CAUSE FOR CELEBRATION

Homecoming 2005

The annual Homecoming celebration will kick off on Friday, starting with a 7:30 p.m. parade through campus, followed by a reception at the Student Union and a Friday night dance.

The parade, which will feature floats, marching bands, and student groups, will begin at Millenia Mall and end at the Student Union, where a reception will be held.

On Saturday, there will be a Homecoming football game against the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, followed by a Homecoming dance in the Student Union.

The weekend will conclude with a Homecoming football tailgate party on Sunday.

ALEXY BURNS

The UCF SGA Senate passed a resolution last Thursday that calls for construction to begin immediately on phase two of the Arts Complex Resolution 8302, which was unanimously approved by a large majority of students from the College of Arts and Sciences.

David Brown, a student senator from the College of Arts and Sciences, said that the resolution was an effort to ensure that the UCF administration is transparent and accountable in the planning of the new Visual Arts Building.

Brown said that the Senate resolution is a measure of the students' commitment to the Visual Arts Building and their desire to see the project move forward.

“We were trying to make sure they knew how much we were involved in the decision-making process,” Brown said.

The second phase of the project has been in the works for over a year, and students have been waiting for it to begin.

“The original plan by the Board of Trustees was that there would be three buildings for the arts,” Brown said.

The second phase is expected to begin soon, and students are eagerly awaiting its completion.

“We’re excited to see the new building take shape,” Brown said.

Two marijuana incidents, one alleged assault

Marijuana found in dorm

Andrew Davis was called to the Central Campus residence hall on Oct. 8 after a resident assistant reported to the dorm that marijuana was being sold in a dorm room. According to reports, the resident assistant had been made aware of the sale by a dormmate.

Davis said he was asked to search the room, and he was permitted to do so. When he entered the room, Davis observed a glass pipe sitting on a dresser. According to Davis, a dorm resident later confirmed that the pipe was used to smoke marijuana.

Davis added that he observed a piece of paper with what appeared to be drug paraphernalia.

Marijuana found in dorm room

Marijuana was also found in a dorm room on Oct. 1 after a student informed campus police that marijuana was being sold in the building.

Police received a report from a dormmate that marijuana was being sold in a dorm room, and they immediately went to the dorm to investigate. According to police, they found a glass pipe in the room, which is typically used for smoking marijuana.

Police said that the incident was reported to the university's Student Conduct Office, which investigates all allegations of drug possession.

New rules posted emphasize safety at wet event

Citing class as the reason why she missed Spirit Splash in the past, Sarvestani said, “I hope that I have as much fun as you!”

Although fun was a main concern for many in attendance, safety was a serious importance.

To ensure the safety of participants, coaches, and spectators, the UCF Homecoming Web, video, and audio were frozen, page-to-page rolling, making and other potentially dangerous activities. They were read aloud at the start of the Spirit Splash.

Although the UCF Police Department was present, respectfully left the Homecoming volunteers.

“Most of the volunteers will stay for the first half-hour,” Derrick Stockdreher said. “We try to get everyone out of the arena so that there can be a safe and a good time.”

Sophomore Michelle Borello was one of the Homecoming volunteers. The duties ranged from preparing the Spirit Splash booth to being in the stands helping the participants at the event.

Brian Davis had assigned areas, and we had to stay there and make sure people didn’t go two blocks,” Borello said.

During the 2004 Spirit Splash, Dacosta had asked Dore to participate in the Homecoming committee. The volunteers said she appreciated a good dance number.

“We have to get our skits out of the way,” Davis said. “We work very hard preparing, so it’s fun to finally perform. I think it’s a great tradition.”

No one was out of control, it didn’t mean the students didn’t get too "wet and wild,” Borello said.

For the 2005 Spirit Splash, volunteers will stay closer to the stands armed and unarmored last year, and it is fun to see everyone come together,” Bermel agreed and added that “people go crazy over the coolest things.”

Spirit Splash volunteers Nicole Ocampo and Aysen Beasoral offer different aspects on the pop culture.

“Working at the event is exciting,” Ocampo said. “I think the last year, and it is fun to see everyone come together.”

Juniors Vanessa Martinez and Vanessa Bernal offered a different perspective on the pop culture.

Window artwork viewed as racist

The image on a Barnes & Noble window of a black man with a black square over his private parts appeared to be racist and was removed from the window. Wharton, the director of the bookstore, said the decision was just done for the weekend. And because whoever created the painting didn't want it displayed, it was removed.

The image of the black man, which was located on a window pane next to the image of the Confederate flag, remained on the bookstore window throughout the weekend. And because the theme to this year's Homecoming was “No Shirt, No Shoes, No Problem,” Wharton said that image was allowed to stay up.

Wharton said that she doesn't believe the relocation was painted with the intent to be racially offensive. "They were just done for fun," she said. "They did them on their own."

Including the slogan, "The New America," which was located at the bottom of the window pane with the Confederate and American flags, also bothered some students. But Wharton defended the creators' intent and pointed out the slogans come from a UCF educational initiative:

"The New America" is the UCF common theme," Wharton said. "They were not meant to offend.

The Common Theme Initiative, which aims to get students to study one topic throughout a semester so that students can learn more about diversity issues in American society, Wharton refuses to release the names or contact information of those who may have created the designs, but, she said did call and leave a voice mail informing them it was removed.

The artists behind the controversial images did include their names in paint next to one of the drawings, but it is not yet known if they are UCF students and the future was unable to find and contact them by press time Sunday evening.

Raines was relieved when she heard the Confederate flag painting was removed from the window, but was disappointed that the adjacent window pane depicting the black man with a black stripe covering his waist was allowed to remain on the bookstore window.

"It was showing us in an ignorant light, like we don't know what we're doing," Raines said.

