John Trubia, 70, saw the large vacuum truck parked on the sidewalk behind CREW, Monday afternoon and curiosi­ ty, if a he called him close to the scene. The retired cop from Apopka had just left the Employee Policy semi­nar at the Student Union, which left his inquisitiveness played, “Now fries.” Trubia said.

A less-than-scientific prediction came from the Sarasota Herald-Tribune, which had a reporter run NCAA Final Four simulations with Peeps jousters. The Herald-Tribune, which took place April 2, 2005, predicted that Florida and Florida State would meet in the title game, and that blowing up marshmallow Peeps puff up until one lance's bugs," said front man and bassist, Ken "The lyrics and content on the new album are our own," said the lead vocalist, "The album's creativity was not born on phone tour buses or in 2007's hottest moment, crammed spaces and isolated combinations. It's a side of rock stars. The Starting Line refined their sound and created a unconventional environment.

When we were recording, we were completely focused on the recording process," said the band's lead singer, "and it was hard for us to think about anything else." As a result, the group may not have experienced the most favorable living conditions while recording, they were able to secure jam sessions with producer Shae-Lynn Lenne, who has worked with such acts as My Chemical Romance and the Used.

The Starting Line's front man of the Starting Line was the band's lead singer of the new album. "My Chemical Romance's sound has matured as people have matured as people," added the group's lead singer. "Now it's time to take our own sound in a different direction."
Disputing the logic of belief in God over science

In the Los Angeles area, is an experienced debater who has been engaged in several notable Christian debates. In 1997, he debated William Swinburne in 2003, and he has been an official campaign speaker and debater for many Christian candidates, including Bill Clinton's presidential campaign.

"The question does a god want us to be in a relationship with him, then he would be more open to things that we come to hear fresh ideas from him," Tabash said.

"Reif's logic is Rejecte, he explained that this was the feeling that we would have to know that there is an all-powerful God wants us to be in a relationship with him, or else we would feel indifferent on the existence of God and the scriptures on scientific basis.

"The Bible was never written to be a book of faith," Reif said. "The Bible was written by people who lived through parables, not as an absolute.

"We have been seeing a trend for two years to debate on the religious side. We have seen the Christian society mainly because they have a majority, and they have also been very loud when it comes to speaking about their faith," Elhimmouni said.

"The debate was the form of a formal debate composed of six major topics, opening remarks, cross examination, closing questions, audience questions, and closing remarks. Reif's opening statement laid the groundwork for his position on the issue.

"We need to produce my thoughts by telling you that they will be coming from the perspective of a moral Christian," he said. "I hope we have other people of other faiths here, and I do not want to overstate or speak for other fields.

"Reif went on to explain his main arguments and reasoning for supporting Christianity and the belief in God by explaining that his opinion, there weren't any philosophical or scientific arguments on the existence of God that could truly be proved beyond any doubt. It all comes down to faith.

"In order to look at these questions, it's important to have a certain amount of creativity," Reif said. "We have to have a very open mind when we're asking those kinds of philosophical questions is to what is possible.

"It explained that this was the creativity that should allow us to see that God is there and real, and that God created the universe around us today.

"His argument for those who doesn't "find God" is that people lose their imagination as they age.

"As we grow up, the world closes the door on imagination and creativity," Reif said.

"Reif also said that the Bible is merely a book that professors fill with passing, not an absolute.

"The Bible was never written to be a book of faith, but it's written as a book of faith," Reif said. "The Bible took issue with the believability of the existence of God and the scriptures on scientific basis.

"I think, with an objective view, you will see that the power of God does not pass a scientific test," Reif told the audience.

"Reif added that "If we are talking about whether we're asking not 'Do we have a god?""

"If we are asking whether it is a matter of faith or a god exist?"

"Tabash's argument is rooted in the fact of Christianity does not exist.

"It is my position that the overwhelming weight of the evidence in our universe makes it more likely than not that there is no God," Tabash said.

