Externships are short, but valuable

Exterions could be short-term internships that offer students the opportunity to gain experience in a particular field. They can help students decide if they want to pursue a particular career path, and provide them with valuable skills and knowledge. Externships can also be a great way to network and make connections in the industry.

By Thomas Hofer

Internships are often required for students to gain work experience and to improve their chances of finding a job after graduation. They can also provide students with valuable skills and knowledge that they can use in their future careers.

Graduates and students should take a moment to look ahead to May 12 looking for a chance to land their ideal post-graduation job. Other students are busy trying to get the local businesses they apply for put on full-time service. Jobs such as these can also be qualified to fit the different positions they may have their chances of getting hired based on full-time service. A first impression is made with interviewers and it's easy to say "hello" and shake a per­son's hand. What someone is wearing or can make or break that first impression. The online guides for job hunting, Monster.com and careerbuilder.com agree on one thing: a person should dress and be presentable.

While the rules of interview attire are simple, they do vary depending on the position of the job, and many people don't know what the rules are.

College students might bring work in the local service industry, but they have varying levels of style.

According to Krach, 39 percent of women with their head in the job market are average fashion model 23 percent are average American women. Women 7 percent are above average, but only 3 percent of women in this model are self-esteem to be affected by media images and standards. According to Fisher said. "They have to be healthy, they have to be perfect. And they don't understand all the advantages. People in the media have to put a lot of stress on it. They have to have access to a personal trainer. They are anywhere compared to himself or herself to a model, actor, or something... being the best is attractive." For many women, a 25-year­old junior majoring in health care, the status of the model is just as a media major is, "Bowman works at the

It 0 ~ ~ 6 al Web-based recruitment n e savvy high-schoolers to their campuses are employing as a glimpse of college life thanks to the strategies colleges across the country are using as they attempt to lure tech-savvy high-schoolers to their campuses.

Next to campus visits, one of the most important high-school visits is the college fair. But unlike our admissions dean in Oslo, Norway, the Harvard admission officer says they’re not going to lower standards in order to maintain standards for more students.

In the city of Cambridge, Massachusetts, there are no appointments, no interviews, no savvy high-schoolers being asked if they have a vision for the world. Harvard is employing a different strategy for recruiting students.

A few years ago, Harvard started a new admissions program. The program is called "The Harvard College Scholars Program," and it’s designed to attract top students from across the nation.

The program is open to students who have completed at least two years of high school and have a 3.5 GPA or higher.

Students are selected based on their academic achievement, leadership, and extracurricular activities.

Though the program is not new, it has gained national attention in recent years as more students are applying to Harvard through this program.

According to Harvard, there are several reasons why the program has been successful. One reason is that it allows students to explore their interests and passions before committing to a major.

Another reason is that it provides students with a unique opportunity to connect with other students who share their interests.

The program offers a wide range of courses and activities that allow students to explore their passions and develop their interests.

In conclusion, the Harvard College Scholars Program is an excellent example of how colleges can attract top students from across the nation.

The program provides students with a unique opportunity to explore their interests and passions before committing to a major.

It also allows students to connect with other students who share their interests and to develop their skills and abilities.

Overall, the program is a great example of how colleges can effectively attract top students. The future of higher education is bright.
Lack of funding ends some goals, delays completion of others

Natalie Zaki

Most of those programs, on average, earn only 60 percent of their operating costs. Those programs funded completely or partially by student fees fund other programs, like financial advising and the career development center, and are regularly underfunded.

Time has certainly changed.

We’ve gone from two consecutive Democratic terms to two consecutive Republican terms, the success of The Fugue has been replicated by the Red River Press, and, well, the Fugue has made some sort of major change.

Without a doubt, however, one thing that’s made a difference is how much we can have in the bank. With the students’ fees, the college has made more money.

The quarter returned to the stage last Thursday at Wall Street Plaza to headline the massive first-ever Florida Music Festival, a three-day rock festival that took over downtown Orlando this weekend.

