Violations jeopardize SGA senator's seat

NATALIE ZLATI
Contributing Writer

The student dubbed Mr. UCF 2005 may not be taking his job seriously. Gaston Blanchet, current Mr. UCF and member of the Student Government Association, was charged Thursday by the SGA Elections Commission with a major violation for not registering a fellow SGA Commissioner. If convicted Blanchet will lose his seat. Violations can include violations of campaign rules or rules of the SGA Commission.
A new religion that started up one year ago called the Church of the Flying Spaghetti Monster has arrived at UCF and students are joining in on it.

The Church of the Flying Spaghetti Monster, also known as the Pastafarian movement, is based on the belief that a flying spaghetti monster is above everyone, and touches them with his noodley appendage, said Magnus Dethen, a digital media major.

"It brings joy and harmony to all people," Dethen said. Dethen is one of many Pastafarians, as they call themselves, transmitting the word of this new church.

"I agree with this idea," said Kevin Allen, a senior psychology major. "I grew up in a house that was not religious, so I feel like this is a good way to spread happiness.

The church was started in May 2005 when Bobby Henderson, a 24-year-old physics graduate student, created the Pastafarian movement with the Kansas State Board of Education protesting the decision to teach intelligent design in place of evolution.

Intelligent design is a form of bringing religious connotations into schools by masquerading as an idea to combat evolution," Dethen said.

The argument was that if intelligent design is taught, equal time would need to be given to teaching Monsters and debatable scientific fact. At the same time, all other concepts and religions should be equally taught. It would be similar not to teach them," Dethen said.

Dethen and 10 others were among the Student Union last month handing out flyers and cups of Roman noodles, while preaching the gospel of the church designed to fill plate-gate.

"That day was Talk Like a Pirate Day," the holiest of days for all Pastafarians because pirates are considered the chosen people of the church. Even though pirates are portrayed as thieves and swashbucklers nowadays by other religions, Pastafarian belief is that they used to spread good will and hand out candy to children.

In fact, the Gospel of the Flying Spaghetti Monster, written by Henderson, argues that there is a connection between pirates and world disasters and environmental problems such as earthquakes, hurricanes and global warming.

These disasters have increased as the number of people have reduced the number of noodles they eat." Dethen said.

Kevin Allen is a senior the­ re major and has been on the Web site that one of his friends showed him. He found it to be funny, clever and creative.

Allen is more interested in the actual history behind it. The church started out as a harmless Randy religion that became popular as more people found out about it. People either liked it because it was funny or because they had a personal grudge against religion, Allen said.

"This joke picked up so many followers that it was brought to the Student Union last month, " Dethen said.

GOP leader cancels interview

House Republican's spokesman says illness prevented TV appearance

HOPF RV

Rep. Macaulay Culbertson, the House Republican's spokesman, said Wednesday that Newt Gingrich, the former House speaker, had to cancel an appearance on an Arizona talk show because of a cold.

Gingrich had been scheduled to appear on the syndicated talk show "The Morning Show," which airs on a CBS-owned affiliate in Phoenix. Culbertson said Gingrich called off the appearance just before scheduled because he was feeling unwell.

Gingrich had been criticized earlier this week for saying he had "no one to blame but myself" for the downfall of his 1995-2003 tenure as speaker. Gingrich, who narrowly won re-election last year, remains a prominent figure in the Republican Party.

Mack said the tutors will receive thanks from the tutors and the student leaders as a group to discuss specific strategies to enhance their tutoring.

"The tutors get to see each other every day," she said. "But SI leaders only come back to the SARC lab to check their mailboxes. This is one of the few opportunities they have to get together.

"The week ends with an appreciation reception, which is the associate vice president and the vice president of Student Development and Enrollment Services will attend. "It's an opportunity for the administrators know who they are," Mack said. "We want the tutors to know they know those references."

Mack said several tutor leaders have their own "beauty professionals" at their homes to help them learn to tutor more effectively.

"We want to make sure the administrators know who they are," Mack said. "We want the tutors to know they love those references."

By the close of National Tutoring Week, SARC will have spread its message to the UCF community in hopes of enhancing the popularity of its programs and tutors.

Tutors like White just want to "be well-known to the students that they can get help — and that it's free," she said.

Indiana University Southeast could consider dual-degree programs.

NEW ALBANY, Ind. — Indiana University Southeast officials hope to follow the lead of other Indiana colleges that have started student-hosted courses in an effort to make commuter colleges feel more like traditional universities.

IU Southeast officials are working on a bidding proposal for Indiana University Trustees to consider at its next meeting.

Other schools that have added student-hosting say adding-dorms changes the campus.

Last month, Indiana University Southeast trustees approved a $15 million proposal to house about 400 students at Indiana University South Bend.

IU officials are taking the same quiet approach that South Bend has to discussing their plans. Cindy Hino, a spokesperson for IU, said it would not be appropriate to discuss details of a proposed commuter arrangement until trustees get that information.

