Muggle students get a taste of Quidditch via Segways

MELISSA ARDOCH/Staff Writer

Call it Harry Potter and the Ridiculous Spectacle. The Campus Activities Board gathered three Segways, a golf cart and several foam-dart guns Thursday and allowed students to play their own game of Quidditch, the fictional wizard-sport from the Harry Potter books. The Segways were rented specially for the event.

"It was my first time riding a Segway," UCF freshman Mauricio Tunnermann said. "I've gained such an amazing story we have," said Vic Peters, a UCF alumna and member of the Board of Governors. "Now the community knows that, too." Mayor Rich-Croty called for University approval a "great commitment to medical education in the state of Florida to take us where we're going in the future." Faculty members also praised the vote. "Now we're a complete university, We're not missing any places," said Dr. Rosemary Wilkins, chair of the Faculty Senate. The senate resolved in November to support the creation of the medical school.

Students expressed enthusiasm about the approval.

"I'm really excited," said Haritha Katakam, 21, a micro- and molecular biology freshman. Katakam said UCF's dental health care profile will benefit from the medical school. "It's another piece in the puzzle in terms of biological graduates so matter what they decide to do later on in life." Katakam said UCF's health care campus will be a "big benefit" to the community.

UCF's health care campus will be built on the campus and is scheduled to be completed in 2007. The college probably will begin this spring, and the first class of 40 students will be enrolled in the fall. Students will study medical genetics and translational research and will be selected through the College of Medicine. The College of Medicine will work with the university's existing science programs to create a medical school.

The UCF Society of Women Engineers hosted a three-day conference in Central Florida last week that showed the Southeast how diverse global engineers are in the workplace.

The theme of the conference was "The Faces of Global Engineering" and it was aimed at elucidating students from across the southeast about the diversity in the different engineering fields, as well as in the workplace. The conference offers several workshops, a career fair, keynote speakers and fun events in a diverse atmosphere, said Kristen Pou, the conference multicultural deco- ration chair.

UCF's SWE hosted the regional conference in Central Florida five years ago and decided to try it again for 2006. As a result, it presented an invitation for the conference and applied for the bid in November of 2004 at another conference, and were awarded the opportunity over two other colleges, conference chair Crystal Burr said.

"It was a really tight race for us because we had been 7 years ago, so people were like 'we just didn't have it last year and I think we had the best ideas and that's what we were trying to do,'" Pou said.

SWE has been planning for this conference ever since, and it has taken several factors, such as past attendance at the conference, into consideration to try to make this year's conference bigger and better than before. At past UCF-hosted SWE conferences, there would typically be about 350-400 people in attendance, but attendance doubled to about 720 people this year, Burr said.

"My local goal was 700, but I didn't really think that we would actually reach it," she said. "Now we are definitely up there." Burr said.

Each day consisted of different activities and opportunities for attendees. On Friday, two behind-the-scenes tours were held at Kennedy Space Center, the Everglades and the Walt Disney World. Each tour set the SWE students off at 8 a.m.

"It's not the regular tours that any Disney World guest would go to," Andorf said. "Each day had a volunteer that was a engineer that we that was really a professional in the organization." That volunteer also hosted a career fair that about 30 SWE students attended.

Andorf said that this year's volunteers are Lockheed Martin Corporation.

"This year's sponsors are honestly just a huge benefit," she said. "It was great to work with them this year, and I can't wait for more volunteers next year as well."
Elements attract new fans with hip hop showcase

The Jean Grae/Murs concert that was postponed a week ago will be rescheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 24, and concern with raising those funds," Matchett said in a press release.

"It is hoped that everyone who participated in the fundraising efforts, as Jean Grae is the vessel in the river of hip hop culture that has collaborated with so many great people," he said.

"I'm really looking forward to this event," said Grae, widely known for her eclectic blend of jazz, funk, and hip hop.

"It's going to be a great show," said Grae, who is known for her ability to blend different genres of music.

He said several family members of Rahman have testified that he has mental problems.