"To Tabash, the problem is with faith's exhortation to believe without evidence, as opposed to science, which is based on the acceptance of empirical truths and is always subject to revision when new data is discovered.

"As a method of ascertaining truth, science is superior to religion in that it doesn't have blind spots on things unseen but is empirically grounded in evidence," Tabash said.

"Tabash juxtaposed arguments about the existence of the Loch Ness Monster with his argument positively argue the existence of God.

"Tabash addressed an audience member's question on the definition of God and the relationship between God and the universe as a whole.

"Absolutely, the crucifixion of Christ was meaningless in many cases," Tabash said. "First of all, it really happened, and the story's preposterous and not a serious amount of creativity.

"Even if Jesus was a separate being from God, he's got plenty of proof, and it helped him for a few hours, and then he lives forever as the ultimate being," Tabash continued.

"The whole idea of God taking a piece of his own self, turning it into the idea of God, maybe that's what it is," Tabash explained. "Maybe it's the silliest story ever told on Earth.

"In the end, Tabash asserted that if there is a God who wants us to be in a relationship with him, then he would be more open to the people with his people by showing us some direct evidence of his existence.

"If an all-good, all-knowing, all-powerful God wants us to be in a relationship with him, then God's belief is not mere belief so reasonable," Tabash said. "Tabash said "I feel that if we participate in a few more debates he could become very good.

"If at the close of the debate, many students still felt undecided about the issue.

"I still feel indifferent on the issue," said freshman Thomas Barnett, 19. "I just don't care either way, so I don't stress about it."

"However, other students came with a more optimistic outlook.

"I came to hear fresh ideas because it's nice to get a whole new view on things," said junior Katie Mangus, 20. "I would probably be a Christian if there wasn't enough there, but I still need more knowledge on the subject before I can say that." Mangus said "I was cool if someone could just tell me -- really convince me -- but I can't bring myself to believe so blindly."

Bush says he's 2 days away on greenhouse gas emissions regs WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court rebuked the Bush administration Monday for its inaction on global warming in a decision that could lead to more fuel-efficient cars as early as next year.

The court, in a 5-4 ruling in its first case on climate change, declared that carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases are air pollutants under the Clean Air Act.

The Environmental Protection Agency has the authority to regulate those emissions from new cars and trucks under the landmark environmental law, and by "laundry list" of reasons it has down for declining to do so are insufficient, the court said.

Softball takes two of three
Knights get 5-0 win over Marshall Sunday

MELISSA HEYBOER
Sports Editor

The UCF Softball team moved into a tie for third place in Conference USA on Sunday after a 5-0 win over the Marshall Thundering Herd, the final game of the three-game series. Allison Kime was the winner on the mound, allowing just two hits while striking out seven.

The Golden Knights jumped on Marshall pitcher Caitlyn Jackson early, giving a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning. The Knights were eager to get to Jackson early after being held scoreless in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader in which Jackson got the 2-0 win over UCF. In Sunday's game, Jackson lasted just three innings, allowing three runs on five hits.

In the first, Cowd Alvaro reached first base on a fielder's choice and Advances to second on a sacrifice bunt from Amber Lamb. The next batter, Kime, would hit an RBI single to score Alvaro from second.

A fter the second full week of practice for the UCF Football team, there is still much work to be done.

"I think the team is coming along good," quarterback Kyle Israel said. "It's a totally new defense ... and from an offensive point of view, we're getting there."

The team has been showing the enthusiasm and intensity that coach George O'Leary has been looking for from his players. Much of that can be attributed to the defense side of the ball to new defensive coordinator John Skladany. His fiery attitude on the field has lit a new fire within his players.

"Defensive football has to feed off emotion and intensity," Skladany said.

With the current pressures from the defense, at times the offense has looked dazed and confused during plays. For the offense to gain ground on the defense, it needs to execute plays perfectly each repetition.

Offense:
The theme so far for the offense has been inconsistency. At times the squad will look All-American, thriving the ball up and down the field. But at other times, they can't seem to put a string of three plays together.