Curators seeking $20 million to expand health care training

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The University of Missouri system will press again for fresh funding to expand health care education programs at the four universities.

For the third time, the Board of Curators is requesting $20 million from the state to help hire more instructors, recruit more students and address the critical need for skilled health care workers.

The curators have rejected two previous requests. The last one went almost a year ago, led the university system's Office of Academic Affairs to create a task force to study how the university's campuses in Kansas City, Columbia and St. Louis were doing on health care programs.

The panel met Friday told the board that the pending short of health care workers will be a critical, especially for pharmacists, nurses, rehabilitation therapists and imaging professionals.

Task force members said the shortage is coming because aging baby boomers will require more health care services, modern medical technology needs more skilled workers and people are living longer.

Oklahoma schools offering majors in cyber security field

OKLAHOMA CITY — With cyber crime and America's nation's top threat, cyber security has become a hot study area at some Oklahoma colleges and universities.

Several state schools, are offering certificates and degrees to prepare students for jobs to limit unauthorized access to national security and industry.

In an academic program, varies majors — computer science, digital forensics, cyber security information security — but that is the focus in the collection, examination and preservation of electronically stored evidence in cases of crime, fraud or terrorism.

Benedictine College offers an associate degree in cyber security and has partnered with Oklahoma State University-Oklahoma City so students can transfer their work at the Oklahoma State campus to earn a bachelor's degree.

New senator put in hot seat

The second-year junior said that the election statutes he was asked to familiarize himself with aren't as cut and dry as they seem.

"The statutes are confusing, hard to find, poorly written and can be interpreted many ways," he said.

Officials hope HIV tests become routine and the abolition of required written consent before being tested.

"I think that most people...proposed...get your Pap smear," political science major Sheyla Mastroianni said. "I don't think the doctors are going to say, by the way, you know you're going to get an HIV test. I mean, it's going to be like cholesterol, you know, annual review. It goes along with your Pap smear, your prostate check, everything." According to the CDC report, routine HIV testing reduces the stigma associated with testing that requires assessment of risk behaviors. More patients accept recommended HIV testing when it is offered routinely to everyone, without a risk assessment.

Mastroianni thinks it's going to be important to make it clear that people who are raising objections to these guidelines have concerns that testing would become so common that people wouldn't feel they have a choice in the matter.

Mastroianni said he will be working with Health Services to make sure the way the regulations are implemented on campus make it absolutely clear that getting tested is an option, not a requirement.

"I was asked to familiarize myself with the entire process," he said. "But Blanchet disagreed with the violations happened before Blanchet even got his seat," Bushman said. "But Blanchet disagreed with the entire process."

Council might not be that forgiving to a brand new senator.

The paint symbolizes the blood on our hands of unethical involvement in unethical corporations like Siemens, Coca-Cola, Chase Systems and Aramark, who have done incredible acts of inhumanity around the world." said SDS member Jeff Gre, a 19-year-old creative writing major.

Members listed signs reading "Wash your hands of dirty politics," "Students Not Elected Directors" and "Stop Imperialism at UCF" along with a depiction of Knightsbridge giving a playboy rack to a sinister-looking globe over his head.

We were up the stairs in President Hitt's office, but he was not there to listen, so we left a little note," said SDS member Austin Smith, a 20-year-old history major.

"Nice to see a Hole advisor," said Bryan Morela, who identified himself as a Millican Hall staff member, as SDS members in groups of six walked up to the top floor and taped their letters to the glass windows surrounding President Hitt's office.

Many attempts to solicit comments from UCF administration members were made, but they declined to comment on the protest.

SUU-bailed students in front of the Student Union to join in their protest against what they consider to be UCF's involvement in unethical enterprises.

"We are not the radicals," said member Felipe Pond, a 22-year-old political science and Spanish double major into a megaphone. "I think the radicals are the companies who hire us to do their work. Why would UCF pay to send students to a school that builds pain guns and fires weapons?"

"I don't agree," said another SDS member Jeff Gre.

"I bet if the students, the administrators, the staff, the students who pay tuition and buy Aramark foods," said Gre. "I think the radicals are the companies who hire us to do their work. Why would UCF pay to send students to a school that builds pain guns and fires weapons?"

According to the letter, food services corporation Aramark supplies students enjoying "Real Food on Campus" with low-quality food that is harmful to the immune system.

"I didn't know anything about Aramark," philosophy and psychology double major Chris Cornell said. "I just know they charge my debit card. I'll join the rally (but I can't)," he said.

Local product Lukas growing into one of C-USA's best

VICTOR ANDERSON

When the ball lands at the out-of-bounds line, would you want any other quarterback than the one you just saw? Leister Ricard was "lucky" that Coach Butch Davis gave him another chance. Ricard’s performance, however, was anything but lucky. The win against Houston was the second straight for the Green Wave.

The crowd roared as Ricard led Tulane on a late-game drive, culminating in a 4-yard touchdown run. "I knew he was going to,” said Ricard of Tulane coach Butch Davis. "I knew he was going to give me the chance to make up for the mistakes I made."