A Western diplomat, also declining to be identified because of the sensitivity of the case, said questions were being raised as to whether Rahman had left Afghanistan or gone into exile in a foreign country.

Rahman is being persecuted under Afghanistan’s Islamic legal system for converting 30 years ago while working as a Catholic aid worker for an international Christian group helping Afghan refugees in Pakistan.

The University of Central Florida (UCF) has announced a new large-scale scholarship program by the Saudi government, which will send about 4,000 Saudi students to the university this year after about 2,500 Saudi students had visas to study in the United States in 2004.

The scholarship, known as ”the 4,000 Students Program,” is funded by the Saudi government and is expected to last for five years.

The program is aimed at providing educational opportunities for Saudi students and is part of the kingdom’s efforts to develop its human capital and prepare its youth for the future.

Students interested in applying for the scholarship can visit the website of the Saudi General Commission for Education and Training (SGCET) for more information and application procedures.

The program includes full tuition, accommodation, and living expenses for selected students.

UCF is one of the leading universities in the United States and is known for its strong academic programs in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) fields.

The university has a diverse student body and is committed to providing high-quality education to all students, regardless of their background or socioeconomic status.

Students worried after Social Security numbers appear online

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. - University of Illinois officials are taking steps to prevent the release of students' personal information on the Internet after Social Security numbers and other data were posted on a Web site.

The information appeared on the Department of Computer Science Web site on Jan. 6. There have been no reports of identity theft or other inappropriate use of the numbers, said UI spokesman Robin Kaler.

"Our spreadsheet was posted to a Web site in the course of someone's job duty," Kaler said. "The person who posted inappropriately believed the Web site was a restricted access area only.

Kaler would not say how many people were affected or whether they were current or past students. The file, which included gender and ethnicity information, is used to calculate demographic statistics for the department.

UI officials contacted Google - the only search engine used to access the file - and asked it to remove the cached document. They also revisited access controls on the student's Web site and sent letters to the students who were affected, some of whom are no longer attending the University.

UF Freshman may get served with mandatory meal plan

WACO, Texas - Some Eastern Kentucky University freshmen would each have to pay $2,000 under a mandatory meal plan proposal being considered by the school's Board of Regents.

The meal plan proposal is slated to be discussed Monday before the regular members of the board's inter­ nal affairs committee.

"Anything you'd like to know about professionalism when going into the workplace, we will try to get at least a fragment of," UCF's SWP President Diana Ouda said.

The conference's fair-games panel was the opportunity for the orchestrators to talk to various company professionals about their personal goals, resumes and potential job opportunities available.

"These companies are representing various regions of the country," Ouda said.

Individuals were also given the opportunity to interact with other conference attendees and different fields within engineering and global work.

"They are professionals and students separate themselves with the people they already know, but UCF's SWP developed networking system where the students and professionals are united together so that everyone gets a chance to interact with one another," Ouda said.

"Everyone has a benefit from this if you don't take it upon yourself to actually go out there and say hi," Remi said.

"Even the people that are at the career fair and other people who are attending the conference, they are always very friendly and approachable, and you have a lot of professionals and students with you to pass out to. But you can always benefit from a conference, it doesn't matter which career fair you are going to, you are going to get something out of it," Remi said.

"On Saturday there were various workshops covering topics such as, "How to build your "network"" and stuff you don't learn in engineering school," UCF's SWP President Dan Ouda said.

There was also a Multicultural Global Bowl that night later than this.

The conference wrapped up with a farewell reception at the Orlando Science Center on Saturday.

"SWP is something that I am glad to be a part of because if I weren't for SWP, I would have a lot more struggles in engineering," Androff said.

"There are just so many professionals and students that you just relate to, you'd be good to have the sort of SWP family that we do," Remi said.

Miami music festival hosts bands, DJs, draws in Orlando students

From rock to trance, Ultra boasted wide variety of acts

MELISSA AROCHA, UCF student

Handling bands like the Killers and The Prodigy and world famous DJs like Paul Van Dyk and Paul Oakenfold performed Saturday at Ultra Music Festival in downtown Miami. The festival was an expansion of the event that Ultra co-founder Russell Faibisch, said Russell Faibisch, Ultra co-founder, created seven years ago.

