Candidates begin their race

SGA presidential election picture becomes clear as hopefuls announce intentions

FOLLOWING DeVlieger in the race for the student body president's position are Mark White and Jared Stout, who released a statement earlier this week saying, "The university is growing, and it's time to have a real commitment to real change in student government's ideology and priorities." White and Stout also "urge students to be well educated in the issues this year." A letter drafted to the student body by presidential hopefuls Fagnan and Allen stated that "This February, the university will have its first student body presidential elections, and we're looking forward to a year of serving as your next president and vice president. We encourage you to follow the campaign process and hold the entire field of candidates to the highest standards of accountability." While three teams gear up for campaigning, many are waiting for the ever-lengthening list of student

UCF employees will sell ads, cookbooks to raise money for human, environmental causes

For anyone who wants to share their talents in the kitchen, whether home or professional, now is the time to do so.

The Office of Administration and Finance will be taking part in the Florida State Employees' Charitable Campaign by having a cookbook sale this year. FSECC is an opportunity for employees to give of whatever it may be, now is the time to do so.

"People can begin campaigning as soon as they have successfully declared candidacy, and there will be a candidate forum and bake sale on Green Dot. It will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday, 20th February. You can also do it," said Fagnan, who previously participated annually.

Meghan White, a resident assistant in the Office of Administration and Finance and chair of the cookbook committee, said that the goal of the project is to give employees, faculty and staff the opportunity to donate money to numerous organizations and charities.

"The event will feature chocolate delicacies and souffles from Roy's, and a cake from Sprinkles Custom Bakery. There will be Mississippi Mud Pie from Godiva and chocolate fountains from The Chocolate Fountains. Many other items will be donated for the event." White said.

"There are also opportunities for students to contribute by bringing in their creations," she said.

"Auction this Friday at the Tuscawilla Country Club at 7 p.m. The public can purchase tickets for $30, and there will be a chance to bid on more items. The proceeds will be donated to charity by club members." Fagnan said.

According to Kerry Gregovich, who also works in Administration and Finance, White is primarily responsible for the event. She said that the process was a joint effort, with FSECC last semester as it was concluded in November, but will continue to be going on throughout the semester.

"She put a lot of work into dreaming up the cookbook idea," Gregovich said. "As well as getting sponsorships and advertisements from businesses in the community.

Student groups to find independence in college

For most college students, this is not as easy as it seems. According to a professor and chair of the psychology department Robert L. Bileyc, college is a time for students to start commitment and explore options.

"The two big issues that I believe most young people confront when they leave home and go to college are the issues of work and love," Bileyc said. "The former concerns what you will choose as your life's work and is one you must confront when you leave home and go to college are the issues of work and love." Bileyc said.

What is the news article about? The article is about the situation at New Orleans' colleges and universities during and after Hurricane Katrina. It discusses the challenges they faced in recovering and reopening, the financial impact, the impact on students and faculty, and the efforts to support them. It also mentions the aftermath of the alleged sexual assault and the actions taken by the university.

What are the main points of the article?

1. New Orleans' colleges and universities were facing financial difficulties due to the hurricane.
2. The University of New Orleans had to delay the start of the fall semester due to the extensive damage.
3. Financial aid was being processed for students who were displaced and needed help.
4. The university was also dealing with the aftermath of an alleged sexual assault.
5. The university's president, Dr. Susan Martin, was quoted as saying that the university was doing its best to support its students and faculty.

What is the significance of the university's response?

The university's response is significant because it shows the resilience and commitment of the institution to its students and the community. The university is working hard to help its students recover from the disaster and to ensure that they have the resources they need to continue their education.

leaders who are leaving student government for the professional world. Floyd, a senior, has held numerous leadership positions at UCF. In addition to her membership on the President's Leadership Council, Floyd has been president of the Panhellenic Council. She was also on the 2005 Homecoming Court.

As she prepares for graduation this spring and a transition into the professional world, Floyd is talking about her involvement with SGA and her decision not to seek a higher office.

"Ever since I became involved with Senate two years ago, I've thought of student body president as a position that could create a lot of change and have a lot of influence," Floyd said. "It was something that I always wanted to do."

