Committee searches for med school dean

FIVE candidates — are medical doctors of mixed backgrounds.

It became apparent: Find a dean.

The Florida Board of Governors approved the UCF medical school on March 23. The school is expected to bring increased opportunities for medical education in Florida, help address the statewide growing physician shortage and permit Florida to remain on par with neighboring states.

Throughout Tuesday, in a closed room at the Hyatt Regency at the Orlando International Airport, a search committee chaired by College of Sciences Interim Dean Peter Piatnick met with the potential candidates.

“We saw five excellent candidates,” said Provost and Executive Vice President Terry Hickory. “They come from different backgrounds and have different strengths.”

The candidates — Deborah German, M.D., Bruce E. Jarell, M.D., E.A.C.C., Bruce A. Mehler, M.D., M.B.A., Mark Pfeiffer, M.D., and Thomas Schwenk, M.D. — met with the board Tuesday morning.

“The candidates’ backgrounds vary from Harvard educations to vice-dean experience,” Hickory said.

“We need a highly qualified individual who understands that we are a startup medical school but that we are a research university and a research-based medical school,” Hickory said.

Penalized student’s appeal denied

Sophomore Jared Andersen, a UCF student who filed a grade appeal based on the spring semester, was denied. On Tuesday, five candidates were interviewed to fill the position of the dean for the new College of Medicine, set to enroll students in fall of 2009.

“Most of the students golf cart drivers like they’rejoying the course, but they’re havin’ fun watching us try to get out of their way,” said Vaughn.

UCF’s golf cart program falls under the Parking Services and the UCF Police Department. However, neither of these agencies seems to get many complaints.

White paper emphasizes focus, student awareness of terrorism

Interim: President John H. G. Hetrick created the Global Perspectives Office at UCF in Oct. 2001, to focus on UCF’s international focus. Sloan, the office’s first director, worked alongside more than 40 scholars in a November conference to create a white paper, and then he co-edited it.

As the white paper states, "These recommendations provide an important overarching view of perspectives to meet an evolving challenge, a view that is often set aside by those who, because of their responsibilities, are driven by current controversies."

It doesn’t tell us all that we need: Beginning with a new mindset, the paper’s main idea is that this policy recommendation is that people are in denial about a possible terrorist threat. The paper states, "Encouraging a mindset of anticipating the unexpected is crucial to preparing the Student Union and its allies for every eventuality."

The authors recommend that it is kept in mind that, ultimately, all terrorism is local. The paper states, "Thinking globally, organizing regionally and acting locally this recommendation is not without importance."

"This is not the real world. Although the U.S. is a superpower and has the power to influence events, individual countries make their own policies."

Local terrorist threats: The Student Union has been notified that there will be no food and pionees.

"There will also be cantina themes, such as tacos, nachos, mariachi music," and many other things, the office said.

Global leaders are shaping five policy recommendations to help combat terrorism from the 5-page white paper developed by the Global Perspectives Office:

A new mindset: Learn to anticipate the unexpected

A new focus: Remember, most terrorism is local

A new learning emphasis: Teach terrorism concerns

A new multi-culturalism: Reach out to other nations

A new sense of innovation: Better use of foreign aid

The socio logy major feels that this project is "an important, overarching view of perspectives to meet an evolving challenge, a view that is often set aside by those who, because of their responsibilities, are driven by current controversies."

University will allow students to pay online by bank card.

MINNEAPOLIS - Students at the University of Minnesota will soon be allowed to make tuition payments by bank card - and while school officials say it will offer convenience, some worry about the danger of falling into debt.

When this is the new way to pay tuition at the University of Minnesota, the school's student body dean said, he was considering how to use the new service to benefit students and to make the payment process easier.

"We're looking at it as a way to offer students a convenient way to pay tuition, and it's also a way to help students manage their money," said William Beyer, who runs the university's student financial services.

Dean's first task will be earning accreditation

School could contribute $1.4 billion to establish 95 residencies, as medical faculty and salaries for faculty. With excitement over the country's largest medical school, it will be as much as $6.4 billion.

Although the medical school has several tasks at hand coming into the new medical school, the most important will be earning preliminary accreditation from the Liaison Commission on Medical Education, a nationally recognized accreditation authority for medical education programs.

