This practical knowledge was also helpful when a female student requested recipes for Spanish soup.

Mahan said that she had the "best job in the world." being a librarian was not what she always pictured herself doing.

While growing up, she had the goal of becoming a foreign language interpreter. She entered her undergraduate degree in Spanish and French from Pennsylvania State University.

It was not until she was stationed in Germany with a husband when she realized her future career.

"In the 1970s, I was put in charge of a small library in Germany," she said. "I thought it was a pretty cool job, and then I realized that you had to have a master's degree. Because an undergraduate was not enough in it."

Her husband eventually went to Vietnam and Mahan came back to the states, where she earned her master's degree in library science from Florida State University.

At the end of her career as a librarian, Mahan worked about 10 hours a day for four days a week. She arrived at the library around 5:30 a.m. and left at 6:00 p.m. She was considered to be the most senior librarian at the university.

MASON. — A study of Maryland's four-year colleges and universities concluded that SAT scores, already dropped by one year statewide in 2003, will be used as a requirement for admission to more coursework and to help predict retention and graduation rates.

The report, prepared for the Maryland Higher Education Commission, looked at the percentage of undergraduates who graduated in 1999 and graduated within six years.

"The higher the SAT scores of students, the greater the likelihood that they not only returned for a second year of study but eventually earned a bachelor's degree," the report said.

Students whose combined math and verbal SAT scores were 1000 or higher earned a degree within six years, compared with 302 and 50 percent of those with scores between 500 and 1000, and 40 percent of those scoring less than 500.

Juggling Club open to all, finds many ways to have fun

The Juggling Club at UCF offers students a chance to improve their concentration and improve their performance-related interests. We’re here to learn from each other and inspire ourselves and others to think, because it’s not about winning anything. It’s about possessing meditative qualities that make it more than just a hobby.

There is very little introspective thinking taking place. In a sense, you just relax, allowing your thoughts to cycle out of your mind.” Walker said, “Usually you don’t want to be thinking of anything.”

The former president and founder of the club, James Burdick, started the club with the aspirations of a juggler research project in mind. In fact, many of the club members are majoring in civil engineering or a related math and science field. “I was looking to create a sort of program that would help people get into spatial awareness skills,” Burdick said. “So many skills are time-based and better at the visual awareness skills.”

Burdick went on to describe the Grill, juggle and make new friends,” Walker said. They also have weekly sponsored events, like Bar-B-Ques, that are held around the area. Interested students can check out the club’s Web site, jugglingatucf.org, to get the club’s current schedule.

The team also organizes small performances in UCF’s campus events and a few small festivals outside of Orlando. The Halloween festival at UCF brings in visiting juggling teams from Florida State University, the University of Florida and the University of South Florida. “We all got together for a weekend of fun. We cooked on the grill, laughed and made new friends,” Walker said. They also attend the April Fool’s Day festival, held at Florida State University, and coming up, the Groundhog Day festival in Atlanta from Feb. 2-4.

KNIGHTS CAN’T FINISH
UCF loses first C-USA match in overtime upset

“We kind of had that blank look on our face when we got down by four, and you can’t have that.”

For 37 minutes on Wednesday night, the UCF Men’s Basketball team did everything in their power to come away with the most important win of their season. But college basketball is a 40-minute game, and in those remaining minutes, they successfully blew it all away. In their battle against the UAB Blazers, the Knights built a 20-point lead with less than three minutes left on the clock. But by the end of the regulation, a certain victory had vanished as the Blazers stormed back to force the game into overtime. In the extra five minutes, the Blazers defeated the Knights, claiming a 74-64 triumph.

About 1200 to play, for­ward Lavell Peppers’s lay­up gave the Knights a 53-50 lead. That basket sparked a 15-4 run, which looked like it would clinch the game. With a couple of baskets from reserve for­ward Josh Peppers and sophomore guard Brett Emery, UCF’s advantage reached its peak at 54-50 with 1:09 on the clock.

UCF senior guard Maurice Gilbert nailed a 3-pointer to cut­ their deficit in seven with 2:45 to play. They still held the lead in the hands of the Knights as long as they could control the ball, make their free throws down the stretch and play defense. They did none of that.

On the Knights’ next possession, junior guard Dave Noel turned the ball over which led to another UAB bucket, bringing the Blazers within five. While their lead was shrinking, the Knights themselves were starting to tighten. Last season dominated by numer­ous second half collapses and you could feel those memories filtering back into their minds. With a minute to play, The Knights committed a few fouls to save time in their comeback effort. If Noel and Taylor could make just one free throw, the Knights would have washed out of the Barlow Arena with a cru­ cial win. But both players missed the front end of a one-and-one attempt at the line and both misses led to quick lay­ups by UAB junior guard Paul Paye.

It’s been a slow start to the season for the UCF Women’s Basketball team.

“I think we started off very, very slowly,” UCF head coach Candie Stronger said. “It was pretty disappointing at the beginning of the season.”

The disappointing start hasn’t been exactly a surprise, however. After all, the team is still adjusting to its new place in Conference USA.

The good news for UCF is that it is finally coming back to Orlando and will be able to play in front of a home crowd that has proven to be a key to the Knights’ success. Stronger said that the team has a better shot at winning in front of a friendly crowd.

That’s about where the good news ends. Coming into Orlando on Friday, for their first conference home game, the University of Alabama at Hunts­ ington, UAB is just above .500 at 8-7 but the Blazers boast a 2-9 start in conference play.

