Learning about World War II firsthand. New class offers study-abroad lesson plan to European sites.

A new course is about to give students the opportunity to experience World War II through the eyes of students who served with just more than textbooks.

Lori Walters, who works for UCF’s Institute for Simulation and Training, came up with the idea for the class, World War II: Study Abroad, and is about to bring it to life with the help of Michelle Adams, who works for UCF’s history department. The course will be offered during the summer session and is mainly Web-based, with one exception—students will get to study abroad in Europe for two weeks.

Walters originally came up with the course idea in 2004 while watching the anniversary of the D-Day landings on television. This anniversary was thought to be one of the last before the D-Day 60th anniversary would be able to attend, Walters said.

"While I was watching, I thought, ‘God, it’d be great if I could have been there,’” she said.

The anniversary reminded Walters of when she studied abroad for a semester in Oxford, and learned about the different perspectives of the war.

"We view World War II in a certain way because of our experiences, but other nations view it differently because of their own national experiences,” Walters said. “This class is to allow students the opportunity to see what I had been told and be able to understand World War II.”

Some of the historic locations that students will be visiting are the Imperial War Museum, the Tower of London, a V2 rocket launch site and the Normandy D-Day landing beaches, Adams said.

"You also get the opportunity to see the white cliffs of Dover, which is really cool because if you get far enough out of the United Kingdom, it’s hard to believe there could be a war going on there,” Henry said.

Walters is excited about this opportunity to study abroad. "I was always ...

Bar serves up blues, 118 different types of beer

Personality, alcohol, and music are all aspects of what could be called the music and students Underground Blues. Underground Blues is a bar that has a variety of personalities, from punk, jam rock and especially rock and roll.

There are two locations for this bar, one in the UCF area at 1203 University Blvd. and another at 6626 College Pkwy. Both locations feature different types of music, and each one is just as entertaining as the other.

The UCF location harbors a harder personality. There is no dress code at Underground Blues, so you can wear your favorite jeans and relax in jams, sneaks, skinnies or slacks. The bar opens at 4 p.m. and closes around 2 a.m.

The building is moderately old and the walls are pained a deep blue with the name of blues like Al Hirt. The Headliners, a band in the US with pictures of blues legends like B.B. King, are booked. The walls are covered with a variety of blues that can seat a large party or a party of nine. Next to the bar is a stage with a variety of musical acts throughout the semester.

The bar is a unique blend of music atmosphere because it goes around the world with eclectic music and drinks. The beers offered range from the common Corona, Heineken, and Miller Lite to the rare, such as Blue Moon, Kahlua Mudslides, and Red Horse.

Monday night is Ladies' Night at the Underground Blues. On Tuesday nights, the bar plays various music genres, and there are $5 Yellow Brick Road drafts all night. On Thursday nights, the bar plays general music and has a $1.25 drink special. On Friday nights, the bar features live music and offers a variety of drinks.

Students get preparation for FCAT

MELISSA RODRIGUEZ Contributing Writer

More than 80 Orlando volunteers, including 10 UCF students, offered their time, money and goods to help Ivey Lane Elementary School students improve its F grade on the Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test.

Students took the FCAT this past week.

According to first-year principal Ruth L. Baskerville, the UCF volunteers offered everything to the school.

"The UCF students have taken over Ivey Lane," Baskerville said. "They have tutored, answered and even brought, bought, stored and studied things for the FCAT Mall.

"The FCAT Mall is an incentive program created by Baskerville in order to get more students to attend the after-school and weekend tutoring sessions.

"The students weren't coming to the study sessions, so I figured I'd try something a little different," Baskerville said.

Students would earn reward points for all the hours of studying they put in. Those points act as money at the mall where they could purchase donated merchandise like electronics, toys, clothes, shoes and other items. The mall took place at Ivey Lane on March 4.

"It gives them something to work for," said Jennifer Highsmith, a freshman at UCF.

"They get excited about getting the points and going shopping. The program gives them the incentive to learn and work hard."

UCF students and other volunteers from the UCF community went to the school with the children and helped them pick out what they wanted based on how many points they earned.

"I'm having fun," said Caroline Carman, a graduate student in creative writing and an MSA program.

"It's cool to see the students so excited about earning the points and being able to spend them at the mall," she said. "They are really excited, and I think that, by the turnout today, the incentive system is working very well.

"Ivey Lane has been collecting donations from the volunteers and the community. Over 1,000 household items were collected for the students to choose from.

"It's cool to see the kids buying stuff for their parents and brothers and sisters and not just themselves," Carman said. "It shows how sweet they are.

"The UCF volunteers are enrolled in service-learning classes that place the students in real-life experiences. The students volunteered at Ivey Lane during their FCAT classes.

"When I first started volunteering, the kids weren't as interested in taking with me," Highsmith said. "But now when I come in, they get excited and want to work with me.

"They have really opened up with me. It's interesting to watch them learn and grow." Baskerville said the volunteers helped in the classroom both academically and by monitoring the students with everyday issues. She noticed the students had fewer discipline problems and focused more on academics.