Floyd, who was president of her high school's student council, began early in 2005 to seriously consider planning a campaign for office.

"During the summer I decided it was definitely something I wanted to pursue," she said.

Soon after Winter Break, however, Floyd chose to jump into her career sooner rather than later. "I saw an opportunity to pursue my career and after weighing all of the options, decided that it running for president was not the best thing for the long run," she said.

Floyd will graduate with a degree in health services administration this spring and continue to work in the field as she pursues her master's at UCF.

When asked about the qualities she finds important in the next student body president, Floyd said, "The university needs to be looking for a strong president to stand up for the students."

Active campaigning for the 2006 SGA presidential election began this week, with formal elections scheduled for the week of Feb. 20. The Future will provide continuing elections coverage during this time.

Declaration of candidacy ends today at 5 p.m., and all steps necessary to run for SGA student body president can be found online at http://www.sga.ucf.edu.

Motorcycle tale more lightweight than light speed

WILLIAM GOSS

The World’s Fastest Indian refers to the motorcycle of one Burt Munro, the New Zealand native who set the land speed record with his tiny bike. The film’s laughablyjours, however, turn out to be just as smooth as the soft fists on which the record was broken. After all, what is more endearing than an elderly eccentric dedicated to breaking the land speed record? According to Julian, it’s a damn thing.

Anthony Hopkins delivers an adequately lightweight performance as the perpetually tidy lead, ensuring an endless string of declaration and suspense as he travels halfway around the world. But most of all, this month is way too unpre-

I hate February. It’s the worst month of the year. Why, you ask?

First of all, it is too short to get anything done. You’d be sur

1. Being single rocks because you don't have to pick up the tab.
2. Being single rocks because you can have as many or as few dates as you want.
3. Being single rocks because you can do all those dirty things you love to do, and no one can make you feel bad for it. Go ahead, do a paint-by-numbers. Watch that wonderful-ly-carved chick. No one needs to know.

2. Being single rocks because single people know themselves better than anyone else. When you don't spend 24/7 with anyone other than yourself, you tend to be a little introspective. That is a good thing because if you don't know yourself how do you expect anyone else to know you?

HONORS GARDEN OFFERS PLACE OF SANCTUARY

Students use wireless Internet-equipped garden for studying and social gatherings in an area of quiet solitude and peace.

Before reaching the garden gate, the sound of a waterfall fills the air. The branches quietly rustle in the wind as a petal slowly falls to the ground.

The garden was created to showcase the Honors College and provide a quiet place for students. Director of Student Affairs Jill Norbum said it is completely wireless so students can use the Internet without having to leave the serenity of the outdoors. There are also tables set up for study sessions and a waterfall to listen to when the school gets too noisy.

The garden provides a place for students to study or relax and for teachers to hold classes. "The layout is designed to encourage solitary meditation, as well as a place for social gatherings," student Wesley Lima said. The gates surrounding it detach the garden from the rest of campus.

"It is like an oasis in the middle of campus," he added. It receives its funding for upkeep through the membership fee honors students pay toward the Honors Congress. It also receives many donations, including one from professor Richard Tucker who donated a 200-pound starfish from his trips to the Philippines. The Lukas Nursery provides the school with bamboo, hibiscus and many exotic plants.

For two-and-a-half years, Herlinda Bedoya has cared for the garden. She changed the plants every three to four months to add variety for the visitors, and the diversity helps to keep the bugs away. During the hurricanes, she was responsible for cleaning up the debris and replacing the plants lost due to the wind and the sudden cold weather after it.

It is not only a place to study, but also to celebrate academic achievements, for example the National Merit Scholars holds its reception here. Furthermore, the garden is a prime spot for graduation and club pictures.

For images of the variety of plants in the gardens go to http://www.honors.ucf.edu/tour/garden.html.

Herlinda Bedoya, above left, tends to the Burnett Honors College Garden as she has done for the past two-and-a-half years. She prepares the plants for the visitors, and the garden is a place for social gatherings, as student Wesley Lima said. The gates surrounding it detach the garden from the rest of campus.

