Student researchers sounding foundJustin Trotter's dedication got him only student seat on Undergraduate Research Council

JUSTIN TROTTER

He sits alone, the single student in a room filled with UCF faculty and students. Trotter is the only student on the Undergraduate Research Council. Once a year, Trotter, a member of the college's Undergraduate Research Council, is the only student on the URC. Trotter has been a member of the URC for two years and is planning to run for a third.

Trotter's commitment to research is what helped him get the only student seat. "I was the only student on the Undergraduate Student Research Society," Trotter said at the annual symposium and networking event that the UCSR hosts every year. Trotter said he was the only student on the UCSR last summer. He said he was looking for a way to give back to the community and was interested in being a representative of the UCSR.

Cypress Dome creative outlet for UCF writers, poets, artists

Students do not need a major in English or creative writing to submit all kinds of writing. "The Dome is for the writer that there is a thought of ideas for a group," co-founder and co-editor Tiffany Palmia said. "Any student can contribute. They do not need a major in English or creative writing to submit in the magazine."

The group became popular so quickly that it was featured in the Orlando Sentinel. "We've encouraged people to submit all kinds of writing," Palmia said. "A board of five to six student editors, chosen by stap, evaluates the contributions and decides which one makes it in the final edition."

"We've made it a little bit of a talent show," Palmia said. "An artist, "what the art gallery is for the weak possession or a faculty adviser, who has been through the Dome from the beginning, is one example of the variety of work that is published yearly."

UCF students are often a last resort when it comes to preparing and buying healthy foods. The campus recently lost a local supermarket, so students and students alike are looking for alternatives.

"Eating healthy is not cost effective," said Rachel Mcdillen, a 22-year-old music education major. "It’s too expensive."

A very attractive factor is that college students are often looking for a new outlet to express their creativity. Many students sell their art in the Dome, which is a great way to give back to the community.

"There are so many promising artists, writers and poets in UCF, and it’s a great way to give them a chance," Palmia said. "We’ve encouraged people to submit all kinds of writing."

The Dome is worth the submission. "I gain appreciation from the magazine," Palmia said. "And yet, if all of these specification don’t seem to apply to students, there is always the Dome."

UCF graduate student of fine arts Rachel Stenlake was one of the students who contributed to the magazine. "I thought about submitting a poem, but I’m not a poet," Stenlake said. "Instead, I felt that I can contribute more visually than I can with words."

"We’re proud of it as an editor," Palmia said. "We want to encourage our students to apply to talk about the art of writing and appreciate our international authors."

The program features two club officers from the Dome, the first being Ashley Lime, who is the vice president, and the second being Kimberly Forchetti, who is the co-founder.

Semiannual One Act Festival to feature several student written, produced shows Project Spotlight, a UCF student-organized performing arts group, will present nine student-directed one-act plays during its annual Festival this weekend.

The One Act Festival will feature different student-produced shows each night for nine straight nights, Thursday through Sunday at 9 p.m. in the Mauv Thea.

The program features two one-act plays written by UCF students, as well as a sketch comedy scene presented by improv troupe, Doughboyz.

According to Club Treasurer Randy Fleischer, Project Spotlight was organized in 1989 by 19 UCF theater students who wanted to create a new outlet for students to showcase their talents.

"Many students do not get enough opportunities to perform at UCF," Fleischer said. "We want to make sure that everybody is given a chance to practice their craft."
Officer's dunked to raise money for Jenkins fund

UCF Police Department Officer Samuel Gonzalez is dunked by a student to raise money for the Maria Jenkins Memorial Traveling Fund in the Student Union Thursday.

Participants had the chance to dunk officers and parking controllers for a donation. The event brought in about $200, and Gonzalez, who organized the event, said the money raised during the event will go to funding a trip for Jenkins’ family and coworkers to travel to Washington D.C. for the National Law Enforcement Memorial.

As of November 2005, more than 6 percent of Americans said that at one point throughout the year, they had purchased some kind of organic product. The UCP community appears to be following that trend.

Here in Orlando, UCF students are looking for healthy foods and an alternative to fattening fast food frequent Chamento Life.

Amadelle Vettrus, a UCF student, works at Chamberlins and says the store has a lot to offer the average college student.

"We have a lot of organic "junk food," and vegan cookies," she said.

