Florida sits at high risk for wildfires due to lightning, buildup of plant life; prescribed fires offer solution

KABIR SIMPSON

On Thursday, May 12, 2006, much-needed rain poured down over Central Florida. While the temperature cooled down and the water level rose minutely; the threat of wildfires is still a major concern.

In recent years, many wildfires are the result of lightning strikes, and the buildup of plant life; prescribed fires off er solution.

More than 4,400 of 5,400 students who declared their intentions to graduate this spring attended the commencement ceremonies at the UCF Arena that started May 4 and concluded May 6. Some arrived in bodesed mortar-boards, while others voiced their anxi­eties about tripping on stage. Regardless of creative decoration or pre-graduation jitter, everyone had at least one thing in common: the ultimate recognition of their hard work and a degree well-earned.

Thirty-seven years ago, classes first arrived in bedazzled mortarboards, and since then, more than 100,000 graduates have received degrees. On Friday morning, during the third commencement ceremony, President John Hitt achieved a personal landmark of his own when he awarded his 100,000th degree to Diane Uves, a biology major from Melbourne. Graduation consisted of two separate commencement ceremonies. Each ceremony featured a different keynote speaker who offered advice about what to expect in the future.

Some graduates reflected on their day of recognition, their UCF career, and what the future holds for them.

"The best part of graduation was the feeling of accomplishment," said Teresy Roberts, a liberal arts major from Plantation. "I successfully finished something that I started, and I think my family and friends were there to support me."

"I am planning on moving out to L.A. after the summer and getting a job at the production company I interned for last summer. Hopefully, once I graduate, I will be in a major city working on some sort of acting projects. Films, politics - who knows!"

Unknown who could replace the graduation as the end of their academic careers and the beginning of a chapter in their lives.

Personal tragedy, positive music
Santos creates an original sound out of educational life experiences, positive music

Santos has been in and out of the spotlight recently. His new band, Santos, is currently touring the east coast. Santos is also a student at UCF and has been a member of several other bands, including The Florida Tides.

On a rainy Wednesday night at the Surfer's Sport Pool Bar and Grill, Santos and his band played to a small crowd. The night was filled with hanging out, drinking, and socializing.

"It's been a tough week for me," Santos said. "I lost my dog, and my sister had a car accident. But music helps me through it." Santos played a few covers, including a version of Bob Dylan's "The Times They Are A-Changin'".

Santos played a few original songs as well, including one about his dog. "I wrote 'My Best Friend' about my dog," Santos said. "He was really my best friend, and I miss him a lot." Santos' music is heavily influenced by his personal life experiences.

Santos is currently working on his next album, which he hopes to release later this year. "I'm really excited about it," Santos said. "I think it's going to be really good." Santos is looking forward to performing more shows in the future.

Santos' music is available for streaming on all major music platforms. He encourages his fans to support him by buying his music and attending his shows. "I really appreciate my fans," Santos said. "Without them, I couldn't do this."

More than 4,500 people living in villages closest to the center or near rivers that could provide paths for lava had been evacuated by Sunday, a day after scientists raised the alert status for the 9,300-foot mountain to the highest warning level.

Walt Turbina, the official coordinator of Merapi's emergency operation, said between 2,500 and 3,000 people who live within five miles of the volcano's crater have been evacuated to nearby villages in adjacent mountains, which is one of 129 active volcanoes in Indonesia.

Three students win awards at career-development contest

ANDREW VAN WART
Staff Writer

Three members of the Delta Epsilon Chi chapter at UCF received awards at the 2006 International Career Development Conference. UCF finance student Rafael Padron placed third in the Financial Services division of the competition. Padron and Brian Peterson placed in the top 10 in business-to-business marketing. The competition took place in Dallas on April 25.

There are three types of competitions that students from around the country can participate in at the ICDC: role-play, case studies and written manuals.

In role-play and case studies, students are presented with different scenarios and are given either half an hour or a full hour to come up with a plan or formulate a solution. Then the students must present their proposals in front of judges. The competition is judged on the basis of the students' understanding of the material and how well they present their solutions.

Ordering textbooks from Web sites can be cheaper, riskier than nearby bookstores.

The college textbook market is distributed in many ways, with the National Association of College Stores, a multi-store chain of bookstores, getting 67 percent of the profit, Amazon, Barnes and Noble, and usually the university getting the remaining 33 percent. According to Rogers, the textbook business-to-business market is the largest in the country, with sales exceeding $8 billion annually.

Although each of these UCF students represented the DEX chapter, their awards are individual accomplishments that bring recognition to the chapter, rather than accomplishments of the organization itself.

Delta Epsilon Chi is the collegiate division of Distributive Education Clubs of America, a high school business student organization.

Delta Epsilon Chi is not a fraternity, but a professional organization consisting of business students.

