IS THAT A SPY IN YOUR POCKET?

The UCF Police Department has received a report that some UCF students are engaging in espionage activities.

The incident involved a student who was observed taking photos and videos on campus without proper authorization.

The student was asked to show their ID and explain their activities, but refused to cooperate.

The police are currently investigating the matter and have advised the student to cease all activities.

ANTITRUST ACTIVISTS RUSH TO ORGANIZE PROTESTS ACROSS U.S.

Angered by the Federal Trade Commission's decision to reject the merger of two of the country's largest grocery chains, anti-trust activists have launched a nationwide campaign to protest the decision.

The campaign aims to raise awareness about the dangers of monopolies and to encourage consumers to support smaller, locally owned businesses.

The activists have planned a series of rallies and demonstrations in major cities across the country, including New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles.

The campaign is expected to gain momentum as more people become aware of the issues involved.

Rock for Hunger raises $200 for charity

JEN GLAZITZ

Volunteer UCF organized their first charity concert of the year Tuesday in downtown Orlando and raised $200 for Second Harvest, a charity helping to feed the hungry in Orange County and across Central Florida.

The concert was the first of its kind this school year, although the group has seven more concerts already planned for the year. Chris Goyfman, the head of Volunteer UCF, has some high goals set for Rock for Hunger.

"At our first concert, we raised $100. At our second, we raised $100. At our third, we raised $100. So, at our fourth, I would like to raise $100. At our fifth, we would like to raise $100. What’s in the news at colleges around the country.

Bemidji State University wants to cut all of its costs by 15% by spring 2006.

BEMIDJI, Minn. — Bemidji State University is moving to cut its emissions of fossil fuel-generated greenhouse gases and to save money by moving from oil to wood chips for most of the heating.

The college plans to invest $2.5 million in a new boiler that will heat most campus buildings by next winter, said Joan Goodrich, the college's vice president for planning and special projects.

The college follows dozens of public school districts in Vermont that have seen significant financial savings from similar installations. Leland and Gray Union High School in Townshend cut its annual heating bill by about $48,000 after making the switch, according to the Vermont Department of Public Service.

Supporters of wood chip heating say it is “carbon-neutral” in that carbon released when trees are burned is absorbed when the trees are planted or seed naturally to replace them.

The college expects to cut its oil use from 44,000 gallons in the 2004-2005 heating season to 3,200 to 3,700 in the 2005-2006 season.

The switch is part of the college’s ongoing effort to reduce its carbon footprint, Goodrich said. A new student center that opened this fall includes passive cooling methods and recycled materials.

Study: SAT scores a good predictor of university graduation.

BALTIMORE — A study of Maryland’s four-year colleges and universities concludes that SAT scores, already dropped by one state university, may be a requirement for admission in future, the researchers said.

The report, prepared for the Maryland Higher Education Commission, looked at the percentage of undergraduates who started college in 1999 and graduated within six years.

“Those with higher SAT scores are more likely to not only return for a second year of study but eventually earn a degree as well,” the report said.

Among students whose combined math and verbal SAT scores were 1,000 or higher, about 80 percent earned a degree within six years, compared with 50 percent of those scoring less than 900.

Of course, the students tested the SAT before the addition of a writing section, meaning 600 was the highest possible score.

Sallisbury University last year became the only state school to allow prospective freshmen write-point essay, but has not submitted SAT scores with their applications.

UN Mideast, Iraq, says peace conference to start in Jan., London

DETROIT — The University of Michigan said Wednesday that it will no longer consider race and sex in deciding which students to admit, complying for the first time ever with a new voter-approved ballot initiative on affirmative action even in court to challenge the ban in the U.S.

The Ann Arbor school, along with Wayne State University, the University of Detroit Mercy and the University of Detroit, had sought more time to make the switch to admissions or financial aid systems that do not give preferential treatment based on race.

“This is a big step forward, there’s not much more to do,” said Anne Miller, chair of the university’s board of regents. “The students, the faculty, the administration, the people of this state should be proud.”