College life isn't complete without snacks. Yet, according to Food and Nutrition Coordinator for Whole Foods Market Aldo Villagio, snacking as we know it has changed.

"When people think of snacks they often think of fattening chips and chips with hydrogenated oils or processed cheese foods," Villagio said. "Sticking has been minimized. You can now find a terrific selection of flavorful, nutritious snack foods without the empty calories and artificial additives."

Students can purchase organic sodas, chips and candy bars from Chamberlins, most of them priced the same as at those larger chain stores. For the vegetarian community, Chamberlins has a full deli that caters to its needs.

"We have a whole-deli with fake meats," Vettrus said. "There's even vegan chicken salad."

Chamberlins' main competition comes from the Whole Foods Market, which is located in Winter Park.

"A lot of vegetarians on campus go to Whole Foods instead of Chamberlins," Vettrus said. "But we offer all of the same products."

"It's amazing to see a whole market full of organic food," Best said. "But I did see some things at Publix that were cheaper."

However, some things are the price advantage. "For about $3, students can purchase a frozen dinner that is ready in about five minutes and has about a third of the calories of a fast-food mind."

Still, no matter where you purchase them, buying organic foods is a way for college students to eat healthier.

"It's a lot healthier," Vettrus said. "It's just a lot better for you."

Student researchers have a voice, thanks to Trotter

Trotter said.

He has been in clubs and various organizations "but the URS is his dream, his passion," Kelly Trotter said.

Trotter's mother has encouraged Justin throughout his life, she says Justin showed an interest for science at a very early age.

He liked to experiment and figure things out. always full of questions," she said. an e-mail "I encouraged him to try in science research after elementary school, even though science projects were no longer mandated. He did and has never looked back.

Trotter plans to become a molecular neuroanesthesiologist, which will involve making human brain evolution and its neurochemical contacts. This means evaluating the effects of our computer environments upon our complex physiological and cognitive systems and shaping the life of our environment and our society, Trotter said.

He hopes he will be able to treat, prevent, and cure disorders via making people more psychologically adaptable.

He also has plans of starting in international research teams through which millions of scientists will work together, making science an open science to nations of all cultural and economic statuses.

Activists call for fairness in policy

Students, no matter their sexual orientation or gender identity, deserve to feel safe, and, in fact, be safe from harassment while in a learning environment. The UCFF’s current policy regarding sexual harassment is not without official recourse in situations involving students with same-sex partners. These students need to be considered innocent until accused. If they are guilty, then it is well served to reserve the responsibility of the media to make sure they have been indicted and arrested in connection to the charges.

Our stance

The rally was not organized in connection to the case involving the alleged sexual assault of a student belonging to members of the team. One concern is that Florida State University has compounded problems in Iraq, possibly preventing the U.S. military from quieting the Florida Public Relations Office.

The march, which begins at 3 p.m. at the Student Union and ends at Alumni Hall, is expected to attract hundreds of students, faculty and staff who want to support the cause and show their support for gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender students, as well as anyone who believes in the importance of equal rights and equality for all.

This trial is going to be a feeding frenzy for those who are ready to make the students a bigger crime than that of which they are accused. It has been burning in a Bible Belt area for two years now. And, in fact, it should not be dis­regarded because they are gay; it should be disregarded because they are people.

It is also important to remember that Bush is not a liar, nor is he a rogue cruiser running the war in Iraq.

Progressing student rights should be UCF president’s first, foremost concern

Responding to criticism and the administration’s attempt to downplay the importance of the rally, David Manning, a political aide, writes to David Manning about the administration’s attempt to downplay the importance of the rally.

In response to concerns with biased intramural officiating at hockey games

Thank you for providing feedback about the intramural program. I’m sure we’ve already seen which teams or teams you are referring to in our floor hockey playoffs have not ended the semifinals quietly yet. However, we strongly encourage the more than 100 intramural employees that supervise and officiate intramural sports to participate as well.

Our best and most qualified officials are generally those who are most active as participants. We do limit the number of intramural sports that may play on a team to two, in order to avoid the appearance of stacked teams, and we spend a good portion of our training in the pre-game period. We have heard complaints similar to yours that a particular team or player gets a break from officials because they are in a particular fraternity, are a member of student government, are an employee of the Recreation and Wellness Center, are related to the employees, etc. With so many diverse student organizations and groups that play intramurals, officials will generally be familiar with their peers and classmates that participate. More often than not, officials are booked on their fellow employees, not the average participant because of the high expectations they have for each other.