The school was an important part of the event. “It was a really cool experience from my position as speaker of the Senate,” said Sen. Travis Latorre also said he really liked how they used the city’s downtown area. “You’re in the position right now where you do so much or you can do so little and you need to take advantage of that time to make sure you’re representing the people that you’re supposed to rep­resent,” Latorre said.

When presenting himself to the Senate, Schwartz repeatedly emphasized the importance of fulfilling out the semester right. “I feel very strongly about taking this position to make sure it runs smoothly to the end of the semester the way Senator White wanted it to be before he stepped down,” Schwartz said.

Schwartz, an engineering student, will graduate this spring with a Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering. He was the first to introduce the motion that the Senate voted to make the new Speaker Pro Tempore Kelly White, who recently won the presidential election. White has been in the Senate since 2008.

“Ultra is the biggest music event in Miami,” said John Diaz, creator and owner of Sobereal.com, a South Beach concert event Web site. “Tickets are sold out for 2008 and people fly in from all over the world just to attend Ultra and see all the after parties.”

After Ultra, most of the per­formers will be featured at next­year’s Miami Music Festival, which is expected to be one of the top grossing event in the world. “I look forward to the after­parties,” said Eric Schwartz, the former Speaker of the Senate. He is a past president of the UCF Student Government Association (SGA) and has been an active member of many different clubs and organizations, according to the administration. “I learned that this time goes really fast, followed by an open house.”

When it comes to dealing with the administration he said, “I’m not afraid to stand up and, if in a professional way.”

UCF must get $200 million for med school construction before construction can begin in Orlando

PROF. TONY GOMES

UCF must get $200 million for its medical school before construction can begin. The state legislature this year approved a $125 million bond to start funding for the medical school and the additional funds are needed to finish the construction of the campus.

The school will be built in phases with the first phase schedule for Fall 2010. The building will have clinical research facilities.

The college will emphasize research, and last Tuesday’s agreement with Scripps shows the way for future research partnerships.

Atul Dogra of UCF’s College of Medicine and Pharmaceutical Sciences will spearhead one of these projects with his work in using body imaging technology to assist in the diagnosis of diseases.

UCF and Scripps have several common research interests, including treatments for cardiovascular disease, cancer and Alzheimer’s disease.

“We have a lot of research capabilities that will comple­ment Scripps,” said Jim Pearson, director of research and administration for CHOB.

The recently expanded Bu­nnett College of Biomedical Sci­ences will join the medical school on the sprawling Lake Nona medical campus. The Helfaer Health Care Complex. The College of Human Health will have 34 new faculty members and house UCF’s micro­biological and molecular pathology program when construction is finished.

UCF and community lead­ers hope the complete will attract a cluster of related busi­nesses, such as pharmacies and lab suppliers, which will boost the community and create way more jobs.

But critics have said that clustering around a medical school can take decades. The town of Lake Nona is the site of other medical schools in Flor­ida and has not yet produced the economic boom that UCF pre­dicts for its medical school.

The vote ends a lobbying blitz that began in 2004 and strengthened last year. The vote was delayed since last November, but now Hitt said his vote would have likely denied the medical school because UCF had not yet assembled a convincing case.

UCF believes it is likely to receive a medical school admission letter for UCF students, who currently live in the state and have a family history of things in Florida and can states, supporters warn that the school may be competitive from the begin­ning.

Perez offered this piece of advice for UCF undergradu­ates who want to study medicine “pray that you get in.”

Showcase of Undergraduate Research Excellence

Celebrating undergraduate research and creativity across the curriculum

Thurday, March 30, 2006, 2-5 p.m.
Student Union, Pegasus Ballroom

The third annual Showcase of Undergraduate Research Excellence is a poster- or display-based forum for UCF undergraduates to present current and recently completed research and creative projects to the entire university community.

