to use the nicknames "Ute" for its athletic teams.

The NCAA's ruling will go to schools with American Indian mascots from hosting future NCAA postseason events. Schools that have already been awarded postseason tournament opportunities would have to cover any Indian depictions in their future games.

That would directly affect Utah's public university, which has hosted eight NCAA basketball tournament games to date but has no other venues in the country and is scheduled to host first- and second­ round NCAA tournament basketball games in March 2006.

Students and friends are one of the most common injuries we see at the Student Health Center.

Sprains are one of minor consequences but sometimes are more serious, or may even represent a fracture. Most ankle sprains occur when the ankle has been forcibly twisted. This results in pain and swelling with possible bruise formation. According to the "Ottawa guidelines," sprain-type injuries that cause pain with weight bearing or result in ten- tures of the last five inches of the leg (Usual or if) are at increased risk for fractures and require an X-ray.

Most common sprains can be treated with rest, ice, compression, and elevation (RICE). Students have shown that the sooner these strategies are initiated, the sooner a sprain will recover. Ice can be utilized using a Zip-Lock bag with ice, various cold packs, or my favorite, frozen vegetables (Green peas work best). Ice for at least 30 minutes, several times per day. Compression is usually achieved with a four to six inch ice wrap swelling delays recovery, so reducing swelling with reasonable compression, elevation and ice is helpful. Consider taking Motrin or Aleve for pain if you have no contraindications. A case of contusion may also be helpful. If you have any of the above "Ottawa guidelines" warning signs, or if you do not recover over a few days, please see us at the Student Health Center for further help and assistance.

In recent years we have witnessed the unsettling development of increasing bacterial resistance to antibiotics. Probably, most of the Name for this process is related to overuse of prophylactic antibiotics. For treatment of upper respiratory tract infections. For this reason, the medical community has been trying to better define when antibiotics are appropriate.

Recently, the Centers for Disease Control published a list of criteria for the treatment of pharyngitis (throat infections). These guidelines are referred to as the Concord criteria. They offer clinicians a look for four elements when evaluating pharyngitis: presence of fever, absence of cough, tender lymph nodes in the neck and mucous on tonsils. When only one of these criteria is present, the illness is likely a "Virus and should be treated with rest, fluids, Tylenol, lounges, and observation.

When two of the criteria are present, a throat swab to check for strep should be considered. If throat culture criteria are present, then the patient may be either treated with antibiotics or tested for strep.

These criteria seem to be a pretty user-friendly way to screen if antibiotics might be helpful. Obviously, if you are immune suppressed, or your new therapist persists for more than a week, you should see us at the Student Health Center.

Cruz said that whenever the resident living above her would flush the toilet, the leak became worse. She was worri ed that the water that was beginning to flood her floor was actually toilet water coming from above.

When Cruz called maintenance to fix the leak, she was not impressed by their initial response. The first official suggested Cruz "just stick a bucket under it and throw some towels down." Cruz said he told her that "I will save you from cleaning the mess later."

But Cruz said she didn’t want to sacrifice her new towels to what could be toilet water and felt that she was not the one responsible for cleaning the mess. Ultimately, she didn’t have to, because over the next two day period the maintenance officials who stopped the leak were also able to clean up the mysterious water.

Cruz’s leaky roof was given emergency status by housing officials, and was placed high on the priority list for that reason.

Although Cruz’s bathroom is no longer leaking, she is now upset because of the large holes maintenance created in her bathroom ceiling when they needed to access the pipes and stop the leak. The hole that concerns her the most is the one existing where her electronic air vent cover was.

Convocation ceremony gives students a boost of morale before beginning classes

"The New Student Convocation sets a tone for pride and tradition."

- Jennifer Hartzer, Chair of the President's Leadership Council who participated in the cer-macy, found the experience to be so rewarding that she planned it hoped it would be.

"I could not be more excited to be a Golden Knight," said after the ceremony.

But even though the convocation places an emphasis on welcoming new students, some of the more seasoned members of the UCF community made it a point to attend as well.

Sophomore Crystal Lee, who spent her summer mentoring freshmen like Rosen while serving on the Orientation Team, found a deeper meaning in the ceremony.

"She spoke highly of the bond she remembered forming with the class of 2009 while welcoming its members" to UCF throughout the summmer, and offered some heart-ful advice to the new students.