The university had suspended its admissions process for the fall semester, and admission of students admitted with Proposal 2 in mind. It said it would fully comply with Proposal 2, an amended version of a state Constitution that was voted approval Nov. 5.

It is race and gender preferences in public university admissions and state government contracting.

"People are hungry, and these are the ones of us who can afford to do our part," said Sigal. "This event helps bring awareness to the blights and struggles of others.

While the tickets have sold out, Rock for Hunger also has programs. Rock for Hunger is an event from the big lug-geren Hip hop artists CLIH, whose name came from Greg Roop from the band Strange, has performed before at the event and came back because it was such a good cause.

Musicians needed to get involved in charity events like Rock for Hunger, said Sigal. "This event helps the people who do not have as much in their own way. It's important to give to others.

Tickets to Rocking Out Hunger cost between $15 and $8.
It's a way for people to give back, and have a few drinks, enjoy great music, and most importantly support a great cause," Sigal said.

The event is scheduled for February 25 at the OAK Level

Juggling Club open to all, member Mike Wilhelm said when he took a break from form. We're here to learn from each other and to have fun. "There is very little introspective thought taking place. In a sense, you just relax, allowing your thoughts to cycle out of your mind," Walker said. "Usually you don't want to be thinking of anything." The former president and founder of the club, James Burdick, started the club with the aspirations of a juggler's research project in mind. In fact, many of the club members are majoring in civil engineering or a related math and science field. "I was looking to create a sort of program that would help people learn at spatial awareness skills," Burdick said. "So many skills are time-based. If you had the ability to control time, you could become faster at the juggling club." Burdick went on to describe a type of augmented reality where: there would be a computer program that projected a stream of light, much like a hologram shows. Once the path of light is in front of you, it could be moved right, for example, a ball. Any errors would be obvious because the ball would go off the path of light. A juggler could then, ultimately, improve his skills by getting the pattern down to perfection.

Juggling utilizes cognitive abilities, and the club's faculty sponsor is a psychology professor, James Bishop. He helps promote the juggling club in his general psychology class by offering extra credit to students who learn to juggle. "If anyone needs help, he sends them our way," Walker said. The club usually puts on a little show for the class toward the end of the semester too. The team also does various small performances on UCF campus events and a few animal festivals outside of Orlando. The Halloween festival at UCF brings in visiting juggling teams from Florida State University, the University of Florida, and the University of South Florida. "We all meet together for a weekend of fun. We cookout on the grill, laughed and made new friends," Walker said. They also attend the April Fool's Day festival, held at Florida State University and coming up the Groundhog Day festival in Atlanta from Feb. 15.

Interested students can check out the club's Web site, jugglingatucf.org, to get the club's current schedule.

Knights to host celebrity classic

MEHALI THOMAS

The UCF baseball team recently announced plans to host the first annual Central Florida Celebrity Softball Classic. The two-day event will feature a Celebrity Gala and roast on Jan. 28, followed by a Celebrity softball game on Jan. 29.

The idea for the event came when Vintage Sports Management approached UCF Baseball head coach Jay Bergman with a proposal for a fundraiser. Bergman said, "I'm happy to see some people that might not necessarily come to a UCF game or might not have ever been on our campus," Bergman said.

Kicking of the festivities will be the Celebrity Roast, which will feature Bergman. The event will take place at the FAIRWINDS Alumni Center at UCF and will honor Bergman and all his accomplishments.

"We batted around different people in the community that people would know," Bergman said. "Then finally we (Vintage Sports Management) just said, ‘would you mind doing this?’

"I'm really comfortable with it," Bergman added. "I'm not really enjoying it in that type of spotlight, but I said I would, because it's the first year." Bergman may not like to toss his own horn, but with 14,454 career collegiate wins, he certainly has a reason to. Not only that, but Bergman will also coach his Lasorda UCF game this season in early March.

Two of the featured roosters that might see former New York Mets manager Davey Johnson and former Minnesota Twins pitcher Frank Viola, who have had comparable careers with each other.

Johnson helped guide the Mets to the 1986 World Series win, and has a career total of 1,148 career collegiate wins, he could very well coach his Lasorda UCF game this season in early March.