In my opinion, those who wind up in the penalty box usually see there is a reason other than simply asking a question. The students who run the Intramural Sports program work hard every day so that you can enjoy all that the programs has to offer.

Bulls win second straight in Orlando, 6-4 in 11 innings

1. Spotlight for fans has been the regular rotation for the Knights this year, and the opening day of the season was no different. With the team struggling on the field, the Knights turned to their starting pitcher, sophomore Tyson Auer, despite his inexperience.

2. For the second consecutive season, USF took two of three games from USF. The Bulls turned back from losing the series 9-0.

3. Three different Golden Knights — Ernie Williams, Alex Zayas, and Eric Kallstrom — fell on their own in last Tuesday's loss to UAB.

6. USF outfielder Ty Tabler and the left fielders as tabler's double sneaks toward right center field during the third inning of the Bulls 6-4 win over USF. Tabler added a 1-for-4 in the eighth, as well as a double in the ninth, when the Bulls scored four runs.

COMEBACK Falls Short OUT OF TY-ME

'Pace, lack of mental stability' plagues Knights in 11-inning loss to USF; Victory gives Bulls a 2-1 season series win in 1-4 war

BRIAN MURPHY

Over the past couple of weekends, the UCF baseball team ended each series with questions about its bullpen. Now over the last two mid-week games, including Tuesday's 6-4 loss to the USF Bulls, the Knights have had to wrestle with another flaw of their team: a lack of clutch hitting.

In the longest game of the Knights' season, the Bulls claimed the victory by breaking a 4-4 tie with two runs in the top of the 11th inning against sophomore Jeremy Thome. But, this four-hour marathon could have avoided it for just one timely hit from the team in the latter frame.

The Knights stranded two runners in each of the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. For the game, the Knights went 2-for-13 with runners in scoring position. But, this upsixed a hit of 4-3 vs. Last Thursday against this same USF squad, the Knights went 3-for-12 in clutch situations and lost another close ball game, 4-3.

Center fielder Dale Danielewicz called the struggles a lack of mental stability. "It's hard to sum it up," Danielewicz said. "We're not being aggressive in the right hit spots and hitting the right pitches that we need to be hitting. I don't really think it comes down to our talent physically; it's more mental."

With the Knights trailing 4-1 in the sixth, sophomore Tyrom Auer, making his first career start at third base and playing for the first time since April 1, after a finger injury, led off by crushing a solo home run to left. Later in the frame, centerfielder Ryan Boone doubled and scored on an RBI triple from DiNatale. With men on the corners after a walk, left fielder Ryan Williams lined a single into right field, tying the game at four.

Football looks ahead to season after injury-marred spring Fans have something to look forward to

ANDY MURGUIZ / Special to the Orlando Sentinel

The UCF football team wrapped up spring practices last Saturday with the Gold-White scrimmage at the UCF Soccer Complex, concluding a white shirt for the Golden Knights. It's a time of change for the UCF football program as a whole, not just on the field — where the Knights have made massive improvements — but off the field as well.

In the past season UCF went from being ranked as one of the worst teams in the country to its first-ever bowl game. In doing so the Knights won the Conference USA Eastern Divison title and a spot in the C-USA Championship game, in which they fell to Tulsa. Before that loss in the C-US title game, UCF became the first team in NCAA Division I-A football history to win five consecutive games only one season after getting 0-12. It was more than two weeks since Major League Baseball kicked off its new season for 2006. The uniforms are still on; the field is still open and ready for action. Fans are still coming out for their teams in excitement.

However, another season is well under way.

In a league that many don't know, teams are grabbing their way through games. And although they are a part of that grid, the Knights Baseball Club is engaged in something totally different leagues.

At the Dover Shores Community Center on Saturday April 8, the teams spread out along the right field line. Fans of players mom in parallel lines, slow rolling, laughing, and throwing softball to each other.

Pat McInerney's in his dugout, scribbling potential mountains on his fluctuations. The 26-year-old interdisciplinary social science major looked at his14-wheel team during his second mid-week game. The Knights are superior to the NBA.