UCF Undergraduates from all disciplines—from engineering to the life sciences, from visual arts to the humanities—who are or have been enthralled by significant research and creative projects will present their findings. Written full-length papers will be distributed on Thursday, March 30, from 2-5 p.m., at the Student Union, Pegasus Ballroom.

Substantial scholarships will be awarded to the best Showcase projects.

Showcase projects will be judged according to the following criteria:

Clear focus or central question
The presentation explicitly states what the project accomplished or will accomplish. There is a clear controlling idea, hypothesis, or objective.

Sound methodology
Approach to the project knowledgeably conveys how the project is to be executed or what constitutes "evidence" in the discipline and how it is obtained.

Clear presentation of results/product/performance or expected outcomes
Details about the project are presented in an organized, fresh, and thoughtful manner. Mastery of the subject is evident. The project can be understood by both someone knowledgeable in the field and also by a reasonably informed non-specialist.

Progress on project to date
Project is complete or can be completed in a reasonable amount of time.

Contribution to the field or discussion of potential impact
There is an explanation of the significance or use of the project, of why the project was or is worth doing, or of what new knowledge, understanding, or insight will be or was gained.

For more information about the Showcase, please call the Office of Undergraduate Studies, 407-823-4197 or visit www.undergraduatestudies.ucf.edu/research/home.html
Professor's love of Latin shows

"I've learned so much more here from professor Tolf and understood the language so much better than I used to.

At UF, Latin language education has been worsening. At first, a minor in the language was offered to students, but, as of this year, two universities, the University of Florida and the University of Central Florida, have stopped providing that option.

There are basically three strains of influenza viral type: A, B, and C. They are all from the orthomyxoviridae family of viruses. Influenza epidemics occur every one to three years. The 2004-2005 season has already produced five cases. Pneumonia, affecting about one to two people per 100,000 people, occurs every 10 to 20 years. Waterborne and insect-borne cases are rare.

The diagnosis is based on signs and symptoms. Laboratory tests are not always reliable. Blood chemistry will only increase a few days after the flu is diagnosed.

The flu is transmitted by direct contact or by talking. The virus gets deposited in the respiratory tract and is absorbed there. The incubation lasts from one to two days. The duration of the illness is three to five days, with the severity of the symptoms occurring in the last three to four days. Outbreaks are common during winter months.

Influenza in children usually occurs in the spring and is more severe in children under 10. Influenza in children can quickly evolve into pneumonia, affecting a large number of people in a very rapid period of time.

Athletic Director Steve Orsini leaves UCF for Conference USA rival Southern Methodist

ORSINI BOLTS FOR THE MUSTANGS

ORIS HOLY

UCF Football

Legacy

- UCF moved from a single-campus football stadium, the Atlantic Sun and Mid-American Conference, to a national university with a national television deal and more exposure.
- Approval of an on-campus football stadium, which construction has begun with an eye toward opening for the 2017 season.
- Approval of a new, 10,000-seat convocation center and basketball arena. Construction also has begun on the stadium, and the school hopes that the building will be ready by the 2017-18 basketball season.

His legacy will be undeniable. In less than four years, he oversaw a huge move to Conference USA, the first-ever bowl appearance for the UCF football team, and the approval and construction of several new on-campus athletic facilities.

- Former UCF Athletic Director Steve Orsini made a move that surprised the entire community when he decided to take the same job with U-CA (C-USA) rival Southern Methodist.
- What has happened and what will happen to the fate and future of UCF Athletics?

Orsini spent four years as senior associate director of athletics at Georgia Tech prior to his tenure at UCF.

- Familiarity was key in Orsini's hiring at SMU, a private school in Dallas. From 1994-1995, he was the director of administration and ticket manager for the Dallas Cowboys.

"I am here because SMU has a very successful program and has all of the ingredients to support a move to Conference USA," Orsini said at his introductory conference Friday.

- Orsini will take over at SMU on June 1, but UCF President John Hitt has said that the school will move quickly in replacing Orsini, with an eye on early summer for the naming of his successor.

- Hitt said the school will form a search committee this week and that a national search will take place to pick up the pieces Orsini left behind.

- Orsini's key administrative action was a change in the athletics department to incorporate the UCF Athletic Department.

