Hockey squad heating up ice
Club team makes gains as more fans take notice

Fans of the UCF Ice Hockey Club may be a small group when compared to the numbers that turn out for football or basketball games, but they're just as enthusiastic.

Despite the chill of the RDV Sportsplex, home ice of the UCF Ice Hockey Club, the atmosphere is well-heated by the passionate yells of UCF fans. Many do attend is enough to rile even the calmest viewer.

"It's a lot different compared to traveling up, down and across the South," said Otto Phanstiel, an associate professor in the department of chemistry at the UCF College of Education.

Hockey fans take inspiration from a dunking booth, uses unique teaching methods, including dressing up in paper grocery bags, dancing and singing to the tune of The Doors is one way to survive dressing up in paper grocery bags, dancing and singing to the tune of The Doors is one way to survive

"Most students don't even know we have a team, but the ones who have attended games continue to come back," said Nick Roefaro, a junior and president of the UCF Ice Hockey Club.

A decade later, the UCF Ice Hockey Club has quickly grown from a knockaround team to a structured, competitive organization.

"The club has drastically changed," Roefaro, a three-year veteran of the team said. "It was more of a pickup team at first! A bunch of guys would come together and rent the ice."

"It's the perfect match for the ice," Roefaro said. "The club continues against other Division III teams throughout the southern region of the U.S., which encompasses 28 collegiate hockey clubs."

Travelling up, down, and across the South, the team has hosted a different kind of happy hour.

"We're just as enthusiastic when compared to the numbers that turn out for football or basketball games, but they're just as enthusiastic when compared to the numbers that turn out for football or basketball games, but they're just as enthusiastic.

On Feb. 20, the UCF College of Education's HAPPY Hour Bunch will present its first annual HAPPY "Having Active Participation, Perseverance Two" Hour Student Showcase, a six-hour mid-conference featuring the work of 28 undergraduate education majors.

Presentation will cover a wide range of topics including confidence building, children's literature and improving Power-Point presentations.

Although he has made presentations before in a classroom setting, this is his first presentation before a live audience. Although he has made presentations before in a classroom setting, this is his first presentation before a live audience.

The reviews of the HAPPY Hour Committee are on both the education major field of study and the students. The reviews are also instrumental in securing national and state grants for education majors for some of the workshops. Through their efforts, they have been enhancing the professional development of UCF's education majors and the Central Florida community.

Imagine a nervous student standing in front of a room of his peers, about to give a speech. He has practiced his presentation at home and in his head countless times. Yet here he is, facing all those entertain-ment-seeking eyes. Half a minute until show-time. Suddenly his heart starts beating faster. His hands are shaking, his mouth is dry, and he can't seem to catch his breath.

"There are only three ways to make money: Sell a product, sell a service, sell yourself," said Thompson.

Thompson emphasized his point by referencing Stephen R. Covey's book The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People, in which Covey did a study on millionaires. "In that study he found that 85 percent of the students did a similar study himself," said Thompson.

"The one thing they all had in common was the ability to throw themselves in a situation with which they are not comfortable," Thompson said.

This is the first study to carry out this form of research on brain tumors in adults. The research was funded by the European Journal of Cancer, which has been supported by U.S. Defense Department grants and other organizations.

Researchers believe that the findings, which were published in the European Journal of Cancer, could provide insights into the development of new treatments for cancer. The study also found that the tumors were more common in males than in females.

The research was led by Dr. Richard Myers, who is a professor of oncology at the University of Central Florida. Myers said that the findings could lead to new therapies for cancer patients.

The research was supported by the U.S. Department of Defense's National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society.

Fixing security issues

Windows XP network bugs uncovered

TECH BEAT

Last week, CNET Network reported on a new laptop security issue discovered by Mark Lewis, a vulnerability researcher. The article was immediately met with skepticism by Internet users debating whether the issue was a flaw or vulnerability.

The security weakness concerns the way a computer interacts with Windows XP when it cannot access a wireless network upon boot. Under certain settings, a Windows XP machine will connect to any available network, even potentially dangerous peer-to-peer (computer-to-computer) networks. Such a connection allows hackers to access important information, mask their Web browsing, or delete important files.

“Something allowing people to access hard drives should not be turned on by default,” even Greg Allard, a computer science major, said.

Microsoft will release an official fix for the issue with its next XP service pack, due out in mid-June after its planned launch of Windows Vista.

For many XP users, the exploit is easily avoided in several ways.

