Student group holds ‘talk-in’ over perceived loss of rights

‘Free assembly is confused with free speech’ — OSI director

MAX BEHRMAN
Contribution Writer

The Central Florida chapter of Students for a Democratic Society held its second ‘talk-in’ at the John T. Woodruff-Fontaine Library on Thursday. Its message was to inform students and faculty about SDS’s desire for the free assembly areas on campus, which are designated by the Golden Rule.

“Free assembly is confused with free speech,” said Irma Jurie, a judge and associate professor of public administration. “They shouldn’t stand in the way of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution,” referring to what he would like the administration in charge of the Golden Rule to know. Also joining SDS was the president of the American Civil Liberties Union Central Florida chapter, George Croxley. We affirm that constitutional rights in the entire university ought to be a free-speech zone,” Croxley said. “This support speech, that’s all. No matter whether it’s conservatives or liberals, right or left — we are going to be standing with the students in their struggles to gain what is really already provided in the Bill of Rights.”

“The talk-in was set up in such a way that, every few feet, another member of SDS was sitting with a visible sign that stated its purpose of trying to inform students about these ‘free-speech zones’. Such signs included texts that read, ‘Let’s Talk About UCF’s Pilots for Free Expression.’ ‘This is What Free Speech Looks Like.’ ‘Ask Mr. Why UCF Has these Constitutions,’ and a blank sign that Jurie was holding,” he said. He was attempting to show the ‘subtle drama,’ the drama of everyday life, with the blank sign and said, “When you don’t have free speech, that’s what you get.”

While people may argue with SDS members over their constitutional rights after they sign the Golden Rule, Jurie said, “We believe that the Golden Rule is within free speech. It’s really the function and the purpose of the university to engage in argument.”

Library arson is first in 10 years

Fire is minor thanks to quick-thinking student

At least several hundred students and staff members were evacuated from the UCF Library after someone tried to set a fire on the library’s third floor. UCF’s third arson case in two months.

According to UCF Police, someone wedged a smuggling newspaper in a bookshelf and then fled, leaving no witnesses. No one was injured.

“Fortunately it was a very minor fire,” said Capt. Carlos Maxwell of the UCF Police Department.

UCF Police received a call at 3:12 a.m. according to Maxwell. When they arrived about 9 minutes later, the police found books and bins of charred newspaper spilled on the floor.

The fire didn’t spread far, thanks to flame-retardant books and a student who smelled smoke.

Nicolas Navarro, 31, a molecular and microbiology student, was studying with two friends for an anatomy class when he noticed a white spot.

Navarro followed the smell for several yards to a shelf near the south stairs. He yelled to his friends to pull a fire alarm.

Navarro grabbed the newspaper off the shelf and hauled it to the fire, trying to smother the flames. He finally stripped the newspaper until the fire was extinguished.

At one point, Navarro said, his shoe briefly caught on fire. “I was kind of scared,” he said.

The amount made a foolish choice.

Social issues lead to large dropout rate

Students struggle with setting their priorities

One in three freshmen reading this article is likely to drop out after their first year at college. At least, that’s what a new study by the American College Testing Program indicates. The study says that many college freshmen drop out during their freshman year and almost 42 percent of students do not complete their college education, according to the National Center for Education Statistics.

According to the study, students struggle in setting their priorities.

“Most people think it’s academic, but it’s not,” said Rachel Cows, who was sitting in her job.

“This is why I have the academic skills they do well in high school, but not the overall competency like UCF and they have difficulty. They think how much they do and I think they have any contact with anyone,” said Freemon Patrick, 31, one of the 19-year-old students.

Freemon Patrick, 31, and he hasn’t had any problems with feeling isolated. The mechanical engineering major commutes to campus so he doesn’t have the same of being home sick. “I have a group of friends from high school I hang out with.”

The second reason is a lot of freshmen drop out of college in poor organizational and scheduling skills, according to the article.

“Students struggle with what comes first. ‘Do I start looking for a job or first get a part-time job? ’ said Schall said. He also mentioned that it can be helpful for students to have a part-time job because it teaches them structure and discipline.

“Having a job helped my transition,” Rachel Cows said. The 19-year-old sophomore was most of her friends through her job. “I made friends with my co-workers. Some of which happened to go to UCF,” she said.