Santos steers clear of genres, deals with unruly show fans

While Santos has roots in Florida, playing in Tampa, Miami and Sarasota in addition to Brevard, the band moved to New York for six months to try its music on a different crowd. The band had taken short shows in several milestones, including playing with KRS-One, but it moved back to Florida. Santos hopes to move to Atlanta with his wife in the future, but will also play shows in Manhattan.

"It is playing six nights a week with the spirit of their late journey was also an attempt by the elders of Atayal with tattoos, appearing in the exhibit depict featuring indigenous cultures, the spirit of their late learn from different cultures," Tony Coolidge said in a telephone interview. "If these cultures disappear, so does their knowledge."

Coolidge is the founder of a nonprofit organization called Atayal, which is named after his ancestor's tribe. This organization is dedicated to raising awareness about the day's Take participating in the "Day of the Disappearing World" isn't his first awareness. Coolidge has written a new song for the band, "Time in a Disappearing World" pays homage to the strength and beauty of indigenous women of Taiwan. The song is performed specifically on women, mainly because they are the oldest living members of this ancient culture.

Many of the photographs featured in the exhibit depict the stories of Atayal with tattoos on their faces. These tattoos reflect the tribe's indigenous culture and signify mother's life. A-Rod needs defining moment to shed 'overrated' label

Until he gets a big hit in the spotlight, Rodriguez will always be questioned by fans, media and fellow players.

He'll never win a World Series and forever be remembered as a bad late-game hitter in the playoffs, says one referee. He'll probably never win the Silver Slugger Award. He'll never win the World Series.

And Rodriguez will forever wear the label of "overrated." The word will follow him into Cooperstown, even after he retires from baseball.

But Rodriguez has the chance this weekend to change the perception about him in one game. The winning streak must end. The playoff opener against the Twins must be a success.

"That's just the case," said one veteran scouting director. "The media is going to cover Rodriguez, and they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who had a .310 average and 31 home runs for the Yankees in 2001?"

"They're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who hit .285 in 2002 and hit .277 in 2003?"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who was 0-for-8 in the last three games against the Twins and 1-for-13 in the last 17 games?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .220 in the first 16 games of the playoffs?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .205 against left-handed pitching?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .245 against right-handed pitching?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .179 against the Minnesota Twins?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .250 against the New York Yankees?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .223 against the Boston Red Sox?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .217 against the Cleveland Indians?'"

"And they're going to ask, 'Is this the same guy who has hit .214 against the New York Mets?'" of their own on Saturday. Another late two-run tally in the third inning allowed them to win, 6-3, and get over .500 with a 29-25 record.

Hock's gem wasted in loss to Houston

UCSA standings (as of May 13) UCST dropped its first two series of the season against Memphis

UCST started to rock Rice starter Craig Martin in the sixth inning, taking a 2-0 lead on a two-run single by Williams, who was 2-for-4 with a double and a run scored. But in the seventh, the Owls proved that the team is the urinary bladder on the rice field. After scoring 1-0 on a bases-loaded walk when Jake Stewart recorded his lone hit of the night, an RBI single by Lincoln. The Owls scored once more, mounting a one-run lead, handing Petricka his first loss of the season.

Lefty for Rice came into the ninth inning, taking the mound in his regular Friday role, striking out six in seven innings.

Go organic, but keep your wallet

The result, the report says, was "an absolutely benign" one. The government is trying to track every call you make or receive, but phone companies are just now starting to keep records for tens of millions of Americans so it can look for patterns that might point to terrorism. "The law "has come under a lot of criticism," the report said, "as the largest database ever assembled in the world."

A Det Norske Transport's rapid growth has poured millions of euros into its stock, making it a takeover target, analysts say. It could look for patterns that might point to terrorism. "The law "has come under a lot of criticism," the report said, "as the largest database ever assembled in the world."

Drivers adhere to courtesies of the road; make traffic bearable

Only good trans fat is no trans fat; check ingredients label for true health facts

What bothers Americans most on the road? As the summer traveling season approaches, Highway Inspector UK has made it our mission to uncover the country's Top 10 Driving Pet Peeves.

1. "Tyrants" aka "gap drivers": This is an issue that few Americans can be without. People get annoyed by slow drivers, but they are more likely to get angry at people who exceed the speed limit.

2. "Wall Street Journal" drivers: They are always early, but they drive at a constant speed, ignoring traffic signals and pushing others off the road.

3. "Sure, it may work for you, but it doesn't work for me!" drivers: They are the ones who think they know the best route and drive you off the road.

4. "Inconsiderate" drivers: They honk their horns, cut off other drivers, and don't drive courteously.

5. "Speed racers": These are the ones who drive too fast on the highway, ignoring traffic signals and weaving in and out of traffic.

6. "Gap drivers": These are the ones who drive too close to other cars, leaving no room for error.

7. "Distracted" drivers: They use their cell phones or other electronic devices while driving, increasing the risk of accidents.

8. "Obnoxious" drivers: They honk their horns, scream, and use foul language.

9. "Impatient" drivers: They are always late, and it shows in their driving.

10. "Road rage" drivers: They get angry at other drivers and try to damage their vehicles.
