Kesse's family to hold vigil on today's one-year mark

WHITNEY HARRICK staff writer

The Kesse family will remember Jennifer Kesse on the one year anniversary of her disappearance in Flagler Beach. Jennifer Kesse made the last-known phone call from her boyfriend Robert Allen on Jan. 23, 2006. Jennifer Kesse didn't show up for the game at UCF. Since then, Jennifer Kesse's family has come together to remember and honor her memory.

The memorial will be held on Monday, January 23, 2006, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Flagler Beach. The memorial service will include a tribute to Jennifer Kesse, who was a beloved daughter, sister, and friend. The family asks that attendees wear black to show their respect.

DirectConnect eases transfer pain

LAUREL MIDNIGHT staff writer

More than 2,200 community college students across Central Florida have signed up for a program designed to make the transfer process to UCF easier. The DirectConnect to UCF program aims to assist regional campuses, while easing the transition process for transfer students. In late 2006, the Central Florida Higher Education Consortium, a partnership between UCF and Valencia, Brevard, Lake-Sumter, Seminole and Valencia community colleges, was formed. The program's first initiative was to create a solution to meet the transfer needs of these four community colleges with an associate degree as well as to admitted UCF.

"This is in response to an increasing demand for higher education," said David Harrison, Vice President for Regional Campuses. "Higher education demands in Florida are expected to exceed the number of seats available."

Still, the program does not guarantee admission into limited access programs that require an extra application. While the state already has a similar regulation to the rule books that says if a student completes two years of community college in Florida they are guaranteed admission into a state university, this program is much more specific.

Unforgettable Undergrad gets trip to New Orleans for Psychology Conference

"I couldn't be more happy," said study participant Ashleigh Gentry. "I feel like I can't believe this is happening to me."

Different victims, similar crimes

Robberies could be one man's work

UPSTAIRS was on the third floor. But then, while he was asleep, something pushed its way down and forced its way in. He was woken up by the noise and went to the window to see what was happening outside. He saw a man wearing dark jeans and a hooded shirt. The man took his wallet, phone, and computer. But then, when he woke up, he saw the man was still there! He tried to scream, but the man covered his mouth with a cloth. He couldn't breathe! He called 911 and the police arrived.

The police searched the area and found the wallet, phone, and computer in the man's possession. They also recovered some documents that were stolen.

The police believe the same person has been committing robberies all over the city. They are urging anyone who has been a victim to come forward and help with the investigation.

Melinda Williams, a junior biology major, will present a thesis Monday in the Career Resource Center. From 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., Williams will discuss her memory research.

Melinda Williams is studying how the 72-year-old daughter of a high school teacher in New Orleans — but not for Marli Garcia.

In closing, Williams is scheduled to attend the Southeastern Psychological Association's 56th annual convention to present her research on fake memory syndrome.

"These are things that can occur because of someone's emotion when they recall an event, not because of word association," Williams said.

Williams is focusing her research on fake memories because people are aware that they have false memories.

"We're eventually trying to figure out if people can differentiate between a true memory and a false memory," Williams said.

Williams will be presenting her research at SEPSA, with the help of her mentor Abigail Wang, Wang, a.Detail of the UCF honors college and a psychology professor, has been working with Williams since September 2005 on FMS.

Williams research explores the connection between FMS and word associations. She conducted a study of 60 participants, giving subjects either a list of misleading words, words that had nothing to do with the other words on the list, or a list of words that are similar to the other words on the list.

"I found that the reaction times of the subjects with the critical items that were quicker than with the subjects who had the misleading items during the recall phase of the experiment," Williams said.

"This suggests that the subjects cannot tell if they are having false memories," Williams said.

"People will go into a courtroom, and they will testify against someone that they perceive may be guilty, even if in fact they may be innocent," Williams said. "But they're having this Eichman memory about that person committing a crime," Williams said.

Interest in FMS had been relatively dormant until a recent surge of attention in the last 20 years or so.

Elizabeth Lothian, a professor at the University of California at San Diego, and one of the leading psychologists in the FMS field, who has spent several decades studying fake memory, will come to the University of Florida to present her research.

"Williams' research request was very interesting because we never knew how students were doing research like that," Eichman told the committee.