"Make these four years the best of your life, and do not be afraid to take chances," Lee said.

Bonding with roommates leads to happier household

Eve M.

...a good friend.

Some, however, loathe the notion of sharing space with total strangers.

"I don't agree with college housing because moving in with people you've never met can be a huge hassle," said junior Brett Connelly.

"It's not worth the risk of having a complete stranger living near you for the next year."

UCF offers both dorms and off-campus affiliated housing. They train their resident assistants to help deal with problems that may arise between roommates.

Ramsey Torres, a resident assistant at DeLand Landing, said that they had a few instances where roommates were not on speaking terms.

"The most common problem deals with noise complaints."

"Usually, the less noisy roommate is too "quiet" for someone's liking," she said. "They also have a few roommates who just plain annoying." Torres suggested establishing ground rules between roommates.

When all else fails, roommates can turn to a professional mediation service offered by UCF.

What is mediation?

Mediation is a private, voluntary decision-making process in which one or more impartial persons, the mediator(s), help people, organizations and communities in conflict to work toward a solution.

Mediation is designed to fix a problem or situation which benefits all parties. The participants are responsible for keeping, or negotiating, their agreements.

Who should use the service?

Members of the UCF community who have been unsuccessful in resolving their differences are encouraged to use the mediation service.

When should mediation occur?

Mediation can be used to prevent a simple dispute from escalating to a more serious matter. It is especially useful when both parties have been attempting to reach resolutions and have been frustrated in their individual efforts, how, even disputes, for issues involving, or a situation, or with the parties involved.

For more information on mediation, or to schedule an appointment, visit http://www.drs.sdes.ucf.edu.

PREVIEW: KNIGHTS FOOTBALL

UCF kicks off the season 10 days from now at South Carolina

The Knights open the season for the fifth straight year on ESPN

Currently the Knights are listed as 19.5 point underdogs to USC

Steven Moffett and his primary targets are looking forward to turning things around this season. Moffett and his teammates are more comfortable because they know what the coaches expect. The players—They know what helped to breed confidence. Focused and excited about the season that lies ahead.

By now, everyone knows the numbers, the Knights went 0-11 and have lost 15 straight, which is the longest losing streak in Division I football. Teams with those kinds of numbers hanging over their heads shouldn't be confident, right?

Well that's not the message that key members of the UCF passing attack were sending at practice last week. They seem to be focused and excited about the season that lies ahead.

"Right now I think we're pretty good," junior wide receiver Mike Walker said. "This is the best I've ever seen us, since (Coach George) O'Leary has been here."

The Knights are beginning their second year with O'Leary at the helm of the program, and there are no more surprises for the players—they know what O'Leary wants from them, which according to junior starting quarterback Steven Moffett has helped to breed confidence.

IN STATE OUTLOOK

Steven Moffett practices for the season in preseason camp under the watch of UCF and to members that good about their chemistry and high expectations.
fake UCF junior defense man. I'm extremely optimistic about what Coach (O'Leary) was saying about winning. I feel really confident about what Coach (O'Leary) was saying about winning. We're just right on top of things. This chemistry has the Knights going, Walker said.

"We never seemed to find their passing game ready for the upcoming season, despite the coaching staff's expectation of putting the season together, we came to know what you are supposed to be lacking for the Knights last year. The coaches are on the field, and we're just going to do it, because that's how we learned to do things," Walker said.

"I think the entire team is very comfortable with the system and seeing how this team's going to do, because when they were over there in the off season, they really impressed me with his receiving corps this summer. He is especially impressed with freshman receiver Rocky Ross. He's really impressed me on how fast he can pick things up," Moffett said. "But he really hasn't let the speed of the game slow him down from playing it. He came in and learned real fast, and he's doing a great job."

The speedy Ross helped lead The Bolles School to a state runner up and a state championship in his two years at the Jacksonville, Fla., school, where he was named to the Florida Times-Union all-first team, as well as the NFL Global junior championship game. The 6-foot-2 freshman also was a conference and district champion in the 200 meters.

Ross, who spent much of the summer preparing for the season still knows he has a lot to learn.