"Without accreditation of the undergraduate programs, there is no medical school," Hickey said. Without accreditation, the medical school cannot recruit full-time clinical faculty and this will draw even more part-time.

Potential for the new medical school will be the biggest challenge. Without accreditation, the medical school cannot recruit full-time clinical faculty and this will draw even more part-time.

"We invented more than two and a half years in this medical school project and all five candidates are as excited as I am about this. It intrigued all of them," Hickey said.

It is the committee's plan to narrow the applicant pool to one or two candidates, and expose them more to the community and the hospital partners.

Within 10 days, with President Hint's final decision, a candidate will hopefully sign on to be the founding dean and start work in January 2007.

Few formal complaints filed to police, Parking Services

"We're officers not on the sidewalk, so unless someone comes to us with a number, there's nothing we can do," Roop is referring to the required registration number printed on every cart in block numbering on the back, along with a number, the cart is detected.

"If you come to me with a complaint who was driving the cart you're complaining about, and then you can go to the police," said Roop.

Even though few formal complaints are actually filed with UCF Police or Parking Services, both agencies are aware of the problem.

"We always make sure to yield to pedestrians when we're in our carts," Singh said. In addition to the rules that can be found on the Parking Services Web site, all agencies that check out carts are required to review a UCF-produced video about cart procedures.

The video, however, was made in 1999 and could use an update, Roop said.

"The video is a little corny, but the rules should be followed," Roop said.

Both Singh and Roop encourage students to come to them with reports of bad cart driving.

"If you come to me with a complaint, and you know the organization, I'll make sure we look into it," Roop said.

To report cart violations, contact: Parking Services at (407) 823-5555 or the UCF Police at (407) 823-5555.

Gators DT Thomas suspended for violation of substance abuse policy

GAINESVILLE — Florida defensive tackle Marcus Thomas was suspended indefinitely Wednesday for a second violation of the school's substance-abuse policy, leaving the fifth-ranked Gators without their top defensive tackle.

Coach Urban Meyer said Thomas, a senior from Jacksonville who leads the team with three sacks, will miss at least Saturday's game against Kentucky.

"He is suspended," Meyer said. "The whole situation is under review. It's under evaluation, and I'll comment when it's appropriate. There's no timetable. Nothing is set in stone.

Thomas spent part of Wednesday in meetings with school officials to appeal the suspension. He received earlier this week for marijuana use, his mother said. Sheila Motte said her son tested positive twice for marijuana between the middle of July and the end of August. She believes both results are from the same drug use.

Motte said her son tested marijuana at a party this summer. When he returned to campus in July he failed a first drug test, which prompted school officials to suspend him for the season.

UCF HOCKEY CLUB Prepares to Hit the Ice

Knights look to build on tournament appearance

AUDRY JACOBSON

Last season brought the UCF Ice Hockey Club to the doorstep of the Rochester College Hockey Association Division 3 National Championship.

In the first round of the tournament, the Golden Knights, the No. 14 seed, lost to No. 1 seeded Penn State in a seven round overtime shootout.

"By the third period I felt that nothing else could go in (the net)," goaltender Curt Petersen said. "I was living the shoot out for one thing, definitely the most fun I'd ever had playing." The loss ended their hopes of a championship run.

The team is kicking off their season Friday night at Georgia Tech.

Combat fighters return to the ring for revenge

LAUREN ERLICH Contributing Writer

The UCF Arena will host Combat Fighting Championships 2 on Saturday. The event will showcase the fighting styles of 24 different fighters from different parts of the U.S. The night will include 12 fights that showcase fighters from different divisions.

Organizers, as well as fighters, promise the same intensity as last month's Combat Fighting Championships. Fighters are returning from the original CFC and new fighters will use CFC2 as their debut. Combat Fighting allows a fighter to implement the basics of martial arts, boxing and wrestling, in a hand-to-hand combat scenario. The fighters forgo the values of traditional martial arts and use techniques from all areas in a fierce, sparring capacity.

WUCF celebrates 25 years

Station will feature Michelle Amato and UCF professor in anniversary concert

LAUREN DICKSON

WUCF will welcome jazz vocalists Michelle Amato Monday as part of their 25th Anniversary Concert Series.