Knights return home for big showdown with Anderson, UAB

Before this season, UCF athletics was associated with national TV only when former Knights quarterback Darren Collie's profile was mentioned during an NFL game. Even then, announcers would screw up, calling his name variously UTC, UCF, or some other appealing alternative.

Not anymore.

The men's basketball team takes the floor at the UCF Arena Saturday against Alabama-Birmingham with something to prove. For the second straight weekend, CSTV will televise UCF nationally, something the Knights may not want if their first showing was any indication of things to come.

On Saturday, the Knights were routed 94-61 by a superior Memphis team, one first showing was anything the Knights may not want for big showdown with CSTV on Saturday, for the conference's second televised game of the season.

Blackout at the arena

Marketing looking to 'Black out' UCF Arena for national broadcast

The UCF men's basketball team is hoping to impress a national audience on Saturday at 3 p.m., when it takes on Alabama-Birmingham in a pivotal Conference USA matchup.

The Knights are also hoping that UCF fans will show up in impressive numbers to "Black out" the UCF Arena and mark a first in UCF athletics history.

On Saturday, for the first time ever, a UCF men's basketball game will be broadcast to a national audience live from campus. UCF Coach Ken Scribner and the Knights are asking that fans show their support by wearing black.

"We're trying to put on a good face on the nation and everybody watching CSTV,' UCF's Assistant Director of Sports Marketing Jared Elsler said. "Please try to put on a good face for the nation and everybody watching 'CSTV.'"

Bench points the difference as women lose to Blazers

UAB reserves score 65 of teams 90 as UCF falls to 11th place in league play

BRIAN MURPHY

For the UCF women's basketball team, it seems as if there is one rule it must follow if it wants to win games: It can't put up too many points on the scoreboard.

The Golden Knights have lost the three games where they crossed that line, including their 107-60 defeat to Alabama-Birmingham on Saturday.

"We are not an offensive team," UCF Coach Craig Strieglar said. "We just hope every game in the 90s to have a chance to win it."

It had been over two years since the Knights were able to score over 70 points before Saturday.

The Blazers got out of the gate quickly and pulled ahead by six points after a 14-4 run to start back game, and it may be as ugly a game as it can be: The Knights leave you to your own writing.

After a 3:30 burst by junior guard Frankie Houston, the Blazers took the offensive. The Knights began their own run and were able to retake the advantage, 23-22, with 4:25 left. During that span, the defense held the Blazers to 0-for-5 in the paint. The lead would change hands seven times in the first half.

The lead would change hands seven times in the first half.

In the second half, the Knights stranded their lead to five. For a majority of the 10-minute run, the teams were separated by just one point. With 4:02 left in the game, the Knights started to descend.

Coming into the game, Strieglar and the Knights knew that the Blazers were a team that thrives on scoring inside. Only two Blazers had more than nine shots from 3-point range heading into Sunday's tilt. Unfortunately, for the Knights, they couldn't find their shot for the remainder of the game.

"We did not do a good job of taking away their strengths," Strieglar said. "We let the kids who wanted to drive, drive and you just can't do that.

In the second half, the Blazers doubled up the Knights in points in the 31-24 run.

The Knights' bench contributed just 16 points and three assists.

This was a big one for the Knights because it was the ninth time they have moved to the Dancing shoes.

Sunday's Super Bowl isn't the only big weekend event

On Sunday, the Super Bowl halftime show will feature U2, Lady Gaga, Bruno Mars, Katy Perry and more. The Ernesto Valverde's team is set to take the field against the Los Angeles Rams at 6:30 p.m. (ET).

The game will be broadcast on CBS and can be streamed on CBS All Access.

The Halftime show will also include a performance by U2, which will be joined by Lady Gaga, Bruno Mars, and Katy Perry. The show is expected to last around 13 minutes and will feature a mix of music and dance performances.

The game is expected to be a defensive battle between two of the best defenses in the NFL.

The Los Angeles Rams are led by defensive coordinator Wade Phillips, who has been coaching in the NFL for over 40 years. The Rams have one of the best defenses in the league, with a strong pass rush and a tough secondary.