On the other end, Viola played 15 years in the major leagues. He is also noted for averaging a .331 record in the 1972 playoffs on the way to winning the World Series MVP. UCF's Pat Clarke will serve as the co-host for the evening.

The weekend will also include Celebrity softball games, where many professional athletes and UCF alumni will take the field. Some of the featured guests include Kenard Lang (Gainesville, Fla.), Rashad Jeanty (UCF, Columbus, Ga.), Thomas Clarke (Silkhope, Redditch, Browm), John Medley (Davenport, Ind.)

Women's Basketball to host UAB

NATHAN CUNTS

It's been a slow start to the season for the UCF Women's basketball team. "We think we started off very, very slowly," UCF head coach Gal Strieglar said. "It was pretty disappointing with the beginning of the season.

The disappointing start hasn't been exactly a surprise, however. After all, the team is still adjusting to its new place in Conference USA.

The good news for UCF is that it is finally coming back to Orlando and will be able to play in front of a home crowd that has proven to be a key to the Knights' success. Strieglar said that the team has a better shot to win in front of a friendly crowd. That's about where the good news ends. Coming into Orlando on Friday, for their first conference home game, the University of Alabama at Huntsville. UAB is just above .500 at 3-0 in the conference play.

Their top threat is SMU, which UAB beat in a close game. 73-68. The Mustangs were down by a couple points at the half, showed they have no problem finishing strong. They shot 46.2 percent from the field and went 10-14 on free throws to overcome the Mustangs. Finishing is one of the problems that Strieglar has noted that UCF needs to work on.

Knights CAN'T FINISH UCF loses first C-USA match in overtime upset

We kind of had that blank look on our face when we got down by four, and you can't have that.”

BRIAN MURPHY

For 37 minutes on Wednesday night, the UCF Men’s Basketball team did everything in their power to care the most important win of their season. But college basketball is a 40-minute game and in those remaining minutes, they successfully blew it in overtime.

In their battle against the UAB Blazers, the Knights built a 20-point lead with less than three minutes left on the clock. But by the end of regulation, a certain victory had vanished as the Blazers stormed back to force the game into overtime. In the extra five minutes, the Blazers dominated a stunned squad of Knights, claiming a 74-64 triumph.

The game was about 12:12 to play, forward Lavell Culp’s tap out from the Knights 3 to 37 lead. That basket sparked a 15-0 run, which looked like it would clinch the game. With a couple of basket from forward Josh Peppers and sophomore guard Derrick Thomas, UCF’s advantage reached its peak at 8-4 with 3:20 to play.

Senior guard Maurice globe nailed a 3-pointer to cut the deficit to seven, 2-5 to play, but UAB, likely in the hands of the Knights as long as they could control the ball, forced them to make the maximum defense. They did none of that.

On the Knights’ next possession, junior guard Dave Noel turned the ball over which led to another UAB bucket, bringing the Blazers to within five. While their lead was shrinking, the Knights themselves were starting to tighten up. Last month, secured by numerous second half collapses and you could feel those memories filtering back into their minds. With a minute to play, The Blazers committed a few fouls, two more in their comeback effort. If Noel and Taylor could make just one three throw, The Knights would have walked out of the Bartow Arena with a crucial win. But both players missed the free shot and one attempt at the line and both missed shot to quick bounces by UAB junior guard Paul
Howard carries Magic to victory

JANICE MCGUIRE

OAKLAND—Dwight Howard's teammate told him he needed two more points for the first 30-point game of his career. Howard responded by scoring those two points in four tries over the final minute of regulation play. As for the rest of the game, well, that is another story.

The Magic won their fifth straight game, 91-76 over the Golden State Warriors on Wednesday night to make a Rape 15-point swing since mid-December.

"It's a game that we really needed to get," Howard said in a radio interview. "We didn't respond as well as we should have and we didn't respond as well as we were capable of responding. So we are going to have to go into that game with a little more determination and when that 3-point shot is not going in, we have got to stick to what we have got to do and try to get some things going."

That wasn't the case against the Warriors, as Howard shot just 2-of-8 from the floor, 2-of-8 from the 3-point line and missed six free throw attempts.