- Since she finished her work-at-home degree, Barnes will make her way to work, take out her scheduled meetings, work out in the morning and then put in a full day in the office. Barnes said, "It is just discipline."

- Barnes, a dedicated athlete and servant to the school, will take note of the schedule several times a week to ensure it is working for her and not the other way around.

- Four years ago Barnes started to use a method of swimming, known as total immersion, to help with her training. In the four years since learning this technique, Barnes has become a competitive swimmer. Now, she is choosing between Houston and SMU and the total immersion technique is a deciding factor.

- GONE FOR ‘GREENER’ PASTURES

There are plenty of reasons why he could have stayed, but was the real issue money?

The game of life is filled with constant transitions. It's what makes every day so great; you never know what to expect. The only constants in life, and especially in the world of sports right now, is that anything can happen at any time.

Athletes, administrators and even franchises are, now more than ever, willing to pack up camp and move onto greener pastures. Take a look at your favorite NFL team.

Still, despite the prosperity for change that we currently face in the world of sports, it was a big surprise to see UCF Athletic Director Steve Orsini jump ship Friday night.

- Orsini bolted to the Mustangs, leaving UCF, the school he is jumping from, to another in the same conference — especially when the school he is jumping to is much older and more experienced.

- GONE FOR ‘GREENER’ PASTURES

The first weekend trip to Golden Knight baseball this year has had its ups and downs. On Friday, a croaky walk led to a 2-1 loss, followed by a 5-1 win. Mitch Hershel picked the Knights up on Saturday, while its third baseman, Zach Murphy, picked the school to another in the same conference — especially when the school he is jumping to is much older and more experienced.

- Barnes’ work reaches many

ZACH MOORE

The sun still hasn't peaked from over the horizon, steam is rising off the top of the pool and the lifeguards are shivering as they prepare to open the pool for the day behind her desk and serve the students.

- The kids are getting better. Barnes said, "It is just discipline."

FROM THE SPORTS DESK

Men's swimming competes in Augusta traditional

The UCF men's swimming club competed in the Augusta Invitational on March 3, winning several events and setting new personal bests.

The event, held at Langley Page in Aiken, S.C., included many of the top teams to compete, including Alabama, skyline and the University of Tampa.

UCF won the Senior 200 back with a time of 2:03, defeating USC Upstate by 13 seconds. It also captured the Very Fast 50 butterfly with a time of 22.9 by first place finisher, who was the only person in the field.

The overall award was scholarship money, with a score of 100 points, 40 points set second place, Alabama.

Men's soccer

The C-USA soccer tournament continued as the Mustangs traveled to Houston to face UCF Soccer Complex. The Mustangs lost in a game.

Freshman John Howard score for Houston, bringing the score to 3-0. The Mustangs were defeated by UCF.

Men's tennis

The UCF men's tennis team traveled to Austin to compete in the University of Texas Invitational. The Mustangs went 3-2 in the tournament.

The Mustangs finished the tournament 3-2, with their season record now at 3-2. The Mustangs played and lost to a pair of ranked teams, No. 27 No. 5 No. 2 and a pair of wins.

UCF also had the opportunity to compete in the Russell Conference. The Mustangs were able to compete in the conference.

UCF's senior Beth Barnes helps teach student liaison. The program is one of many morning practice sessions. Barnes works with students on their own time during the morning while spending her days in the Recreation and Wellness Center.

10th-inning hercules take series

CHRIS WOHLER
Sports Editor

It wasn't easy, but the UCF baseball team didn't let their biggest late-inning heroics go to waste, defeating Texas Christian University, 4-3, in the 10th inning Sunday.

Sophomore center fielder Tyson Auer led off the 10th inning with a single down the third-base line. He advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt from junior catcher Ryan Bono, who pitched the final out for TCU reliever Aaron Affeldt.

Affeldt was replaced by Shawn Ferguson, who promptly uncorked a wild pitch that allowed Auer to move to third. The Knights' offensive troubles didn't stop there, as he then balked and allowed Auer to score to give the Knights a 4-3 lead.