WUCF’s local jazz station, now in its 25th year, is hosting a monthly concert series as a celebration of recent quarter century of broadcasting.

A new performer is highlighted every month. The concerts will be free in the WUCF radio studio and broadcasted to the local community.

An all-acoustic band will be with Amato in the studio as she performs. The concert will also feature Jeff Beeler, UCF professor of jazz studies, on saxophone.

WUCF station manager Kayeone Riley pointed out that free bands in radio are a rarity. In radio’s youth every show was played live. Now stations rely on recordings and DJs.

Riley said that she wants WUCF and the surrounding communities to enjoy the chance toростник as well as incredible music.

There’s an great opportunity to see how music in made and mixed, she said.

The studies are supported by $5,000 equipment that allows for professional style, work and sound. The concert will also employ a professional sound engineer that will mix and master the sound to create a live, but clear resolution.

“It will be like a recording. You’re actually able to tell the difference,” Riley said.

The concert series features on local jazz artists. Amato, a Florida native, is a regular in local venues. Her jazz style can be heard in homes across all the state including the WUCF studios on an and Tampero’s restaurant.

A graduate of the University of Miami’s school of music, Amato has studied and worked in Florida for years.

Amato can be heard on her album, I’m All Smile, as well as on Stern street album, I’m All Smile. She is also a vocalist for the local band Dirty Martini. She is featured on their first album, I’m Loving My Life for you.

WUCF will perform with Amato works as a teacher and coach for venues all over the state. She instructs classes as well as individual lessons, at the University of Miami, Rollins College and Memphis State University, among others.

She has also worked with Lisette De Solla De Solis performances.

4:00 pm pushed the UCF arena to grande Combat Fighting Championships on July 15. The crowd is expected to exceed that number.

Middleweight champion will be named

Four At.

All matches are fought in a cage that houses the combatants and a referee. No pads are worn. Given are worn to protect the hands and a mouth guard is also worn. The fighters can be dangerous as well as bloody. All of the fighters are high-intensity athletes and workout regularly with various coaches.

The techniques used by fighters vary in styles of fighting. All fighters concentrate on a mix of jiu-jitsu and boxing. The women will include two elimination fights can be dangerous as well as bloody. All of the fighters are high-intensity athletes and workout regularly with various coaches.

The title match will be named champion of the 185-pound division and will be awarded the UFC’s first middleweight title belt.

The heavyweight division will include two elimination rounds in the way as to win the title. Wrestlers Mike Whitehead and Mike “Bones” Buchanan will face each other in the ring. Also,重量级重weight Tony “Tami­ er” and Jose Sylvest will match up, showcasing knock out ability and traveling techniques respectively.

The winners of the heavyweight division will go on to the final event, Combat Fighting Championships 5 on Dec. 2.

The first heavyweight championship will be awarded.

“Combat Fighting is not for losers. This week’s event will forever be between the female fighter of the year, Apressen-Icicles, and TamerArnold. The women will display techniques in mixed martial arts as well as specialized signature attacks.

Though the fighters are individual, all fighters are affiliated with a team. These teams operate as sponsors and are ran out of the fighter’s home gym.

UCF had a crowd of over 4,000 people. UFC is expected to exceed this number.

On Sept. 23, Spectators will be allowed in at 12:00 p.m., and the first fight will start at 6:00 p.m.

Tickets for the event can be purchased through Ticketsmaster, as well as the UCF Arena box office by calling 407-823-6000. Bilingual seating is available by calling UFC 407-673-7000. Information on the event and fighters are available on the Combat Fighting Championships website.

Everyone loves ice cream, but Bruster’s stands out as one of the most original, creative and flavorful ice cream. There are so many locations all over Florida, and I agree with their slogan when they say “treat yourself to something special”.

Amato anticipates live studio performance

Amato will be singing from her new album, It’s All Beauty. This album features many jazz standards covered in Amato’s unique style. “It’s really exciting to get to perform a radio show,” Amato said. “It’s very rare to get to perform on the radio and get your voice out to so many people. It’s a great opportunity.”

WUCF invites students and staff to come by the studio to enjoy the concert and tour the facility.

“Anyone who wants to stop by is more than welcome. It’s a great way for students to get involved with the radio station for WUCF,” Amato said.