- Updating to Windows XP Service Pack 2 is the first step in fixing the problem. Service Pack 2’s built-in firewall will stop malicious attacks made over a peer-to-peer network.
- Other software features, such as Zone Labs ZoneAlarm or Groove’s AVG Firewall, will also protect against attacks.
- In the event of virus protection and security, I keep my laptop updated. I downloaded Windows updates and use Norton [Virus Protection],” Chris Elder, a UCF mathematics major, said. As a user of Service Pack 2, Elder is protected by Windows’ built-in firewall.
- Connecting to a peer-to-peer network does not immediately endanger a user unless the computer hosting the connection initiates a malicious attack.
- When it comes to hackers on campus using this exploit, UCF student Myra Stringfellow said, “I really highlights students. The main purpose of it is to teach students what firewall is, because all of our professions are undergraduates, students,” she said. “I never thought that high school would be this type of people.”
- Junior elementary education major Brianne Hierlman echoed Elder’s sentiments. “I think everyone’s excited about it, she said. “We’re all going to boot it a lot from now on another.”
- Beaucarne is giving a presentation titled “Leadership for Little Learning Leaders,” which will focus on team-building and communication activities. She is also a LEAP Scholars alumna and has a lot of hands-on experience in leadership training and in the classroom.

conferences. “I had very confiden” he said. “I’m promoting something I had never thought about. I found it to be a really fascinating topic.”

The HAPPY Hour Bunch, a group of UCF faculty members from the College of Education and Professional Development, started in the fall 2004 as an informal workshop.

They focus professional development through interactive and informative presentations by local education professionals and other UCF faculty. The workshops were so successful that the committee decided to expand its program to include a major conference.

According to Karen Verkerk, chair of the HAPPY Hour Bunch, what makes the conference different from the workshops is that instead of having students learning from professionals, the students will be learning from each other.

It is unique because all of our presenters are undergraduates, students,” she said. “It really highlights students. The main purpose of it is to teach students what firewall is, because all of our professions are undergraduates, students.”

In addition, the conference is a wonderful way to do that.”

The event showcases students of the program, well-known educators and professors of the program. "It’s more of a feature, considering the fact that most laptops now have firewalls,” Elder said.

While Microsoft’s SP2 fixes stop potential attacks, Allard disagrees with Microsoft’s decision to wait until their next service pack to address the root of the problem.

“The ability to update doesn’t give software developers the right to ship out software and worry about fixing it later,” he said.

"Pan-Africanism is perhaps the most neglected of all the political transformations," Young said. "This is a question of political interest on the African continent, elements of Pan-Africanism were always being revived and reimagined.

Young, an assistant professor in political science and African-American studies, led students and faculty members on a journey through the history of African-American studies at UCF in conjunction with the university's African-American Studies Institute.

"We have to learn from our national tournament," Young said. "We have to go over what we've been helping us along this way. We're going over have been having us helping us along this way."

The team will meet its second in the second round of the national tournament and then will position itself to attend the lectures this season.

One of the highest-funded clubs on the UCF Ice Hockey Club, the team received about $8,000 this year. About $2,500 in additional funding came mainly from players' pockets.

Despite financial setbacks and a small fan base, the team is determined to make UCF for Hockey a permanent presence in the UCF sports scene.

"We're on the right path of this season of becoming a serious threat to win the national championship," Young said. "We've got to focus on only improve the future," Young added.

Some players can even imagine UCF for Hockey as a varsity sport in its future.

"We could play at the arena," Young said. "There are NCAA teams as far south as Huntsville. Ala. Why shouldn't we have one?"

Researchers asked party administrators to evaluate information that threatened the war. In the case of the 2004 presidential election, the subject was monitored while they thought about the results. The researchers announced "Tuesday" decision.

According to LiveScience, Derek Winton, director of clinical and laboratory at Emory’s Department of Pathology, both Republicans and Democrats came to biased conclusions by ignoring information that could not be ruled out as a possibility. A summary shows that men and women were similarly able to make a decision. Following this process, the men had more information than the women.

The large number of men, brain activity caused by the neural circuitry of emotional thoughts, makes the men and women's preferences more diverse. In other words, men are more likely to make a decision by choosing the path of the brain that controls emotions and activation of positive ones. Winton told LiveScience.

"There is a lot to be learned by this group," the historian review said. And all doomed and should drop this fact... those who are more likely to make a decision. In the case of our studies, we have asked all along, maybe we as women can try to be more conscious of our decisions and how we make them. After all, knowing the problem is the first step in its solution.

McCarthy leaves Knights for Bruins

Receivers coach finds new home at UCLA after two years with UCF

ANDY VASQUEZ Staff Writer

Next year's UCF football team will have fewer returning players than any other one of its most prolific players — quarterback Brandon Hurdle, the man who helped guide the Bahamas native for the last two years.

Receivers coach and former UCF assistant coach DJ McCarthy has accepted an offer to coach wide receivers at UCLA, where he will work with the nation's second-leading receiver for the last two years.

