SGA president says Greek life has 'bigger problem'
Sig Epsi revokes chapter's charter, out of house by March 12

JENNY ANDERSON

Sigma Pi Epsilon brothers must be out of their on-campus house by March 12, a spokesman for the fraternity and on Thursday, because SGA and national headquarters revoked its charter.

'The decision to withdraw the charter officially was rendered on Monday,' said Chris McCann, director of Chapter Services. 'Sig Epi members put the news Monday, but the decision to revoke the charter was actually made before UCF suspended the chapter last month.'

UCF Student Body President Mark White — a Sig Epi member for four years — told the Future in an e-mail Thursday that 'Sig Eps, SAE, and File are in this together as a part of a bigger problem.'

One Greek system as a whole really needs a general vision and the administration, as well as the students, need to get behind that vision,' White wrote in the e-mail. 'We cannot continue to remove chapters and hope that our system gets stronger with a 'feud mentality that if you screw up, you are gone.' While true.

In the meantime, law enforcement officials cannot investigate the alleged hazing incident that resulted in the three-year suspension of the chapter.

Sig E psi cannot participate in any university-affiliated activity as a fraternity, but students may participate individually or through membership in other groups, said Terry Welch, director of the Office of Student Life.

On Dec. 7, 2006, then-UCF student Cole Stover filed an incident report with the UCF Police Department. The former Sig E psi pledge claimed in the report that he was involved during an hazing event at an off-campus house in unincorporated Seminole County the month before.

3.5 GPA gets first dibs on classes
RONNIE SUDENSKY

Multiple-term registration will be limited to about one in four students at UCF next March because of GPA restrictions, which administrators say are still too low for filling up a wide array of courses.

Students with a 3.5 GPA or higher and students labeled 'special honors' can continue to sign up for multiple semesters at once. Special labeling includes honors, LEAP scholars, Grad On Track students, athletes and hand-bound.

According to John Schell, the dean of the Office of Undergraduate Studies, the decision was made based on the results of focus groups composed of students, advisors and administrators.

'The focus groups showed it was equally divided between benefits and disbenefits for both students and professors,' Schell said. 'We decided to abandon the program just make it useful with modifications to serve the students better.'

Schell said that in the previous years the program problems were coming to the forefront.

'The whole intent from the beginning was for students, but it added a great deal of additional work for administration and advisors,' Schell said.

Helen Hill, director of business undergraduate programs and student support at the College of Business Administration, spearled the committee that advised the provost's office.

'What we were trying to do is that the change is that a number of students feel disadvantaged and that the university able to keep their plans,' Hill said.

According to Hill, the revision was based on student perspectives, not advisa-

Volunteer UCF builds playground

The thoughts and wishes of children in the Winter Park Oaks Apartments materialized Tuesday in the form of a brand new playground.

More than 50 volunteers spent six hours building the playground in Winter Park, led by UCF Special Olympics, Gasparilla, UCF Alpha Omicron Phi, the Winter Park Lions Club, students from the UCF Business Honors Program and the Children's Advocacy Center of Orange County.

The playground is for children ages 2 to 5 and was designed based on the children's wish list.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Rosa Parks were two of the most important figures in the civil rights movement. They worked tirelessly to bring about equality and justice for all people, regardless of race. Their legacy lives on today, and their spirit continues to inspire people around the world.

Leigh Moore, daughter of slain civil rights activist Harry Moore and his wife Josephine, spoke Monday in the UCF Union. She said he was a man of vision and an early pioneer of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Evangeline Moore said.

People in Brevard County and Mims, Florida, don’t know the story of Harry Moore and that is not right, said the daughter of civil rights martyr Harry T. and Harriette V. Moore. "It happened within our profession’s generation."

On Christmas night, 1915 — which was the Moore Family’s wedding anniversary — a bomb exploded underneath their home in their Brevard County home. Evangeline Moore’s older sister was home that night and soon discovered her father and mother buried underneath the furniture, Moore said. Her parents were sent to a hospital in Sanford because it was the closest facility with a black ward. Her father was pronounced dead at the hospital.

One day after she tried to force her way into the cockpit and shut down the shuttle, Nowak showed any signs of trouble. The review process for astronauts who lose their flight roles is typically kept confidential, even from the astronauts themselves. But in the case of Nowak, NASA officials said the decision was made to ensure the public’s confidence in the shuttle program.

The shuttle is used to transport people and cargo to the International Space Station. It is also used to conduct research and to test new technologies. The shuttle is expected to be decommissioned in 2010.

her mother died nine days later from her injuries. "The bomb exploded and the 20th century Moses was gone," she said.

Moore compared her father to Moses because she said that she felt God called her father to lead African-Americans from being second-class citizens in the same way that God sent Moses to free the Israelites from the Pharaoh.

"I knew that my father was sent by God to lead his people out of bondage at a time when no one else had the courage," Moore said.