The battle between balls and pucks Point: Playoffs in the NBA provide the best moments

Ah, the end of spring seasons. A time of many打磨的 stunts. Should I watch NBA or should I play one more round of Tiger Woods on my XBOX? Have a paper due at 8 a.m. tomorrow; should I write it? I could only wish that Ice hockey was the only way to go out. I really should stuble but Dodge- ball is on HBO... again. Yeah, I think I'm going to go with Dodge- ball.

Sometimes it's hard to function with so many mind-mangling decisions at hand... inferences, I understand — but there is one decision that will be easy to make this spring: the choice between the NBA playoffs and the NHL playoffs. Why? That's Simple Old Timer report right? The NHL is actually holding a playoff this year for the first time in 20 years. I'm probably backing up the wrong side (Owen's true side when the time comes) and I tell you that the NHL playoffs are a lot better than the NBA play- offs, in execution and entertainment.

After all, this is a town that knows the traditions of college sports: fraternities, the NHL and, could not prevent one of the most successful major league hockey teams of the past decade, the NHL's rich tradition with the AHL Solar Bears, from folding, despite winning a championship in their final game. But, for too many people who are even still rolling, we've reached our first stop: the Cup. There is no

Blazers bring 18-game losing streak to weekend set

By BRIAN MURPHY

The UCF Baseball program has lost 18 consecutive games since the start of the season. The streak, which began with a home game against FIU on Feb. 15, has been a significant source of frustration for the team and its fans. The streak has also taken a toll on the team's morale and confidence, as the players have struggled to find their footing on the field. The Blazers will face off against Memphis this weekend in a three-game series, with games scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The team is hoping to break the streak and gain some much-needed confidence.

Knights bullied over by USF

By JIM RAYNOR

UCF knows a little too much about losing streaks. Just look at the football team, which lost 17 straight games from 2003-2005. More recently, softball lost just three games in a row for the first time in 14 years. But this weekend, the UCF baseball team will go for the record books. The Blazers have compiled a losing streak like no other. The streak began with a 12-1 loss to Stetson on Feb. 15 and has continued through 17 straight losses. The team is looking for a win to end the streak, but the odds are against them.

Knights out of luck against USF

By JIM RAYNOR

UCF's baseball team is in a deep hole, and there doesn't seem to be any way out. The Knights have been struggling all season, and their latest loss to USF only added to their problems.

Saturday's game was a complete opposite of what UCF fans were hoping for. The Bulls dominated the game from the start, scoring two runs in the first inning and holding off the Knights throughout the game.

UCF's投手, Mitch Houck, started the game strong, allowing only two hits in the first four innings. However, in the fifth inning, a couple of errors allowed the Bulls to score two runs, putting the game out of reach for UCF.

The Knights' offense was also non-existent, as they were held to just three hits in the game. The team's batting average is currently .187, one of the lowest in the nation. The team's hitting has been a consistent problem all season, and it's clear that the Knights need to find a way to improve their offensive gameplan.

Randy Finnerty is a cousin of the late Jeffrey Finnerty, who has been charged with the murder of his former girlfriend, Jessica Ullman. Finnerty has pleaded not guilty to the charges and is currently awaiting trial.

The case has raised racial tensions and heightened the long-standing tension between black and white students at UCF. The incident has sparked a debate about the university's handling of the case and the role of the university in addressing racial issues.

The team's season has been marred by a string of losses, and fans are hoping for a turnaround soon. The Knights will look to regroup and get back on track against USF this weekend.

DukeSenior's jarred by weekend win

USA Today

The Blue Devils won their second straight game on Saturday, beating the North Carolina Tar Heels 70-61. The win was a huge milestone for the team, as it marked their first win in the ACC tournament in 10 years. The Blue Devils have been on a roll lately, winning six of their last seven games to improve to 20-3 on the season. The team is now No. 2 in the nation and has a chance to reach the Final Four if they can keep it up.

The ACC tournament is a great opportunity for the Blue Devils to showcase their talent and prove that they are one of the best teams in the country. With a win in the conference tournament, the team would have a shot at the NCAA championship, which is the ultimate goal for any college basketball team.

The Blue Devils are currently No. 1 in the AP poll and No. 2 in the coaches' poll. They have a strong schedule ahead of them, with games against teams like Virginia and North Carolina, so they'll need to continue to play at a high level to stay on top.