On the other side, the New England Patriots are led by defensive coordinator Matt Patricia, who has been coaching in the NFL for over 20 years. The Patriots have a strong defense led by star linebacker Jamie Collins. The Patriots are expected to be a tough challenge for the Rams.

For Southern Miss, this has not been what it was. The coupling is more than a good chance that they could be hosting something to see a repeat effort of the USA Tournament.

DID YOU KNOW...?

- The US with 5% of the world’s population consumes 45% of the gasoline produced on earth
- By 2040, the number of cars in the world is estimated to quadruple to 3.2 billion from 800 million today
- Overall US automotive fuel efficiency has fallen 8% since 1988
- Known oil production and reserves will barely meet world-wide demand through the year 2030
- Over $220 billion dollars per year is spent purchasing foreign oil, with $40 billion going to Saudi Arabia alone

As educated consumers and voters, we have the power to effect change one purchase, one vote at a time. Before you buy that next car, truck, van or SUV consider the long-term impacts. We can make a considerable dent in our consumption and dependency by buying more fuel efficient vehicles, starting today. Next, demand that our elected officials know the importance of this issue. It’s time to declare our nation’s second independence and make Middle East oil strategically irrelevant.

Americans for Energy Independence, Inc. is dedicated to raising the consciousness of the American public about the critical need for making Energy Independence a national priority, and to using grass roots support to achieve our independence by the year 2025.

drug rule should stay intact

The reaction followed by NORML, displays enough of a reasonable constitutional logic one would expect from that group. That is not to mock NORML, indeed under the right circumstances, I too, would probably vote for the legalization of soft drugs.

However, I opposed to those pushing for a resolution that would end the denial of financial aid to convicted drug users and dealers. The votes as they currently rest are not unfair or discriminatory and are not even real

And the Academy Award goes to ... some movie I have never seen.

Don't worry, no Super Bowl chatter today. I've been thinking about it as everyone else from Detroit to the Minneapolis of reading about it. In fact, no matter what happens, I'll be so glad when it's over.

Besides, we make too much of a big deal about the Super Bowl anyway.

Everyone knows the definition of a professional football player isn't whether or not he can win some esteemed title. The measure of a man is how he performs in the NFL. That's how I see it. And I've guessed that very greatly overlooks infinite half-time games in Honolulu just so they can spend the rest of the weekend making annual promises about girls.

That's what truly defines a professional football player. What defines the rest of us? Well, a smile, of course.

The Academy Award nominations were released this week, and the competition is tighter than — on second thought, I'd rather see Bo Derek in Broke­back Mountain than that. Still, let's not say the competition is heat­ed.

While the future has an excellent movie expert, William Geiss, I wanted to take a stab at my predictions anyway. It was a very tough process for me because these movies and actors were all so great, or at least people told me so.

For fans, picking the numbers are Brokeback Mountain, Crash, Good Night, and Good Luck, and Munich. This is an incredibly close race this year, especially considering I don't see any of these movies.

I watched five minutes of each of these movies last weekend. I've seen both Crash and Munich on TBS, and who knows the rest that will be shown? I may not have seen any of these movies.

As for the Academy, I was deeply upset that Philip Seymour Hoffman in Capote wasn't considered news. We're in the middle of a recession and the face of the planet, The Hustle, was in $7 from the Super Bowl anyway. And the Academy Award goes to ...

For best actor nominees are Terrence Howard in Crash, Philip Seymour Hoffman in Capote, Viggo Mortensen in A History of Violence, and Heath Ledger in A Knight's Tale. That should haunt him for the rest of his career.

Phoenix was in St. Elmos Fire, and I still haven't received my check for $7 from M. Night Shyamalan for Nome of the Dead. Shyamalan was in Right Men Out, and he bested veteran movie star George C. Scott for this year. Arizona's movie star George C. Scott.

An aside from Bo Derek. Hoffman's movie history reeks like the ingredient list on a bottle of extra-dirty cough syrup. Ledger? These words: A Knight's Tale. That should haunt him for the rest of his career.
