Trial team calls for SGA senator's impeachment

Tara Szczepanski's hearing set for April 6 Senate meeting

Tiffany Beck

SGA will hold an impeachment hearing of Sen. Tara Szczepanski on April 6. The UCF Mock Trial Team submitted charges against Szczepanski alleging that, after resigning from the team, she promoted the team would "never receive funding again."

Eleven members of the trial team signed affidavits that they had been "informed" by Szczepanski. Sen. Jason Etz sits in a trial meeting that they said would lose their influence if SGA lost the trial team funding.

The affidavit stated that "[Szczepanski] and I" would advise other people on the SGA to deny funding to the trial team. "So I told them that we could make sure the Trial Team never received funding again."

New Vice President of the UCF Mock Trial Team, Stephen Meyer, said: "Whatever someone in a position of power threatens someone without power, there's a problem that needs to be addressed."

The trial was held Thursday night, Szczepanski said. "It is very disheartening to have my integrity questioned, and I am very saddened that all the work I have put into denouncing fighting for the trial team and knowing that I did nothing wrong. So I am very upset that through the hearing the evidence will speak for itself, and I will be exonerated."

The Legislative, Judicial and Rules Committee voted to TEAM 8-6.

Mary Kriska

A UCF professor will bring her month-long visiting artist series, "Music for the World," to several schools around Florida as a member of the State's "Teaching, Performing, Research, "TPR," program's 2006-08 roster and will visit schools to perform and teach.

The program, under the Florida Department of State's Division of Cultural Affairs, selects performed and visual artists from a variety of genres and matches them with nonprofit presenters, mostly schools, from around the state. The program underwrites one-third of the artist's fees for most counties, and two-thirds for underpopulated counties like Brevard, Dixie and Taylor.

"It's a great opportunity that doesn't have the greatest opportunities," said Gaelyn Phillips, a program and development manager for the Division of Cultural Affairs. For many of the students in rural areas, Yonetani's performance will be the first time they have seen a violin performance, or even

"That's why we're here," Meyer said. Although the event did not reach its $20,000 goal, community director for the March of Dimes, Jaimea Kissman, said she was satisfied with its outcome. "We're really happy," she said. "For it to have been the first little, we did really well."

Next year, Meyer said she wants KnightWalk to be more successful. "We can have a good walk," she explained. "It should be easier next time."

"It planned a walk with a lot of people," Kissman agreed. "Next year when we do it, it should be twice as good."

Meyer said she wants the students to bring a March of Dimes event closer to the Florida Capitol Building. "30, 2006 with Feet"

UCF social-work students head to the capital

Ayako Yonetani will perform for underprivileged schools

Monday, more than 90 UCF social-work students traveled to Tallahassee to lobby Florida legislators for several social-work related bills.

"The students gathered with other-social-work students and professional social workers from across the state at the courthouse of the Capitol Building for a rally sponsored by the National Association of Social Workers Florida Chapters."

The event, which was the culmination of months of training, planning, and fundraising, marked the third year that UCF has participated in Lobby Day. It is also the third year in a row that UCF social-work students have taken home the trophy for greatest number of students in attendance. This year, Southeastern University received the award for greatest percentage of students in attendance, with 40 percent of their social-work student body attending.

According to a presentation given on legislative advocacy, social workers have a professional duty to advocate and lobby for change. The NASW code of ethics, Section 4.2 on Social and Political Action, states, "Social workers should engage in social and political action that seeks to ensure that all people have equal access to the resources, employment, services, and opportunities necessary to meet their basic human needs and to develop fully."

The students made appointments and met one-on-one with members of the Florida House of Representatives and Florida Senator to show their support and opposition to several bills, which are currently working through both houses.

The first bill, HB 1871 and SB 1040, relating to professional social workers' Identification, would make it so that a person could not identify himself as a social worker unless he had earned a degree in social work from the Council on Social Work Education accredited social work program. Currently, according to a fact sheet provided by NASW-FL, "anyone can call himself a social worker regardless of their education or experience because Professional Social Worker Identification does not exist" in the state of Florida.