"I'm not ready," Ross said. "I don't feel as though I've played against South Carolina. Yea, but am I up to par with Mike Walker and Brandon Marshall? I don't think so. I close. I learn from the front line what they do." Ross feels that his extra preparation this summer has proved to be a key to his development. He didn't have the benefit of spring practice because of the offensive backs, but he returned to wide receiver in the spring, and is listed as the No. 1 receiver.

"This year, when we came in, we didn't talk about what Coach (O'Leary) was saying about winning. But we did talk about winning. I feel really confident about what Coach (O'Leary) was saying about winning. We're just right on top of things. This chemistry has the Knights going, Walker said."

"I'm very excited about winning," Walker said. "I don't care, I'm just excited about winning. I feel really good about winning this year." Earlier this month at C-USA media day, O'Leary said that he thought the Knights could make it to a bowl game. His players feel the same way. "A lot of people don't believe it," Walker said. "It's probably we don't have a chance. But they're not here when we're not. They don't do what we do. Winning, has never been a big positive." All the confidence and chemistry has the Knights passing game steady for the start of the season, despite the misgivings of last year. "I'm most looking forward to playing against somebody new," Moffett said. "We've been doing this for a week or two and we're not really ready yet. This year we spent the whole summer doing this. We're just right on top of it. If we beat them we put the pads on and I think that's a big positive." "Coming this summer helped a lot," Ross said. "Where I could learn the plays in the off season. Come out here and practice and see what the speed is like. To work out here for six weeks of this. I think it's paid off, I feel like summer paid off huge for me." The entire team has had to endure extremely hot conditions since practice has begun a few weeks ago. Dealing with the heat is something that Coach (O'Leary) has shown huge promise to the team. The coaches and players feel the same way.

After the game, Nolan said he expected to have a full prognosis and to coach Mike Nolan address the team on Monday.

Lunde, Lucas Moorman, Mike Smith and Andre Hughes, a wide receiver from the American Association's Vision Fitness root, said Friday he was under construction for a 24-hour recorded message.

"I will play basketball, unless you want to do basketball up and down the court. We have some good coaches to help the program and a Division I head coach. "

For us being such a young team, we want to see those games, some experience," Miles said. "You get used to traveling, playing and performing - all the things you need to do now.""

When to press the ball, when to walk ... it is just natural intuition." Erwin also admitted that his team did not do a good job of possessing the ball in certain stretches and that some of his players may not be quite ready to withstand the rigors of a standard 90-minute match. Friday's scrimmage allowed for much more frequent rest than in a real game, but at the end of the night, a lot of the players were physically spent.

"This Saturday in Tampa the Knights will have to recover quicker from their fatigue if they want to have any chance for victory when they face instate for USF in their final exhibition game. Coach Erwin stated that he is looking at this game as a dress rehearsal for the upcoming regular season and thus has heightened expectations for his boys.

Next week, the defending champs have to make more precise because USF is a much better team than St. Leo," Erwin said. "Please, it is too long to get the game moving and playing at any sort of rhythm. You are not going to be able to do that there ... We just have to take another step forward."

USF, which went 10-5-2 last season in Conference USA, is starting its inaugural campaign in the Big East Conference.

"Every experience could be the key to the success of women's soccer this year," said Andy Vásquez.

"Experience is single-elimination but at the end of the night, a state foe will have to over-rule the standard 90-minute duration."

Florida’s big three try to recover from last year

This season starts a new era for UF football as they face the grind to the much deeper and much tougher Conferences USA.

At the Knights begin to compete on a bigger stage, the future is uncertain. This season last year was difficult for Florida State. To win another year, they need to move on from the national championship run, but they need to move on from the national championship run.

And when the offseason came, they simply got better for the Seminoles, who begin the 2005 campaign ranked 14th nationally.

There are hopes, there are dreams, there is excitement that defined them during the season. "These forecasts with little or no warning."

But the Hurricanes are determined to get their swagger back in 2005.

Larry Coker says, "Now, it doesn't happen here, it's not acceptable," said tight end Greg Ohlman. "That's just the way it is. Winning is the standard that's been set by this team, and I think these young guys are trying to make sure they get it right again, and they're working hard."
Geraldo Rivera announced that the Bush administration had failed to make important decisions regarding the war on terror and it's time for some- thing to be done. Packing on a little weight is no reason to pack on apathy

One of the deadliest forms of crudeness known to man is when a woman asks her better half if she looks fat. It never fails to drive a man beyond the edge of sanity and, as any man would admit, there is never a correct answer.