"Words cannot express how much I love the UCLA football program with Karl Dorrell and his staff," McCarthy said in a statement released by UCLA. "I feel fortunate to be part of the PAC-12 coaching staff for the last two seasons and I want to let Coach Dorrell and the Bruins' fans know how much I enjoyed being part of the UCLA football program."

Last year, with the Knights, McCarthy helped guide Marshall and thrower Mike Walker, Marshall's 2018 receiver, for 119 yards and 1 touchdown, while Walker had 4 catches for 86 yards and 1 touchdown.

Walker was lauded in UCF's final game of the season, but Marshall continued his remarkable play in the CUSA Championship game and Hawaii. He finished the season with 700-yard receiving yards and 3 games.

In his first season at UCF, McCarthy worked with Trevis Capers and Luther Humm. That year, Capers finished his career ranked in the top 2 for UCF's all-time receiving leaders.

"Coach McCarthy has been an integral part of the Knights' football program these past two seasons," UCF Athletics Director David Coburn said. "We will always be thankful for his hard work and dedication to the program."

McCarthy's departure comes as the Knights prepare to enter their third season under head coach Scott Frost, who led the team to a 7-5 record in 2020 and a 4-2 record in conference play.

"Coach McCarthy's departure is a big loss for our program," Frost said. "He has been a tremendous asset to our football team over the last two years and we wish him all the best in his new role."

Second-half struggles hurt women's team

The Golden Knights lost to Memphis in a game that was competitive through three quarters before falling apart in the fourth.

Memphis senior guard D'Fademere挝 Cornfield pushed the lead to 11 points with 3:42 left, making it 68-57.

"Our team struggled in the second half," said UCF Coach Kim Sparrow. "We had a few turnovers and it cost us the game."
Corporate sponsorship is key to refreshing FedExForum.

The facility takes its boots-and-ball charm and adds a pop of modernity with sleek LED lighting and LED video displays that help with ticketing, concessions and seating.

The arena's official name is FedExForum. The official name of the arena is a sponsor, and many are confused when they see the arena.

The arena is not only a place to watch basketball, but it is also a place to watch football. It is the home of the Memphis Tigers, the University of Memphis football team. The team has been successful in recent years, and the arena has a capacity of 20,000 fans.

Some additional facts about FedExForum:
- The arena was built in 2004 and renovated in 2016.
- It has a capacity of 18,000 fans for basketball games.
- It is the home of the Memphis Grizzlies, the Memphis Tigers, and the Memphis Express.
- The arena has a state-of-the-art video board and scoreboard.
- It is the home of the Holiday Bowl and the Memphis Express football team.

Late struggles result in losses

UCF Coach Gall Striegler was not pleased with the performance of his team. "That poor defense allowed us to have a poor season," Striegler said. "We should have been up by seven at half, not down by nine, and then come back out in the second half and been able to extend it." The Knights did extend their lead to eight early in the second half on a jumper by sophomore guard Amber Long. But the Pirates calmly knocked down two-point shots from three-point range over the final four minutes. Mills and Slack said. "It is extremely frustrating to see us start slow and fall behind, but we are not giving up, and we are trying to do it our way.

The Lady Pirates claimed the lead for the second time this game, 35-34, and the game came down to Amber Long, who was perfect in the first half. The Pirate guards and forwards were scoring in bunches, and the Knights were struggling. "It was a tough game," said Gall Striegler. "We had a lot of opportunities to win this game, but we couldn't close it out.

Why UCF lost...
- The Knights lead the game after the first half, scoring 10 points. However, the Pirates scored 20 points. The Knights were unable to match the Pirates' intensity.
- The Lady Pirates scored 18 of their 20 points in the second half, while the Knights scored 11. The Lady Pirates outscored the Knights 10-2 in the second half.
- The Lady Pirates shot 60% in the second half, compared to 34% for the Knights.
- The Lady Pirates outrebounded the Knights 39-30, including 11-5 on offensive boards.
- The Lady Pirates were 16-of-20 from the free throw line, while the Knights were 7-of-12.
- The Lady Pirates had 30 second-chance points, while the Knights had 10. The Lady Pirates outscored the Knights 14-2 in second-chance points.
- The Lady Pirates scored 12 of their 20 points in the first half, while the Knights scored 8. The Lady Pirates outscored the Knights 12-8 in the first half.
- The Lady Pirates scored 10 of their 20 points in the second half, while the Knights scored 10. The Lady Pirates outscored the Knights 10-10 in the second half.
- The Lady Pirates scored 10 of their 20 points in the first half, while the Knights scored 9. The Lady Pirates outscored the Knights 9-9 in the first half.
- The Lady Pirates scored 10 of their 20 points in the second half, while the Knights scored 10. The Lady Pirates outscored the Knights 10-10 in the second half.
- The Lady Pirates scored 10 of their 20 points in the first half, while the Knights scored 9. The Lady Pirates outscored the Knights 9-9 in the first half.