Celeste Ferguson, assistant director of the Multicultural Academic and Support Services, sympathized with Moore and attempted to imagine how Moore dealt with the loss of her parents. Moore said that she suffers every Christmas and during the bombing but that how it is possible to change things. Her father put forth a major effort to free the Israelites at a time when there was an ongoing problem.

"Despite these beliefs she said that the papers allowed her to remember her life and who she was. "It's close to my heart," Moore said, "just touching them."

The case was re-opened in 1979 by the Brevard County Sheriff's Office and the State Attorney's Office in Brevard when Klansman Edward L. Spivey contacted officials to inform them of a fellow Klansman's involvement in the bombing, but no arrests were made. In 1991 the Florida Department of Law Enforcement launched an investigation whose resulting report was 32 pages long, Moore said.

During Florida's gubernatorial elections in 2006, Attorney General Charlie Crist released his 20-month investigation and released the names of four dead Klansmen who were thought to be involved in the bombing. Evangeline Moore said that this was the only murder investigation following her parents' deaths.

Moore encouraged students and teachers to help her spread the story about her father because her legacy is all that remains. "When the Lord calls me to heaven, I will stop," Moore said.

Central Florida, the program associate of African American Studies, admired Evangeline Moore's commitment to telling others about her and her father. "She is so dedicated to her parents' legacy," Ridley said. "With our generation, we are so complacent with the way things are, and we are not seeking out change, and she is dedicated to showing people how it is possible to change things. Her father put forth a lot of effort to contribute to change."

One student said that it was important for students to understand that promoted awareness about their history. "She is a part of a delta breed," said Shaunti Dean, a senior English literature major. "People say these sorts of things happens, but no one ever happened anything, but I feel she is that bridge that goes that generation from her to us, and if she hasn't been here, I don't think that would have been evident for so many people."

Pi Beta Phi sorority hosted their annual philanthropy event, Roe the Rockers, on Wednesday night in the Pegasus Ballroom. The event brought Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic organizations together for a competition, performing synchronized dances for a good cause.

A large crowd gathered to watch the organizations’ performances, themed from Grease to XENA:WARRIOR PRINCESS. The competition excited the crowd, but the main goal of the night was to raise funds for Toys for Tots and raffle tickets for Pi Beta Phi’s national philanthropy, Links to Literacy, and the Pi Beta Phi settlement school in Tinters.

It already exists. It’s a perfectly functioning organization. It just needs a name and a logo. I think it’s a great idea, but I think we need to be more creative with our marketing. It’s going to take a lot of work to get people to see it as a valuable cause.

But seriously, when you’re fundraising for a charity, you have to make sure that the people who are donating are aware of the work that the organization is doing. It’s important to show them how their money is being used.

Knights hand ECU its ninth C-USA loss

— UCF improves to 17-6 with win over Pirates

CHRIS MOHLER

The UCF Men's Basketball team took another step toward having its second-half road demons, overcoming a poor first-half shooting effort to comfortably defeat East Carolina 104-89 Wednesday night in Greenville, NC.

Senior forward Josh Peppers played his best game of the season, scoring 24 points, shooting 9-for-10 from the field and 4-for-5 from 3-point range and overcoming a loose knee injury to key the second-half run that put the Pirates away.

"He has been struggling shooting the basketball in league play," UCF coach Kirk Speraw said. "It was good for him to break out. He hit some big shots for us.

Peppers, who left the court limping with 16:35 remaining in the game, followed forward Lavall Payne, who left with a lower right knee injury at the 10:05 mark. Payne did not return. Though the injury is not considered serious, but Peppers came back in with 1:05 remaining and made his mark.

"I was just being patient. I was waiting for good looks on offense," Peppers said. "My teammates helped get me open, and the shots just came. I just worked hard and didn't take anything for granted, I just worked every off the whistle. I took my medicine and when we changed what was just being patient. UCF's Anthony McKnight added 13 points of his own and guard Francine Kime started 31 games for the Knights, going an ERA of 1.64.

Junior Allison Feaster returns to the UCF lineup for her second year on the mound.

The Knights dropped Tulsa 75-69 on Sunday behind a strong offensive attack.

Senior guard Francine Houston scored a career-best 34 points and set a new school record when she made eight 3-pointers in the game. Senior forward Kyma Miles added 13 points of her own and guard Amber Long grabbed nine rebounds to beat the Golden Hurricanes.

Houston is currently on a two-game losing streak with their latest defeat coming on behalf of a 64-60 loss to UTEP. The Cougars leading scorer this season has been Tye Jackson, who has led the Cougars in scoring in the past 14 games, despite playing in only 14 of the team's games. Jackson has 19 points in his last four games but it wasn't enough an UCF had four players in double-digit scoring and were able to beat the Cougars.

UCF will look to not only duplicate their strong offensive effort again against Houston but also to increase its against Houston, even though the Golden Knights have the worst defense in the conference. But it might not be that hard a task, considering the Cougars have the second-worst defense in the conference.