Cows, a criminal justice major, had a few things she learned from her first year. “She didn’t really make friends.” Cows said.

“Students struggle with setting their priorities. Nearly six of 10 freshmen plan on being one-out of-three in the dropout rate to get their degree. The college experience is a club or an activity for them. There is always something to do at UCF.”

UCF professor recounts rescue

After days of searching, orienteers recover jogger

UCF engineering professor Bob Putnam knows the woods surrounding campus well so that he had helped to create a detailed map of the area. Even so, the section where he found jogger Eddie Menck was a blank spot on the map.

“They wouldn’t put a dragon in the old days,” English said. ‘Alphonse wanted to these dragons in the places that were considered too dangerous.”

When Menck was out for a lunchtime jog near Winter Springs, Fla., on Aug. 25, a group of friends from high school went for a search, including theOrange County Sheriff’s Department and the UCF Police Department.

“Some of the causes of starting it were the ‘subtle drama,’ the drama of everyday life, with the blank sign and said, ‘When you don’t have free speech, that’s what you get.”

Dear Golden Knights,

I want to take a moment to thank the student-body for their outstanding support of our football program.

You kept the momentum going from last season and this was evident at the Villanova game.

With ESPN nationally televised games, this season and next, the game day atmosphere at the Citrus Bowl and at Brighthouse Networks Stadium will soon be known across the nation as one of the best in college football.

You can take great pride in knowing that you play a big part in our football program and have a key role to play each and every Saturday. We want our stadium to be known as one tough place to play, as well as a first-class venue for our visiting fans.

College football is a great game and with your help we will continue to build a strong tradition at UCF.

Professor uses navigation skills to find lost man

Days combing the area, Eaglin and his fellow Florida Orienteering members, who used to stage events in the woods near UCF to test their navigation skills, didn’t respond immediately.

“We didn’t go out right away because we thought, ‘the professionals are in charge, they’ll take care of it’,” said Bob Putnam, Florida Orienteering coordinator.

The professional crews used everything from helicopters to ground search, along with approximately 50 volunteers.

After dividing the search area into five regions, Eaglin and Putnam split up to scan opposite ends of region one. Both said they were prepared for the worst.

“I was stopping about every 20 to 30 feet and listening for the signs of a body — the buzzing of flies and the sounds of certain birds,” Eaglin wrote in his blog, which he used to document the incident.

Eaglin’s 0 years of experience told him a splash he heard in the distance was not a deer.

When a man crying frantically for Eddie Meadows was stopped about every 140 meters away, it was a certain amount of tantalizing.

According to Eaglin, Meadows was not found in the swamp, as professional news reports had suggested.

“I was never at any point back,” Eaglin said, and two other rescuers confirmed.

Misinformation piled up in the days after the rescue as the media saturated of traffic — also known as the sounds that might mean your rescue,” Eaglin said.

“In fact, the fact that Ron heard the splash was all about the sounds that might mean your rescue,” Eaglin said.

Putnam are being considered for certificates of service from the Orange County Sheriff’s Department.

“Now keeping it was all about Jack,” Sirman said. “There was a certain amount of Jack involved, but there was also a certain amount of tal-ent. With Bob’s planning and Mum’s intuition, we found [Meadows] in the first hour.”

For UCF students, IDs are the ticket

MALAEI L. PATTERSON

The UCF Athletic Association (UCFAA) announced Thursday that students may now gain admission to UCF regular season home games at the Florida Citrus Bowl by displaying a valid student ID card.

In fact, this policy is expected to continue for the remainder of the football season. "We have this option due to our policy of general admission for student seating," said Keith Tribble, UCF director of athletics, in a press release.

"Each ticket for a... necessity for a ticket... does not apply. The importance of this option for admission is that it will prevent scalping of tickets to high-demand games inasmuch as a student is not likely to offer his ID card to a third-party.

In preparation for the 2007 season, and with a finite number of tickets available at Bright House Networks Stadium, UCFAA initially planned to have students pick up tickets prior to home games.

After receiving feedback from the UCFAA's fanbase, and with the future ticketing technologies, UCFAA determined students would be better served to utilize their student IDs for purposes of admission to games.

With this being the final season at the Citrus Bowl, there are challenges and opportunities in administration admission to our 2006 season home schedule, and planning for the upcoming 2007 season at Bright House Networks Stadium.