THE ART OF THE MOTORCYCLE

UCF Art Gallery examines space between heaven, earth

JACK SHORT (Contributing Writer)

Selected pieces from the varied repertoires of artists Isamu Noguchi and the Harley-Davidson Motor Company, which is known for its motorcycles, are on display through March 5 in the UCF Art Gallery. Director Ed Hansen Youngblood chose the pieces that should reflect a career that "straddled the industrial and the aesthetic and the historic qualities of some of the most iconic, and popular, moving art machineries in America.

Looking at motorcycles as an art form may seem unusual, but curators say that the show is flush with artistic merit.

"The key thing that impressed me when I first saw the show...is how beautiful they are," OMA Curator实现Hammer said.

TITIAN DECK

Hogs, bikes, cruisers, choppers, dirt bikes, scooters — there are a lot of different names for motorcycles, but there's one word that isn't often used.

Art

But there's a movement to shake that perception and raise awareness about the artistic beauty of these iconic machines. The Orlando Museum of Art is attracting more than the regular art lovers with its new exhibit, The Art of the Motorcycle.

Visitors can see more than 80 historically significant and beautiful motorcycles, based on the popular 2006 exhibit at the Guggenheim Museum in New York City.

The exhibit, which runs through July 31, is organized in chronological order with attention drawn to design style and relation to popular culture.

Large pictures of celebrities on motorcycles and even video clips of motorcycles from famous films add to the substance of the exhibit.

Exhibit shows motorcycles through ages

By Leni

Foundation Director Thomas Krema wrote in The Art of the Motorcycle press release, "The object and its history present the themes of technology, engineering, innovation, design, mobility, speed, rebellion, death, freedom, love, sex and death..."

The motorcycles were selected based on four criteria: the themes of technology, engineering, innovation, design, and cultural impact. By Leni reviews the exhibition, which touches on interesting facts and stories about touring, which touches on interactive, technical engineering, style and beauty, and cultural impact.

There is even a replica of possibly the most famous motorcycle in film, the Harley-Davidson "Captain America" chopper ridden by Peter Fonda in Easy Rider. Two were made for the original movie, but one was destroyed during filming and a second was stolen before the film came out in theaters. The reproduction is easy to recognize with its shiny chrome, "ape-hanger" handle bars, and American-flag gas tank. The inscription below it reads, "This is a pure style statement."

One interesting piece included in the exhibition is a rare fully restored 1904 Indian. A list of the numbers of the Zundapp KS-750 from the World War II era, with its three shaft instead of chain and machine gun-mounted sidecar.

A variety of motorcycle manufacturers are represented, including Vespa, Harley-Davidson, Ducati, Honda, BMW, Triumph and many others.

While there, be sure to check out a documentary called R.U.B.S. (Ride Urban Bikers) and a short film called Weekend Warriors by UCF film students Keith Alex Morais and Dino Gallina. "We were interested in finding out what people thought a true biker was," Gallina wrote in an e-mail Tuesday. "We were also interested in the emotions that one feels when looking. Lastly, we wanted to find out what motivated people to become bikers."

rehearsal, three hours before the band is to go on at Australia. In a rather entertaining piece, the band performs a medley of their songs, in a stripped-down, "unplugged" style.

As with most concert DVDs, there are numerous close-up crowd shots throughout the concert. One however, will notice that, despite a large crowd, each shot remains intimate in the fact that fans can easily dance around, and show their love for KISS. Although there are thousands of fans, they are not packed in shoulder-to-shoulder.

The atmosphere remains intimate, yet notably during the song, "I Was Made For Lovin' You." Stanley acknowledges the fans in the front row, stating they may have written a book of those fans. Conversely, those fans in the back can have slept. In the background, Stanley's all right to sleep just make sure you got to "the good songs!"

In an effort to reach the fans in the "cheese seats" Stanley bores across the room on a sit coat and proceeds to perform with his newfound friends. Spots like these only make the concert more entertaining.

As the stage itself stands out in others. There are walls of smoke and also numerous giant TV screens. The band's movements corresponded with each song performed, such as shots of Eric Clapton and the Beatles during "God Game Rock 'N Roll To You.

The production comes to a close with KISS' signature song, "Rock and Roll All Night." Throughout the final song, there are dozens of pyrotechnic displays and loads of falling confetti. By the end, the stage becomes engulfed in a mist of smoke, fire and confetti... But the guitar smash into pieces like a true rock 'n roll concert finale!

Pick up KISS Rock the Nation Live and find out. Also, for KISS members, the House of Blues will be hosting "KISS Alive! A Tribute to KISS" Saturday at 9 p.m.