Women then wonder if there's a proper answer to this question but they ask it anyway. Why? Because they need the self-assurance of knowing they look better than the girl standing three feet away. It's stupid, it's mind-boggling, but it's the way life goes. And women aren't the only people guilty of it.

Walk into any gym and you'll find loads of women struggling to lose physical fitness freaks spending more time in front of a mirror than they do working out. It's all a part of our generation's obsession with beauty and being in peak physical condition. I have one question, though. What's peak physical condition?

I recently started to get into this long-standing fad of dieting and exercising because, no more than four months ago, something happened to me that had never happened before. As I always do when I walk into a Publix, I stopped on the scale to see how fat I was one day and the weight the scale recorded proved what I had always feared about myself. I was fat for the first time since God blessed this earth by letting my dad knock my mom up. I weighed over 200 pounds. I went 207 pounds to be precise and now I was so petrified of scales that I decided I needed a change.

I've always talked about working out and getting in shape, but I faced the fact a long time ago that I'm a lazy son of a gun. Even during my baseball days I was never in great shape, but I was also a catcher so I didn't need to be. My mom once told me that being a little plumply penguin in the Burns family genes. That's cool. I can deal with that. As long as I'm happy, I won't give a cow's c*ck.

I wasn't happy being 207 pounds, though. In fact, I was really depressed for a few weeks after it happened. I probably gained some more weight in that period, but I was so depressed that I didn't want to lose it. My behavior was pathetic and I only bring this entire scenario up because people always talk about the freshmen 15 or because we see all of these pathetic plastic surgery shows on TV and I think it's stupid. We control our own physical destiny and there's nothing modern science can do to change it. I woke up. I'm back on campus unless I'm working out and getting in peak physical condition. That's really depressed for a few weeks after I went over 200 pounds.

FOOT NOTE

poems should be afforded the privilege of putting their personal information out to the public. Poem for a guilty is unusual because prove innocent because of Beth Holloway Twitty's self- defense. It's that day that my bulbous belly hit that scale that I decided I needed a change.

Shirt causes some confusion

I am appalled at your reaction to pictures of Joran Van der Sloot wearing a UCLA shirt. He is a suspect, he is not guilty of murder! No one will think that UCLA is the school where the murderer went until, and unless, he is proven guilty. That is the best of our judicial system innocent until proven guilty. To state opinions that you think that people, in general, will think lesser of you because of him wearing your UCLA shirt shows a total lack of respect for the laws that lay the foundation of our judicial system.

If you made no comment! If you had never formed an opinion based on his wearing your UCLA shirt you would be in better than ever and probably in the best shape of my life, despite still having a bit of the Burns family gut hanging around. What's the point? Mine is that we all control our own destiny and we shouldn't lump it up to some doctor or some magazine to tell us how we should look. Everybody is beautiful in some regard — just think of Blake, Alex and Courteny Love — and it's up to us to find the way to bring it out.

So keep that in mind the next time you pass up a steak for some cranberry gran that's supposed to be a hamburger alternative. I'm having a steak and I'm not about how I look in a minute.

DONNA ARNDT

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The article described Joran Van der Sloot wearing a UCLA shirt, not UCLA, and Van der Sloot was referred to only as a suspect.)

Losing your security deposit or being overcharged for damages at rentals around UCF is quite common. Here are 5 steps to help secure your chance of getting some or all of your deposit back and not being overcharged when you move out:

- READ THE LEASE!
  - Look at your lease carefully. Most state that you must inspect the unit at the time of move-in. If there is a deadline for giving a list of problems to the landlord, make sure you get it back to the landlord by the deadline.

- INSPECT EVERYTHING!
  - The landlord may provide you with a move-in inspection sheet. If not, make your own list, listing existing problems with each room of the unit. Be very specific - note everything major and minor, such as carpet stains or tears, condition of mattress, light bulbs, blinds, countertops, EVERYTHING!

- MAKE A COPY!
  - Be sure to make a copy of the completed inspection sheet.

Instead of getting some or all of your deposit back and not being overcharged when you move out, you and your friends may suffer from pre-existing damages that were there at the time you moved in, if the damages claimed against your deposit are disputed.