Here's a bold statistic that UCF will look to take advantage of. The Knights defense has given up only 33 more points than Houston this season, but UCF has played three more games this season. One of UCF's weaknesses is that they are poor shooting teams. The Knights' 37 shooting percentage is second worst in C-USA, trailing Houston, which is shooting 36.4 percent.

In aggregate from the out-look seems to have had good defense and good offense, only one thing is for certain, something has to give. Game time in 7 p.m. at the UCF Arena.

WOODY WOMACK

National signing day can make or break a college football program. And this year signing day was no different for the UCF Football team. On Wednesday, head coach George O'Leary announced the best recruiting class in UCF Football history.

The class was highlighted by the signing of wide receiver Aphonja Wynn, an athlete that ESPN had as a 4-star recruit last season.

"We are very excited about this class because we were able to address a lot of our needs, especially at the skill positions," O'Leary said. "We went out and specifically recruited speed and athleticism at the wide receiver and defensive back positions and hopefully that has been accomplished.

"We are very excited about this class because we were able to address a lot of our needs, especially at the skill positions," O'Leary said. "We went out and specifically recruited speed and athleticism at the wide receiver and defensive back positions and hopefully that has been accomplished.

Peppers leads Knights with 24 in win over East Carolina out of the timeout, Peppers first brought another 3-pointer that finished a good feed by guard Chip Cartwright to grab a 49-34 lead with 8:46 to go. "We've had 20 leads that we've had, we lost them," Peppers said. "They play a different style of defense than we've seen in a long time, long time, long time. You can't get anything on the interior and they had two ball screens to the hoop. We were getting wide open looks but just weren't making them." That deficit set the stage for BCU to take the lead 9-0 on a Jeremy Ingram 3-pointer, but Terrance Tyler ended the drought with a强行3-pointer. Despite the loss, nearly half of the Knights did not answer by making a basket, which they made just one of 13 attempts.

Listed here are arguably the most severe perpetrators of formulaic romantic comedies and救灾 chick-flick clichés. Be at the threat be afraid of the Valentine's Day.

Suspect No. 1: Barrymore

Click Flicks To Date:

Most Recent Endavor: The Lake House (2004)

Most Unforgettable Effort: Miss Congeniality (2000)

Most Unforgettable Effort: (2006)

Most Common Character: Teardrop, simmered yet ultimately loveable.

Verdict: Just this past week you opened DCW, with a brisk send up of the very formulas that has inspired your career with moderate success. You then manage to subconsciously dissipate some of your comedic chops that really don't deserve to be restrained by the role of a lovingly low interest. Be sure to get your agent a copy of the show, in hopes of guiding you to something a bit more fresh.

Suspect No. 2: Stifler

Click Flicks To Date:

Most Recent Endavor: The Lake House (2004)

Most Unforgettable Effort: .50 First Dates (2004)

Most Common Character: Teardrop. Timid, fluttered yet ultimately loveable.

Verdict: When you're just in for the punchlines, the show, and we end up paying. Thanks to a decent strain or two, maybe it's time to embrace a new strain and guided cores and space us that next rom-com, thank you very much.

Suspect No. 3: Hugh Grant

Click Flicks To Date:

Most Recent Endavor: Closer (2004)

Most Unforgettable Effort: (2000)

Most Common Character: Teardrop. Blundering, arrogant yet ultimately loveable.

Verdict: Oh you so might have heard such, you removed and just enough, just in time, from the chick-flick genre. And at that point, this fine by me. Do keep up the good work.

EASY VARIETY'S DAY STYLES

JAMIE SALABURIA

Staff Writer

Valentine's Day is just around the corner, and you can wear your heart on your sleeves this year with a few different styles.

It is common for people to be splashed during holidays, and thanks to some stores, heart-inspired fashions are not hard to find. At places like Target, dELi.A and American Eagle, you can get decked out without putting a dent in your pocket. And if you do not have a special someone to be your valentine, you can still look in love in V-Day fashion.

dELi.A, which has a store in the Florida Mall and an online store at www.dela.com, has a vast selection of logo tees for women. Some have hearts or cute sayings that can really make an outfit come together.

If you are in the mood for a more dressed-up look, dELi.A also offers a variety of vintage-inspired, V-Day-appropriate dresses to classic up your look. But women aren't the only ones who can show their love through their clothes this holiday. Men can have some Valentine's Day style too, and that doesn't mean that they have to wear pink.

American Eagle and Target have a lot of Valentine's Day-inspired buttons, AR also has a variety of simple polo shirts in romantic colors, like red, so that you do not have to worry about looking great for your dates. Accessories are another way to spice up your outfit. Target offers necklaces with heart charms to help give your romantic card final touches.

Valentine's Day decorations on them to keep your toes warm and stylish at the same time.

All also has necklaces with sayings on them to get you ready for a romantic date. And don't forget the classic look of red nails and red lips. Beauty products can be found in Target and other stores that sell cosmetics, so you do not have to waste too much time running around putting together the perfect look and can spend more time with that special someone.

But no matter what you decide to wear on Valentine's Day, remember: It's what's on the inside that counts.