The team's defense has been key to their success, as they have allowed just 61.8 points per game this season. They have held their opponents to a field goal percentage of 39.6%, which is the lowest in the country. The Blue Devils have also been strong on the glass, outrebounding their opponents by an average of 9.2 rebounds per game.

of a rave, especially if that chill out room is inhabited by the cuddly teddybear of a soul otherwise known as The Gamekiller, Sensitivo.
For as cute as rave girls can be in a pair of neon purple pajamas, it is best not to tell them so when they are in the middle of wondering why
the Earth doesn't orbit around love.
Nor is it cool to try to cop a feel inside their fuzzy one-piece and pass it off as a momentary lapse of depth perception. Nor is it cool to mention that all this music seems to be stuck on repeat. And there were just some of the many lessons Ross learned from Sensitivo, the last of which came when Sensitivo took his Bunny/Flower home at 3 a.m. to,
"Just you know, mellow out and lounge
on his warm, velvet comforter."

MOYSE, Peter, Washington, DC
This is to mark the demise of Peter Moyse's game. Peter's game had been happily working on a pair of foreign shoes, but The Gamekiller was aware that there's so much that can be misinterpreted as charming and witty when there's a language barrier. Peter was about to go for brakes, offering to teach them
the meaning of his favorite (and only) French term: mélangé à trois,
when fate dealt him a cruel blow,
for in walked The Gamekiller,
The Balladeer. A walking repository of meter and rhyme, The Balladeer is more than a pair of ripped denim
jeans and an unmatchable fur:
Peter could have kept his game alive if he'd just kept his cool.
But did he? Hell no. He stepped out of his game and went off a cappella on the foreign beauty, leaving the girls with no choice but to nip back at The Balladeer's house where they delighted them to his latest chart
topping track, "Just the Three of Us."

ENGELBRECHT, Judd, Braintree, MA
Judd's game was proceeding along nicely as it followed closely behind the toned and tanned posterior of
his athletic date, Beth, on a bucolic
mountain bike ride through the hills of San Francisco. When all of a sudden something punctured Beth's tire, leaving Judd subsequently Judd's game, gasping for air. For, while Judd tried to repair the tube, along the path came The Gamekiller who has never consulted this thesaurus, known simply as Early Man. And,
as all cannons in diastole die, while Judd tried in vain to remove her tire from the wheel frame, she gradually grew weary of his lengthy list of excuses and began to turn her attention to Early Man whose brain might resemble a slime mold,
but whose biceps require their own zip code. And before Judd could say, "Uh, Beth I thought we were on a date here," Early Man had picked up Beth, perched her on his shoulders, and took a cavalier-like
pride about showing her each and
every hill of San Francisco, then Sacramento, then Santa Barbara, and
finally, San Diego.

THEODORE, Rashid, New York, NY
Wore it not seen by many a witness at the club, the death of Rashid's game would remain a mystery
butling one of the many crime scene investigators portrayed nightly on television sets. For, it's a generally accepted truth that when men get off to a great start with a girl at a club, they soon expect to find themselves suavely working that woman's torso into a tongue on the dance floor. (With particular attention paid to the rubbing of the palms, the elbows, and of course the occasional posterior.) But, Rashid's case was peculiar, and no matter how fluid his conversational flow was flowing, his game saw no moment towards the aforementioned dancing routine, most especially as it pertained to the presence of a

BARTON, Ross, McDonough, GA
Approximately at dawn or sometime earlier like that last Saturday morning,
died the death of Ross Barton's Game. Which came as little surprise to Ross who thought for sure he was in the process of scoring at Club Voidance with a gorgeous pixiewalker named Bunnyflower.
But such is the fate of any man who tries to score while in the chill out room

MAGNER, Joe, Acton, MA
It is with great sadness that we mark
the passing of Joe Magner's game.
A game once respected for its ability to overcome great resistance. It was, in the process of doing just that:
charmingly dismantling the defenses
of a bubbly blonde sorority girl, when Joe turned and saw someone beside them, intently watching their conversation. Also, this person was a Gamekiller, and none other than the over-educated, pseudo academic, knower of everything, known as IQ. The Gamekiller whose sole pleasure in life is using his enormous brainpower to extort girls just like Joe's. And so it was that IQ quickly and seamlessly steered the conversation to the dilemma of quasi existentialism. Joe asked if the conversation was for real.
Setting himself up for an intellectual pummeling. By the time Joe had finished struggling to hold onto IQ's train of thought, he had lost his hold on the girl. Nature soon contrituated