The sheet goes on to explain that the bill would provide truth in public information by ensuring that a consumer knows that the services they are receiving are being provided to them by a trained professional. Secondly, professional social workers are legally bound by a professional code of ethics. However, a person who is a social worker by title alone, cannot be held accountable under that code.

The second bill, HB 1723 and SB 177, relating to adoption, would allow for a judge to decide, on a case-by-case basis, that foster parents who identify as gay or lesbian would be allowed to legally adopt child. "Our main concern is permanency for the child."

A KnightWalk to remember

UCF community thinks with feet

Volunteer UCF invited the two-mile walk in order to raise awareness in the UCF community for premature birth, birth defects and infant mortality.

The inaugural event took place on Sunday and nearly 100 campus organizations helped raise $18,000 for the March of Dimes.

Yonetani to serve as tour's first violinist

Tour of 5

Yonetani will join 22 other artists and companies on the most recent roster in the UCF school of music, with the chance to perform in the summer of 2006. As a Julliard-trained musician, Yonetani has always valued accuracy and precise dedication to musical form, but she says that she has learned that a successful performance goes beyond hitting every note. "Too much more interested in communicating with the audience," she said. When preparing for a performance, Yonetani is most interested in searching for some idea of party as one of the main points. "I'm quite enthusiastic about her," she explained.

The music gives me to express my self," she said. "With music, you take one skin off." For more information about the State Touring Program, go to www.florida-arts.org.

Students learn to dig deep in records

Public records not just for journalists

Fun, handy uses of records:

- Checking out companies you may want to hire for your business or for your religion
- Finding out stuff you've been denied
- Finding out who's been watching you
- Making sure a company is not guying you a public record
- Building awareness and making a difference in any cause

If an organization denies you access to public records, that's their right, but they must follow the state laws that regulate that process. Adams said.

According to Adams, unintentional denial of a public record can result in a fine of no more than $2,000. Depending on the severity of the crime, public officials can even be suspended or removed from office for denying access to a public record.

Attaining public records is relatively inexpensive, with a one-sided page starting at $1 per copy, but charges can double for double-sided copies. Court and government documents usually start at 80 cents per page, but the higher charge can apply depending on the company. When making a request, a person does not have to identify himself or herself, but Adams said it's often smart to give the record keepers a concrete idea of what you need.

Adams' 10 years of research helped him to write the handbook. According to Adams' Web site, http://www.idiganswers.com, the handbook answers over 100 questions, ranging from "How can I find out the track record of my doctor?" to "How safe is the fridge I rely upon every day?"

"It's a wonderful time to be a reporter," Adams said.

"Public records build awareness and make a difference in any story!"

Immigration plan outdated, trike

By Miia Martin, on News Desk

The U.S. Senate has begun debating an immigration bill that has not only been called "outdated and trite" by some senators, but is being strongly opposed by others.

The bill, proposed by Sen. John McCain and Sen. Lindsey Graham, would provide a path to citizenship for millions of undocumented immigrants, while also strengthening border security and enforcement.

Protestors, however, disagree. They argue that the bill does not go far enough in addressing the root causes of immigration and that it would only lead to more exploitation of undocumented workers.

"We need a comprehensive immigration reform that would provide a pathway to citizenship for those already here, and also address the root causes of immigration," said a protestor at a recent rally. "This bill is a Band-Aid solution that will not address the underlying issues."
Voice of dissent on crowning champs

I thought when I read the headline "Big Dance..." on the front page of the BCS. I won't go into all the details, just that it was a knock on our team. Our coaches, our players, our fans, we were hurt. I'm not saying we should have been in the Final Four, but I believe we had the talent and desire to be there. I think we deserved to be there.