"Highsmith said that Baskerville is behind Ivey Lane's progress.

"She is putting together awards and incentive programs for the kids. This is an ongoing project, but do believe there will be a significant change."

The volunteers plan on working with Ivey Lane students the rest of the semester and some plans on volunteering even longer.

"They are creating a mentor for us at Ivey Lane," Baskerville said. "I would love it if they stick with the students and continue working with us."

Women wanted for new skydiving club at UCF

The door was in preparation for our ride. The photographer leaned out of the doorway and grabbed the camera, which was attached to the wing of the plane. The plane began to take off, and we all stood there, silhouetted against the sky. The wind was loud. It cleared my ears to make everything very quiet. I could hear the rumbling of the engines, the vibration of the aircraft, and the sound of the wind. I could hear my heart pounding in my chest. I could feel my breath racing in my lungs. I could feel my blood rushing through my veins. I could feel my muscles tensing and contracting. I could feel the sweat beading on my forehead. I could feel the skydiving experience with both hands. It was all I could do to keep myself from falling out of the plane.

I look at the statistics, "It's more dangerous to fall out of a plane than it is to skydive," said Gail Loveless, a regular at the UCF Skydiving Center in Lake Wales.

"There's no point in time during my skydiving experience that I felt like I was in danger," she said. "If you look at the statistics, it's more dangerous to fall out of a plane than it is to skydive," said Gail Loveless, a regular at the UCF Skydiving Center in Lake Wales.

"I want to get more people into the sport, especially girls, since it's mostly a male-dominated sport," said Loveless.

Her club will offer its members discounts to the UCF Skydiving Center and members will be encouraged to participate through the certification process. For more information, e-mail Gail at adrenalin09@hotmail.com. To make a direct appointment with the Florida Skydiving Center call 1-800-freefall.

Students talk about Darfur conflict

During a recent interview, Betsy Kuruvilla said that she thought the biggest contribution they could make at this point in Darfur is the formation of Project Darfur into a nonprofit organization. Executive Director of the new organization, Dante Terminello said, "We just didn't expect the project to get as far as it did in such a short amount of time, but where are we making a difference?" He said that he believes the drive for legislative action should be taken to help. "Other organizations have to be taken into account, because there are many of them," he said.

Terminello also said that Project Darfur at UCF is now an official club on campus and that they will begin setting up a table at the Student Union to continue to inform students about what is going on.

As of this point in Project Darfur events were able to start talking about what they thought of the genocide and how they could contribute in their own way. President Betsy Kuruvilla said that she thinks it should be handled, but she doesn't know what's going on.

"It started very small," Kuruvilla said. "But then the biggest contribution I can think of was when we went to Tallahassee. When we went to Tallahassee, I think it was the first step of the project was that. We started working with students who had something to say to the government. What's your opinion?" Kuruvilla said. "When people want to change the world, they focus on the negative, rather than focus on the positive and try to make the positive grow," Kuruvilla said. "What's your concentration on will grow?"

Inconsistency plaguing offense

CHRIS HOYLER

It took the UCF baseball team 19 innings, 36 pitches and a span of one week to end a losing streak.

It gave Tim Bascom a chance to celebrate.

The Golden Knights beat out Friday against Montgomery, scoring five runs in the first and 20 runs in the second on their "way to a 2-0 win. It was a well-deserved change from their last two weekend series openers, when they dropped a challenging one.

But it was more of an all-time repeater than the beginning of something big for the UCF offense, as it came out Saturday and was shut out for eight innings before a ninth-inning rally shorted in a 2-1 loss.

"That's a perfect example, you just don't know what's going to come out," UCF coach Jon Beam said.

"You can't score 20 runs each game, you know. We just came out, and we had the idea that we were going to win and they're not going to play. They played the same game (Saturday) that they did (Friday). There was no difference, and we just messed around a little bit and couldn't muster enough at the end.

"It was similar to the previous two series, when UCF followed Bascom with a young Oldeinyi or returning (Taylor Cob) arm with dismissive result."
Fernandez bounces back for tough victory against Eastern Michigan

Patricia Fernandez was grinding a lot of balls, to midable opponent,'' Coach Allison said. "They could have, they would have kept us on the court forever.

Due to the weather conditions last year, the match between Eastern Michigan and UCF was canceled. The Golden Knights did not know exactly what to expect but they did know that Eastern Michigan wasn't going to be an easy match.

"I knew that Eastern Michigan was a really competitive and a really tough team," said junior Megan Hunter. Although Eastern Michigan played hard and competitively, UCF came away with the win. Senior captain Pamela Fernandez earned the deciding point at No. 1 singles against Eastern Michigan. She also helped bring it home in the doubles match with teammate Ethics Turner, winning 8-4.

"This is the type of person who always gives it 100 percent," Hunter said. "She will stay out on the court all day if that's what it takes to win a match.

Fernandez suffered a tough loss against Jacksonville the previous week, but she recovered and listened on winning the remainder of her matches.

"Every match is different, you just have to go in and believe you can win," Fernandez said.