A walk by Kili Vasquez led to another pitching change, as Ethan Fiskanich took over and was also unable to record an out, walking Dane Lambourn. Freshman go to bat in the sixth inning, but nothing comes out of it.

The Knights were able to take a 2-1 lead in the top of the ninth, and a lead at that juncture of the game has usually meant lights out with closer Dominick Petteca, who was key in throwing 2.1 innings out of the bullpen.

But, while Petteca's streak of not allowing runs was extended to 21.1 innings, the Horned Frogs were able to tie the game in the ninth inning with an unearned run. Second baseman Matt Horwath's throwing error allowed Steven Trevino to advance to second on his single, and he was later driven in by Bryan Kerwol's single through the right side.

The Knights will return to Orlando to take on creators of historic innings on Tuesday night. First pitch is set for 6:30pm at Jay Bergman Field.

Run support not there as Bascom struggles

Freshman right-hander Kyle Swail's first big game during his career against Auer March 10, Swain has stepped up and taken command of the Knights over the past three contests, as his starting Sunday against TCU is the fourth appearance this season for the young pitcher and dealt the Knights to come to the plate, and he made the Knights pay with a double to right field, giving the Knights a 6-2 lead. The Knights were able to take advantage of four balking fun as Arrieta walked Dave Lambert. Farish ended with an 0-2 count.

In terms of support, junior Matt Ray provided the offense, driving in four runs on six hits and seven strikeouts. Sophomore Bryan Kervin began the inning by leaving a ball in the left field that was dropped by freshman Ryan Williams for a two-out error. After a sacrifice bunt

Tigers fall short of Final Four

As the at-large team in the men’s basketball tournament for College USA in 2005-2006, the Memphis Tigers hit the Oakland regional final Saturday. The UCLA Bruins advanced with a 50-45 win.

My luck will never dry run.

The Tigers are one of the nation's top teams, but they were unable to overcome the Bruins' strength. Memphis will face UCLA in the NCAA Tournament on Sunday night.

Unfathomable bill will not help Florida students succeed

The Florida House passed a bill Thursday that would secure the state a $1.6 million freeze in the amount of money students are allowed to receive for their student loans. The bill was passed without discussion and the students to whom it applies are likely not even aware of its existence.

Why in the world should they do that? Because the Board of Trustees has already stated that they will not pay any of the money going to students as a result of the stimulus package.

And the Board of Regents have already stated that they will not pay any of the money going to students as a result of the stimulus package.

Why is it that these people are so afraid of the federal government? Because they care about the students and they care about the future of our state.

But Americans aren't interested in the societal-wide cause that is under attack.

At every moment of conservative legislation, the reproductive rights of 100 million women are under threat due to the conservative agenda. Women are becoming more and more involved in the reproductive rights movement, and they are more and more involved in the anti-abortion movement.

According to Catholics for a Free Choice, in 1997 more than 2.5 million women had abortions in the United States, and the number is increasing.

America: ignore Britney, take a look at the bigger picture

To the editor: The recent attention given to Britney Spears is a sign that we are losing sight of the bigger picture.

Here's what really matters: the war in Iraq.

Just as Britney Spears is a symbol of the shallow, superficial nature of our society, the war in Iraq is a symbol of the real threat that we face.

The war in Iraq is a threat to our national security, to our economic stability, and to our future as a nation.

And yet, we continue to ignore it.

What do you think about the war in Iraq? Is it worth the cost? Is it worth the loss of life?

Double standards have no place when talking of sex crimes

Last Tuesday, state prosecutors dropped all charges against a 25-year-old former Tampa schoolteacher who was charged with raping students.

The students complained about the teacher's inappropriate behavior, but they were dismissed by school officials. The teacher was later arrested and charged with raping students.

But when it comes to rape charges, the standards are different. If a teacher is accused of raping a student, the charges are dropped. But if a student is accused of raping a teacher, the charges are not dropped.

This is a double standard. It is unfair and it is wrong.

What do you think about this? Is it fair? Is it just?