TIDER, Andy, Teaneck, NJ
Andy Tider's game was alive and well. Butting up the place and making the ladies say, "Darym."
His game was a little thing—full of one liners, well timed pods and boyish smiles. He was fringy smooth while he talked to a little young American princess named Sharleece. Lines like,
"You should be called ShaniACC, because you're beautiful, and so is lace."
confirmed that his game was flying on all cylinders, and along came the future half-honor, The Balladeer. The one Gamekiller with more moves than a nomad. Andy Tider could have kept his cool could have shrugged off The Balladeer's play for his girl with a simple pump fake to the bar
and a drive to the Shantee tall, but instead he got caught in The Balladeer's trap. And before he knew it, Tider and The Balladeer were reenacting Detroit vs.
Indiana.
2005. Andy Tider, you are the first

the toned and tanned posterior of
his athletic date, Beth, on a bucolic

shoulders, and took a cavalier-like
pride about showing her each and
every hill of San Francisco, then Sacramento, then Santa Barbara, and
finally, San Diego.

NHL lockout means postseason failure

Bob Blumenfield

for several strange reasons I can't seem to remember what was the Stanley Cup last year. Oh, yeah, that's because the league was on strike. They didn't even have a playoff. NHL commissioner Gary Bettman, who by the way, is a genius, convinced the owners to lock out the players. Now the NHL broadcasts its games on Outdoor Life Network. Last time I checked, the NHL plays in its gardens, so that doesn't make any sense.

The best way to ruin the NHL in 2005-06 is back, which is much more deeply beloved in America than hockey — went on strike. It took a three-hour plane ride to get to the nation interested. It's going to take a lot more than rules changes and 'Thank you' announcements to fans pinned to the ice for the NHL to become relevant again.

Conversely, the NHL is enjoying one of its most captivating years in recent memory. Kobe Bryant, in the locker of conducting an entire makeover of his image, has put together one of the most impressive individual performances in league history single-handedly leading Los Angeles to the 1st seed in the Western Conference. Stepping west, Phoenix's Steve Nash just made his entire league take notice. Los Angeles has barely lost a step and will be the No. 2 seed in the Western Conference. It's hard to imagine that last year's MVP won't be taking home that honor again, especially when he's just closed out an even more impressive season.

LeBron James' third year in the NBA has been his most impressive yet. He continues to mature as a player and is emerging as a clutch performer, which we all know is what separates the good from the legendary. There's so much to talk about and the playoff hasn't even started yet.

A potential meeting between the Heat and Pistons in the Eastern Conference — yet again — could be the stuff of legend and three of the most entertaining teams in the league will battle out west in Phoenix, Dallas and defending champions San Antonio. The NBA playoffs should once again be accessible to the beholder.

Clinching moments are what set the NBA playoff apart from the NHL and even the NFL playoffs. Who's in, who's out, who's dominating a run—rining "Jury" play from the free throw lane over Kevin McDonald, Larry Bird and Robert Parish in the 1987 NBA Finals, or Michael Jordan draining a jumper over Byron Russell to win the 1986 NBA Finals.

That, my friends, is a story to break.

The UCF Arena was packed with 5,147 fans on Saturday night. All were there to witness Coheed and Cambria and Avenged Sevenfold rock. In the only Florida stop on the current spring tour, Head Automatica, scheduled to open the show, canceled just hours before.

EON on the band's official Web site speculate that Head Automatica dropped out of the show due to illness. The illness could be related to singer Daryl Palumbo, who has Coheed's disease. This could not be confirmed Tuesday by WARNER BROS. RECORDS, the band's label.

But, no worries, the show went on.

Coheed and Cambria opened the concert at 7:30 p.m. and played for more than an hour, closing with a 15-minute live version of "The Final Cut," an eight-minute song off its newest album, "From Fear Through The Eyes Of Madness." This encore was an surprise to Coheed fans, but band has mentioned for playing lengthy live versions of its songs, usually up to twice the length of the album versions.