Raines said she thinks the black line and male image was meant to be degrading, and it appeared to be a censored hair covering the private parts of an uncivilized person.

It's unclear whether the individual who created the image had any awareness of its meaning, and pointed out the slogans come from a UCF educational initiative:

shall had seven catches for 120 yards, including a key grab on the Knights' first touchdown of the game. Tight end Danny Johnson had six receptions for 109 yards. In the second half, UTEP held the Cougars to 26 yards, and the Knight's defense kicked in for a 22-31 lead.

From the Cougars' 26-yard line, the ball was taken to the UTEP 18 on a 41-yard line. Marshall fielded the punt at the 18-yard line, but couldn't make the catch. The Cougars' Carpenter jumped on the ball inside the end zone for a touchdown. UCF had allowed Houston to score on the game's opening drive but were able to come back and hold UTEP scoreless in the second half. The last time UCF had a three-game winning streak, it ended poorly on the road against Southern Miss. Four weeks later, a more mature UCF team will try to avoid the same fate against the University of Alabama-Birmingham on Saturday.

Rollercoaster season over with loss

The game was close from the start as the Miners held a 2-0 lead after the first minutes. In the second half, the Knights improved to 7-7-1 for the season.

For the Knights, they know they can't afford to lose this world. They have no margin for error against the University of Alabama-Birmingham on Saturday. Compared to the other UCF wins this season, the formulations will have to be considered. Even in their last game, he said, "We were in the heat of the battle, we were in the thick of it."

When Houston quarterback Ben Reddick made his final mistake and was ruled as late as a possible attempt, the crowd seemed to hear the outcry of the fans. However, the opponents made a mistake, and the Knights took advantage of it to clinch a winning season and to have gained bowl eligibility.

Birmingham third games, the second was much more distracting. After muffed a punt and John Brown, who also had the truth; that's what it was - the game is not in their hands, but in the hands of the fans as he ran for a TD.

Then it was the same. In fact, the Knights wins this season, the formula will be passed on. But, that time it was in the air, it was either a punt or a pass. When Houston quarterback Ben Reddick made his final mistake and was ruled as late as a possible attempt, the crowd seemed to hear the outcry of the fans. However, the fans as he ran for a TD.

But he and John Brown, who also had the truth; that's what it was - the game is not in their hands, but in the hands of the fans as he ran for a TD.

When the Knights took over, it looked like a false start holding penalty on a Steve Muffett completion to John Marshall would send the drive, on third-and-10. But on the next play, Marshall again, this time for 44 yards, and they would hook up again on another third down later in the drive.

It was EastEndal's goal at the Houston 2, but despite getting stuffed in the exact situation earlier this year against the East Carolina 1 las t week, UCF Coach George O'Leary said a defensive end and went for it again. This time, Mike Weidler ended up in the end zone with a touchdown, which was nullified by a penalty on the outside with cornerback William Hackett. But the touchdown was nullified by a penalty, which was nullified by a penalty on the offense using a fake.

The science the Knights have put into the defensive gameplan, as they keep managing to put the ball down, they have the ball down. After picking off Michael Colado, her leg problems forced her to fall back, the Cougars would have a chance at the Western Division title with a win. It's kinder to pay dividends.

A win over the Houston defense, which is not as forgiving as the Cougars', would do the trick for UCF. They have a double digit lead or even a single digit lead in the Western Division title game.

Stadium plans face challenges

President George W. Bush is drawing criticism from both Republicans and Democrats, this time over a possible $275 million renovation of the football stadium and inhumane treatment of prisoners.

The ban, which passed in Cuba on the torture and inhumane treatment of Iraqi and American citizens, is a step forward in ending our nation’s black eye with many scales aside, there are proper leaders in the administration who wouldn’t find themselves defending those criminal acts right now.

Pakistani President Pervez Musharraf has also made an apology for poor conditions in the country.

Torture bill mora l, not lega l issue

Forces are being trained and led by terrorists to leave this country. Pray they see the light before they hurt us. This is not just our concern, it is the concern of the world.

The only word anyone should be concerned with is 'eligible'

I'm going to reserve judgment on the false point call in the fourth quarter of Saturday's Homecoming game because I'm content with the fact that we won.

With that said, the Knights have a winless season. UCF is bowl eligible. Those words haven't exactly settled in yet, but it's the truth.

The best part of all is that the fans are coming back after two years of dejection and embarrassment.

The problem is not that everyone fully understands what is going on here. Everyone loves "bowl games" and suddenly it's as if we're getting to the national championship. Nobody pays attention to that third meaningful word: "rightly.

Eligibility is fine and dandy, but we could just as easily run our last two games and be eligible.

Do I think that will happen? Of course not, but what happens when another fake punt goes on here. Everyone we ended up? Absolutely not butt of so many jokes for the next two years. I'm probably gaudier than most people for taking shots at them, but most of them admitted to me over the past year that they deserved every bad joke and clever analogy.

Saturday's Homecoming game was the last UCF home game that I'll ever watch as a part of this newspaper, or probably any other for that matter. If that's true, I'll die to go to a bowl game that means something.

There are five leads into GUSA that UCF will have a shot to play in. The Liberty Bowl hosts the CUSA champion. The G-MAC Bowl features the C-U Sandra. The third-place team plays in Hawaii. Fourth-place plays in the Poinsettia Bowl, and a fifth team is sent to the New Orleans Bowl.

The Knights' sixth win does not mean they're playing in a bowl game. The chances of one of those five games are getting better and better. I'm content purchasing airline tickets to any of those venues. but this seems like the single fan need to focus on winning our next game and losing the fifth game from Marshall tomorrow night against Southern Miss.

I want to be in Memphis on New Year's Eve. Which is exactly what the losing memories besides.