The Campus Activities Board created the event for the band and gave five thousand dollars to those UNC students who made the trip to bring the event to campus.

Over 230 artists joined Third Eye Blind in playing at FMM. The festivals are performed on different stages at venues like The Social, AKA Lounge Boardwalk, and Shoreline Plaza.

Third Eye Blind showcased its set songs with songs released almost a decade before, including “Nervous,” “Yoga,” and a dusty version of “Semi-Charmed Life.”

Junior Christine Mullen, one of the fans who attended the show, reflected: “I think it was the best show, but I can’t believe we are leaving Orlando after so long.”

Senior Jonathan Mullen, present at the show, added: “It’s our first time back in Orlando in a long time. We had a lot of fun.”

The second general area that I focus on is mental fatigue. It isn’t uncommon to have students come to the health center feeling tired and complaining about fatigue. It is not uncommon to have students come to the health center feeling tired and complaining about fatigue.

The last area of this type of fatigue is the sleep area. Sleep is one of the most important aspects of physical and mental fatigue.

TIGER BEAT: MEMPHIS OFFENSE EXPLODES FOR 41 RUNS IN SWEEP OF UCF

Memphis comes to Orlando and sweeps UCF by combined score of 41-11, leaving Knights in last in Conference USA.

At the time the consecutive sweeps deal to the UCF baseball team by No. 1 in the country and then-No. 10 Houston looked like good learning experiences for the young team, somehow it could build on and moved toward the last leg of its first Conference USA schedule.

Now, these sweeps look more like the first steps toward engendering the headcount on what has been a very rough 2006 season.

The Golden Knights returned home for a three-game series with Memphis on May 12, getting swept for the third consecutive series. However, unlike the previous two series, it is tough to find a silver lining in the three blowout losses suffered by Jay Bloomgarden's team.

The series opener saw the Knights without All-American candidate Tim Buscious on the mound. The junior did not pitch in the series due to a knee compression, so freshman Mitch Hechler, the normal Saturday starter, was bumped up to kick off the series.

Hechler was ranked for the second time in four starts, allowing five earned runs (six overall) on eight hits in 3.1 innings, and the Knights dominated the rest of the Knights pitching on their way to a 20-4 win.

Third baseman Kyle Nordal was 3-for-4 on that night with a triple and RBI, leading the offense that put up two innings with four runs and one lining with seven, bouncing back after the Knights lumped to a 2-4 lead in the first.

Scott McRee pitched seven strong innings for Memphis, allowing just three runs on seven hits. He did not walk a single batter and struck out seven on the night.

Texas series means nothing

North Carolina State 15, Florida 4

The Wolfpack took advantage of the Gators' mistakes on Saturday to take the lead early in the game and never gave Florida a chance to come back.

The Gators committed four errors and allowed seven earned runs in the first six innings, while the Wolfpack took advantage of the mistakes to score nine runs.

State’s 15 runs tied the highest number of runs scored by the Gators in a single game this season. The previous high was 13 runs, which was set against North Carolina on May 22.

All or nothing? gym use different from other campus perks

During Fall 2004, UCF students paid $20 of Activity and Service Fees for a gym that they were unable to use.

Granted, it’s not UCF’s fault that Hurricane Charley forced everyone to seek shelter at the Wellness Center, but why did UCF students have to pay for an apartment complex gym where they had to pay $300 a year for those events! However, said students who want to use the weight room might have to pay for a $300 membership to keep their bodies in top shape.

The Da Vinci Code hits theaters; Christianity stands unharmed

Dan Brown’s The Da Vinci Code was just a book. It inspired the movie and went on to the release of the movie whose central character is a critic of the Catholic Church. Everyone, from the Pope to the Church officials, was outraged.

Exclusion from all ASF-funded activities based on summer enrollment could never exist. And if the Sun Belt Conference accepts these proposals, it would be like saying “pay sky-high gas prices is public transportation is available and there’s no dependence on crude oil, but at least it would be worth it for the environment.