New store offers hot trends

CARMEN HILLMAN

Stash Celebrity Fashion Boutique opened its doors for the first time this past Saturday on the latest addition to the Waterford Lakes family, offering the hottest trends in women’s fashion. Walking into Stash is like walking into a very fashionable friend’s closet, with her bright white decor accented by pink and green accents. Spotlights sprout from the high, windowsill-lined walls walk lined with exclusive brands organized with pictures of the celebrities who wear them. The idea was very unique, with the goal to help customers find outfits that help them find their own place among the many celebrity styles the store offers.

“You know, that’s the shirt Rachel Bilson wore on The O.C.,” Stephanie Hill said to a customer carrying a pink hooded Timberland.

Stash is the brainchild of Hill and her business partner, Greg Hill. The pair met in Los Angeles and decided to merge their dream. Ensley’s desire of owning her own women’s boutique and Hill’s desire to be a successful business owner.

Hill, who is the manager of Stash, personally chooses every product that is sold in the store, and her knowledge of the fashion industry is an asset to patrons of the boutique.

“I’m originally from Kentucky but I went to the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising in L.A. I worked as a trim buyer at Bisou Bisou, but I always wanted to own and operate my own boutique,” said Hill. She has become the flagbear for Hill’s 1-year-old online boutique, FamousStyle.com. The online boutique makes nearly every merchandise available for worldwide consumption.

“This includes all the great designers and it is only a click away from here. It is a shopping trip within the U.S. and B2F for shopping abroad. The dynamic fashion duo plans to specialize in one-of-a-kind shoes, and do more than sell high-end, hard-to-find merchandise. Stash is a celebrity fashion boutique where customers can shop according to the style of their favorite celebrity.”

As Hill describes, Stash offers a variety of the stores as “individual clones” that are dressed in celebrity.

One section is filled with the similar Hollywood styles of celebrities, like Kate Moss and Stella Mccartney. It showcases straight-legged European jeans and vintage-looking Gaultier, Versace, Givenchy, and McQueen.

“Hill describes the different sections of the stores as an ‘individual clone’ that are dressed in celebrity. “

Girlfriends can feel free to indulge

MELISSA AROCHA

The Mall at Millenia and the Rosen Plaza have recently begun offering women a pampering experience they call "Girlfriends Indulgence" packages.

These packages can be purchased at the mall or online through Rosenplaza.com, starting May 1 through July 31. Each package includes a $100 gift certificate, a free parking pass, and two vouchers for different services at the mall. The packages are available for $100, with Rosenplaza.com offering a 10% discount. The mall has also teamed up with local hotels to offer additional amenities, such as valet parking, a complimentary valet parking pass, and a free airport shuttle.

The packages can be purchased online through Rosenplaza.com and can be used by anyone, regardless of the number of packages purchased. However, the mall has set a limit of two packages per customer, and each package can only be used once. The packages can be purchased at the mall's customer service desk, and all profits will go towards the mall's charitable giving program.

The mall and hotel offer women a weekend away for mother-daughter shopping, woman taking a break, or a bachelorette celebration; a weekend away for women to pamper themselves, relax, and enjoy some of their favorite things.

The packages are a few reasons to make visits to the mall or hotel from May 1 through July 31.

According to MELISSA AROCHA, the packages offer several events. The mall offers other events such as First Friday, where popular local bands play and restaurants offer happy hour specials. The Playhouse Promenade is a private auction that will benefit children with cancer at Florida Hospital.

for the elongated songs. "There's somewhere where I'll play shows, and a certain song and I'll play completely dif­ferent one night than another," he said "just 'cause I feel like it."

"But we can kind of get by that,"

"You sell that way to why Coheed is known for being a fine band."

"The band loves to have a change."

"It is just as easy not to say, it is very possible to feel it after five years; but you put a time limit on that, how you can b.e sure you are in love?"

"If you feel something, a month, a day, a week, a year, you put a time limit on that, hope that when it finds you, you frame for when you can cap­ture it.

"Love is not about the amount of days you spend with some­one. It is about the moments that bring you together and create an "us.""

"There is no "right" time to feel something as consumming as love. Despite what people say, it is very possible to feel love after a week, a month, a year. It is just as easy not to feel it after five years.

"Bottom line, love will come when it will. There is no time limit for when you can return. It is random."

"If you feel something, you can push past the restraint mentality and enjoy the moment.

"I don't think I've had the same relationship for those two months that I do at Coheed and Cambria."

"No night matter when it comes to love"