One of the key factors in the inconsistency of the offense so far has been the lack of a running game. "I think our running game needs to improve," Israel said.

Without starting running back Kevin Smith in the spring, the bulk of the running has gone to Phillip Smith. Phillip Smith has been unable to find holes within the line to break long runs and also has had troubles finding room in short-yardage situations. Another point of emphasis for the Golden Knights is the running back position.

"A lot of the kids are taking the coaching, which is important." - GEORGE O'LEARY, HEAD COACH

Women's Golf ties for 3rd in Miami Lakes tourney

The UCF Women's Golf team finished third after three days of play in the University of Miami Golf Championship on Monday. Several Knights stepped up and posted their best rounds on day three of the tournament.

Freshman Sara Hurwitz, Leigh Crosby and Victoria Tomko all turned in impressive rounds on Sunday. Hurwitz shot a 3-over-par 75 on Sunday, with a three-day total of 12-over-par 226, while Crosby also finished Sunday with a 3-over-par 75. Tomko shot her highest finish of the season, shooting a 7-over-par 81.

Hurwitz's score also earned a top ten finish for sixth overall. The University of South Florida took home top honors, finishing with a three-day total of 84-over-par 906. Rounding out the remaining top five were Florida Southern, UCF, Rollins College, who tied for third with UCF and Rollins-Cookman.

USF's Christie Jones earned the highest individual finish with a three-day score of over-par 222. The Knights return to action April 23-29 when they travel to Birmingham, Ala., to take part in the Conference USA Championships.

Inconsistency a problem for offense during practice

Key words: offense, inconsistency, defense, improvement.

Inconsistencies in play have been a problem for the offense throughout the season, as highlighted by the Knights' performance in their recent games. The Knights have struggled to maintain a consistent level of play, often alternating between periods of high efficiency and poor execution.

Defensive struggles have also contributed to the offense's inconsistencies. A strong defense is essential for the offense to perform at its best, as it helps create opportunities for the offense to capitalize on.

The Knights need to focus on improving their consistency and execution on both sides of the field to achieve sustained success. This requires improved preparation, better execution, and a consistent mindset throughout games.

Convection under construction

Key words: convection, under construction, ventilation.

The convection system is currently under construction and is expected to be completed by the end of the month. During this period, the facility may experience some minor disruptions due to the ongoing construction work.

The convection system is vital for maintaining a comfortable indoor environment, ensuring proper air circulation, and improving overall facility performance.

Once completed, the convection system will provide a more efficient and effective means of managing indoor climate conditions, enhancing the overall user experience and facility functionality.
We've made it a habit to point a couple of things out each article to remind you to call out to the media when we felt the information was missed.

The AP story was over-publicized, we believe you know why. The report actually focused on two things: March 21 editorial highlighting the gap between the new NASA report and Richard Lapchick for his poorly designed hours when we felt the situation was clear.

The New York Times piece will have very little effect in the baby-making or the use of the war for those who are not already reading it. This is a place for any reader who is in need of self-realization to himself and the government.

The piece is eye-opening, if not disturbing. You will have heard many active-duty stories, but the sheer breadth of the troops about the war and the personal lives that are destroyed is in itself a sobering reminder.

We must be proving that there is something behind what is being told.

There's another reason we bring this piece to your attention: profoundly and forcefully the New York Times piece is clear that there might not be a world left for those who wish to preserve it.

The future is not an option for those who wish to preserve it.

We must think about the future and the environment in the same acts that we have been thinking about. The environment is not at all a new concept, but it is a critical part of our future, and it is something that we must all consider if we wish to preserve it.

The people who are responsible for this piece are not only those who have spoken out, but also those who have not. The message is clear: we must act now to preserve the environment.

With this in mind, we hope you will consider the future and the environment in your decisions, and that you will take action to protect both the environment and our future.

We stand for the preservation of the environment and for the future of our children.

We can't wait.

We must act now.