"It is important to understand that we will not serve from a 5,500-plus-seat stadium to a 40,000-seat stadium.

"It is our hope that we can continue to increase student interest in attending UCF football games during the 2006 season and into the 2007 season," Tribble said. "At the same time, we recognize that with a 45,000-seat stadium in 2007, and with our enrollment north of 45,000, there will be constraints as to how many students we can fit into the stadium.

"With our home opener against the University of Texas, this will be exciting.

Advising available to help struggling students

"The more ownership you feel like you have for the better the chances of changing," Schultz said. "Get involved in the sports, go to games and get involved in activities.

Stidham said he plans on participating in activities and on campus.

"Right now, I'm just trying to learn around, but I want to get involved," he said.

The university offers individual advising. The First Year Advising and Exploration office specializes in helping students plan their four-year plan. At any given time, students are expected to meet with a counselor, a freshmen and sophomores, to talk about courses and select options.

With the counseling center, if a freshman needs help, it's our there. He has to take the first step, and work out the help of the feeling isolated or helpless or... to knowing someone to talk to.

Scheit has a special program available from his office.

The Free Store was once again brought up, this time at the talk-in, where some people within the John T. Wilkerson Center began handing out Wal-Mart laundry bags for free.

"Get involved in the Free Store outside the Student Union," Tribble told the students in DeCals, a 25-year-old creative-writing major and a member of SDS, said the purpose of the store was to inform students that "we don't need corporations like... Several hundred people evacuated in unsolved arson

By Flavia Arru

Navarro said, "I don't know who it was, but they didn't know the consequences." He said, "There were a lot of people here."

How many people were said to leave the library is not entirely clear.

Meg Schott, the library's associate director for public services, said perhaps as many as 1,100 students were evacuated.

Some students remained on the library's first floor throughout the evacuation. Michael Kahre, 22, a forensic science student, said he was in the Java Cafe on the main floor when he heard the fire alarm. When police arrived, a lot of people were still inside," Kahre said.

Another student, standing in line at the library's computer-reserve desk, expressed annoyance at the arsonist. "I was confused and agitation," said Jon Louvier, 21, a marketing student. "I panicked and I want to use the library's computers."

The bookshelf held books with high priced paper, which repelled flame, and only one book was damaged. Still, a fire marshal was called to review the scene.

Maxwell said, "Unlike many other campus buildings, the library does not have a sprinkler system on every floor—only on the first floor—for that water would drain the books if the system was activated.

"Two other fires were set at UCF over the summer. In July, a UCF student was arrested and charged with first-degree arson in connection with two fires in an Academic Village apartment building." In the charging affidavit, Mother Robert Damsky said he was confused and agitation.

"I want to use the library's computers," he said. "We're adults now," he said. "We're not kids." Maxwell said.

GAINESVILLE - They were down 16-0, their defense had allowed 299 total yards and their offense had amassed 75 yards on 31 plays, but UCF did do one thing right. In the first half of a 42-0 loss to the No. 7 Florida Gators on Saturday evening. They ran. To the right, to the left, straight up the middle.

UCF running backs Kevin Smith and Brandon Peters had 11 combined carries in the first half, all of them going to the right side. It’s an odd fact, but it was the only offensive trend that provided something positive for the Knights in one of their worst halves under coach George O’Leary.

Smith rushed four times for 17 yards on the first drive to dig the Knights out of a hole created by Jason Verzino mis-placing the opening kickoff and forcing the Knights to start at their own 5-yard line.

After two passing first downs, they were facing fourth and two at the Gator 44, but quarterback Steven Moffett was unable to get the snap off and was flagged with a five-yard delay-of-game penalty, forcing O’Leary to bring on Aaron Home to punt.

It was the last time the UCF offense would threaten the Gators with the ball. The victory keeps the Buckeyes (2-0) unbeaten. The Longhorns (2-0) remain unbeatenn.

The victory gives the Buckeyes three wins in a row for the first time since a 24-17 victory over Penn State on Sept. 22, 2001. The last victory in Columbus against Penn State was a 17-10 win over the Buckeyes in 1997.

The Buckeyes defense, which had to replace nine starters this season, saw its defense stuff the Volunteers for 269 yards passing and two touchdowns, leading the Buckeyes to a 26-7 win Saturday night.