Ricard completed 15 of 20 passes for 167 yards and two touchdowns. His performance was crucial in Tulane’s 38-24 victory over Houston. Ricard’s ability to lead the offense and make crucial decisions on the field was a testament to his growth as a quarterback.

Houston fell to 2-6, while Tulane improved to 3-1. The victory was the second straight for Tulane, who are now sitting at the top of their conference.

On the court, senior outside hitter Lorin Lukas continued her impressive season. Lukas, who was named to the All-Conference USA team, had 16 kills and 12 digs in Tulane’s win over Houston. Her performance helped the Green Wave earn their second straight conference victory, cementing their place at the top of the standings.

Lukas’s breakout season has been marked by several record-breaking performances, including a 19-kill, 15-dig performance against Memphis on Nov. 1. She is currently leading all of Conference USA in kills per set and is third in the conference in digs per set.

The win over Houston was a crucial moment in Tulane’s season, as they look to make a run in the conference and secure a spot in the NCAA Tournament. With the victory, Tulane is now 11-0 in conference play and is on a seven-game winning streak.

As the season progresses, Tulane continues to impress with their strong defense and offensive production. They are currently ranked #2 in the nation in kills per set and #4 in blocks per set.

Tulane is looking to continue their winning streak as they take on another top 10 opponent in the form of the Memphis Tigers this weekend. With Lukas leading the way, Tulane is ready to take on the challenge and secure another conference victory.
AUBURN, Ala. — Darren McFadden ran for 148 yards and added 104-yard kickoff return for a touchdown as the Tigers extended their winning streak to 14 games on Saturday.

McFadden also broke a 63-year-old school record for kickoff returns for touchdowns when he scored on a 104-yarder in the first quarter. The return set up Auburn's only touchdown of the game against Mississippi State.

Auburn defeated Mississippi State 13-7 to move into a tie for first place in the SEC West with Alabama and LSU. The Tigers (4-0, 2-0 SEC) lead the league by a half-game in the West Division.

McFadden's return was the first for Auburn since 1942 and the first for the SEC since 1944.

The Tigers' 14-game winning streak is the longest in the SEC this season. Auburn's last loss came Oct. 20 at Arkansas, 24-20.

"I can't imagine there being a better feeling," Auburn coach Tommy Tuberville said. "To win a game in which you score only 13 points and come back from 10 down on a kickoff is just an incredible feeling.

Auburn held Mississippi State to 177 yards of total offense and just 13 first downs.

Auburn quarterback Bo Nix was 9 of 17 for 94 yards and a touchdown, while running back Tyrese坚持lin also rushed for 94 yards and a touchdown.

Mississippi State quarterback K.J. Costello was 5 of 14 for 79 yards and an interception, and running back Kylin Hill rushed for 52 yards and a touchdown.

Auburn (7-0, 4-0 SEC) returns home next week to face Alabama, which enters the game ranked No. 1 in the country.

"I really do think we're going to have a great game against Alabama," Tuberville said. "I think they have a great coaching staff, and I think they have great players."
Pirates get upset win over Virginia

The Pirates got back to winning ways last week at home with a big upset victory over Virginia. The Pirates took a 2-0 lead in the first half and held on for a 31-21 win over the Cavaliers.

Knights tie Blazers, now 1-1 in Conference USA

The Knights and Blazers played to a 24-24 tie in their meeting last week. Both teams scored two touchdowns each in the first half, with the Knights taking a 13-10 lead at halftime.

ARGING teachers won't end shootings

A number of school shootings in the past two years, at least one state official is calling for armed teach­ers in the classroom.

Wisconsin State Rep. Frank Lewant wants to create a state law that would allow teachers, principals and other fac­ulty. He said it would help teachers protect themselves and their students.

"We did not make our schools safe for our students, the schools should be on the table," Lewant said.

Lewant and his staff had met with students and teachers in Thailand so examples of con­cealed weapons that have successfully re­duced violence in that country.

This reaction is understand­able. The U.S. has 593 public high schools with police on duty.

The student-teacher relation­ship in high schools, especially young students, need to treat their teachers as friends they can talk to the head of the school or a counselor.

But an armed teacher isn't someone a student can trust. An armed teacher is someone a student can fear.

For all school officials want to see armed teachers, however, Point Pochowski, the director of school pol­icy for the National Education As­sociation, is against the idea.

"We believe in our schools, but not to the point where we arm our teach­ers and principals," Pochowski said.

The National Education As­sociation's rules on gun of any kind in schools.

The fifteen armed school shootings in the past two years have been an epidemic in the U.S., school of check­point and police officers.

THE Unarmed school shootings in the past two years have been a wake-up call for school officials in every state. They have also been put on lock­down.

Schools in Virginia, Nevada, Colorado, South Carolina and Wisconsin have already been put on lock­down after threats of violence.

Pochowski said, this type of thing isn't new. He cited the previous incident at Columbine in the last 14 days.