Their leading scorer was SMU which UAB best in a close game 75-68. The Blazes were down a couple points at the half, showed they have no problem finishing strings. They shot 46.2 percent from the field and went 10-11 on free throws to overcome the Mustangs. Finish­ing is one of the problems that Stronger has noted as a reason to. Not only NATHAN CURTIS

Kassoff likes the style of form-fitting, she told his style and enjoys reading Vogue for fashion and style advice.

"There's a lot of pictures of 'Jeans give the skinny on style' in the style section, and I'm really into fashion and style. It's just something I like to wear because it makes me feel more confident," Kassoff said.

Dexter's

Dexter's is a chic little Italian restaurant on Park Avenue in Winter Park. The menu is easy to read, part restaurant, so you can quickly see what you're eating.

The best thing about Dexter's is the delicious spread of fresh salads, sandwiches, pastas and pasta. Dexter's is American high-class cuisine at its finest, and doesn't break the bank.

Start off with a basket of sweet potato chips with entree sauce for dipping, and you won't be disappointed. This delectable snack is the perfect blend of salty and sweet paired with a wine. But save room for the main courses, because the menu has plenty of great choices.

In the salad section, one of my favorites is the family-style grouper & sun-dried tomato caprese salad. Fresh grouper is served over green salad with chevre cheese, sun-dried tomatoes, toasted pinenuts, caramelized onion and topped with a tangy balsamic vinaigrette.

Dexter's also offers up great sandwiches. Guests have the option of " QB" their own sandwich and get their choice bread, meat, cheese and veggie. And you only have to fill up 25-30 before you always decide on the perfect order. If you don’t like having to fill up 25-30, ask for the bread, meat, cheese and veggie.

For a lighter menu option, there is a small portion of the day where you can order a salad, and then choose from a selection of your favorite pasta.

Dexter's pasta is probably the highlight of the restaurant. The garlic broccoli with fresh peas is a delicious blend of garlic and broccoli topped with grated garlic, herbs, parmesan and a spicy tomato sauce.

The Best

1. CHILDREN OF MEN

Agnieszka Holland has crafted a visually compelling and technically impressive science-fiction film that deals with despair and despair, as a melancholic Chloé Moretz suddenly finds herself charged with the protection and survival of one miraculous pregnant woman in an inconceivable future.

Thanks to Cuarón's bravura establishment of environment, Emmanuel Lubezki's crackling cinematography and pitch-perfect performances by All-American supporting trifecta of Alan Cumming, Michael Caine, and Rachel Weisz, Children of Men is exhilarating as so very few modern genre movies are.

2. UNITED 93 (NOW ON DVD)

Paul Greengrass's thoughtfully pivotal treatment of the Fourth Plume plane Incident on 9/11, 2001, could only have been crafted and enacted with hindsight, but that makes matters all the more inevitably devastating, as Greengrass and his uncompromising actors raise such palpable adversary from an American tragedy to a deeply human one.

3. THE FOURTH WINTER

Writer/director Darren Aronofsky's three-faced tale of devotion ideals in levels both grand and intimate thanks to the poignant performances by Hugh Jackman and Rachel Weisz. Matthew Libatique's luminous visuals and Clint Mansell's haunting score.

4. LETTERS FROM IWO JIMA

A dire coming-of-age story, especially the thought-provoking reflections of Alan Arkin, Steve Carell and Paul Gross, is a profound and deeply dysfunctional family on the road to an unanticipated and enduring commentary on hope, in a society steeped in an all-or-nothing mentality of winning, the lads may just have to redefine their American dream in order to achieve it.

6. THANK YOU FOR SMOKING (NOW ON DVD)

As Dana Reineman slowly loses his grip on his habits, his vision unfolds his directorial debut with a volley of spin in today's culture, starring a never-smoother Aaron Eckhart in a role pretty much the role he was born to play.

7. PANS LABYRINTH

schedulings (Tie) to edge of the water

Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make BenefitGlorious Nation of Kazakhstan (Now On DVD)

There are terminal illnesses more concerning than either of these two gems, one being the latter's9image of a society that, being the nadir of comedic taste.

8. BLOODYMIND AND MAIDENS FAMILY REUNION

Terminally-ill youth's dream of Denis Villeneuve's remarkable drama, and "Oscar" Perrin make their requisite appearances, courtesy of a moronic video-game adaptation and a bromidic farce/melodrama.

9. THE QUEEN

From director Stephen Frears comes a document of impressive tact and empathetic honor, and Helen Mirren's righteously loaded performance is one of truly majestic grace under pressure.

10. OCTOBER (NOW ON DVD)

Michael Winterbottom's non-faces fake and makes at its own giddily mocking nature — right in line with the essence of the unfilmmable novel it's based on — with Steve Coogan, Rob Brydon and Michael Sheen engaging in plenty of good-natured self-deprecation along the way.

1. THE HEART IS BEAUTIFUL

Above-All Things and Lady in the Water

Oh, the pitfalls of misguided convictions. On one hand, Asa Butterfield's emotionally unpreten­

omy. On the other, M. Night Shyamalan's indulgent tale about the incidents of an apartment complex — except for their critic — is helping a water nymph enlighten an author (Coburn) and then kill a ride back home atop a giant eight-inch board on a bedtime story for his kids. Whether sincere or insuance, these grand delusions are both unconvincingly insufferable.

2. THE LARRY THE CABLE GUY: HEALTH INSPECTOR AND VAN "THE USE OF TAI"