If you ask me, we should have been in the Final Four. I believe our team was better than Michigan's last year's champ. We had a lot of experience going into the season and we proved it by winning the SEC. I think we should have been in the Final Four, not Michigan. We were a better team.

George Mason being the one to reach the Final Four is a real sports fan and feel that we really didn't deserve to be there. With your opinion you can say what you want, but I believe I have the right to express my opinion.

Knights head to Huntington for first ever C-USA baseball series

We found out that no matter how many MVPs he wins, Alex Rodriguez won't besolidated until he wins a World Series. No matter that his career postseason numbers are identical to his regular season numbers.

-Barry Bonds, banned September turned into a winter of discounting. By 2007 he held one of two records career home runs, or a fraction of the most books on steroids.

A BIG STEP UP

77/41. If you have any doubts that this is by far the toughest jump for any UCF team, the numbers 77 and 41 should convince you. The nine C-USA baseball teams (excluding UCF) have a combined 77 NCAA Tournament appearances, including 41 since 1995.

Along with UCF, Rice, Tulane and East Carolina are among the top 16 winningest programs in the nation since 2000.

As of this season, there are 26 major league players and 103 minor league players with C-USA ties. Since 1995, the conference has produced 84 All-Americans, four National Players of the Year and six National Freshmen of the Year.

Still not convinced? Check out this season's preview, which includes three top 25 teams.

Knighted Kings in shocking upset

The Knights found themselves down early, but they came back fighting in the bottom of the third inning behind a two-run single by center fielder Tyson Auer that scored Matt Horwath.

Houck kept his team in the game by striking out 11 in a row from the top of the third inning through the seventh. Bergman then decided to pull Houck in favor of Derek Abriola on the top of the ninth inning. Like his predecessor, Abriola didn't get any help from his defense. Abriola allowed three runs, of which only one was earned.

After not recording an out, Abriola was pulled. He did not return.

Alien zombie flic actually love story

WILLIAM GOSS

It all starts with a zit. Which leads to aliens. Which leads to zombies. But it’s really a love story. Trust me on this one.

James Gunn, who wrote 2002’s award-winning photo of Dawn of the Dead, returns horror comedy to gloriously campy heights with his directoral debut, Slither.

When the above-mentioned monster lands on the outskirts of Wheeler, its extraterrestrial cargo infects Great (Olchitch Bookler), who begins to mutate in his newfound role as lead host for the forthcoming alien invasion. Despite being transformed into a grotesque monstrosity, Great (Olchitch Bookler) is unable to deny his feelings for wife Sarah (Michelle Hurd), who has foisted upon himself the name of E.T., thereby shifting with open temperaments.

Glenn isn’t his bit reluctant to make his viewers squirm their way to a phallic battle, which almost makes it that much more gratifying, seeing as maybe a few hands are discerned an unnatural rapturous to the situations that gross

Confessions of a healthy relationship virgin used to single life

NOT JUST SEX

DANIEL DICKSON

Being in a relationship never ceases to amaze me. It always surprises me how quickly and easily someone can become so interested in you. Who could have possibly thought of a person who would actually love me? So, I’ve had the chance to make the best of my time with someone who I’ve never been to.

Dawn of the Dead, his sophomore feature, now becomes a remaking of the 1978 classic, which in turn becomes a remaking of the 1953 original.

The Skeleton Crew, a film that comes to mind when I think of Dawn of the Dead, has been set for the third time, and now, the crew has been set to do it again. The crew is the key to the success of the film.

BRAVADO RELIC

When the future last caught up with The Spill Canvas several months ago, 20-something dreamer Joe Beck humbly said playing large venues like the House of Blues makes him feel like “you’re someone special, but obviously we’re not.”

The band took to the road and started to tour at the beginning of October in Orlando. They even played to sold-out crowds at the Hollywood Beach Hotel in Hollywood, Florida.

Thumbs down later, The Spill Canvas returned to Orlando and its growing fan base. The band teamed with Streetlight Manifesto on Sunday, performing another