The game against the Warriors was the first of six games on the road for the Magic, who had won their last three games on the road.

"We need to have some energy on defense to get this game back to even," Howard said. "Our guys got to run up and down the floor, get off the bench, and try to implement that in a game against a grind-it-out team."

Bergman to be honored at two-day event

Brendon Michael Uomo, UCF Athletics Director, announced on Wednesday that Lanny Bergman, a former UCF football coach and director of athletics, will be honored with the Lanny Bergman Inspirational Award during the 13th Annual UCF Football alumni Kick-Off Luncheon and National Signing Day dinner on Friday, Feb. 4.

The event will be held at the UCF Alumni Center in the Student Union and will feature keynote speaker and former UCF football coach, Lanny Bergman.

Bergman, who served as the UCF football coach from 1950 to 1958, was a member of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1973.

"Lanny was a true pioneer in college football," Uomo said. "He led UCF to its first-ever conference title in 1952, and his influence on both the university and the community continues to this day."

The end is near. Women can no longer have children. Terrorists are attacking the U.S. And a princess is dead... But don't forget to bring me back some popcorn. Half of the best films on my list for 2006 deal with nothing less than the unyielding fate of death itself, yet most of those also brought with them a genuine sense of hope in the end. It may not have always made for joyful viewing, but then again, hope isn't the only thing that floats.

Place: $2005 on A12
This year, skinny is the new boot-cut. Seeing someone's started, back-to-school is all about skinny jeans.

According to a Doc. Art article in the fall, the hit through skinny jeans or skinny-leg jeans can be traced back to the French. Mode of them is the new style for this year, instead of boot-cut or low-rise jeans.

Skinny jeans styles are already a favorite on campus. Stacy Kassoff, an 18-year-old junior, said "I just love them. It's all I wear these days in the fall just because they're comfortable." Kassoff has three pairs of style of skinny jeans. They're slim for the fall season and enjoy reading Vogue for fashion and style advice.

One of a favorite hunch spot is Dexter's, a chic little spot on Park Avenue in West Park. This is the perfect space, part restaurant, so you can freely enjoy eating, drinking, and yesty atmosphere.

Dexter's is a delicious spread of fresh salads, sandwich, pastries and more. Dexter's is American high-class eating at its finest, and doesn't break the bank.

Start off with a bucket of sweet potato chips with oriental yum sauce for dipping and you won't be disappointed.

This delicious feels the perfect blend of salty and sweet paired with a tangy balsamic. But save room for lunch, because the menu is plenty of great choices.

In the salad section, one of my favorites was an avocado, green pepper & sun-dried tomato cracker salad. Fresh, chunky, a salad served over green with cheese mixture, sun-dried tomatoes, toasted nuts, parmesan cheese and topped with a large balsamic vinegar.

Dexter's also offers up great sandwiches. Guests have the option of "order- ing" their own sandwich and our group's choice of bread, meat, cheese veggics and more! To help create always a delicious outcome.

If you don't feel like putting together the options your own sandwich component, there is a chart of the number of sandwich combinations that can be made.

The grilled pomegranate chicken salad is made of flavorful pisto grilled chicken on brown rice seasoned with sun-dried tomato, balsamic veggics, and fresh herbs. When paired with a large balsamic veggic.

Dexter's traditional American meals are some of the best.

Our eggplant Napoleon is that mixture of eggplant that is drizzled in butter and fresh this is all layered with spinach, provolone, Parmesan cheese and baked until golden crisp.

It's American with any variety.

But the grilled Colby chicken is their best in American favor. I usually get this dish as a single order at mediocre restaurant, but they say that it's hard to mess up a hamburger.

Our family of scones is great at Dexter's. If everything is fresh, then the hamburger will be fluffy and flavorful. And the price is a good value.

Dexter's is out of this world.

They have a variety of clothes. When paired with a large balsamic veggic, it may be a safe choice, but it is also a delicious one.

Dexter's, located at 1599 Main Avenue, White Plains, is Dexter's is one of the most popular dining spots on the West Side, but it's hard to resist.