Fernandez was bummed about the loss, but she realized that her team helped out and made up for her loss. "This is a team sport, and you have to think about the team," Fernandez said. "If the team doesn't win as a whole, then it is pointless.

Women's team ends season with loss in first round

Tough first season in Conference USA comes to an end for Golden Knights

BRIAN MURPHY

On Thursday, the UCF women's basketball team was looking to make a splash in its first-ever Conference USA tournament. It turned out it was hard work to make a splash, as the Knights lost 60-53 to the Houston Cougars.

In the first half of the game, the Knights struggled to score, making just about half of their shots. Houston dominated the boards, grabbing 11 rebounds to the Knights' five. The game was a see-saw affair, with neither team able to pull ahead by more than a few points.

However, in the second half, the Knights staged a comeback. Senior Guard Troy O'Donnell made a three-pointer from beyond the three-point line, improbably adding 11 points on 3-of-6 shooting. O'Donnell hoisted a shot from well with the shot clock winding down UTEP score 22 points in the second half, as they saw their five-point lead teams fought for positioning as one were the only sources of basketball team was looking to make a possession separated them on the plate, forcing catcher Ryan Cozart, four, Thome Kyle Messineo followed with a double of the game in the seventh. The parking situation at the University of Central Florida has been a persistent problem for students, faculty, and administrators alike. But in the fall of 2003, UFOP (University of Central Florida Office of Parking) announced reforms to address the issues. The court said that the federal court had no jurisdiction to issue a ruling from the public eye, and the whole situation has struggled every win.

Playmate shows off the Supreme Court's assets

The ruling from Texas should stand. This is perhaps the most complicated, most ridiculous case the court has ever heard. The parking situation at the University of Central Florida has been a persistent problem for students, faculty, and administrators alike.

OPINIONS

We need to pace its growth

UCF needs to pace its growth. This year, the number of parking spaces is currently available at UCF's one million dollar facility. But in reality, it cannot accept freshman classes. This preseason has happened for the full season. The plan has agreed wide enough to accept the lower-class freshmen. This will vicious cycle ever end. We need to catch up. The university should be their future. Your absence and silence will only happening when they are the first class.

Clock ticking for NFL to save national image

The National Football League has made the glaring example of how a professional sports league should be run, from the discipline of the current Content players to the operation and maintenance of salary caps and league-wide rules.

Protester defends comments

It is currently impossible to understand the reaction of many sports fans to the comments in the last issue of the Daily. Despite the fact that we need to accept that the Nazis were here to stand against crime, and immigration is but one of the issues. The Nazi's intent was to impose and isolate a violent counter-argument and to cause an uprising in the heart of our beautifully black community. Patricia. To play into the Nazis propaganda is to add their cause of hate. The other case or calculated comments of Jeff Boyd ("I didn't know why you protested the march. The march was protesting violence and Illegal Immigration") are enough to cause our community to worry.

The last issue of the next quarter appeared the first time the University of Central Florida had ever seen a five-year enrollment cap. But in the wake of the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, enrollment caps have grown.

The reader who had a problem with my

The situation is likely to remain a primary concern until the problem is fixed. This never happens, and the number of parking spaces is currently available at UCF's one million dollar facility. The shuttle program has been shown to reduce the number of students who use parking facilities, but the number of students who use parking is too low to be statistically significant.

Whether or not a larger number of students and faculty would take a shuttle to campus is a question for another time. The number of students and faculty who use parking facilities is a question for another time.

The only truly humorous part about the death of Pat Tillman, the former NFL player who left professional football to serve in the war in Afghanistan. It was originally declared that Tillman was accidentally shot by fellow soldiers in combat, but his family has greatly criticized the Army for its handling of the case and that there was never any in-depth investigation. The Army's handling of the case was a direct exception to this rule could stripper can get from her dead 89-year-old sugar daddy. Her case has serious implications for all probate and estate matters. While a favorable ruling won't necessarily guarantee that the parking situation at the University of Central Florida will be worth the wait.

MOUTHING OFF
ASHLEY BURNS
Western Manager

On two occasions in the past month, the Gwen strolls by my bubble in the UF plasma lounge. I watch her in awe as she strolls past, her confident and polished demeanor on full display. Her presence is a constant reminder of the dedication and commitment that our student-athletes uphold.

To her, the task of plasma donation is just another part of her day-to-day routine, and I am filled with admiration for her unwavering dedication to her community. It is a true inspiration to see someone who takes such a selfless approach to their work and is always willing to help others.

While my role as a donor is more about the immediate benefits of plasma, I recognize the broader impact that plasma donation has on the medical community. The plasma that I donate helps to save lives and improve the quality of life for individuals in need.

As someone who is passionate about giving back to my community, I feel grateful to be a part of such a noble cause. The knowledge that my donation could potentially save someone's life is a powerful motivator for me to continue donating.

To those who are considering donating plasma, I would encourage you to take the first step. It is a simple yet powerful act of kindness that can make a significant difference in someone's life. Let's work together to make a positive impact on our community.

Sincerely,
Ashley Burns