The victory keeps the Buckeyes No. 3 in the Associated Press Top 25 poll, while the Volunteers fell from No. 16 to No. 20.

The victory also gives the Buckeyes three straight wins for the first time since a 24-17 victory over Penn State on Sept. 22, 2001. The last victory in Columbus against Penn State was a 17-10 win over the Buckeyes in 1997.

Leak showed off his recovered total yards. That's 14 more yards end zone and gave up two points. "Big strong, fast guys," Leak said. "I put my hat on to Harvin. When you play a big, strong team like that, you can't use up the clock."

"O'Leary mentioned some of the starters in the fourth quarter, leaving Kyle Kyle to run the offense. Though he worked his way down to UF starting line on their last possession, the final result was a turnover on downs and a zero for the Knights."

"It's a little frustration," Peters said. "Even though we have to watch film and let it go, it's going to be back at the back of our head that we didn't score any points as an offense."

UF is 2-0 in a road game against SEC East rival Tennessee (2-0) coming up this Saturday. The Knights now stand at 1-1, with in-state rival South Florida (2-0) coming to the Citrus Bowl on Saturday. Despite being outscored 62-25, allowing 27 first downs compared to 11 for the offense and giving up 3 for 16 on third downs, Peters echoed the sentiment of the team. "They must let the game go and win their next game to get back on track."

Sloppy tackling costs UCF against speedy UF

On the first half, running back Travis Smith got just four carries for the first half, running back Travis Smith got just four carries for the first six yards after the Knights first drive. To put it in even more perspective, Florida had dominated two downs that produced 182 total yards. That's 14 more yards or more. The Golden Knights allowed in their 40-40 overtime loss in the 2006 Hawaii Bowl. And it isn't as bad as the game continued to get out of hand. And with less than five minutes to go in the second quarter, it looked like that would be the case. Then, the two offenses turned into two completely different teams.

While the Knights were unable to force their tempo, the Gators' offense turned into a Gaining goal. In their final three drives of the first half, the Gators ran 31 plays that produced 182 yards and three touchdowns. They were 9 of 14 passing for 138 yards and three touchdowns. Even so, those were going for it because I know the score."

How to win a war

A new UCF paper states that the US needs to fight terror in a new way. The paper, titled ‘Winning the War on Terror’, was written by a group of UCF students and aims to provide a fresh perspective on how to combat terrorism.

The paper argues that the US needs to focus on prevention rather than retaliation, and that this can be achieved by improving communication and building relationships with the local communities.

The authors of the paper argue that the US currently lacks a clear strategy for dealing with terrorism, and that this is one of the reasons why it has been so difficult to defeat.

The paper also highlights the importance of understanding the psychology of terrorists, and argues that this can be achieved by spending more time and resources on research and development.

The paper concludes that the US needs to rethink its approach to fighting terrorism, and that this can be achieved by focusing on prevention rather than retaliation.
HIV class very effective

I would like to expand upon Professor Potkovich’s comments on the nature of the infec­tion dynamic. In the U.S. and many other countries, this is a significant problem. This is why it is important to understand the nature of the disease and the ways in which it is transmitted.

During HIV/AIDS, an HIV class taught by Shari Douglas and Linda Potkovich, I was able to examine my preconceptions, misconceptions, and lack of knowledge about the disease. I was also able to learn about the medical ramifications of the disease for individuals, their families, and society. I believe that this subject is complex and difficult to understand at a glance or in a short course. The extended treatment of the subject in a semester-long course allowed a thorough examination of this issue.

I would like to echo Potkovich’s encouragement of all of us to become informed. For me, this class was definitely a good starting point.

SDS demands “Free Store”

The success of the Student Union’s Democratic Society’s “Free Store” on Wednesday September 5 is undeniable. In front of the Student Union, students, faculty, and passers-by were able to engage in sharing and compassion. They were also able to take part in symbolic, non-confrontational debate about the issues that affect our daily lives. The university’s core mission is to serve as a beacon of enlightenment and social justice. Judging by the response to the “free store,” SDS demands that the university take this on as a clarion call to organizing the community’s clamoring for a true democracy. It is the backbone of our democracy that at all levels of society, people are able to voice their opinions and take part in spirited, non-confrontational debate about the issues that affect our daily lives. SDS demands that the university play an active role in empowering people to take control of their sexual health and preventing unwanted pregnancies.