"It was really exciting for Williams to find her work and wanted to fund some more research that was happening."}

Tilley said that there are a few things that students can do to ease into graduation and then meet conduct and graduation standards. He believes community colleges will have to establish a relationship with UCF for students who attend community colleges and is working with the DirectConnect program to help with that relationship. The program is meant to ease into a state university and guarantees students admission to UCF's regional campuses, said Peterson. Transfers are crucial to a student's education, and until now, there has been little help for students who want to transfer. There are many reasons why a student is looking to transfer, and with DirectConnect, students will be able to talk to an advisor to see what programs students are expecting and will be able to meet those demands. Students will continue to change majors, but Peterson said, "This will give us a little more time to allow students who want to transfer to meet their needs. We can reach out to them early and make sure we have adequate faculty and staff."

The program also allows students who attend community college in order to stay close to home to continue their education at home. "This is a step to ensure the local students who go to UCF have the desire."

While the current student body is not very large, the results of the program, the program's approach to recruitment, and the future of the UCF community are unknown. More information about the DirectConnect program can be found at http://www.regionalcommunities.ucf.edu/directconnect.

Men's Tennis starts season against BCC
Golden Knights return five to this year's roster

The UCF Men's Tennis team begins its season this Saturday when Bethune-Cookman makes the short trip from Daytona Beach to the UCF Tennis Complex.

UCF returns five players from last year's team that finished the season at 15-11 overall and 3-1 in Conference USA regular season play.

Under Coach Stan Meek, the Knights look to wrap up their respective championships with victories on Sunday.

Rachael Malina, Podgorsek and their respective opponents have lofty goals for their season, and personal goals won't be enough to satisfy their hunger. "I am not too worried about personal accolades," Sailey said. "I'd rather the team be winning."

Sailey may be more concerned about the team because of the new scoring system which is in place for collegiate team play.

Each match features six single matches and three doubles matches. However, in order for a team to score a point in doubles they must win two of the three matches. That leaves 7 total points up for grabs when two teams meet, meaning the first team to score 4 points gets the win.

It may be confusing to the average sports fan, but the system leads to more traditional standings, similar to college basketball.

The team also features an international flavor that sets them apart from any other sports team at UCF.

After kicking off the UCF Invitational with impressive showings on Friday and Saturday, Sunday saw the Knights defeat the University of Houston 8-0 to close out the weekend at the UCF Tennis Complex.

The seven man roster features players from Mexico, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

Despite the different backgrounds of the Knights, Sailey says team chemistry is at an all time high. "The team is real close right now," Sailey said. "We get along great... way better than last year. Sometimes the communication is a little tough... but they [the international players]...

Despite needing a tie breaker to win the first set, they still came away with a 7-6, 6-1, 6-1 win.

TWO-STEP

Magic snap five-game losing streak with victory over tired Cavs

Every year, every season, for every team, there comes a stretch that challenges their mettle and inner strength. For the UCF Men's Basketball team, that time starts now.

The Golden Knights will begin the toughest and most significant road trip of their season Wednesday night when they take on the Houston Cougars. On Saturday they will face the highly-ranked UTEP Miners.

After holding home court over last week to character-testing victories against SMU and Rice, the Knights are on a bit of a high. Currently the Knights are 14-4 overall and 3-1 in third place in the league.

If they can prevail in both games and get a humbling stumble from the UCF powerhouse Memphis Tigers, it is possible that the Knights will be looking down at the rest of their conference foes when they return home.

"We have got to get these two games," junior guard Mike O'Donnell said.

Report may doom athletics budget

A senior-level resolution from the Senate disagreed with the plans for the athletic department and said that the athletic department should be cut.

On Monday, three more senators voiced their opposition to the athletic department cuts. Senator Bob Menendez, introduced a resolution in the Senate that said the Republican administration should not be allowed to cut the athletic department.

So, the Senate disagrees with the plan to augment our finances by $4.25 billion, and the President insisted to consider all options and put an end to the fiscal crisis. This week, the Senate rejected the President's proposal for achieving the strategic goals set forth in the financial plan and development steps toward a financial plan.

Then, again, it could be that it is far too early to leave the decision about the athletic department to others. This is an important decision that requires discussion, analysis, and putting together each party's position. It is not getting restaled — is there a resolution that can work and simultaneously maintain the integrity of the athletic program.

UFC soon has a new coach in a former assistant coach, if you ask me. For one, in the Senate, who were elected to have at least 100 of their constituents, they may be the most passionate people, Senator John Warner, R-VA, Senator McCain, and Senator John Kerry, introduced a resolution in the Senate that said the Republican administration should not be allowed to cut the athletic department.
